Present swarms are breeding and "a new generation of young locusts soon will be on hand threatening the cotton and grain of the Nile Delta on one side and the rice fields of India on the other."

F.A.O. estimated that between 500,000,000 and 600,000,000 hectares (1,100,000,000 to 1, 300,000,000 acres) of Iran, running from the border of Iraq to that of Pakistan, are infested with desert locust eggs. That means a new plague for the future.

So far the Iranian government has been able to clean up only one-tenth of this area. Both the United States and Russia have sent in aircraft and experts to help fight the menace—a rare example of post-war co-operation betwen the two rival powers.

India is helping out, too. Five planeloads of insecticides were sent Iran.

Canada Pays Debt To Soldier's Parents Old Couple In Italy To Get Pension

OTTAWA, May 13 (CP). — The aged parents of a Canadian soldier killed in the First World War are receiving a $40-a-month pension through the efforts of citizens of Modugna, Italy.

Vincent Rana was killed during the First World War. His father Nicholas, was heartbroken and left Toronto for his native Italy. He and his wife settled at Modugna.

As the years passed they found it increasingly difficult to support themselves. The people of Modugna pooled resources and sent Frank Pantaleo, Vincent's boyhood friend, to Canada to seek a pension from the Canadian government.

The Canadian Pension Commission decided Vincent's parents were entitled to a pension.

About a month ago, the old couple, now in their 80s, were granted a $40-a-month pension, a sizeable sum in Italian lira.

Prime Minister Optimistic

West Can Fend Off War If Allies Remain Patient

SACKVILLE, N.B., May 13 — (CP). — The Western powers can continue to fend off war "if we are patient and steadfast," Prime Minister St. Laurent told graduates of Mount Allison University today.

He came heer to receive the honorary degree of a Doctor of Civil Laws at the annual concon-vocation.

The Prime Minister said he is an optimist and that he refuses to apologize for being one.

"Despite the difficulties, all must admit that the outlook or the future is far from hopeless," he said. "I am an optimist and have sometimes been accused of looking at the facts of life through rose-colored glasses. I firmly believe there is solid ground for hope and there is certainly much more for which we in Canada have every reason to be thankful.

"The strength of the free world is growing and so far we have been able to prevent another general war from breaking out. And if we are patient and steadfast, I believe we can continue to do so.

"eW have been awakened to the duties and responsibilities which are ours and I believe we are conscientiously and honestly trying to meet them in a way which will benefit mankind as a whole . . .

"Here in Canada we are particularly fortunate. We have been rich ly endowed with abundant natural resources an dwe are on the threshold of even greater developments than any we have yet known. We are generally prosperous. We have a system of government peculiarly suited to our needs. We are united as a people more than ever before in our history. And we still have great opportunities in front of us—opportunities of the pioneering kind."

Shelve Differences On European Policy

LONDON, May 13 (Reuters) — The parliamentary Labor party today shelved differences of opinion on European policy to present a solid front in Wednesday's European affairs debate in the House of Commons.

A national executive declaration calling for new West German elections before German rearmament had received some opposition, notably from Herbert Morrison, deputy party leader. But the proposal was accepted unanimously at a private meeting today.

The meeting also approved the executive call for early talks with Russia concerning re-unfication of Germany.

The general stand of the party will be in accordance with the points made by party leader Clement Attlee in February, 1951, when Labor was in power.

MP's Asking Endicott Be Charged

Must Be Careful Not Made Martyr Pearson Warning

OTTAWA, May 13. (CP)—Government experts are studying statements of Dr. James Endicott to see if they can pin a subversive-activities charge on the Toronto left-winger.

The head of the Canadian Peace Congress received a tongue-lashing in the Commons Monday for his charges about the use of germ warfare in Korea, but the question of prosecution against him remained uncertain.

Justice Minister Garson said there are difficulties about obtaining evidence against Dr. Endicott —who has denied some statements attributed to him by the Red China radio—but the Minister said a departmental committee is expected to report shortly on the prospects of a charge.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, suggested Dr. Endicott's charges of germ warfare by the United States against China fall within a 1951 amendment to the Criminal Code.

That amendment makes it an offence for a Canadian, at home or abroad, to assist any armed forces fighting Canadian forces, whether or not a formal state of war exists.

"No Defence"

Mr. Drew said it could be "no defence" to point out that the Endicott charges were directed at the United States. The U.S. and Canada were engaged in a common effort.

External Affairs Minister Pearson, without mentioning Dr. Endicott by name, raked him with a rough statement but suggested caution in prosecuting that type of person so as "not to make martyrs of them in a way which would make them more dangerous to us and more useful to the Communists."

Mr. Pearson criticized suggestions that United Nations forces are using germ warfare, calling them a fantastic fraud and a "clumsy hoax."

It was a "slanderous falsehood" to say Canada had participated in any form of germ warfare. It was as false but "more cowardly and despicable" to imply indirectly that Canada was making any preparations in this field except for defence against germ warfare.

Economy Motion

The Commons spent most of the day debating a motion by Mr. Drew, proposing a royal commission to study ways to effect economies in government operations.

The proposal was defeated by a vote of 107 to 29. The four parties split on it, with the Social Credit group siding with the Progressive Conservatives and most of the C.C.F. voting with the government.

Ross Thatcher (C.C.F.-Moose Jaw) broke with his party for the second time in three weeks to back the motion. Earlier, he violated C.C.F. doctrine by advocating that old-age pensions and family allowances be withdrawn from well-to-do persons.

Mr. Drew said federal spending is reaching potentially-dangerous proportions and the royal commission should look into the question of improving the organization and general efficiency of government machinery with a view to economies.

He said federal taxes now are taking such a large slice of the national income that the provinces may become "mere annuitants" of the central government if it continues to cut down on the proportion of taxpayer income left to them.

Don't Need Commission

Trade Minister Howe, speaking for the government, said control of government expenditure is the prerogative of parliament and there is no need for a Royal Commission. It was not likely such a body could make helpful suggestions at a time of expanding defence spending.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said he agreed with Mr. Howe's contention that it is parliament's job to scrutinize spending.

Parliament must guard against government by order-in-council, he said, but "an equal evil would be government by Royal Commission."

COMMEMORATE DEAD—An impressive service was held May 5 at the Canadian Military Cemetery at Bergen op Zoom in the Netherlands province of Noord Brabant to commemorate the Canadians who died on Dutch soil during the Second World War. The date coincided with the seventh anniversary of the liberation of the Netherlands. School children from the district laid bouquets of flowers on each of the 1,200 graves during the ceremony. The graves of Canadian servicemen in Holland are regularly decorated with flowers by Dutch families.

Union Bolting Stopped In Trenton

Director Albert E. Johnston made a flying visit to Trenton on Monday to head off any breakaway in that town from the Textile Workers' Union of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) Back in Peterborough today he reports that Trenton is 100 per cent behind the administration and international President Emil Rieve.

"There's no split in this Trent Valley District," says Mr. Johnston, who has 12 locals representing some 1,450 production workers under his jurisdiction.

His trip to Trenton Monday was to gauge the reaction of 230 textile workers at Trenton Cotton Ltd. This company is one of the Hamilton Cotton Co. chain which has two mills in Hamilton, one in Dundas and one in Trenton.

Anti - administration forces, headed by Jack Robinson, T.W.-U.A. director in the Hamilton area claimed they had the allegiance of the Trenton workers.

"We had a meeting in the cafeteria," says Mr. Johnston, "and we put the issue squarely up to the workers. There was a motion from the floor supporting the administration 100 per cent."

A telegram has been sent to J. Harold Daoust, Canadian director of the union, pledging the support of the T.W.U.A. workers in the Trent Valley District. Three of the locals, representing some 230 workers, are in Peterborough. They are Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co., Fanning's Laundry and Campbell's Dairy Products Ltd.

Mr. Robinson said Monday night that 20 T.W.U.A. locals, representing more than 5,000 textile workers had voted to secede from the parent organization.

Battle On

A battle is now in progress within the ranks of the T.W.U.A. There have been differences between Mr. Robinson and International President Rieve and his associates since Canadian Director Sam Baron was fired two years ago. Last week at the Cleveland convention Mr. Baron sought re-election to the executive board of the union but he was defeated by Mr. Daoust who had the backing of the administration.

Representatives from the Trent Valley District — including Peterborough—voted along with the administration.

In Hamilton, Canadian Press reports a supreme court injunction was served today on Jack Robinson, leader of a secession movement from the Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.)

Effect of the order probably will be that Mr. Robinson and his organizer will have to move out of union offices. Union books and documents also probably will be "frozen" by the move.

Seven Support Him

Mr. Robinson, who said last night that seven of the 27 locals of the union in this area had voted to go all the way with him in his revolt, said today that his members would fight the injunction in the courts.

"If Mr. D'Aoust has all the support that claims he has and believes that the union members will come out in favor of the major group, why does he adopt these tactics," Mr. Robinson asked.

J. Harold D'Aoust, Canadian director of the union, is here leading the fight against the rebels.

The union has arranged for Sydney Emerson, union organizer from Toronto, to take over in Mr. Robinson's place.

Find Fortune Tied In Clothes

CHICAGO, May 13 (AP) — A fortune in cash and securities, all tied up in pink bloomers, stockings and a pillow case, was found Monday in a safe-deposit box owned by an 85-year-old widow who died five months ago.

Officials representing various public agencies found currency—in $1 to $500 bills—totalling $120,712 in the bloomers and stockings. The money in the pillow case will be counted Thursday.

The safe-deposit box was rented to the late Mrs. Cora Drapier in 1915. Before she died last Dec. 9 she executed a will, leaving virtually all her estate, estimated at $300,000, to her lawyer, Pierre J. Peloquin. The will is being contested by Mrs. Pearl Golab, who was left $1,000. She said she was promised $100,000. The will was admitted to probate last week over Mrs. Golab's protests.

The source of Mrs. Drapier's fortune was not definitely known.

Alexander Suggests Germans Train In U.K.

PARIS, May 13— (Reuters). — Earl Alexander, Britain's Defence Minister, proposed Monday that some personnel of the new West German Army and Air Force units should be trained in Britain, reliable sources reported.

This was said to be one of Alexander's suggestions on how Britain can help build the European army.

Alexander also told Rene Pleven, French Defence Minister, that Britain would attach squadrons of the Second Tactical Air Force to the projected European defence community, the sources added.

Alexander, who flew to Paris Monday and left for home Monday night had a five-hour discussion with Pleven at the defence ministry on the interchange of units and officers of the British and European armies for training purposes.

Another proposal was that the British Army of the Rhine, which already comes under the Allied supreme commander, should have the same commander as the European army—to be appointed by N.A.T.O.

Ulbricht openly warned the West that the campaign of resistance against the peace contract would include more mass demonstrations such as the one in Essen Sunday in which one Communist youth was killed.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government at Bonn refused to be frightened by the new manoeuvres. They called Nbricht's statements "primitive threats" and declared the negotiations on the peace contract with the West will continue.

Day-Long Parley

Adenauer held a day-long conference with the West German cabinet to iron out differences in his own coalition over the terms of the contract. Dissident factions in the Adenauer Government claim the present draft of the contract does not make enough concessions to German sovereignty in return for West German participation in the European army.

Reds Charge U.N. Plane Kills Truce Delegate

MUNSAN, Korea, May 13. (AP)—Communist truce negotiators charged today an Allied plane killed a member of their delegation. They also accused the United Nations command of treating prisoners of war in "barbarous, medieval" fashion. Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, top U.N. negotiator, called it "a vicious propaganda blast to widen the breach between us."

The Red charges were voiced by North Korean Gen. Nam Il at a full-dress armistice session. He said an Allied plane strafed a Red truce convoy Monday. The Allies said they would investigate.

Much of Nam's speech was devoted to prisoners, the key issue blocking an armistice. But he did not mention the capture and release of Brig.-Gen. Francis T. Dodd by Red prisoners of war on Koje Island.

When Nam wah finished Joy said:

"For 12 consecutive days we have met at your request. The only valid reason for holding these plenary sessions is to attempt to reach an armistice. Your side, however, continues to utilize these meetings solely as a device by which to put your vicious propaganda before the world.

Widen Breach

"These propaganda statements of yours are calculated not to facilitate agreement but to widen the breach between our sides.

"There is one fact that you are not willing to face or do not understand. The United Nations Command's promise is firm, final and irrevocable."

The main point of that proposal is the U.N. insistence on voluntary repatriation, under which only 70,000 prisoners and civilian internees would go back to Red rule. There are 170,000 in U.N. P.O.W. and interment camps.

The Reds had demanded these guarantees, and many others that Colson did not promise.

The Defence Department emphasized that prisoners were killed only in "incidents at P. W. camps brought on by the rioting of the prisoners." Ninety prisoners and one American soldier were killed in two mass riots on Koje in February and March.

The department said prisoners of the United Nations always have been "treated in accordance with the humanitarian principles of the Geneva Convention and the accepted practices of civilized nations."

Further, the statement said, no prisoners of war have been rearmed, and there has never been any forcible screening." It said Colson probably was referring to Communist attempts "to prevent other prisoners from expressing their free will." One high Washington defence official said all screening was halted two weeks ago.

The U.N. command said the screening disclosed that only 70,000 of 170,000 prisoners of war and interned civilians wanted to go to the Communist side when a truce is signed. This deadlocked truce negotiations.

The 70,000 confirmed Communists are on Koje.

Reporters arriving on Koje on Monday reported the prisoners were in command of their own compounds. U.N. guards stay outside.

Western oil losses ranged to about 50 cents. Albermont, Canadian Atlantic, Federate Petroleum, General Petroleum and New Superior turned downward.

Base metals were mixed. Noranda, Silver Miller, Tungsten and Van Rio strengthened while International Nickel, Quemont and United Asbestos weakened.

Senior Golds eased as Dome, McIntyre and Wright-Hargreaves traded lower. Secondary issues showed a broad list of penny losses.

Report Moro Pirates Kill 500 Villagers

MANILLA, May 13—(AP)—The Phillippines News Service reported today Moro pirates massacred more than 500 villagers on the Island of Dalawan off the British North Borneo coast.

The dispatch was filed by the news service correspondent at Jolo, capital of Sulu Province in the Southern Philippines. He said the information came from a Philippines Army detachment commander in the extreme southern Philippines.

Available maps here do not show a Dalawan Island. But Filipino names for many of the islands dotting shallow waters off the North Borneo coast differ from those on maps.

400 Delegates At Conference

MONTREAL, May 13 (CP) — The 400 delegates to the four-day Eastern Regional Confernece of the Civil Service Assembly of United States and Canada got down to work early today, launching into a discussino of technical subjects while eating breakfast.

Philip E. Hagerty, chairman, said this was the only way all the scheduled work could be completed.

B. M. Sands of Ottawa, assistant chief of personnel for the defence production department and H. Cotlarsky, personnel officer of that department, led a discussion on tardy employees.

R. Lussier, superintendent of the Civil Service Commission of Montreal, and Miss M. C. Guthrie of Ottawa, examining officer of the Civil Service Commission of Canada, led a panel discussion on the value of employee counselling.

The delegates will hold further discussion today and tomorrow, with the election of officers to be held tomorrow.

Dr. George F. Davidson, federal deputy minister of welfare, said Monday night, civil servants are not more intelligent than other people.

"But they are not less intelligent—and don't let anyone try to convince you that civil servants are not paid less than other people doing work of similar quality and quantity."

Dual Frequency Savings Help Offsets Costs Of Changeover

TORONTO, May 13 (Special)—Savings of some $12,500,000 are anticipated in southern Ontario's 60-cycle standardization program through the use of dual-frequency refrigerator units, Ontario Hydro Chairman Robert H. Saunders has announced.

Highly optimistic over excellent laboratory reports on a pilot model developed in the Commission's engineering workshop, Mr. Saunders disclosed that the Canadian Westinghouse Company Limited has produced approximately one hundred of the new-type unit for field testing in both 25-cycle and 60-cycle areas. Efficiency tests conducted by the manufacturer point to the same operating economies now offered by electric refrigerators produced for 60-cycle operation only.

Initial Delivery

Culminating many months of intensive study and exhaustive research, Ontario Hydro and Canadian Westinghouse officials met on May 9 to mark the initial delivery of the special "run" for field observation. "The savings made possible by this outstanding development will have a tremendous impact on our entire changeover program," Mr. Saunders observed. "I cannot speak too highly of the magnificent co-operation given to us by the Canadian Westinghouse organization and many other electrical manufacturers, who have left no stone unturned in working with us to keep down costs. Even before standardization got under way, we expressed our determination to seek out ways and means of developing new techniques as the program went along, always hoping to effect savings in the overall cost. The manufacturers assured us of their full support, and to date the results have been most gratifying.

In addition to the anticipated $12,500,000 saving on refrigerator units, an almost similar amount will be saved through combined economies on fluorescent lighting ballasts, oil burners, motors and motor-driven equipment, signalling bells, and domestic watt-hour meters—representing a total estimated saving on the overall program of close to $25,000,000. Typical of the major savings, Mr. Saunders pointed out, were $3,000,000 through the use of a special auto-transformer for oil burners, and the development of a new technique applied to the conversion of domestic meters, estimated at $3,544,000.

"There will be no let-up in our search for still further ways of cutting down changeover costs," Mr. Saunders emphasized. "It is imperative that we do everything possible to help offset rising costs in other directions. With 886,000 customers to be ultimately affected by frequency standardization, according to our present estimates, every saving assumes great importance. Ontario's rapidly increasing population, and the increase in the everyday use of electrical appliances, have already been reflected in the annual load increase on the Hydro system. The original study and recommendations were based on an average total Southern Ontario system primary load growth of 77,000 kilowatts per annum during the five years 1947 to 1951, inclusive. In this period the Commission actually experienced a load growth of about 160,000 kilowatts per annum."

"The expansion of the province in every way, over the past three or four years," the Hydro chairman asserted, "has exceeded even the most optimistic forecasts of business and industry".

The progress of the standardization program has brought to light Ontario's growing dependence on electricity. The estimated average number of frequency-sensitive appliances per home, prior to undertaking the 60-cycle changeover, was 2.7. A tremendous upsurge in the purchase of such appliances since the program began has raised this figure to an average of approximately four per home. While it is cause for satisfaction, indicating a rising standard of living, it has called for certain revisions in terms of planning and costs, according to the Hydro chairman.

Check Costs

The increase in annual load growth and the greater saturation per home of frequency-sensitive appliances have been going forward during a period in which material and labour costs have also been rising, Mr. Saunders commented. "I cannot emphasize too strongly the importance of dual-frequency savings and new techniques for changeover operations. Just as we are trying to retard 25-cycle growth on our system, we must also hold back as far as possible any increase in costs for the overall program. I am confident that, with the continued help of manufacturers, we will be able to discover other methods of effecting substantial economies. Many increases in costs, such as on labor and materials, are naturally beyond Hydro's control, but where possible we will introduce new savings at every turn".

Ask Films Restricted

LONDON, May 13 (Reuters) — Movie actors and technicians said today they will ask the government to restrict the number of American films allowed into Britain. The film industry employees' council, representing five unions in the business, said the recent close-down of two British studios was a "crippling blow" which would make it almost impossible to increase British output.

Get Good Start

CLEVELAND, May 13 (AP) — Great Lakes freighters, starting their runs in April this year, have moved more iron ore, coal and grain than in any like postwar period since 1949. The navigation season opened in March that year. The Lake Carriers Association, reporting this today, said the lake fleet moved 14,521,660 net tons of the three commodities through April 30. Last year 14,229,170 tons had been hauled.

KHARTOUN, Sudan, May 13—(Reuters) — Eleven executives of the Workers Federation were sentenced Monday to two years imprisonment each for aiding an illegal strike. The two leaders gave such bonds Sunday and were released.

German Settlers Arrived In Canada 200 Years Ago

KITCHENER, Ont., (CP)—German Canadians this summer are to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the arrival of the first German settlers in Canada.

The Canadian German Alliance, which describes itself as a Federation of Germanic clubs and societies in Canada for the promotion of culture and social welfare and good Canadian citizenship, is sponsoring a summer festival in Kitchener, July 5.

It will hold a Canada-wide gathering in Winnipeg July 26 to 28.

Census figures show about 465,000 Canadians of German descent. But some officials of the Alliance estimate it as close to 1,000,000, counting persons who sometimes describe themselves as descendants of Netherlands or Swiss settlers.

N. S. Settlement.

About 2,300 German immigrants arrived between 1750 and 1753 and found homes near Lunenburg, N. S. They used playing cards to draw lots for homesteads. The settlement grew and prospered. In time the settlers developed skill in shipbuilding and produced many a famous schooner.

The next large group was made up of Hessian and Brunswick soldiers, many of whom remained in Canada after being hired by King George III of England for service in North America about the time of the American revolution. Most Rev. Adam Uriais de Pencier, Anglican Metropolitan of British Columbia, traces his ancestry to an officer of the Brunswick Dragoons.

The Hessians in particular decided to stay in Canada after the cessation of hostilities and were settled together with the British Loyalists.

Another German group given the same benefits were the Palatinate Loyalists, a group of Lutherans who had settled in the Mohawk valley of the United States under Queen Anne and had taken up arms for the Engilsh. They were setttled in Ontario's Dundas district, near Hamilton.

Thrifty, Industrious.

In 1794, about 60 protestant families led by William von Moll-Berscy, a painter, arrived in Canada and settled near Toronto.

Another early group was that of the Pennsylvania-Dutch Mennonites, more properly called Pennsylvania Germans. These settlers who families had lived for generations in the United States, settled in Waterloo County and by their industry and thrift made this Ontario area surrounding Kitchener one of the richest and most beautiful in Canada.

A new large-scale influx of German settlers started about 1829, due chiefly to political and economic factors in Europe. Some 50,000 came to Canada, mainly from Baden, Hesse, Wurtemberg and Alsatia. This stream, sometimes slowing up and sometimes swelling, kept up until about 1900.

During the present century, most German settlers have come from the Austrian successor states, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovaka and Romania.

LONDON, May 13 — (Reuters) —Britain's foot-and-mouth epidemic spread further Monday night with new outbreaks among livestock in Staffordshire and in Stirling, Scotland. This brought the number of outbreaks since the epidemic began to 279 and the number of cattle slaughtered to 33,804.

W. F. Morrow Former Registrar Dies At Home

By HARRY THEOBALD

When Fred Morrow was for years chairman of the Court of Revision, the public had the advantage of information that came to him every day in the course of his duties as registrar of deeds.

With him were Thomas C. Ephgrave whose life time experience as a valuator of properties similarly equipped him just as singularly as Mr. Morrow for a position in which accurate information of assessments was highly desirable.

Third member of the Court was Mr. Fred Finnie who as a practical builder was also exceptionally equipped to discuss the merits of appeals before the Court.

Well Informed

It is unlikely that any other group of three men in Peterborough was so exactly informed about properties as were these three, Finnie, Ephgrave and Morrow. Their individual appointments came about perhaps by fortuity rather than by any design, and the effect afforded the Court a mine of personal information.

The Court of Revision has had for a long time a fine record of performance in its service of review of assessments by way of taxpayer appeals. It continues today under the chairmanship of Sheriff John A. Harstone who succeeded Mr. Morrow who previously had been appointed in succession to the late William F. Johnston, barrister.

Mr. Morrow knew property values from the information passing before him as registrar of deeds It was confidential information of much the same kind and quality as the knowledge Mr. Ephgrave also came by in confidence as an expert evaluator of buildings and lands. Mr. Finnie was similarly supplied with facts through his experience as builder and contractor, succeeding his father who was the late James Finnie. It was a most unusual concurrence of peculiar fitness for the duties of that Court.

These men personally held position of trust, and in their professional duties they acquired information of property values which hardly any other persons possessed in the same degree of accuracy.

As men of integrity they could not specifically discuss properties under appeal with direct reference to similar lands and houses which suggested comparative values.

But, each from his own separate source, has pertinent facts guiding his course and decisions as members of the Court of Revision.

Any appellant was assured of receiving the hearing of an informed Court. Its members personally were jealous of their trusts, but incidentally they were equipped with information that was a deep resource of that tribunal of values.

Lumberjacks' Success

OSLO — (CP)—Current reports show that Norwegian lumberjacks exceeded the 1952 timber target by nine per cent. Up to April 15 the total cut throughout the country was 269,700,000 cubic feet, against a planned quantity of 247,100,000.

Peterborough Presbyterial Of WMS Meets In Hastings

The Semi Annual meeting of Peterborough Presbyterial of Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church was held in St. Andrew's Church, Hastings, Thursday with morning and afternoon sessions. There was a good attendance from different auxiliaries of the Presbyterial.

Mrs. A. N. Reid of Colborne presided. Devotions were in charge of Westwood Auxiliary. Mrs. Scott Fife of Hastings extended a cordial welcome to members of Presbyterial and gave a history of their church, which is this year celebrating its 100th anniversary.

Mrs. C. E. Meiklejohn of Warkworth reported for Tuesday, Mrs. McLaughlin of Bowmanville for Wednesday, and also read Mrs. Clark's report for Thursday on the Synod meeting in Lindsay.

The roll call was taken by Mrs. G. G. Stephens, Campbellford corresponding secretary.

Mrs. O. M. Steer, Peterborough, literature secretary, gave a brief outline of the books that were available and also had a display of books and pamphlets for sale.

A delicious dinner was served in Sunday School room by ladies of Hastings church.

The executive held a short meeting before the morning session and met again briefly at noon hour. Arrangements were made for a fall rally to be held in Campbellford on Oct. 22. A committee was appointed to arrange for visits between auxiliaries, which would be held in June.

A very pleasant event was a presentation on behalf of the executive by Mrs. R. N. McCulloch, of a gold life membership pin and bill fold to Mrs. H. Storie of Campbellford, who has been a valued member of executive for sixteen years.

In the afternoon devotions were taken by Mrs. H. Storie, Campbellford. The Rev. R. D. Duncanson, of Norwood brought greetings from Presbytery and Mr. Ritchie, of St. Andrew's Hastings also brought greetings.

After the minutes by Mrs. S. Fife of Hastings and treasurer's report by Miss M. Lees of Peterborough, Mrs. Ritchie and Mrs. Whitred o[illegible]s sang a duet.

The new Presbyterial officers were introduced by Mrs. Harold Tate of Millbrook.

Mrs. McKay of Cobourg introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. John Kellman of Edmonton, President of Edmonton Presbyterial.

Edmonton Presbyterial covers some 500 miles and roads are very poor in wet weather. consequently some of the districts have had no visits for years, Edmonton has doubled its population since the beginning of the war, and housing and other facilities are very scarce. Doctors and dentists have their appointments six months ahead.

Mrs. Reid gave a brief closing message and afternoon session closed with prayer by Mr. Ritchie.

Tea was served by ladies of St. Andrew's Hastings.

How Top Is A "Top Official"?

The Defence Department of the Dominion Government admits that in 17 months between October, 1950, and February, 1952, losses from fire, theft and fraud in military installations in Ottawa and Petawawa have cost the country $1,227,210. But apparently we are not to know any more about this loss; the Government and Opposition members on the committee appointed to investigate this loss wanted to see the auditors' reports, to find out more about it, and were not able to do so. Why? A press report says that "Top officials of the Defence Department who appeared before the committee objected to producing these or any other auditors' reports now or at any future date." In other words, the people's representatives were told by some civil servants to mind their own business.

We grow sick and tired of hearing about the boundless impertinence of civil servants in the upper reaches of Ottawa departments. They are no worse than civil servants elsewhere, no doubt, and no worse than civil servants have been since the earliest dawn of government. But it is a perpetually recurring duty of elected governments to make it clear to civil servants that they are not the government, but merely instruments of government, and that they are perpetually subject to the will of those who have been duly elected to office. Of course, it is a fact that many Ministers are afraid of their senior departmental assistants; a man who has risen to Ministerial rank through the hard grind of party politics may be awed by a general or an ex-professor in the civil service; he may be a victim of the superstition that a professor or a general is always a wise man. But we must insist that Ministers conquer their fear, and startle the professors with a few sharp words; professors are not as self-assured as they look and many of them startle quite easily. In any case it is intolerable that civil servants should tell a Parliamentary committee that they cannot look at auditors' reports. That sort of impertinence should be put down with a strong hand and a sharp tongue.

A Bad Jail

Some reasons for the rioting at Montreal's Bordeaux jail are now being publicized. The Montreal Gazette has had a story of shocking conditions.

Guards are paid only $1,400 a year. They are described as "half-starved" and "crooked." "The starvation wages of the guards force them to take bribes from the prisoners," and they co-operate in stealing food from the kitchens and smuggling it to the cells. They are said to get no butter on their bread, little sugar, and in general, food that is only slightly better than what the inmates get. Food for the prisoners reaches them an hour after it is served, always cold.

To keep the guards, who make up for their poor wages by letting the prisoners run "rackets," a majority of the guards are given long week-ends at home. Only a skeleton staff is therefore on duty, and it is a practice to lock the prisoners in their cells from Saturday noon to Monday morning.

The jail governor, Dr. Zenon Lesage, "who is both accuser and judge insofar as prisoners are concerned" is alleged to be harshly severe.

If the Gazette's story is accurate, the situation at Bordeaux jail should incite the public to change it. As the Ottawa Journal remarks, Dicken's novels have jails that sound like Bordeaux. Canadians should not tolerate them today. Bordeaux is a jail, not a prison, but its inmates stay for weeks at a time. There should be an official enquiry into its administration and conditions.

We hesitate to throw criticism at the Montreal jail when, closer home, is Toronto's Don jail.

No Gas Alarm Here

A new gasoline era for Canada is confirmed by the lackadaisical interest Canadians have in the present strike in the American oil industry and the shortages of gasoline south of the border. The shortage is a foreign matter to Canadians. It would not have been five or fifteen years ago. Canada would have felt the pinch as hard as, or even harder than the United States. Now Canadians yawn, or if they are contemplating a motor tour in the United States, are thinking of taking some extra Canadian gasoline along with them.

A Government order from Ottawa has curtailed flying in order to save aviation gasoline, which Canada does not produce in any significant quantity. But Ottawa foresees no shortage of gasoline and oils for use in automobiles. Canada is now using its own gasoline, thank you.

The Y.W.C.A.'s Children's Theatre

We have been impressed, over the past few years, by the excellent work which has been done in organizing and directing the Y.W.C.A. Children's Theatre by a number of local theatre enthusiasts. A dramatization of the legend of Persephone performed at the local one-act play festival two years ago was a highlight in this work. An act from Toad of Toad Hall performed last weekend was a first-rate piece of work, and Mrs. Irene Campbell, who is director of the theatre at present, deserves great credit for carrying out what was, all things considered, a project of considerable difficulty.

Children's theatre work presents unusual problems, but it brings unusual rewards. It is uncommon in cities of this size; so far as we know, Ottawa and Toronto possess the best and most successful groups of this type in Ontario; apart from them, we know of none which does better work than the Peterborough group. Children's theatre does far more than provide acting experience for a few children; it trains the audiences of the future, and it shows the children who attend the performances that there are values and thrills in the real theatre which are sought in vain in movies or television.

We have no wish to intrude upon the work of the Y.W.C.A. Children's Theatre, which appears to be firmly established, and which has a director of unusual gifts in Mrs. Campbell. We feel, however, that an association of friends of this work could be formed to take some of the burdens from the director's shoulders, and to assure the venture of some financial backing which would expand the work of the theatre, while making it easier to carry out. Much is said and written in these days about the need for work among children of just this sort, and when we have an organization of this kind in Peterborough, it is no more than enlightened self-interest for those citizens who understand what the Children's Theatre means to offer it their support.

Stars And Stripes On Ice

The North Pole, that is the Pole by which compasses are directed, is in Canada, in the Hudson Bay area. How is it, then, that an American air force party, reconnoitring from Alaska, had the temerity to plant an American flag at the Pole on May 4th? No disparagement of Canada was intended, no slight to her sovereignty given. The Stars and Stripes were put over the geographic North Pole, that is, the true North Pole—latitude 90, longitude 180.

This piece of territory is not Canadian, although it is nearer Canadian territory (Ellesmere Island) and Danish territory (Greenland) than it is to American (Alaska). In fact, it belongs to no nation, for it is not earth at all. The true North Pole is in the middle of an ice cap, the North Polar Basin. Beneath the ice is ocean—to a depth of nearly three miles (14,150 feet), so the expedition determined by seismograph echoes, following a detonation made for measuring purposes.

The Pole was located definitely by Admiral Peary (an American) in 1909, following various expeditions into the Arctic. One of the caches used by Peary and his parties was discovered by the recent plane patrol—an interesting link with the more arduous if not braver expeditions of almost half a century ago.

Now, About That Surplus Meat . . .

A Canadian Press despatch which we published Saturday told that the United Kingdom has agreed to accept Canadian surplus meat on a barter basis. The exchange "involves New Zealand." And here is what is to happen: Canada will ship surplus meat to Britain. Britain will hand over to Canada an equal amount of meat purchased from New Zealand. Canada will sell the New Zealand meat in the United States market. An involved exchange, we would say, and if it weren't for the United States being involved in it, too, perhaps we could each keep our own surplus meat at home and save the shipping charges. It is an exchange supporting the old saying that the longest way around is the shortest way to bring the bacon home.

NOTES AND COMMENT

As a medical columnist phrases it, in the language of the consulting-room: "You don't get ulcers from what you eat, but from what's eating you."

Seats for next year's Coronation parade are already being quoted at prices ranging from $50 to $500. The difference is understandable; the higher price guarantees a full 30 seconds of uninterrupted staring at the back of the Queen's head, whereas the fifty-dollar position simply undertakes to show you the back of somebody else's head.

Ontario's highway signs "The King's Highway" will not be changed to "The Queen's Highway," Conservative Highways Minister Dunbar has announced. Too expensive at this time, he says, to replace them. And perhaps he is not unmindful that many people think them to be a tribute to the late Prime Minister King—a notion which Mr. Dunbar would not want to dispel, of course.

America And Europe

By ALASTAIR BUCHAN

THE MONTH OF MAY, in Washington, a time of blossom and fair weather, gladdens the unburdened heart as Shakespeare's "Arden" did. But for the planners and officials of the State Department, May this year is a time of gnawing anxiety.

For it is in this month that the agreements by which Western Germany becomes incorporated into the European defence system, while at the same time regaining a measure of her sovereignty, will either be completed and approved or delayed for many crucial months to come.

◇ ◇ ◇

MAY 1952 is the culminating point—or the breaking point—of a long-cherished aim of American diplomacy, the rearmament of Western Germany. For eighteen months — ever since the American Chiefs of Staff decided that the defence of Western Europe was imposible without the raising of a German Army—American diplomacy has been aimed towards the finding of a formula that would enable and encourage the Germans to raise military forces while meeting the fears and objections of Germany's traditional victims in Europe. The formula has existed for many months, the European Defence Community, by which the West European countries have and control a common army, together with a new agreement with Germany by which the former occupying powers—France, the United States and Britain—become treaty partners of Western Germany with certain special rights and obligations to her.

MANY DEADLINES have been set for the final working out and signing of the necessary papers to put this formula into effect. At one time it was hoped to have it completed last autumn. Last August, last October, the New Year, the middle of February have been target dates by which all the elaborate technical negotiations were to have been completed.

But May has a special significance and finality as a date by which these agreements must be ready.

◇ ◇ ◇

TO PUT THE FORMULA into effect the American Government must take two steps: (a) The new contractual agreement with Germany, by which the Occupation Statute is converted into a peace contract, must be ratified by the Senate without whose consent the United States cannot enter into any new or revised international obligation. (b) To gain the acquiescence of the Germans to the formula the Atlantic Nations decided at their Lisbon meeting in February that a protocol should be added to the North Atlantic Treaty extending the N.A.T.O. (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) guarantee of assistance in the event of external aggression to Germany. This must be ratified by the Senate. (c) In addition, it is considered highly desirable, in order to assure the support of French opinion for the new formula, that the President should make a declaration backed up by the Senate that any defection from the European Defence Community (E.D.C.)—that is by Germany — would be viewed with the gravest misgivings by the United States and would make the United States reconsider her relationship with Germany.

◇ ◇ ◇

BUT THIS IS an election year and the Congress is ramping to get away by July 1. Therefore, if these agreements are to get through the Senate the experts consider that June 1 is the latest day on which they can be presented. There is a possibility that other matters may necessitate the recall of Congress in the autumn. But there is no certainty about this and it seems likely that if the agreements cannot be signed in Europe during May they cannot be ratified by Congress before next January. Without Congressional ratification of the contractual agreement with Germany, no German troops could legally be recruited. Without Congressional ratification of this or the N.A.T.O. protocol it is doubtful if the French or German Parliaments would ratify them. If another nine months is to go by without it being possible to begin on German rearmament the validity of the whole policy—and of the American attitude towards the defence of Western Europe—is in doubt.

◇ ◇ ◇

MAY, THEN, is an age of anxiety for the State Department officials contemplating the riot of blossom outside their windows. Almost every day for the past six weeks something has occurred to deter or undermine the hope of speedy conclusion of the contractual and the E.D.C. agreements; the Soviet Notes with their clear intention of weaning Western Germany from the West, the Franco-German dispute over the Saar the fears of the Belgians, the adoption by the British Labour Party of a demand for four-power talks before concluding arrangements with Western Germany, the splintering of Dr. Adenauer's political support and the stiffening demands of the Opposition in Germany.

◇ ◇ ◇

SURROUNDED by this shoal of torpedoes the State Department has, to its credit, lost neither its sense of purpose or direction. The officials recognize that they have made several mistakes in the past, in particular that the importance which the chiefs of staff attached to German rearmament lead in the early stages of negotiations to the jettisoning of many diplomatic counters which would have come in very handy at the present time. But I do not know of one senior official who even under the closest questioning is prepared to admit that the disruptive forces may still wreck the formal enfolding of Germany into the Western system.

THEY KNOW that they are forcing Europe down an unfamiliar road to a goal that they believe, and they believe that Europeans believe, to be ultimately desirable. They believe that their gentle but persistent pressure will win, and that they are receiving in the shape of last minute bargaining and back door pressure is nothing more lasting than—to quote a current State Department cliche—"The gooseflesh that comes before a dive into cold water."

But Mr. Acheson and his advisers are equally aware of the fact that at this stage there is very little that the United States can do to affect the success or failure of the final negotiations now going on in Bonn and Paris. The lines are set, the final concessions have been made; the United States has virtually no room left for diplomatic manoeuvre. The State Department is well aware of how much the success of its policy depends upon the statecraft of Dr. Adenauer—of how much it has given hostages to his good faith and political judgment.

The Skeptics

A Dutch Boy's Wooden Shoes

(PORT ARTHUR NEWS-CHRONICLE)

"A LITTLE Dutch boy came to our school yesterday. He left his wooden shoes outside the door when he went in. The other children laughed at him and teased him until he started crying. This little boy received a wound in his heart he will not forget for a long time, on his first day of school in his new home land."

Tho quotation is from the opening portion of a letter received from one of the rural school areas close to Port Arthur.

As the writer goes on to say, in a plea for greater consideration of the newcomers to Canada, "it is not easy to come to a new country where everything is strange. . . The least we can do is to offer these people a friendly smile. Some of these people have left behind them everything that was dear to them. Let us help them to feel at home here."

The letter was signed by a woman whose name indicates that she or her parents were also newcomers not long ago and of other than Anglo-Saxon nationality, but most certainly, from the sentiments expressed, worthy and valuable additions to Canadian citizenship, as so many other Finnish people are.

The story about the little Dutch boy who left his wooden shoes outside the door when he went first to join the classes of his new school home in Canada is a reminder, also, of another little Dutch boy, son of an immigrant family, who once went to school in Ontario. The original family name was Reyerzoon. It was changed afterwards to the Anglo-Saxon form of Ryerson.

The young son Egerton who, perhaps also left wooden shoes outside as he went to classes, became one of the most famous Canadians. He served the Methodist Church as a missionary among the Indians. He established the Christian Guardian, long known and influential as an organ of the church. He founded Victoria University, now incorporated with the University of Toronto, and became the superintendent of education who organized in Ontario one of the world's best school systems. Such was his career of service that it will keep his name forever on the list of illustrious Canadians.

This other little Dutch boy who cried when teased about leaving his wooden shoes outside the door on his first day at school in Canada will never forget the hurt, but he, too, may rise to comparable heights, because there are still opportunities here and because he, too, has already apparently had the training of good parents, the kind that Canada should be happy to welcome.

Flood Relief

(SASKATOON STAR-PHOENIX)

MR. STURDY has been in Ottawa to seek federal assistance in helping flood victims in southwestern Saskatchewan. He has apparently argued that the floods are in the nature of a national emergency. We think this would be difficult to prove. It is true that the people who have been victims of the flood will need some public assistance to get their homes and businesses re-established. But we have seen nothing to suggest that this assistance is beyond the financial capacity of the province to provide. Only a few persons in a few communities have been badly hurt in these floods. We should be able to look after these people ourselves and save our arguments about national emergencies for something that is really beyond our capacity.

An alternative argument which seems to have been advanced is that the failure of dams constructed by the federal government has aggravated the flood situation. Mr. Gardiner has suggested that this is a matter for discussion between the head of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation director and Saskatchewan welfare administrators. We are not at all sure we should press this argument too far. We must remember that the dams were built at the urging of the people of Saskatchewan and were designed to benefit the districts in which they were located. It seems to us that we should not expect to reap all the advantages of a federal water conservation program and at the same time refuse to accept the normal risks involved. If we push this argument to the limit, it might discourage a good many federal works designed for the advantage of the province.

This whole business of trying to push off on Ottawa's shoulders part or all of the cost of every misfortune strikes us as the worst kind of cheese-paring. Has the cabinet no self-respect?

STRONG STUFF

A crowd had gathered round a man selling tins of corn-cure. After a long speech he asked if anyone had bought a tin before. A voice from the back of the crowd shouted, "Yes, I had a tin last week."

"Thank you, sir," said the salesman. "And did it do all I say?"

"Yes—and more. My wife used it to polish the furniture and it took all the knobs off the chest o' drawers!"

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

All thy works shall praise thee, O Lord; and thy saints shall bless thee. They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power; to make known to the sons of men his mighty acts, and the glorious majesty of his kingdom. (Ps. 145: 10-12.)

For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away: but the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you. (1 Pet. 1: 24, 25.)

For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many redound to the glory of God. For which cause we faint not; but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day.

For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal. (II Cor. 4: 15-18.)

Letter To The Editor

WHY A TORONTO LAWYER

Sir: It was with a great deal of amazement that I read in May 9th issue of The Examiner where the police commission have decided to engage a Toronto solicitor to defend one of their constables in the damage suit filed by Glen R. Tate against the said constable. What I would like to know and I am sure a good many more ratepayers also, what are we paying a city solicitor for? Is he not capable of handling this case or have we no other solicitors who are capable enough to do the job without having to send to Toronto for one? Oh well, don't worry, the police commission are going to pay the costs of the case, but where do the police commission get their money from? Only from the poor overburdened taxpayers. Oh well, just add two or three more mills to the tax rate next year. Boys, we are gluttons for punishment.

FRANK SMITH.

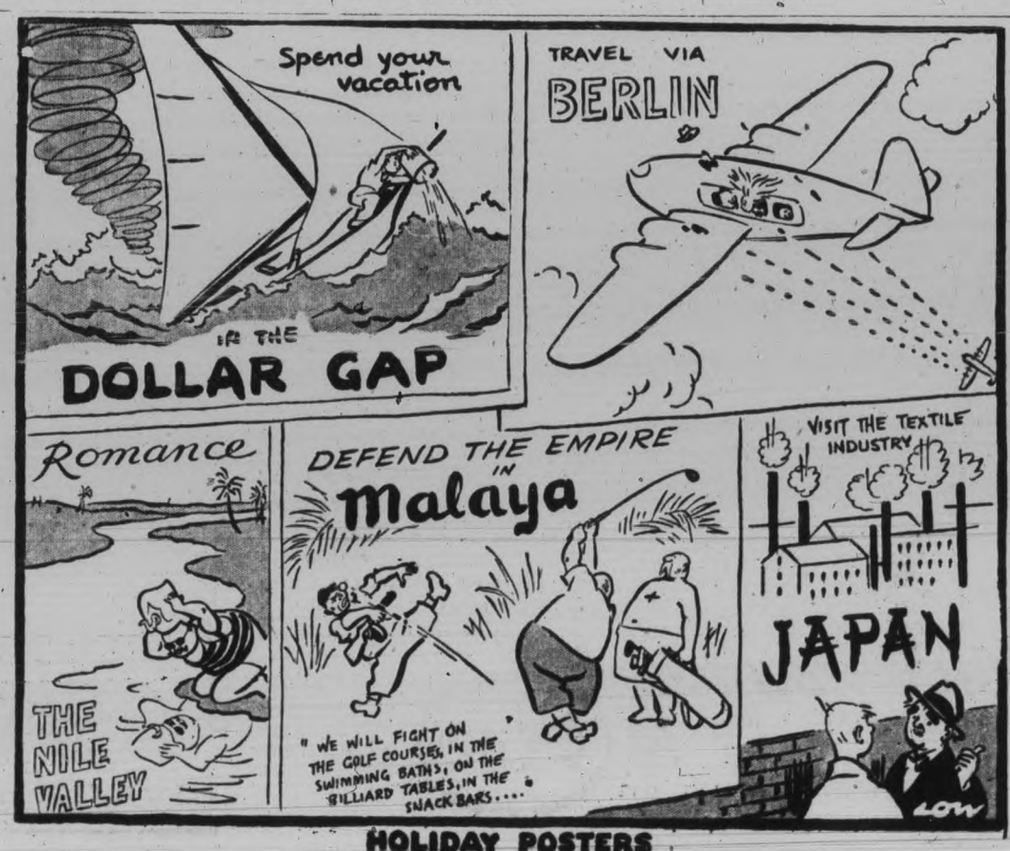
Painful and Shameful

(Brantford Expositor)

The disclosure, in Toronto, that certain city jails are still being used by provincial authorities to house mental patients, on the grounds that there is no room for them elsewhere, is likely to shock a great many people. Indications are that an aroused municipal and public conscience, and perhaps even a rehabilitated administrative conscience, may insist that this Bedlam-like situation be corrected.

Unfortunately the Ontario provincial authorities are not noted for quick or decisive action in such matters, as witness the experience of Brantford—a distressing and disgraceful experience, let it be emphasized.

Many months ago, this newspaper exposed and criticized a practice, long accepted here and apparently throughout Ontario, under which some persons unfortunate enough to become mentally ill were detained, not in a hospital but in the common jail, until such time as the machinery of committal procedure could achieve their admittance to a proper mental hospital.



HOLIDAY POSTERS

Share-The-Wealth Woes Hit Winners Of Soccer Jackpot

LONDON—(CP)—When company director Norman Barlow-Graham hit a $225,000 jackpot in an old country football pool, he also fell heir to a wealth of worry.

It all started after the 48-year-old business man publicly admitted his good fortune and casually remarked he didn't need the money.

Word spread quickly. He was reported to be the owner of a country estate, a mansion staffed by a corps of servants and a colossal wardrobe including 500 suits, 700 shirts and 60 pairs of shoes.

He no sooner had accepted his prize when letters came from all parts of the Commonwealth, outlining ingenious suggestions for its disposal. Cables, telegrams and telephone calls followed.

Most of the well-wishers were primarily interested in getting a slice of the Barlow-Graham fortune, although a few admitted their willingness to settle for a few articles of clothing from his "well stocked" wardrobe.

One, more enterprising than the rest, offered to swim the English Channel for his benefit, plus $4,500.

The mail kept rolling in until the total he was asked to disperse amounted to nearly $500,000. When some of the letter-writers threatened suicide unless he answered their pleas, Barlow-Graham called for a truce and wasted no time changing his address.

But before departing he groaned: "Please tell them they can't have my clothes. I've only the same as any ordinary business man. I can't give them $500,000 and I can't even reply to their letters unless I hire half a dozen typists and several linquists."

Two More Farms Optioned Near Simcoe

SIMCOE, May 13 (CP) — Two more South Norfolk farms were optioned the past few days by the unknown principals in the mystery land deal, according to information obtained during the weekend.

One is the 100-acre farm owned by James I. Moore on Highway No. 24 midway between Simcoe and the Half-way House. The other is the 50-acre farm owned by Wilfred Thorne, also situated on the west side of Highway No. 24, a short distance south of the Moore farm.

OTTAWA, May 13 (CP)—Livestock marketing disruptions are boosting Canada's meat stockpile. The stockpile rose to 87,894,000 pounds on May 1, a jump of almost 20,000,000 from 68,693,000 a year ago, the Bureau of Statistics reported Monday.

Honor Mothers, Worship God —Rev. A. E. Larke

SPRINGVILLE, May 13 (ENS) —Mother's Day was fittingly observed in the Sunday school when a special order of service was used. Don Sargent read the scripture and Betty Stevens a story and the Junior Boys' Class sang.

In the church service that followed at 11:15 a.m. the Rev. A. E. Larke administered the sacrament of infant baptism to four children: Gordon Bartus Visee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Visee; Mary Faye Lily Edgerton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Edgerton; William John McCall, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. McCall; Wilbert Ronald McCall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy McCall.

"Mother's Day" said Mr. Larke "is to honor our mothers, not to worship them. It is to worship God as we honor our mothers". We must remember that God is to be the centre of all our life and thinking.

"Christian mothers," he said "accept Jesus Christ as their Master and Saviour and as they feel their need of help in the duties of motherhood, they want to dedicate all their powers and gifts to the raising of their children in the nurture of the Lord."

Christian mothers gave us Christian homes and Christian nations, he said. The cause of broken homes is often that mothers haven't taken seriously the task of motherhood. Christian girls were advised not to marry unchristian husbands and not to believe that they can reform men after they have married them. To avoid heartache and sorrow of an unhappy marriage, choose wisely at the beginning.

The women of the past who have contributed most to their time were Christian mothers who were (1) devoted, devout Bible reading and praying women; (2) women who consecrated their children to God at their births and prayed for and prayed over them; (3) women who used wisdom in their discipline. "Letting children do as they please is wrong." (4) Women whose thoughts and interests were above themselves and their own home interests. (5) Women who instilled religion into the minds of their children and opened their children's minds to appreciate loveliness and goodness.

In closing, Mr. Larke said, Let Christ be central in your home—the head of the house and choose this day to consecrate yourselves afresh to the things our Christian mothers stood for.

Mr. and Mrs. Larke contributed a duet "'Our Mothers' Song," with Mrs. Harry Bothwell at the organ.

A large congregation was present for this special service and also to welcome Mr. Larke back from his trip to the Canadian west.

Mining Aiding Ontario Economy

TORONTO, May 13 — (CP) — Mines Minister Gemmell said Monday night Ontario's mining developments "assure us of a permanent domestic market of the utmost importance to our whole economy."

In an address over a provincial network of the CBC in the free-time "provincial affairs" series, he said interests "of very great experience and financial strength" are opening up the Marmora iron deposits in east-central Ontario. Developments here promised a major industry to a part of the province where it could confer immense local benefits.

Mr. Gemmell said the province's iron mines now produce 3,000,000 tons of ore annually. Fourteen years ago there was no iron-ore production in Ontario.

"Our experts believe that our iron-ore reserves are at least 2,000,000,000 tons. Three-quarters of this tonnage being available in the Steep Rock and Michipicoten districts," said Mr. Gemmell.

It had been predicted that by 1960 Ontario would be producing not less than 15,000,000 tons a year.

MP's Criticize Floor Prices

OTTAWA, May 13—(CP)— Two C.C.F. members from Saskatchewan Monday night criticized the government's floor-price policies and said long-range floors must be established and enforced if Canada's Agriculture industry is to be stabilized.

The critics were Hazen Argue (CCF — Assiniboia) and Percy Wright (CCF—Melfort).

Mr. Argue said farmers are not receiving floor prices laid down by the government for beef and hogs and that the packers are making a "shambles" of the government's floor price on eggs.

Canada should have the floors written into a law by which the packing companies could be forced to meet the floor or be penalized.

Mr. Wright said if the government had carried out promises it would see that floor prices were enforced.

The only way Canadian agriculture would operate successfully was to have a long-range policy. Otherwise there would be no stability.

Canada Bars 573 Books

OTTAWA, May 13 (CP)—Canada bars the importation of 573 boks and 86 magazines and other publications, Revenue Minister McCann made known Monday in a return tabled in the Commons.

A list of the books tabled by the minister showed they run from Stalin's "Questions on Leninism" to Mae West's "Diamond Lil" and the "The Constant Sinner."

Many of the books are on sale in Canada anyway, because they are published in this country. The minister's list covered just those whose import in published form is banned by his department.

Most of the barred boks, from their titles, deal with sex. Some apparently contain Communist propaganda.

The authors whose works appear on the list include Tiffany Thayer, Erskine Caldwell, James T. Farrell, John O'Hara and Donald Henderson Clarke.

40,000 More Jobless Than Year Ago

TORONTO, May 13 —(CP)— Despite the fact that unemployment in Ontario has dropped steadily during the last three months, the National Employment Service said Monday that there are still 40,000 more jobless in the province than a year ago.

There are approximately 80,000 persons looking for work—almost 30,000 fewer than at the end of March.

Light manufacturing is still in a slump. Some 13,700 factory workers were on part-time shifts in April as compared with 1,677 in this category a year ago.

Demand for unskilled labor has been light in Hamilton, Peterborough, St. Thomas, Sarnia and Wallaceburg. But conditions in Toronto are improving. An increased demand for stoves, furnaces and refrigeration units has made it possible to recall many workers.

Several textile factories in Cornwall have recalled laid-off employees, but are still operating on three-and four-day weeks. Southwestern Ontario carpet and woodworking trades also report improvement in employee outlook.

Faster, Effective Relief from Pain!

What difference does it make whether a pain-relief tablet dissolves in water or merely disintegrates?

Actually, it makes a great deal of difference. Here's why:

The usual-type headache tablet does not dissolve in water—it only breaks up into little acid particles.

By comparison when you drop Disprin, the new tablet for headache relief, into a glass of water its active ingredients dissolve completely to give you a true solution which is rapidly absorbed into your system.

Because this Disprin solution is free of undissolved acid particles, and because it enters the system so quickly it goes to work faster and is less liable to cause stomach discomfort!

Disprin is palatable, pleasant to the taste. Even children accept it readily.

Solon Low Suggests United Opposition

OTTAWA, May 13 (CP) — An invitation to opposition groups to get together against the government was extended in the Commons Monday by Solon Low, Social Credit leader.

Mr. Low said that is the only way for them to "get back from this government powers that have been arrogated to themselves by a group who disregard the rights of parliament."

He said there is an attitude on the government's part that the opposition is "just a bunch of nuisances."

Mr. Low was speaking in support of a Progressive Conservative motion for a Royal commission to review government spending and administration.

The motion was opposed by M. J. Caldwell, C.C.F. leader.

J-M ASBESTOS BUILT-UP ROOFING

More than three quarters of a century ago, H. W. Johns co-founder of Johns-Manville, had an idea for a new kind of roofing. A roof covering "built up" of layers of asbestos, pitch and other materials. He worked with an old clothes wringer and produced the forerunner of modern Asbestos Built-Up Roofing! Today, thousands of commercial and industrial structures count on J-M Built-Up Roofing to resist fire . . . stand up under blazing sun, driving rain and freezing ice!

J-M ASBESTOS FELTS

Asbestos Felts, developed originally for roofing, are now widely used in hundreds of industrial applications. Men Softballers Clear Decks For Loop Opener

The decks were cleared for action in the men's City Softball League at a "Y" executive meeting last night, President Bob Batley presiding. Five clubs are in: Lindsay, Lakefield, U.E.W., Revoy's and East City, the latter expecting to get a sponsor shortly. Play opens with a double-header in the Bowl on May 22, Revoy's vs. U.E.W., and Lindsay vs. East City.

Payne and Smith so far have been accepted as umpires but one or two more are needed. Applicants are to contact Secretary John McPhee, at 209 Murray St., this week. Arrangements are being made for the opening ceremony, and the schedule for the season will be drawn up in the near future. The league again is affiliated with the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, and will play twin bills during the schedule on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

The Yankees won 7-4 as Sain stayed in the game to pick up his second victory.

Petes Agree To Carry On In Three-Club Ball League

BELLEVILLE, May 13 (Special) —The Central Ontario Baseball League was pared down to three teams here last night with a remote possibility of a fourth and fifth squads entering the slim loop.

Three definite entries are Belleville Redmen, Kingston Ponies and the Peterborough Petes. Smiths Falls, contacted during last night's meeting of the C.O.B.L. executive, here, expressed willingness to enter the loop, their decision hinging on the outcome of a meeting of a league down east.

Kingston, Belleville and Peterborough teams, despite the withdrawal of Picton and Batawa, decided to keep the league alive and will operate on a three-team basis with the hope that Smiths Falls and possibly a team from Brockville will round out a five-team loop.

To Carry On

In fact, the Belleville-Kingston-Peterborough representatives unanimously decided to go ahead with the trio and laid down opening dates.

Kingston Ponies and Peterborough will open the league schedule at Peterborough on May 24, the game starting at seven p.m. Kingston will open at home on Monday, May 26, with the Belleville Redmen as their guests. The Redmen will stage their opening game here on June 2, with either Kingston, Peterborough or another entry as the opposition.

Picton decided against C.O.B.L. entry due to financial difficulties. Arthur Duncan, representing Batawa, attended the meeting and said that his team dropped "3,000", last year and the Bata Shoe Company after footing the loss had decided against C.O.B.L. entry.

Picton, Batawa and other district teams have formed a Hastings and Prince Edward County league to give players or less than senior calibre a chance to play baseball.

Don't Expect Much Help

By The Associated Press

International League clubs are not expecting too much help from the majors although the big boys must trim their rosters to 25 players by midnight Thursday.

The league-leading Montreal Royals, for instance, are not counting on additional players from the parent Brooklyn Dodgers. Rival managers are of the opinion that the Royals are strong enough as it is.

Buffalo's second-place Bisons stand to fare the best of the eight teams. The parent Detroit Tigers must chop three players from their roster and Buffalo may land pitcher Wayne McLeland or hurler Ken Johnson.

May Get Help

The fifth-place Toronto Maple Leafs also may get some new players. The parent St. Louis Browns are three over the limit but according to rumors they may do some trading. The Leafs would like to get outfielder Earl Rapp, who starred for Buffalo a number of years ago.

Springfield and Rochester are the only other teams that may receive reinforcements. Springfield is a farm club of Chicago Cubs, who are one over the limit. Rochester is owned by St. Louis Cardinals, who must dispose of two players.

Syracuse Chiefs, an independent, and Baltimore Orioles and Ottawa Athletics apparently will have to stick with what they have. The Orioles are a Philadelphia Phillie farm club and the Athletics a Philadelphia American outlet. Both the Phils and Athletics have pared their rosters to the limit.

Rain washed out every game on the league's schedule Monday.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Listening to the radio Sunday night, we heard such fine oldies as "Singin' in the Rain," "Together," "Always" and "I'll See You in My Dreams." And we remarked to the missus that radio programs today are filled with music written in the 20s when we were kids. Ah, the Golden 20s. The best decade so far this 20th century. Apart from TV, what have they done since? Nor have sports improved to any appreciable extent. A bit faster time in the sprints, maybe, a faster pace in the scrambly type of hockey today with a raft of subs available to maintain that pace, but not much else. We don't believe in beating the drum for the old days, but the fabulous 20s was a decade apart.

* * * * * *

What have we today in boxing to compare with Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Harry Greb and Mickey Walker? Is there another world's all-around athlete like Jim Thorpe? None can yet compare with that flawless Finn runner, Paavo Nurmi. Nor Gar Wood and Sir Thomas Lipton in sailing. Big Bill Tilden and Suzanne Lenglen ruled the tennis roost and their like hasn't been seen since. What ball players could touch Ty Cobb, Hornsby, Ruth, Speaker and that bunch? Don't tell us today's hockey stars were better than Morenz, Lalonde, Cleghorn, Clancy and the rest. And so in every line of sport in every country. Like Lionel Conacher, best athlete in Canada.

* * * * * *

'Twas a Boom Here, Too

Coming closer to home, we had some fine sports in this city. And whopping crowds. There was never a better ball team here than that of the early 20s, the days of Heckman, Whitehouse, Rose, Swanston, Harrison, Cherrett, Wolff and the others. Nor a finer puck squad than that of Bailey, Collins, Ranger, McLeod, Parker and Dwyer. Excellent lacrosse, rugby, road races, swim competitions, and so on. Sports locally have blossomed at times but that was a 10-year period packed with top performance and top entertainment by outstanding athletes for paying crowds which rivalled the turnouts of today's much larger city. It was a boom decade in every way.

* * * * * *

Why? Well, 'twas just after the first world war and it looked like we'd have peace for evermore. Cars were coming into their own, the radio arrived, talking movies appeared, more work and pay for everyone in a relaxing atmosphere following the war. Everyone wanted to play. And sing. That's why so many of those songs composed then are sung today. We've had a depression since the 20s, a long, nasty one. Then another bitter war. With peace came only the threat of a third world war—a threat still very much in the air. So, we step along at a lively pace today, but we don't enjoy our fun like we did in the Golden 20s. Nor our sports. At least that's the way it loks to us. If this is too pessimistic, let's dig back and come up with that fine old ditty of the 20s "Sittin' On Top of the World."

* * * * * *

Then There Were Three

Jack McNamara, Al Menzies and Bill Huntley represented the Petes' ballsters last e'en at a C.O.B.L. meeting in Belleville, but little was accomplished. Just three clubs represented, Peterborough, Kingston and Belleville. Seems the others—Trenton Flyers, Napanee, Picton and Batawa—have backed out of the picture, figuring these three city clubs would be too strong for them! Isn't that a fine setup at this late date? Executive decided to contact Smiths Falls, but that's a long and costly trip for the Petes. Anyway, that's the story at the moment, and the Petes may be carrying on in a three-team loop. Local officials are checking into all angles today.

* * * * * *

Senior O.L.A. schedule is in tonight, and shows the opener here this Friday, Owen Sound Crescents playing the Petes' Timbermen. The two Mann Cup champs of the past two years. Meantime, the Petes have a practice game with the local lacrosse juniors at 7:30 tomorrow night in Miller Bowl. Good practice for both with their rugged season ready to commence. Local club will have 15 home games ere playoffs, Toronto, Mimico and Hamilton coming here three times and the others twice. Playing coach Bob Thorpe has pretty much the same squad as last year, with three ex-juniors coming up, and two veterans—Mick Magee and Em Creighton—retiring. Petes have two home games ere they hit the road on their first trip.

Amputees' Team Makes Debut

SPOKANE, Wash., May 13 — (AP) — An amputees' softball team, one-legged men in the infield and one-armed men in the outfield, made its debut in a regular city league Monday night and got licked 11-6.

The amputees, most of them war veterans, had a rough time with ground balls but did well enough at the plate to stay in the running. Far from discouraged, they agreed with young Lee Hargis who said: "We'll win plenty of games when we get used to this."

Hargis left his leg on a Korean battlefield. He can't manoeuvre well enough to paly yet but he yelled himself hoarse coaching first base.

The limbless ball players, entered in the Class C Sunset League as the Amputee Athletic Association, were organized last month by Jim Larkin, 21-year-old ex-marine who lost an arm in South Korea.

Larkin got their names from an artificial limb dealer in town and from the veterans' administration. A local club put up $900 for franchise fees, bats and flashy red uniforms.

Use Pinch Runners

Larkin batted in the first run with a sharp single. He was his teams' fourth outfielder, one of three concessions the league made. The amputees are also allowed to lead off base—against the rules in softball—and can use pinch runners for legless players after they reach first.

Even the bat boy is an amputee, 12-year-old Jimmy Murphy whose left leg was severed in an auto accident three years ago.

The Northwest Alloys team picked up five runs in the second inning when the amputee infielders took some spills and made four errors.

The fans stood up to watch when a ball was hit to left field. Seven times they saw one-armed Bob Howard haul it down, flip the ball in the air, drop his glove, catch the ball and fire it in. Howard is an ex-paratrooper.

The amputees, a bit nervous at the start, gained confidence as they went along. Catcher Wally Nickerson, who lost his foot in an elevator accident, even tried a bunt in the sixth and almost beat it out.

Maglie, Garcia Have Best Mark

NEW YORK, May 13 —(AP)— Pitchers Sal Maglie of New York Giants and Mike Garcia of Cleveland Indians today boasted the best earned run averages in the major leagues.

Maglie, ace of the Giants' strong mound corps, has yielded only five runs—all earned—in 44 innings, for a phenomenal 1.02 earned run percentage.

Garcia surrendered 12 runs, seven earned, in 54 innings for a 1.17 percentage, to top the American League. The Indians' righthander has won four games and lost two. Maglie is unbeaten in five decisions.

Maglie and Garcia were among the leaders in earned runs last year. The swarthy 35-year-old Giants righthander won 23 and lost six last year and ranked second in the National League to Boston's Chet Nichols with a 2.93 earned run mark. Garcia (20-13) was sixth in the American in 1951 with 3.15.

Didn't Qualify

Steve Gromek, Garica's teammate with the Indians, actually owned the best E.R.A. in the American League, but he did not pitch the required 25 innings to qualify. The 32-year-old righthander has hurled only 22 innings, allowing only two earned runs for an 0.82 mark.

Baseball experts generally evaluate a pitcher's effectiveness by his earned run average, rather than his won and lost records. Any run permitted by the pitcher that has not been aided by an error or a passed ball is scored as earned.

Runners-up to Maglie and Garcia are Karl Drews of Philadelphia Phillies (1.36) and Duane Pillette of St. Louis Browns (1.36).

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Four Canadian sports reporters said Monday in Vancouver after their return from a month in Korea and Japan that Dominion troops are eager for news of North American sports.

The four—Bill Good of Vancouver, Doug Smith of Montreal, Henry Viney of Calgary and Tom Foley of Ottawa—arrived home after telling Canadian soldiers and sailors in the Orient about the major sports events on this continent.

"Everywhere we went the boys practically overwhelmed us with questions about sports news," said Good. "They were really behind on what's happening in Canada and the United States."

In the Orient, the newspapermen showed moving pictures of recent outstanding sports events and gave talks to the troops. In some cases they lectured and showed movies within 1,000 yards of enemy positions.

They talked sports to soldiers in slit trenches and showed their movies under the stars with enemy gunfire as a backdrop.

Sal Maglie, pitching star of New York Giants, Monday was named April winner of the Hickok pro-athlete-of-the-year competition. He adged Terry Sawchuk, Winnipeg-born goaltender of Detroit Red Wings, 110 to 109.

Joe (The Toe) Aguirre, place-kicking artist of Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union for the last two years, was a surprise turnout this week when Edmonton Eskimos started spring training. He moved to Edmonton last fall and may replace Annis Stukus, retired coach, in the convert and placement department if he can get his release from Winnipeg.

Catcher Del Wilber was sold Monday by Philadelphia Phillies of the National League to Boston Red Sox of the American Baseball League. It was a straight cash deal. With the Phils in 1951, Wilber hit .278 in 84 games.

Washington Senators Monday traded second baseman Cass Michaels to St. Louis Browns for pitcher Lou Sleater and infielder Freddie Marsh. Michaels has batted .233 in 22 games this season while southpaw Sleater, with Kansas City of the American Association this year, has a 0-1 record.

St. Louis Browns, still seeking pitching help, have claimed Frank (Stubby) Overmire on waivers from New York Yankees. The Yankees got Overmire from the Browns a year ago for southpaw Tommy Byrne and considerable cash.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union Monday announced the signing of Stuart Clarkson, former centre for Chicago Bears, as line coach for the 1952 season.

Righthander Tom Morgan of New York Yankees Monday was accepted for service in the United States army. The date of his call will be announced later. Last season he compiled a 9-3 won-lost record for the world champions.

Young Fighters Lazy—Dempsey

CHICAGO, May 13 (AP) — And in this corner, ladies and gentlemeno, we have Jack Dempsey who will punch out some advice for today's fighters. He says:

"The trouble with most kids is they don't want to work. After three or four fights they want to be champion. And they can't take advice.

"Being a fighter you must do a lot of things you wuoldn't do ordinarily in order to get on top. You gotta be a mean guy to be champion. You gotta be pretty cruel to be a fighter.

"You see a guy standing there with his hands down and you shut your eyes and give him what it takes to get it over. You could hurt someone. Thank God I never did."

Dempsey, in Chicago to referee one of his 150 or so wrestling matches per year, said if he were just starting out as a boxer again, and knew what he knows now, he would "go to school and get an education, maybe a law degree."

The old Manassa Mauler weighs 40 pounds over the 180 he scaled when he won the heavyweight title from Jess Willard in 1919.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Hockey has faded now into that past which envelops sports events so rapidly, as seasons overlap, with hockey intruding on football, baseball pushing its way in on hockey. The cheering is a distant echo, the cups have been won and lost, individual feats are entered in the records.

There's an award for almost every individual performance in the major hockey of today, a great many too in the lesser leagues, which is the way it should be. When athletes can rise above the level, and soar to greatness by their own skill and courage and spirit, it's only fair and just that this should be recognized in some tangible fashion.

Unfortunately for one player in the National Hockey League, who did all this, plus, there is no award for a courageous come-back, not even a special notation in the records, which are coldly mathematical, and don't delve into the human side. Yet, if any player deserved some recognition that would entitle, him into special notation, special award, that player who should have been worthy in large and generous measure of such recognition would have been Winnipeg's Samulel James "Sugar Jim" Henry, goaler of the Boston Bruins, who survived the buffeting of Fate, survived a fire that scarred his hands and arms, and returned to stardom.

Hockey developed some great figures the past season, but we doubt if any of these is so compelling, so fraught with the rugged romance of sport as the return of Henry to the Big Time. This is pure Hollywood, throughout the piece. A high-voltage script-writer could pen no more gripping drama.

Jim Henry first won a spot in the major league with New York Rangers, in 1941. But his stay there was short, for at the end of his first season, he enlisted in the Army to serve in World War II, remained there until the end of the fighting. Then he returned to hockey, played briefly with Rangers, after which his sports pathway was a dizzy zig-zag lane that seemed to be leading nowhere. Twice he came up to Rangers, alternating with minor league chores. Then to Chicago in the Big Time, then suddenly back to the minors, for three seasons.

This isn't offered as a history of Henry's hockey meanderings. We merely paint it in for background, to prove that, despite vicissitudes, real courage doesn't weaken. Three years in the minors was bad enough, but the worst came in the summer of 1951. A flash fire suddenly enmeshed Henry at a summer resort camp, he was badly burned about the hands and arms. That, you might think, would spell the end of a career in hockey, where hands with speed and certainty are, for goalers, almost as essential as lightning reflexes.

But Henry didn't give up. He reported to the Detroit camp of the Red Wings, for he had played the previous season for Indianapolis, a Detroit farm team But Indianapolis already had a good goaler, young Hall, so the chances for Henry with his burned hands remaining even in minor hockey looked slim.

But Boston Bruins of the National League needed a goaler. They tried to buy Hall, against their own judgment, were talked into purchasing Sugar Jim Henry, for a moderate sum. The club started poorly. Boston didn't win a game in its first ten. Henry's job seemed shaky. Then the team improved, but near the end, seemed to have little chance to make the play-offs for the Stanley Cup. But near the end of the race, Bruins started to roll. They won or tied all but two of their last 12. And the star, the steadying influence that backgrounded the drive — that carried them into the finals? Why, none other than Sugar Jim Henry, with his fire-scarred hands and his unshaken courage.

There's no prize for come-backs, for those who survive the bludgeoning of fate with head unbowed. If there was, Sugar Jim Henry would be one of the candidates.

Winning Close Ones Reason Tribe, Brooklyn At Top

By JOE REICHLER, Associated Press Sports Writer

Know what's keeping Cleveland, Washington, Brooklyn and New York Giats up or around the top in the Major League standing? Ability to win the close ones. The reason the Giants were able to edge out the Dodgers for the National League pennant last year was because they had a 34-21 record in one-run decisions to Brooklyn's 31-23 mark.

A check of this year's figures shows that the Dodgers and Senators own the best record in close contests. Each club is runner-up in its league. The league-leading Giants and Indians are second in the one-run department.

Present Record

Here is the won-and-lost record of the clubs in the one-run decision department:

National League

	W	L
Brooklyn	6	1
New York	3	1
St. Louis	6	3
Chicago	5	5
Cincinnati	5	5
Boston	3	5
Philadelphia	1	7

American League

	W	L
Washington	4	1
Cleveland	6	4
Philadelphia	3	2
St. Louis	4	4
Detroit	3	4
Boston	2	3
New York	2	3
Chicago	3	6

The next two weeks will tell whether Washington in the American and Chicago and Cincinnati in the National, the three current surprise clubs, are really improved over last year or are morning glories.

All three will be on the road. The Senators, only two games out of first place, take on the Tigers tonight in the first of three games in Detroit.

The Cubs and Reds, tied for third place with 14-9 records, invade the east.

The pace-setting Giants and Indians begin long home stays. Leo Durocher's National League champions, with 10 victories in 11 road outings, open a 14-game home stand against the Reds. The Indians play host to the world champions tonight in the first of nine at home.

Giants Beating Irvin Jinx

NEW YORK, May 13 —(AP)— The folks who buried New York Giants when Monte Irvin broke his ankle are sneaking down back alleys. They wear the guilty look of a man caught lifting a newspaper out of a trash basket.

By circling the western bases and Boston at a sprightly 10-of-11 clip, the Giants proved they were no one-man baseball club. Maybe the imminent loss to the army of Willie Mays will prove they are a two-man club.

Right now it looks more like a Sal Maglie - Larry Jansen - Jim Hearn club. The unbeaten "big three" of the pitching staff is 10-0 for the year. Wes Westrum (.333) and Whitey Lockman (.310) are the only .300 hitters on the club.

The Giants are the hottest thing in the majors.

Stallings managed the 1914 Boston Braves who came from last place in the National League in July to take the pennant and beat Philadelphia Athletics in the World Series in straight games. He revived International League Baseball in Montreal in 1928 after a 16-year lapse there.

Jury May Go To See Cabin In Bertrand Case

HULL, Que., May 13 (CP). — The trial of Rheal Leo Bertrand, 37, may adjourn Wednesday to allow the judge and jury to visit the lonely logger's cabin 60 miles north of here where, it is charged, Bertrand murdered his wife last Nov. 10.

The proposal to visit the cabin at Lac Ste. Marie was made on Monday by defence counsel Joseph Ste. Marie.

Chief Justice Francois Caron, presiding at the second trial of Bertrand on the murder charge, said if the trip is possible it would save much of the court's time.

Little evidence was given during the first day of the trial. Most of the time was taken up in the selection of the 12-man jury. Ninety-seven men were examined out of a panel of 116 before the jury was completed.

Crown attorney Avila Labelle said the crown will attempt to prove that Bertrand—employee of an Ottawa dry-cleaning plant and part time amateur psychologist—killed his 55-year-old wife to obtain her $30,000 estate.

Reviews Evidence

Mr. Labelle reviewed evidence given at Bertrand's first trial, which ended abruptly with the death of Mr. Justice Valmore Bienvenue, who suffered a heart attack while addressing the jury.

The crown attorney said he will try to prove that Bertrand poured gasoline over the body of his wife and set the cabin on fire.

Bertrand was heavily in debt, Mr. Labelle said, when he married the former Rose Trepanier last September. Three months after the marriage, the two went on a hunting trip to Lac Ste. Marie.

Mrs. Bertrand's body was found in the fire-swept cabin in an isolated valley near Lac Ste. Marie.

Professional Business Women's Club Plan Special Week

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Ontario are sponsoring a provincial business women's week May 19-24.

It will be the first venture of its kind in Canada and a report on it will be given to the biennial convention of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in Vancouver July 13-18.

There are 68 B.P.W. Clubs in Ontario, with more than 3,000 members. Each member is also a member of the Canadian Federation, which has more than 6,000 members in all provinces; and a member of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, which has 347,000 members in 20 countries.

A release from the Ontario body says:

"With the growing influence of women in political and economic life, business and professional women's clubs everywhere are doing what they can to inform their members of the issues of the day—locally, provincially and federally, and with an eye on the international scene.

Intelligent Ideas

"The members of these clubs feel it is highly important that women use the franchise intelligently and have informed opinions of issues which concern all segments of society."

Concerning business women's week the release says:

"Communities will find out that these women have constructive ideas. It will be realized that these women are taking an active part in community effort—in effort that goes beyond their own community, because they are in contact with women in every part of the province, of Canada and of the world."

Business women's week will include special club meetings, poster displays, broadcasts, church services and so forth.

The slogan will be: "'Keeping Pace With Canada."

Newsmen Given First Peek At Senate Divorce Action

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

OTTAWA, May 13 (CP)—A peep at parliamentary divorce actions at long last has been provided members of the press gallery.

The consensus: divorce appears to be quick and apparently painless.

A group of reporters Monday was allowed to attend sessions of the Senate divorce committee where actions are instituted.

The idea was to give newspapermen a view of how things work. They were asked not to name individuals.

So far as could be learned it was the first time others than members of parliament, participants and officials have been permitted to witness these actions.

Since confederation in 1867 parliament has been the source of divorce for provinces lacking their own facilities. About 5,000 couples have been separated by this method. The current rate is between 200 and 300 yearly. There was one in 1868. Adultery is the only ground.

Wives Lead

Nowadays only Quebec and Newfoundland lack divorce courts. Most of the petitions originate in Montreal and wives lead by 2 to 1.

It all starts when a petitioner asks passage of a private bill dissolving his marriage. By common consent years ago the task of initiating the bill fell to the Senate which decided that evidence would be heard by a standing committee of not fewer than nine senators and not more than 20.

After the committee approves a divorce bill is passed without question in the Senate proper and the House of Commons usually takes similar action without studying the evidence or questioning it. The bills do not become law until given Royal assent by the Governor-General.

This procedure has engendered considerable criticism among private members who believe divorce is something for the courts alone. Many think they should examine the evidence, if not the witnesses.

Stanley Knowles, C.C.F. member for Winnipeg North Centre, recently introduced a bill in the Commons aimed at transferring the divorce job to the Exchequer Court of Canada. It was defeated on almost a straight vote, the government supporters present voting against it, the groups in opposition supporting it.

To Continue Fight

Mr. Knowles says he will continue his fight to remove divorce from the jurisdiction of parliament. He plans to introduce a similar motion at the next session unless he or someone else thinks of a better plan.

The reporters listened to actions in three cases Monday with two section of the committee sitting. The three cases occupied the two sections about an hour. All were from Montreal: All virtually identical in detail.

The petitioners were all women. They were represented by gowned lawyers and the proceedings were exactly as in ordinary courts of law.

The petitioners presented their statements, led by their counsel, and submitted to occasional questions from the committee. They told almost identical stories of trouble with their spouses, of being left alone, of having special investigators shadow their spouses, of the evidence of adultery discovered in hotel or other premises, and of their complete ignorance of any collusion or conniving with spouses in order to get the divorce.

Same Investigators

The petitioner in each case was supported by evidence of two private investigators who uncovered the evidence of adultery. In two actions the same set of investigators appeared.

That closed the inquiry part. The committee members satisfy themselves that children are unlikely to suffer hardship if the divorce is granted and make their decision immediately or later. Sometimes they press the petitioner about the possibility of reconciliation if the evidence seems to indicate that possibility. The committee has no power to rule as to children or property but does grant permission to marry again.

Cost to the petitioner, so far as parliament is concerned, may run above $300 depending on the length of evidence to be transcribed.

If there is evidence of need on the part of the petitioner and other circumstances inviting consideration, the committee may and often does remit the Senate charges. But the petitioner may run into heavy costs for investigation for evidence, witnesses and legal fees.

Tooth Brushing Halts Decay

TORONTO, May 13 (CP) — A leading authority on tooth care said Monday that old-fashioned tooth brushing after every meal or snack still is the ideal method of preventing tooth decay but "it just isn't practical."

Dr. Gordon Nikiforuk of the University of Toronto had just told the 85th annual convention of the Ontario Dental Association here that adding fluorine to drinking water cuts tooth decay by 50 per cent.

Then, he added that a person can cut decay by rinsing the mouth with water after every meal. "But the rinsing must be done vigorously," he warned. "A gentle little mouth gargle won't do much good."

Brushing the teeth after every meal was still more effective, but people just hadn't time for it.

Recommend Wm. Beggs For Council

Would Fill Vacancy Left By Resignation Of Norman Graham

The appointment of William Beggs to the vacancy in the city council caused by the recent resignation of Ald. Norman Graham was recommended at a meeting of the finance committee Monday.

Whatever the course of discussion behind closed doors as the last phase of the meeting, it was obvious today that the members had swung in behind the idea expressed by Ald. A. B. Burrows when the council accepted the resignation of Mr. Graham.

"There is a little matter the Mayor wants to discuss with us," said chairman Ald. T. D. Miller, in the usual prescription of dismissal.

Stood Sixth

As recently reported, Mr. Beggs stood sixth in the polling at the municipal elections last December. The top five are elected in the aldermanic list.

Ald. Burrows remarked that if Mr. Beggs had received labor support in the voting he would be favored for the vacancy by those who aided his candidature.

There was no doubt behind the Burrows comment. Mr. Beggs was a labor nominee. The recommendation of the finance committee goes to the council next Monday night.

Trapped Beaver

CAMPBELLFORD, May 13. (ENS)—How he got there, no one knows, but Trent canal employees are going to considerable trouble to release a beaver trapped in a lock at Healey Falls north of Campbellford. The lock will be slowly flooded to avoid harming the beaver now 10 feet down. While he is waiting, the beaver is being fed by the lockmaster.

Old City Hall Taking Up Space "Tear It Down"

With parking space on its site as the only means of revenue from the old city hall property at Simcoe and Water Sts., the finance committee recommended Monday night demolition of the building.

"Tear it down" was the blunt phrase of Ald. H. S. Longhurst in his motion that was seconded by Ald. A. B. Burrows ending discussion of the community question of what should be done with the obsolete and vacant municipal headquarters of other years.

A report prepared by City Clerk Outram at the recent bidding of the council briefly reviewed the advertisements which had been placed in various papers including the Financial Post inviting tenders for purchase or lease of the land and building.

Neither had other "ads" brought response for purchase or lease of the property with the building removed.

Alterations $85,000

Mr. J. H. Eastwood estimated at $85,000 the cost of suitable alterations for prospective business or commercial use. Although reasonably sound structurally, the building's heating system is worn out, and complete re-wiring would be required, the report informed the committee.

An estimate of rental value supplied by Sands and Bateman suggested $3,180 for the ground floor, $2,000 for the second floor and nil for the attic, amounting to $5,180 a year.

Mr. Outram recalled that some persons had once expressed interest in part of the building, but the fact remained that the council had not received any reply to its advertisements for sale or lease.

The ground space, Mr. Outram's statement continued, would accommodate 57 parking meters. On the basis of returns from the meters on the former market for five months, Mr. Outram indicated an expected revenue of $7,079 a year.

The most valuable part of the east half of the central block was on Charlotte St., he commented, and for that reason should be sold first.

Parking Needed

"There is no question about the need of parking space," Ald. T. D. Miller, chairman, remarked.

Ald. H. T. Rehill said: "If we can get occupation of the place on a paying basis, I would be in favor of tearing down the building."

Ald. S. J. Black: "Would you consider it if we got an offer for the building in the meantime?"

Ald. Rehill: "We don't have to take it if it wasn't good enough."

"I am as reluctant as anybody about tearing down, but we have to be realistic," Ald. Miller said. "The building is only a liability as it is, and not an asset. It is hindering the council from getting revenue from parking meters."

"It's a white elephant at the present time," Ald. Herbert Young said.

"They ripped down the old Auburn mill in a hurry, and then were sorry about it," Ald. Black interjected.

Sentiment of the discussion was that two series of advertisements had discovered no one actually interested in all or part of the building or its site. It was also felt that the council had waited long enough to get results if there were any likely to materialize.

So, the motion carried, with another recommendation inviting tenders for the demolition of the building, hopefully for salvage value.

It was also decided to dispose of the weigh scales and housing. City Solicitor Huycke told the committee the council was not obliged to provide public weigh scales. The alternative was to license some private scales.

Board Of Education Gives Contract For New School To Charles H. Huffman Ltd.

Split Vote Accepts Tender of Lowest Bid Board Asks City Council To Issue $250,000 Debentures For School

In a four-to-two recorded vote the Board of Education decided Monday night to accept the tender of Charles H. Huffman Ltd. for the general contract to build the 10-room school in Ashburnham. The motion was carried after 50 minutes of discussion at a Board meeting called specially to deal with letting the contract.

Some of the trustees had questioned the legality as well as the ethics of a trustee, who is also a member of the committee awarding a construction contract, making a tender on that contract.

Last Thursday, at the May meeting of the Board, the question of the legality of such an award was referred to the Board's solicitors, T. J. Carley, Q. C.

Found Legal

Mr. Carley found that it was legal for Charles H. Huffman—a trustee and at the same time a shareholder in the limited company making the lowest competitive bid—to hold both positions. However, he said that Mr. Huffman is barred from voting on any issue involving his company

He based his findings on a reading of the Public School Act and a number of precedents. The Municipal Act does not apply to these school matters, he said.

Mr. Huffman retired while the trustees discussed his bid. When he returned and heard the verdict he offered to withdraw from the accommodation committee (which awards the general building contracts) if that was their wish. At the same time he said he thought he was most useful to the Board on that committee because of his professional aptitudes.

"Any matter concerning this school. . .I won't have anything to say on it," said Mr. Huffman, "but I will on other schools."

"I'd like to hear how the chairman of the accommodation committee feels about it," said Mr. Huffman.

Asks For Retirement

"The chairman of accommodation wishes you would retire," replied G. Wilson Craw. "You have been a tower of strength to the committee but you are going to have to work with the architect. . . there may be difficulties."

Previously Mr. Craw has said he would not want to be chairman of the committee if the contractor were sitting on that committee.

"Mr. Huffman has never had a contract under Mr. Parkin (J. D. Parkin Associates, the architects)

Dangerous Driving Charge Laid After Inquest Verdict

MARMORA, May 13. (ENS)—A charge of dangerous driving has been laid against Bruce Wagar of Parham, driver of the car in which Donald Snider, 24, of Wagarville, 35 miles northwest of Kingston, was killed on May 5 after the car crashed into the side of a northbound train. The accident occurred at a level crossing on Highway 7 two miles east of Marmora about 5:30 p.m. Snider and Wagar were driving east in Snider's car, and the train, a mixed freight and passenger, was northbound.

On Monday, a coroner's jury found Wagar negligent "due to being under the influence of liquor." Dr. Ward Smith of Toronto, attached to the attorney-general's department, testified he had found alcohol in blood taken from Wagar.

Urge Wig-Wags

The five-man jury also recommended strongly that a wig-wag signal be placed at the crossing to prevent future accidents.

Medical evidence showed that Snider drowned in a pool of water at the north side of the highway. The train had dragged the car across the road and pushed it into the pool, which held about 12 or 14 inches of water.

The inquest was conducted by Dr. R. S. Beatty of Madoc, coroner, with acting crown attorney L. Maraskas of Belleville examining the witnesses.

Members of the jury were: Doug Sanderson, foreman, Joseph Murray, James Marett, Basil McTaggart and Kenneth Snider.

New City Lots Start At $150

Plan of the Queen Elizabeth housing subdivision north of the city was approved by the finance committee of the council Monday night in a motion by Ald J. A. Dewart and Ald. H. N. Young. It provides for 123 building lots, and five acres for the Queen Elizabeth School which becomes a property of the Board of Education when annexed.

The committee also ordered a plan for the records at the registry office.

These preliminaries were completed as recommendations to the council to expedite the opening of the property for the building of dwellings as promptly as possible.

The sub-division will offer 40 lots at $150 each, 18 at $250 and 51 at $400. Total revenue is expected to be $33,000 as compared with the cost of $24,832. An increase of 10% in the price of other lots at August 1 was proposed as a stimulus to early buying.

Some Have Services

The plan and report was prepared by City Engineer Chalmers, Assistant Commissioner Davis and City Clerk Outram. It was said that the 51 lots at $400 each reflect the advantage of necessary services now available. Those lots are ready for immediate occupation, and construction of houses can begin at once.

The other two groups are at lower prices because services will have to be extended to them. The eventual frontage charge will have to be paid by the purchasers.

Police, Posse Hunt Boy For Four Hours

A four-hour search by provincial police and a posse of farmers which led through the knee deep muck of Douro swamps finally ended in the capture of a 14-year-old escapee from a Toronto training school Monday night.

Although covered with mud from his afternoon flight through the bush, and suffering from blood poison and brush burns, the youngster still had enough energy to make a final dash for freedom from a farmhouse when he saw a provincial police cruiser drive into the yard.

A report that two boys were bothering school children in the yard of St. Frances de Sales school and had threatened the school teacher touched off the search early in the afternoon.

Tried To Check

O.P.P. constable John Cawood was despatched in a police cruiser and saw two lads walking along the Warsaw Road. He had them get into the police cruiser and drove into Douro to try and check on their story that they were working for a farmer, Rob Allen who lives in the district.

At the time, there was no information about the pair, other than that they had been bullying the youngsters in the school yard. Constable Cawood went into the Douro general store and he was just outside, when a man came in to say one of the boys had leaped out of the cruiser and was running away across a field.

Then the other boy, 15, told Constable Cawood they had escaped from the Toronto training school.

Several men in the vicinity of the store were recruited to try and catch the boy and taking one man with him, Constable Cawood drove around a sideroad to try and head the boy off.

However, the first managed to get into a swamp and while the man watched to see the other did not escape, Constable Cawood and several volunteers began wading through the mire and bogs of the swamp.

None of the pursuers were equipped for the heavy going, and the smaller and lighter boy had the advantage.

More farmers joined the search but by 8:30 p.m. it looked as if the hunt would have to be called off for the night.

Spotted On Farm

Then, a second police cruiser which had arrived after Constable Cawood radioed for assistance relayed the information that the boy was at the Allen farm.

He had hid in the haymow where Mr. Allen's hired man had found him. He knew the Allens because he had worked on the Allen farm for a couple of summers.

As the police cruiser drove into the yard, the door of the farmhouse burst open and he took off, running like a deer through the field.

An order from Constable Cawood to "stop," had no effect and the boy continued running. Then, Mr. Allen repeated the order and he stopped. Mr. Allen went across the field and brought him back to the cruiser.

Neither of the boys had eaten for three days, and the 15-year-old lad was housed in the county jail overnight. The runaway who had torn his clothing racing through the bushes had severe brush burns on his chest and was taken to Civic Hospital where he was also treated for an infection in his left hand.

Advice Sought For North Survey

Far northern surveying jobs just seem to gravitate naturally to the firm of Pierce in Peterborough since the outstanding father-son feat of establishing the Manitoba-Ontario provincial border over the past several years. Started by the late Mr. Pierce, the big job was completed about three years ago by his son, John.

Now another job has come up, but due to the pressure of district affairs John will not undertake it. Tenders were called by the Department of Lands and Forests to survey a line starting 165 miles north of Port Arthur at Whitewater Lake for 85 miles along longitude 89 degrees, 15 minutes. The line is to be cut west from there to Cat lake along the 11th Base Line for a distance of 75 miles.

Since bids were not forthcoming to the department for this work, they have decided to do it themselves and hope to complete it by Sept. 1. Their engineer, Mr. McKergow, will arrive in Peterborough this week to get some instruction and help from Mr. Pierce in observation procedure.

Pinball Machines Looted As Owners Watch

While the proprietors watched them play their pinball machines, a group of slick pinball players picked the lock on at least two machines Monday and made off with an unknown amount of nickels.

Today, when the machine at Jack Primeau's was opened for the regular weekly collection, the cash box was missing. Then, Mr. Primeau remembered four men around 30 who were in the store around closing time Monday night.

At the time, Mr. Primeau noticed nothing unusual about the men. However, he recalled that they had bought about $8 worth of merchandise and two stayed at the counter while two others played the pinball machine for about 20 minutes.

Then they left and although he had never seen any of them before Mr. Primeau said one of them said "Good night Jack," as they left. He recalled that two of the men had English accents.

Description Tallies

The description tallies with that given by Water St. lunch counter operator Babe Fontaine who remembered seeing three men play his machine for some time Monday afternoon.

These men also had English accents and Mr. Fontaine said he noticed that all three were playing the machine. One stood shooting the balls, with his top coat draped over one arm, while his two companions operated the bumpers.

The machine had not been opened since last Friday, and there was only $10 in it, so Mr. Fontaine is convinced he too was a victim of the pilfering pinballers.

'Wasted Enough Time' Council To Buy Camera

"Busy as they are, the sanitation committee can loan their truck to the fire hall," said Ald. H. T. Rehill Monday night on the subject of purchase of a camera for the assessment department. "I can't see why we couldn't get the benefit of the police camera."

Scarcely without breaking verbal stride, Ald. Rehill said: "We have wasted enough time on this thing. I move we buy a camera for the assessment department."

Cost is $51.75 plus $9.00 for a leather case. Mayor Waddell seconded that motion.

Finance committee had reached the conclusion: "It seems the police camera is for no other use than their own." It cost $485, a precision instrument for work more exacting and important than Assessment Commissioner Davis' proposed photographing of properties and buildings as a facility in his records.

Say Taft Law Made Steel Companies Stall

PHILADELPHIA, May 13 (CP) —The United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) charged today the Taft-Hartley labor law prompted steel companies to stall in industry-wide wage negotiations in the United States.

It also accused the industry of insisting "on an inflationary and undeserved price increase."

The charges were embodied in a detailed 88-page report presented by the union's officers at the opening of the sixth biennial constitutional convention.

Approximately 3,000 delegates representing 1,079,703 steelworkers in Canada and the United States are attending the five-day policy-making conference.

Nearly one-fifth of the report dealt with the Taft-Hartley law "and how it has operated to stifle labor's rights."

The main provision of the law attacked by the report is one which permits the president to order postponement of a strike for 80 days by court injunction after negotiations have broken down and a strike vote has been taken.

Encouraged To Stall

"United States Steel and other companies were encouraged to stall in the negotiations because they felt that the President would be forced to invoke a Taft-Hartley injunction against the union and prevent the union from striking for 80 days," the report says.

"Even though it was not invoked, the possibility of a Taft-Hartley injunction played an important role in spurring on the steel companies to defy their legal obligation to bargain honestly with the union."

It asserts that "repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act is one of the top priority goals of the steelworkers and of all organized labor."

Concerning the demand by the steel industry for a price increase, the officers' report states:

"The industry demanded a price increase in excess of the amount to which it was entitled under the law, and which would have destroyed the price stabilization program, as a prelude to making any offer to the union."

The report omitted any specific mention of legality of federal seizure of the steel industry, now before the supreme court.

Senate Studies Bill Altering Criminal Code

OTTAWA, May 13 (CP) — A bill revising the Criminal Code was introduced Monday night in the Senate.

The bill implements most of the recommendations previously made public of a Royal Commission to eliminate inconsistencies, legal anamolies or defects in the code.

One change defines criminal negligence to cover cases of motor manslaughter, dangerous driving, speeding and similar offences. Maximum penalty for criminal negligence would be the same as for manslaughter—life imprisonment. Maximum for bodily injury would be 10 years.

568 Deserters Still At Large

OTTAWA, May 13 (CP).—The army disclosed Monday that 568 deserters from the special force still are at large.

It was the first official statement on the deserter figure since news got out more than a year ago that more than 700 men had deserted the force that was raised for service in Korea and which now is known as the 25th Brigade.

It indicated that most of those early deserters were never caught but still are listed in official files.

The disclosure came as the army gave a breakdown of what happened to the roughly 10,500 men enlisted in the summer of 1950 for the special force.

Here it is:

Dicharged, 3,500; missing in action, 2; deserters, 568; joined regular army, 2,513; still 18-month soldiers entitled to discharge shortly, 4,028.

The army hopes that at least half the 4,028 men entitled to discharge will decide to join the regular force.

Two Nuns Sorry For Reds Who Persecuted Them

By STEPHEN SCOTT.

VANCOUVER, May 13 (CP).—Though persecuted by Chinese Communists for a year, there is no bitterness in the hearts of Sisters St. Foy and St. Victor toward them.

The two Canadian nuns of the Roman Catholic Order of the Immaculate Conception, expelled from Communist China for "murdering" orphans, Monday described in gentle words their ordeal of "trial" and imprisonment. They arrived here on Saturday from Hong Kong aboard the Norwegian freighter John Bakke.

Both were tired but in good health. They will leave for Montreal today.

"We do not hate the Communists, we feel sorry for them," said Sister St. Foy, 43.

"It all seems like a bad dream. I'm not angry at those people. Some day things will change and we'll go back among our friends."

Sister St. Victor, 45, added: "We'll go back, we'll go back some day."

Story of Persecution

Their story of persecution started on March 24, 1951, when they and three other sisters of the House of Providence Orphanage in Canton were arrested by Communists and charged with "murdering" 2,116 of their charges.

Some of the events since then were described by the two sisters at a press conference at the order's Mount St. Joseph's Hospital here.

The five nuns were found "guilty of murder" by a "People's Court" before a crowd of wildly screaming Communists.

Sister St. Foy (Elizabeth Lemire of La Baie du Febvre, Que.), Sister St. Victor (Germaine Tanguey of Montreal) and Sister St. Germaine (Imelda Laperriere of Pont Rouge, Port Neuf County, Que.) were sentenced to be expelled from the country.

They arrived in Hong Kong on Feb. 28. Sister Germaine is still recovering in hospital there.

Sister St. Alphonse du Redempteur (Antoinette Couvrette of St. Durothee, Que., superior of the orphanage) and Sister St. Marie Germaine (Germaine Gravel, St. Pasteur, Que.) were sentenced to five years in prison.

Poor Food

A smiling Sister St. Foy, speaking in French, told reporters of the life they led in four separate prisons.

The sisters were used to European food in the orphanage, she said. In prison they were fed a dry meal of rice and vegetables, followed about an hour later with a little water.

Before the trial, from Sept. 24, they were lodged in a "house of correction." They were in a cell built for 20 persons but at times it was crammed with as many as 35 women.

They saw thousands of women pass through the cell doors and disappear after they had been found guilty of various charges.

"Always we were there," she said, "and the others came and went in a continuous stream night and day."

"We were not allowed to talk, walk around or even murmur a prayer."

In the "house of correction" they were forced to read Communist text books one hour a day. One day a week a Russian girl lectured them on communism in Russia.

Sister St. Victor said the nuns were forced to take off their robes and wear men's clothes.

When they left the "house of correction," Sister St. Foy said, the two sisters condemned to five years in prison called to them.

"They told us to tell heir families that they were quite gay and quite happy and not to worry about them."

Asked how it felt to be back in Canada, she said they had not expected to see it again.

"We were expecting to be killed. We were prepared for it."

World Postal Union Plans New Air Mail Regulations

BRUSSELS, May 13—(Reuters) —New international postal regulations, including a possible proposal for the abolition of extra postage on air mail, will be discussed at the 13th Congress of the 77-year-old World Postal Union, opening here on Wednesday.

Brussels, birthplace of the world's first international mail service 450 years ago, is preparing an historic welcome for 325 delegates of the union's 92 member countries assembling for a seven-week session, the first since the Second World War.

The world's highest post officials and hand-picked experts will discuss some 1,450 new proposals and suggestions aimed at the improvement of international postal communications.

The World Postal Union, meeting in Brussels for the first time, is the world's largest international body in the number of affiliated countries. Its membership embraces every country in the two hemispheres, excepting two —Europe's vest-pocket state, the principality of Lichtenstein, and the African empire of Abyssinia.

Highlight in the work of the Brussels gathering will be an attempt to ameliorate existing air mail regulations which, some experts feel, are at present "too tightly chained to the notion of surface distances."

Speeches at the sessions will be simultaneously translated into English, French and Russian.

Girl 13 Found After Escape From Abductor

SEATTLE, May 13 (AP). — A kidnapped 13-year-old girl, whose abductor left a crude ransom note demanding $4,000 in her parents' mailbox, was found terrified but apparently unharmed north of the city limits early Monday.

She was Linda Lambeth, daughter of Mrs. William L. Carlin. She was lying on a roadside, dazed and hysterical when sheriff's deputies found her about 4:30 a.m.

Her mother and stepfather, an electrician, returned home Sunday night to find her missing.

The girl said a man grabbed and pulled her into his car while she was taking a letter to a roadside mailbox about 7 p.m. Sunday.

Police said that the man made repeated attempts to attack her but that she fought him off. Finally he let her out of the car.

A recent survey by an independent research panel showed that more people than ever before prefer B-A. The rise and fall in gasoline preference by Canadians, between 1949 and 1951 is shown on the chart. B-A leads all other oil companies for increased preference and popularity.

All the laboratory tests in the world, and all the claims made for a product are meaningless until the public has made the one real test—actual use of the product. And in the case of B-A 88 and 98 gasolines, the motoring public have given their approval. In 1949 and again in 1951 the simple question "Which gasoline do you prefer?" was asked of thousands of motorists by an independent panel. B-A showed a gain of nearly twice its nearest competitor in public preference. If you haven't tried B-A 88 or 98 gasoline lately, get a tankful and find out for yourself why more people than ever before prefer B-A. You'll find that economy and power are the two main reasons!

700 Workers Decide To Quit Union

HAMILTON, May 13 — (CP) — Jack Robinson, leader of a secession movement from the Textile Workers' Union of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), said Monday night that 700 workers in four locals in the Hamilton area have decided to withdraw from the union.

He said the four unions are Local 721, Wool Combing, Acton; Local 860, National Hosiery, Hamilton; Local 1021, Riverside Silk, Galt, and Local 1068, Galt Knitting, Galt.

When results from the nearly 5,000 members in the area's 27 locals are received seceding locals will decide whether to remain independent or affiliated with the Trades and Labor Congress, an American Federation of Labor body.

Challenge Appointment

Mr. Robinson said officials of the Hamilton Joint Textile Board will challenge in court the right of the international union to appoint an administrator of the board. Sydney Emerson was appointed to take over the joint board offices here.

The intra-union dispute is a result of the dissatisfaction of some union members with the present top administration of the international union. Opposition candidates were defeated at a recent international meeting in Cleveland.

Sailor Explains Importance Of Navy To Canada

The importance of her navy to Canada was the subject of an address given by Lieut. D. B Gill, R.C.N. (Reserve) at the Rotary luncheon meeting Monday.

Lieut. Gill is publicity officer for the R.C.N. Mobile Recruiting Unit which will be in Peterborough May 12 to 20.

In his address, the speaker outlined the three roles of the Canadian navy in peace and war: a communication system for trade with other countries, promotion, and protection.

Big Trader

"Canada is the third largest trading nation in the world," Lieut. Gill said. "Twenty to 25 per cent of our national income is dependent on foreign trade. The most of this trade is done in coastal ships."

The great demand in Canada for goods from foreign countries was explained by the speaker. He named such goods as sugar cane, wool, rubber, tin, cobalt and oil as examples of which more than 50 per cent of the domestic demand has to be supplied from outside Canada.

"Could we survive if this foreign trade was stopped," the speaker asked. "I suggest that there would be economic chaos."

Lieut .Gill then turned to an explanation of the promotion work the navy is doing for Canada.

"It is an age-old custom of sea faring nations to combine training cruises with good will cruises. These cruises are to foreign ports where local officials, businessmen and professional men are entertained and the ships are thrown open for public inspection. The men go ashore and are entertained by the local people.

"This is the best way for people of other countries to see what, "Made in Canada" means.

Best Publicity

Just how successful these cruises have been was shown when Canadian ministers in the countries visited wrote back saying that it was the best publicity Canada has had since the war."

The speaker then discussed Canada's navy in wartime.

"We must never forget that while Canada's gates are symbols of our freedom and unbounded horizons for expansion, gates are also prison bars if the roads beyond them are not free. It is the navy's business to keep the seas free for our trade."

The speaker referred to the Battle of the Atlantic ,to illustrate the importance of a strong navy in time of war. He also explained that the present tension in world affairs makes it necessary for Canada to build a strong navy both in quality and quantity.

"We are looking for good men and coming out to get them," the speaker concluded. These men must have the proper psychological make-up for life in the navy. This is of equal importance with brains and brawn."

The speaker was introduced by T. J. Carley and thanked by the Rev. Henry Cotton of St. Andrew's United Church.

The following visiting Rotarians and guests were introduced: W. Christopherson of Toronto; John Fisher, Rittman, Ohio; Dr. H. S. Dunham, Bill Beatty and Kenneth Best, all of Peterborough.

C of C Field Secretary Speaks At Millbrook

MILLBROOK, May 13 (ENS)— L. A. Buckley, field secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, was guest speaker at the May meeting of the local Chamber held in the Council Chambers. His subject was "The Chamber at Work in the Smaller Community."

He stressed the need for co-operation and overlooking petty differences for the good of the community. He urged affiliation with both the Ontario and the Canadian Chambers, the first to ensure a united front in provincial matters, and the latter for the same in Dominion affairs.

Reports were given from the provincial planning and development conference held in Toronto recently which was attended by R. W. Cathcart and Alex Gilbert.

M. Wideman and Stewart Snelgrove of the Civic Improvement Committee reported progress on having colored street lights reinstalled. These lights were used before the war, and then had to be replaced on account of the hydro regulations during the war.

The situation regarding the town water supply was discussed and it was decided to approach the Town Council to see what could be done in the way of improving the present service.

It was decided that stores should remain open on May 24, Saturday, and that the regular weekly holiday on Monday should be observed. This, it was felt, was in line with what surrounding communities were doing.

The guest speaker was presented with a Millbrook industry guildcraft tray. Ivan Gray, the president, was in the chair. Jim McMaster was introduced as a new member.

ALMOST IDLE—Typical of many gas stations in Detroit, and other cities that have felt the impact of the oil strike, this service station seems pretty dead. To keep busy though there is "no gas," these men advertise lubrications, repairs and other services for motorists.

Hospital Fund Auction Planned

CAMPBELLFORD, May 13 — (ENS)—A novel idea to raise money for the Campbellford Memorial Hospital was hatched in the active brain of Frank DeCarroll and presented to the Campbellford Rotary Club at their Monday noon luncheon.

Mr. DeCarrol proposed to institute what he calls the "Wheel of Fortune Weekly Auction", a plan to benefit merchants, buyers and the club. Buyers will be able to bid at prices below list prices on various articles put up for auction by Campbellford merchants, with 10 different merchants offering articles each week. The club will put a reserve bid, sightly above cost, on each article and everyone will benefit. The finer details of the plan have yet to be worked out, but the club plans to copyright the idea. Several clubs in the district have offered to purchase the rights to the plan.

Lynd Bradley introduced Hector Macmillan, a new member of the club, who gave his classification talk at the Monday meeting. President Franklin Linton thanked Mr. Macmilan for his talk, which concerned the egg business.

Aux. Sees Films Showing Need

Elizabeth Parker Evening Auxiliary of Trinity United Church met Monday evening in the ladies' parlor with president, Miss Myrtle Sargent, in the chair. A beautiful bouquet of spring flowers on the table were in loving memory of a former member, Miss Bessie Elcome.

Mention was made that the allocation for the year 1952, would be $750, as arranged by the Missionary Cabinet of the Church. Supply-kits for student-missionaries and articles for the sale, as well as requirements for the Alderville Reserve, are to be brought to the picnic in June, were planned.

Miss Margaret Wolstenholme was in charge of the worship service, which theme was, "Dearth on the Earth." Prayers were offered by Mrs. Cecil Richardson and Miss Muzetta Nelson. Through the kindness of Mr. R. A. Scrutton, who operated the projector, two films were shown, "Suffer Little Children," and "The Pale Horseman." These films depicted the tragedy of the displaced persons of Europe and Asia, the misery, poverty and hunger of these people and the destruction by war of the country. Following in the wake, were sickness, disease and plagues. Members learned what is being done by the United Nations in their endeavour to bring food and relief; and reconstruction of the buildings. Our country can help by sending more wheat, meat, eggs and cheese, as well as much needed clothing, it was evident.

A playlet was then splendidly acted by Mrs. C. C. McIntyre, Miss Greta Giles, Miss Mina Edwards and Miss Grace Sargent. A Canadian woman learns of the tragedies that beset a German mother and a French pastor, with the realization of how much more can be done for these displaced people.

A social hour was enjoyed at the close, with the service of dainty refreshments.

Sorority Pledge Ritual Taken By 5 Members And Sponsor

Pledge ritual ceremony of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority inducted five new members into the Alpha Theta Chapter of Peterborough on Monday evening. A period of probation has existed since early fall for these pledges. During this time they have learned rituals and the purpose and meaning of this international sisterhood.

The final pledge vows were taken by Misses Wilma Armstrong, Marilyn Hollingsworth, Mary McRae, Rosemary Parker and Mrs. James E. Gregg.

New social sponsor of this chapter Mrs. Charles H. Huffman was inducted in the same ceremony. Past president Mrs. Thora Rolfe read the formal pledge ritual with Miss Molly Bolton and Mrs. Iris Sorenson assisting in the ceremony. Membership pins were presented on Sorority color ribbon (yellow) by Miss Mary Clifford and Mrs. Jack Taylor who had presented the pledges for initiation.

The ritual was carried out in the light of candles held by the other members who stood in semi-circle around the new pledges.

Vows of this organization are secret and cannot be explained here. A purpose is to promote cultural knowledge through the meeting programs, but one outstanding facet is the "sisterhood" which is a keynote of membership. This relationship in existence between members becomes a habit that is extended to others, thus benefitting the community in which a Sorority sister moves.

The ceremony followed a formal banquet at which the new pledges were guests. It was served in the Empress Hotel dining room with vice-president Mrs. Lance Foord presiding. Each of the 25 diners wore a corsage of yellow roses, which flowers are symbolic of the Sorority.

A toast to the director of this chapter Mrs. Kenneth Strasser, and to the new sponsor Mrs. Huffman, was proposed by Mrs. Sorenson. Miss Muriel Adams read the founder's day pledge and a message from the organization executive was read by Mrs. Havelock Goodwin.

Twenty-first anniversary of the Sorority was celebrated at close with the serving of a birthday cake on which the candles were blown out by the new pledges.

Chapter president Mrs. Ernest McWilliam arranged the banquet program and the ceremony but was unable to be present for the evening.

These Curtains Actually Glow

LONDON — (CP) — British housewives soon will be able to buy curtains which have their own source of light. They are made of fluorescent yarns which when activated by ultra-violet rays, cause the pattern to glow brilliantly.

Fabrics of this type among the novelties recently exhibited in London. Woven by Tibor Reich of Stratford-on-Avon, the materials had raised patterns made by combining new types of spun rayon yarns with the older textiles. Prices are within reach of moderate purses.

Designs of the whole were simple, the general motif being based on variation of stripe and check themes. Metallic threads were introduced into some of the curtains. Textured yarns were specially woven to give a curly appearance, and four stages of texture—boucle, gimp, snarl and plain yarns—were combined in one kind of check pattern.

THIS YEAR'S BRIDE can be as formal or as informal as she likes at her own wedding. She can spend a little or a lot, wear a long or short dress. No matter what her choice, designers have seen to it that she'll look pretty. Junior bride (left) chooses romantic, full-skirted short dress in white cotton lace over pink taffeta. Throatline is cut to a high V. Formal bride (centre) wears lustrous peau d'ange lace backed with white satin. A full skirt trails off into a train; sleeves are short. Pleated net is used for bib and repeated as hip insert. She wears matching elbow-length gloves. Her small admirers wear floor-length dresses in blue tulle trimmed with wide bands of chantilly lace in an apron effect that sweps to the back in bustle puff. Informal bride (right) picks short lace wedding dress in pale pink with halter-neck and cover-up bolero. This is a dress that need not be packed away in tissue paper when the wedding's over. A very full skirt of net is topped by a lace apron effect; the waist is cinched in with grosgrain ribbon sash in matching pink.

Wedding Fashions Change, Colors And Lengths Vary

True to tradition, that's the way we think of weddings. But actually, wedding fashions as well as wedding customs change from year to year and sometimes the change is a drastic one, completely upsetting tradition.

Brides, being women, frequently change their minds about the way they want to look on their wedding day. But most brides, for many years now, have picked white in preference to any other shade.

In 1952, however, many junior brides are choosing pastels and are passing up the traditional bridal veil in favor of little caps, sometimes baby caps trimmed in seed pearls. They also show a preference for tiny flowered caps with just a wisp of veiling.

Tradition once dictated that a bride wear a floor-length gown with sweeping train. In 1952, however, the bride may wear a short dress if she likes and still be fashion-right. Tradition no longer forces us to choose one length only.

The formal gown is still the wedding dress that most brides prefer. But, nevertheless, brides with a practical bent like the ankle-length dress, the street-length dress, the convertible or two-purpose dress.

Usually, these dresses cost less at the outset. They are particularly adaptable to an informal wedding that requires only one bridesmaid. Further, they eliminate the additional expense incurred by the formal bride for a dress to wear to small parties when the wedding is over.

In formal length or short length the favored fabrics of this year's brides are lace, silk taffeta, nylon tulle or net, organdy, and, of course, satin.

DOROTHY DIX

Girl Finds Her Romance Impeded By Pranksters

DEAR MISS DIX: My problem is not unusual, I guess, but I am 30 and at that age I can't afford to make a fool of myself. I have been known as a man-hater; I'm really not, but I just haven't met the right one.

My girl friend's husband is on a bowling team, and on Friday night we pick him and some other men up and drive them home, usualy stopping for a snack. One man is a bachelor who seems to like me. I like him, too. We are both shy. When the rest of the boys found out he liked me, they teased him a lot, going so far as to send silly letters to his office.

I'm afraid if I ever had a chance with him, these friends have ruined it. They have me so upset that I decided not to meet them after bowling, but when Friday night comes along I find myself dressing up to look as nice as possible and tagging along. I can't tell my parents about it, for after being level-headed for so long they'd think I was completely foolish. I can't understand how I ever got a crush at my age.

FAYE M.

ANSWER: You are being very unfair to yourself, Faye. You make 30 sound like senile old age. In the first place, there is absolutely no age limit to romance, and in the second place 30 is much too young for you to feel beyond the pale of sentiment. You're a personable, normal young woman with a perfectly normal feeling for a nice young man.

They Should Help Out

Your so-called friends, however, are behaving in an obnoxiously childish fashion. If they possessed one ounce of understanding they'd do their best to smooth your path to romance, instead of obstructing it. Your bachelor friend also is partly at fault; he should have enough initiative to ignore their kidding and ask to take you out alone. Also, you need a little get-up-and-go yourself.

Your problem needs a direct tackle, unhampered by the impeding efforts of your friends. How about finding an occasion or a social gathering at your house, inviting the whole bowling crowd? Suggest it casually some Friday evening over the snack. If your bachelor fails to react, drop the subject; if he shows any interest, go ahead full speed. Or, you might invite him to a dance or party given by your church, or place of employment. A couple of spare concert tickets could provide an entering wedge.

Such occasions provide perfectly plausible excuses for a girl to invite a man out, and are manna from heaven to a shy bachelor. Better act fast! Summer's a'comin' with the end of bowling and your surely want to have some progress made by then. In the meantime, ignore the silly jokes of your friends and hope their co-bowler does the same. Best of luck. And remember! You're anything but a staid old maid, and see that you never become one!

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 20 years old and very happily married except for the fact that my husband's mother and grandmother have tried to run our lives ever since we were married. They also try to raise my baby. I know it's partly our fault for letting them do it so long, but I didn't want to cause hurt feelings. Now my husband has been called to duty in California. He wants me to join him and I want to very much. As soon as my mother-in-law found out about it, she began to discourage me. They are willing for me to go, but not to take the baby. I believe in times like these families should be together. How can I tell them without hurting them?

MRS. H.

ANSWER: You're a very wise girl for your age. For many reasons taking the baby and joining your husband will be the best thing for you. As you say, families should be together, even though the parting may hurt your found in-laws for a time. Since you are such a young mother, they probably think you need help and guidance much more than you do. Their love for the baby is perfectly understandable, but his place is with you. Tell them that your husband wants both you and his son with him, and in view of the unsettled conditions of the world, you want to have every possible minute together. Assure them that you'll be back before too long, and will miss them greatly while you're gone.

You have so many fine qualities that I'm sure tact is among them. This is a situation that calls for plenty of it, and I'm sure you'll manage to leave home with no hurt feelings—or at least, no seriously hurt ones.

DEAR MISS DIX: For three months I have been going with a young man of 26, and we planned to marry this summer. We had been seeing each other almost every day until a month ago. Then he made a date, as usual, but never kept it. Since then I haven't heard from him. Should I call or write him, or wait?

MARY B.

✧ ✧ ✧

Answer: Since your relationship had gone as far as a formal engagement, you were certainly within your rights to call the day after he broke the date with you. He must have had some logical reason for not keeping it, and you are most assuredly entitled to an explanation. Better ask for it without further delay.

Bridal Customs Changed Make Everybody Happy

The bridal vogue of 1952, that of the beautiful white dress and misty veil, hasn't always been with us. In Colonial days, for instance, brides wore bright, flowered brocades and cherry-and-primrose damask.

But once white moved into the fashion spotlight for weddings, brides took to it with glee. By 1850, Godey's Lady's Book was able to announce that the bride of fashion must pay at least $500 for her dress. And that, this magazine added, was reasonable!

Price for the veil was a mere $125 and this was a strictly practical expenditure since the veil could turn up later for evening wear as a sort of draped overskirt, or scarf.

Once paid for, the veil was adjusted to the bride's head with a wreath or "chaplet" of flowers, a custom that had lasted since Anglo-Saxon days. A decade earlier, Queen Victoria's bridesmaids wore chaplets of white roses as they tripped down the aisle.

It was a Spanish beauty, Eugenie de Montijo, who held the unofficial title as one of the most romantic brides of this era. She became an Empress of France through her marriage to Napoleon III at Notre Dame Cathedral in 1853.

As his wedding gift, the Emperor handed Eugenie a 51-carat diamond and, not satisfied that this was enough, added a pair of pendant earrings with drops the size of almonds. These once had belonged to the ill-fated Marie Antoinette.

Eugenie was married twice to the same man. She went through both the religious and civil ceremonies. The gown she wore in church was white satin with a skirt tiered with five rows of frosty lace. The bodice was clasped and belted with sparkling diamonds.

This bouffant gown immediately set a fashion in this country and soon American brides were wearing seven petticoats, each deeply flounced.

The really great wedding ceremonies reached a peak in this country in the last years of the 19th Century when churches were huge. Homes were mansions, many of them large enough to shelter a thousand guests with ease. The champagne flowed, the music swelled and there were wedding souvenirs of solid silver for every guest.

During the 1880's and 1890's, it was the custom to carry bridal fans rather than bouquets. This was also the heyday of the orange blossom; brides even wore them in large knobs on their bustles as they glided altar-ward.

What was undoubtedly the biggest wedding production of the last century was staged at St. Thomas' Church in New York in the year 1895. It starred Consuela Vanderbilt, who became the bride of the Duke of Marlborough. The entire interior of the church was decked out in boatloads of rare orchids brought from the Duke's estate in England.

The Duke's gift to his bride was a diamond belt. Her parents handed over some pearls that had once belonged to Catharine of Russia. And among her other wedding gifts the Duchess found a pearl-and-diamond dog collar.

And, in that same decade, if you weren't a Vanderbilt but wanted to show off just the same, you could rent additional crystal, plate and clocks, together with gift boxes and tissue paper, in order to make a staggering display of wedding gifts to your friends!

THE 1952 BRIDE pays as little or as much as she likes for her bridal gown and is in fashion either way. But just one hundred years ago, fashion decreed a minimum of $500 for a wedding dress and $125 for the veil! The veil, however, could be worn as a scarf later.

Second Part Of Life Story Told

Free Methodist Church W.M.S. members last week heard the second phase in the life story of the Rev. A. N. Bosko, converted Russian and pastor of the Free Methodist Church in Campbellford. He had related the story of his years in Russia and escape from the country via the underground at the March meeting and last Thursday evening he told his early experiences in the mines near Kingston and Perth and of his conversion. Theme of this meeting was "Personal Evangelism" which figured prominently in winning the young immigrant to Christ, it was shown. The theme was vividly pictured in the hymn "Seeking the lost" read by Mrs. Rita Reynolds. Mrs. J. W. Johnston, stewardship secretary, presided and advised that the offering from this meeting would be assigned to Conference Evangelism. Mrs. P. Graham was soloist and Mrs. George Robinson the pianist. Mrs. H. Mock offered a prayer and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. R. E. Dargan.

What's Right?

You are writing a thank-you note for a gift.

WRONG: Don't mention the nature of the gift in referring to it, but simply call it "your gift."

RIGHT: Be more specific, since your thank-you will then seem more personal and enthusiastic.

✧ ✧ ✧

You purchase something for a friend who neglects to pay you for it and you realize it is just an oversight on the friend's part.

WRONG: Say nothing about it.

RIGHT: Remind the friend of it, since an honest person would hate not to pay a debt he owed simply because it slipped his mind.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Plan Reception To Nurse On Graduation

As a result of this letter from Christine V. I have assembled a few ideas for a reception for a graduate nurse. I'll be glad of it myself in three years' time I suppose — if and when Marriane makes the grade.

"Dear Mrs. Moore: I, too, am a most interested reader of your column and wonder if I may have a bit of help.

"First though, I would like to offer a word of encouragement to the many "dieters" who have been asking for advice. My doctor ordered me to lose 20 lbs. and in two months I have done just that. Now I am wondering just why I ever thought I needed so much to eat. Believe me, after the first two weeks, it's easy sailing, so good luck to all of your readers who are on a diet.

"Congratulations to you on having a daughter in training for a nurse. We have two student girls, now, with a third making plans for the same profession. That brings me to my problem. Our oldest daughter graduates in June and we are having her reception at home. Our house is not large and we expect between 30 and 40 guests. Would you please help me plan a simple luncheon? I have had very little experience with this type of entertaining.. Need I add that with 4 daughters our budget is slightly crimped. Thanks, and good luck to you and yours.

Christine V."

Four daughters! Crimped budget! Mine would be a bust budget! Congratulations to you on losing 20 lbs. in two months. That is no mean feat.

A buffet meal fits a small house perfectly. Food should be of the type that may be eaten with a fork easily.

Buffet Reception Luncheon

Chicken Salad and Lobster Salad or Chicken Mousse (individual or Salmon Moulds
Hot Homemade Tiny Rolls
Rolled Asparagus Sandwiches
Relish Tray: Cheese - stuffed Celery, Radish Roses, Olives, Gherkins
Fresh Strawberry Ice Cream
White Cake (frosted appropriately for graduation occasion)

Directions

All you need is amounts for the first two salads suggested:

Chicken Salad For Forty

Fifteen cups cooked chicken, cubed, 10 cups cut up celery, 3½ cups fresh walnuts meats or blanched almonds, about 3 or 3½ cups genuine mayonnaise. Sliced hard-cooked eggs may be put in or around the salad. Popular additions are: new cooked peas, capers, chopped green pepper. Add salt to taste. Same method may be used for lobster but add lemon juice.

Chicken Mousse

Ten cans condensed chicken soup (rice not noodle), 10 egg yolks and whites separated, 7½ tablespoons gelatine, 1¼ cups cold water, 7 or 8 cups diced cooked chicken, 2½ cups heavy cream whipped, 5 tablespoons each of lemon juice, chopped parsley and pimiento, salt and pepper to taste. Strain the soup. Heat liquid. Soak gelatine 5 minutes in cold water. Put through the food chopped the solid part drained from the soup, and the chicken. Beat the yolks until light and stir the hot liquid into them slowly and cook over boiling water, stirring until mixture coats spoon. Stir in soaked gelatine. Let stand until it begins to congeal, fold in stiffly beaten whites, the ground meat mixture, the whipped cream and remaining ingredients. Pour into individual or large moulds and chill. Serve on dainty bed of lettuce. Slice as you would a meat loaf.

If you want any more details, you still have time to write again.

Music Festival Wednesday, 840 Compete

The sixth annual Peterborough Music Competition will open Wednesday morning in Murray St, Baptist Church.

The festival has grown rapidly in recent years. In its first year, 1946, there were 300 entries. This year, 840 entries have been received. The area from which contestants come to compete has widened each year.

This year, entries have been received from as far west as Toronto, east as Kingston and north as Gelert, Haliburton county.

To accommodate the larger number, the festival will be held in three buildings. The morning and afternoon sessions will be held in Murray St. Baptist Church and the Canadian Legion Hall. The evening sessions will be held in Queen Mary School Auditorium.

Evening Concerts

This year the evening sessions will take the form of a concert. The three or four top contestants picked from the largest classes heard in the daytime sessions will compete in evening finals. In addition the senior classes and classes that are believed to have the greatest public interest have been scheduled for the evening.

The festival committee has engaged top English musical adjudicators. Alec Redshaw and Ronald Biggs who will be in Peterborough for the 1952 festival are both well-known musicians in Great Britain and have adjudicated at festivals throughout the British Isles.

Miss Irene Fairclough, L.R.C.T. of the Hamilton Conservatory will adjudicate the verse and choral speaking classes.

Speaking First

The first day of the festival, Wednesday, will consist entirely of verse and choral speaking classes. The music classes will begin Thusday.

There will be 31 special prizes and trophies awarded this year with eight of the total to be awarded for the first time.

A group of Kiwanians will be present each day of the festival to answer any questions or take care of any difficulties that may arise.

Bury Garbage Alderman Says

To relieve the burden of garbage burning at the Townsend St. incinerator, Peterborough may have to adopt a plan of sanitary land fill as suggested by Ald. J. E. Gillespie at the meeting of the finance committee of the council Monday night.

If it were adopted, and so far it is only an idea of an alternative method of disposing of garbage, it would entail the cost of a bulldozer type of machine around $15,000 and some rural location.

A second incinerator might cost more than $400,000. This discussion of disposal stemmed from a report on the city's dump in Monaghan by J. E. Pierce, superintendent of Sanitation.

A motion by Mayor Waddell will invite Francis Hankin Co., Toronto, builders of the incinerator, to send a staff engineer to advise the council as to extended use of the incinerator, possibly to 24 hours a day.

A proposal from Mr. Pierce recommends that the ramp at the incinerator might be excavated to provide additional garbage storage space and permit continuous delivery to the fires.

Ald. Gillespie said there was no longer sufficient space for incoming garbage at the plant.

Two Jet Bombers Unveiled By U.S.

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—The U.S. Air Force today took the "classified" label off two new all-jet heavy bombers, the YB-52 and the YB-60.

The YB-60 is somewhat the larger of the two, having a wing span of 206 feet, the YB52 185 feet. Still secret are the weight and speed, range and other performance details of the giant aircraft.

The YB-60 is a development of and improvement upon the B-36.

The B-36 has four jet engines, six piston engines, a range of 10,000 miles and a top speed of more than 435 miles an hour. The YB-60 is considered faster than this.

OBITUARIES

SISTER ANGELA

A senior member of St. Joseph's Community of the Peterborough Diocese, Sister Angela, died Saturday at Mount St. Joseph after an illness of 16 years. She was born in Ashdad, Ontario, the daughter of John Windle and Brigid Kiley.

Eight years ago Sister Angela celebrated her golden anniversary into the religious life. Her duties in the Convent were taking care of orphans and needy old people.

Mass was said Monday in St. Joseph's chapel by the Rev. J. G. Maskey, assisted by the Rev. G. F. Sullivan, deacon, and the Rev. R. J. Garvey, sub-deacon.

His Excellency, the Most Rev. J. B. Berry presided in the sanctuary attended by the Rev. G. J. Weis and the Rev. G. V. Gaughan. Bishop Berry gave the final absolution assisted by Father Sullivan and Father Gaughan. Other prelates and clergy in the sanctuary were: the right Rev. J. V. MacCauley, D.P., Lindsay; the right Rev P. P. Butler, Sacred Heart Parish; the very Rev. R. MacDonald, C.Ss.R.; the Rev. J. F. McGuire, rector, St. Peter's Cathedral; the Rev. Dr. F. M. Grant, P.P. St. John's Parish.

Pallbearers were: H Lynch, P. D. Scollard, T. J. Brooks, M. J. Finn, M. Sheehan and T. J. Best. Honorary pallbearers were: Rev. Sisters, Edna, Adelaide, Mary Frances, Mary Daniel, Agnita and Joan of Arc.

Sister Angela was buried in the Sisters' plot in St. Peter's cemetery. The committal prayers were offered by the Father Sullivan and Father MacCauley.

CARMEN JOSEPH DECARLO

A lifelong resident of Peterborough, Carmen Joseph (Jack) DeCarlo, 39, died suddenly in hospital today. For the past 10 years, he has been a polisher and buffer at the DeLaval Co.

Born in Peterborough, he was a son of the late Florinto DeCarlo and Marie Aimola. He was a member of Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion, and for more than three years was with the Canadian Army during the Second World War.

Surviving are his widow, the former Heleno Goselin, five sisters, Mrs. Samuel Long (Rose), Mrs. Bruce McNaughton (Mulvina) Miss Annette DeCarlo, all of Peterborough, Mrs. Isobel Aimola of Montreal, and Mrs. Harry Cooke (Viola) of Brighton; three brothers, Fred, Rocco, and Guido, all of Peterborough.

Service will be held from the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Frank Goselin, 513 Romaine St., to Sacred Heart Church for requiem mass at 9 a.m. Thursday. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

Board Of Education

. . . I expect there will be differences, and those differences will have to come to the Board."

It was decided that this matter could be held over for further consideration.

The decision to accept the Charles H. Huffman Ltd. bid passed four votes to two. Voting "aye" were Mrs. Paige Rowell, Mrs. Blake Bell, Frank Jobbitt and G. Wilson Craw. The two "nay" votes were cast by Arthur Pitchford and Stanley Adamson.

Ask For Debentures

After the contract motion passed, a further motion carried. It asked the city council to issue debentures of $250,000, financing the Ashburnham school to be built on McFarlane St.

Following are a list of the general bids and the net bids submitted by the three lowest competitors: Charles H. Huffman Ltd., $219,317 and $209,862; Eastwood Construction Co. Ltd., $225,000 and $217,363; and W. H. Mortlock, $225,778 and 216,359.

After reading Mr. Carley's opinion, Chairman W. B. Gordon said: "The position seems quite clear from the legal point of view. It is now a case for moral consideration. The matter is open for discussion."

Mr. Gordon said that there was one feature to be considered. The trend in business today is toward more and more private corporations.

May Reappear

"The Board may have to deal with this situation again; simply because there are a greater number of these incorporated companies."

"It's not a matter of anyone not acting in good faith" said Mr. Gordon. "Otherwise this situation would probably never have arisen."

"As a member of the accommodation committee I feel we must accept part of the blame for the position we have got into," said Mr. Craw. "The Board could have invited bids thus eliminating the chance of Mr. Huffman putting in a tender" (i.e. select certain contractors to make bids).

Mr. Craw added that he would not want to serve as chairman of the committee with the contractor on the job also serving on the committee.

"The question is whether we are acting in a bona fide manner," said Mr. Gordon.

"Our only purpose here is to consider the best interests of the people of Peterborough," said Mrs. Paige Rowell.

Not Changed

"I'm satisfied as to the legality of the transaction and also that there is a difference of $6,497 between the two lowest bids," said Mr. Pitchford, "but I haven't changed my mind from Thursday . . . It doesn't quite come up to my standard of ethics."

"How can we assess that $6,497 in terms of what we might lose on the next contract when there is competitive bidding"? asked Mr. Adamson.

Mr. Gordon said he had been told by Mr. Huffman that he had discussed the matter with several other contractors before putting in a bid; they were aware of what Mr. Huffman intended to do.

"As far as I'm concerned, Mr. Chairman, I haven't heard anything that would make me think there was anything wrong with it," said Mrs. Blake Bell.

There was a delay while the Board waited for somebody to move and second the recommendation to let the contract to Mr. Huffman.

Mrs. Rowell said she thought somebody from the accommodation committee should do so. Mr. Craw finally made the motion saying "I still don't approve of it but I guess I got the accommodation committee into this mess". He was seconded by Mr. Jobbitt.

Recorded Vote

"I'm not in favor of it at all," said Mr. Adamson . . . "for reasons already stated." He asked for a recorded vote and the motion passed four votes to two.

After the result was announced, Mr. Gordon said it would be unfortunate both for the Board and the ratepayers if the awarding of this contract adversely affected competitive bidding in the future.

When Mr. Huffman returned to the Board room he said he thought the Board had set a precedent "allowing other men in business in the city to run for the Board of Education."

He said he would seek no advantage because of his place on the Board, and he stated that he had obtained none prior to the awarding of the contract.

"I will lean over backwards to save the taxpayers money," said Mr. Huffman.

Fred Morrow Contributed Much To City

Registrar of deeds for Peterborough county from 1922 to 1947, William Frederick (Fred) Morrow, 77, died Monday at his home, 469 Water St. He had been ill since his retirement in January of 1947.

Mr. Morrow carried on the job of registrar after his father's retirement in 1922. His father, Bernard Morrow, had been registrar of deeds for the county from 1884.

During the Second World War, Mr. Morrow sat on the city's court of revision, and, with Fred Finnie and Thomas Ephgrave, formed a part of one of the most effective courts of revision the city has ever had. Mr. Morrow was succeeded on the court by Sheriff John Harstone.

After Mr. Morrow's retirement John R. Corkery was appointed registrar.

Original Member

Mr. Morrow was one of the original members of the Knights of Columbus in Peterborough and in his youth was a keen follower of baseball. After his retirement, he was often called on for advice by city lawyers seeking information about deeds and titles connected with the older families of Peterborough.

Born in Peterborough, Mr. Morrow was a son of the late Bernard Morrow and Elizabeth O'Brien, and was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral.

Surviving are four sisters: Miss Mabel Morrow of Peterborough; Mrs. A. J. Gough (Maude), of Lakefield; Mrs. J. E. Loughlin (Josephine), of Victoria, B. C.; Mrs. W. S. Groomes (Stella), of Calgary, and two brothers, Dr. John Morrow of Albany, Oregon, and Harold Morrow of Regina.

Requiem mass will be said on Thursday at 9 a.m. at St. Peter's Cathedral, and burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

Neighbors Give $800 To Burned-out Family

BETHANY, May 13—(ENS)—The neighborly spirit that exists in small communities was well demonstrated last week. May 2 fire of unknown origin totally destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McGill, R.R. 1, Bethany, leaving them and their five children without a home.

Temporary shelter was found with neighbors and during the week a community bee was staged to clear away the rubble preparatory to rebuilding.

Willing friends also canvassed the neighborhood for funds to help

"Sweating Out" Week In Leagues As Major Teams Trim Rosters

By RALPH RODEN

NEW YORK, May 13—(AP)—This is "sweating out" week in the major leagues.

By midnight Thursday, May 15, the 16 clubs, with the exception of those carrying recently-returned servicemen, must shave their rosters to the required 25-player limit.

Four teams—Washington, Philadelphia Athletics, Chicago White Sox and Cincinnati—have trimmd the squad to 25.

St. Louis Browns, who Monday acquired second baseman Cass Michaels from Washington and entered a claim on waivers for Stubby Overmire of New York Yankees may have the biggest roster to chop. If they obtain Overmire, who will be released by the Yankees, the Browns will have 30 players. They can carry 26 because pitcher Dave Madison is a service returnee.

St. Louis gave up pitcher Lou Sleater and infielder Fred Marsh for Michaels. The Browns also have a couple of trades on the fire and may trim their roster that way.

Over Limit

Three other clubs, Brooklyn Dodgers, Boston Braves and Philadelphia Phillies, are over the limit but will not have to cut down because their personnel includes recent returnees from the armed forces.

The Yankees reduced their numbers to 26 Monday. Besides releasing Overmire, the Yanks optioned Andy Carey, $60,000 bonus third baseman, and pitcher Art Shallock to Kansas City. In addition, third baseman Bobby Brown and pitcher Tom Morgan are service-bound but their reporting date is unknown.

Boston added and dropped a player and its strength remained at 27. The Red Sox purchased catcher Del Wilber from the Phillies and optioned pitcher Ralph Brickner to Louisville.

Cleveland Indians are three over the limit, St. Louis and New York two, and Pittsburgh four in the National League.

Japan To Ask UN Membership

TOKYO, May 13 (AP). — The Japanese government has decided to apply for membership in the United Nations, the foreign office spokesman said today.

Akira Miyazaki said the decision was made by Premier Shigeru Yoshida and his cabinet.

An application will be placed before the current session of parliament. If approved it will be forwarded to U.N. headquarters in New York.

Miyazaki said his government is aware that one member of the U.N. Security Council could veto the application.

He said Japan expects that all countries that signed the Japanese peace treaty to support the application.

Russia has not recognized Japan's independence. Russia, a member of the Security Council, is expected to veto Japan's application to join the U.N.

Northern Ireland Premier Backs NATO Membership

BELFAST (AP)—Prime Minister Sir Basil Brooke sees "nothing novel" in Northern Ireland's attitude toward N.A.T.O.—a body which he says Northern Ireland joined "without any strings."

All a person must do, observed 64-year-old Sir Basil, is cast one's memory back to the early days of the Second World War. The Republic of Island(then called Eire) adopted, he asserted, a policy which led to the death of a large number of Allied fighting men and merchant seamen during the Battle of the Atlantic.

Recalling that the Republic then professed, as now, "that it could not participate in the fight for freedom because Northern Ireland did not belong to them," Sir Basil thumped his fist on the desk in his office and said: "such a ridiculous attitude."

Partition still is pleaded—and it always ill be—as an excuse for southern Irish isolationism.

Northern Ireland, Sir Basil remarked, is willingly playing its part in the work of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. (The Irish Republic declines to enter N.A.T.O. as long as the six northern Ireland counties are part of the United Kingdom.)

"There are no reasons, apart from Dublin's obsession with a purely local controversy, why Ireland should not make its contribution in partnership with the United States and the British Commonwealth."

Asked his reaction to Premier Eamon De Valera's suggestion of a plebiscite of Ireland, Sir Basil said:

"A plebiscite idea is tantamount to saying that Americans could vote Canada into the United States. Ireland's numerical strength is far greater than Ulster's. . .

"But never will the Ulster people break their bonds with Britain. For them that would be death."

Longden Short 2 Of Magical 4,000 'Winners' Circle

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK —(AP)—The next time Jockey Johnny Longden meets his riding friend, Britain's Gordon Richards, he can say :

"Well, I wonder who'll be the next jockey to get 4,000 winners like us?"

John Eric Longden, British-born himself, but now a solid citizen of California where he lives like the King of the Saddle he is, rode his first winner in 1928.

Now he needs only a couple to go, to reach the magical 4,000 figure achieved only by Britain's greatest booter, Richards.

Longden, who was born in Wakefield, England, in 1910, began riding in the mid-1920s and got his first winner aboard Hugo K. Asher at Salt Lake City. Since then, the ageless veteran has ridden in seven countries.

The internationally-known jockey has won most of the major stake races in the United States, some of them several times, and has piloted some of the great horses of our time, including Count Fleet, Noor, First Fiddle, On Trust and Your Host.

His favorite horse was Count Fleet, which won the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont stakes in 1943 to sweep the Triple Crown.

Longden, said to be a millionaire and the world's richest jockey, has won various "derbies" but the one he is least likely to forget isn't in the record books—the Billings (Mont.) derby.

Started At 15

The youngster had emigrated from Britain to Taber, Alta., at the age of nine with his parents. Homesick, broke and 15 years old, he was at Billings with an Indian named Charlie Powell, who raced quarter horses. When he accepted the mount on Hustler Joe, Johnny had to borrow boots, saddle and other riding equipment.

Longden wanted to keep on eating, and although his ride may not have been polished, he won.

Johnny had driven a mule in an Alberta coal mine and had ridden farm horses, but was a less than sensational apprentice jockey at the tracks. Often he was advised to give up, and try another trade. But he had no desire to go back underground mining coal, where he had developed a powerful pair of shoulders.

In his first four years riding at small, but recognized tracks, Longden got 120 winners and gained enough confidence to determine he was going to make good.

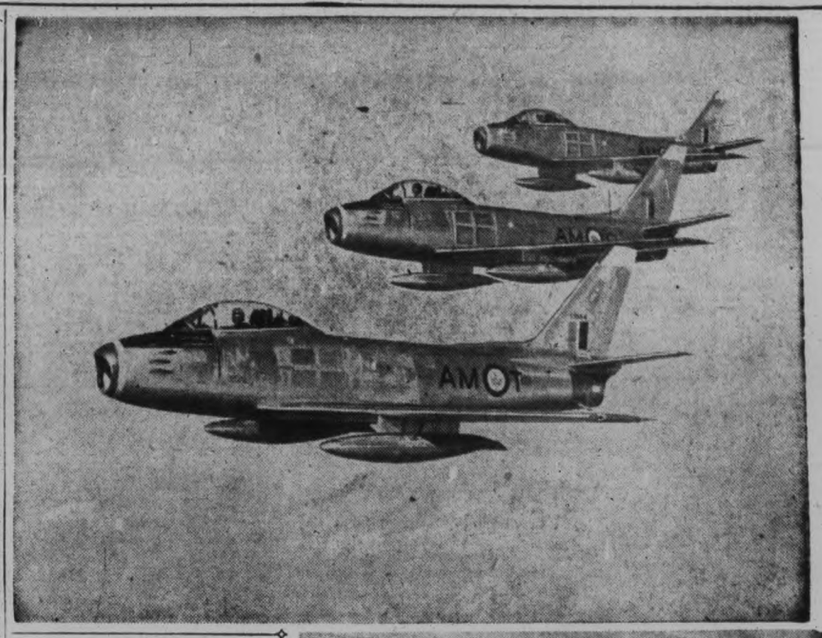
He became the leading rider in the country in 1938—exactly 10 years after his first victory at Salt Lake. Johnny won the riding title again in 1947 and 1948, to equal Johnny Adams' feat of winning three U.S. championships.

Clean Living

In 1945 he was the top stakes rider. As early as then, he was busy denying rumors he was about to retire. He answered that by booting home more than 300 winners in both 1947 and 1948.

Johnny doesn't smoke, rarely drinks, and loves outdoor sports such as hunting and fishing. He has two planes, but keeps his own pilot, although he flys himself.

When he does decide to retire, he can go to his own home at Arcadio, Calif., near Santa Anita Park, or to his ranch near Riverside. Longden, married and with two children by his present wife, also has considerable property holdings in Canada. He has another son by a former marriage, now in the Army.



Film On Blindness On Show At Library

The film, Hold Back the Night, will be featured at the Peterborough Film Council meeting to be held in the Public Library tonight.

Produced for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, this film is an account of the nature, symptoms and treatment of glaucoma—the eye condition that causes 12 percent of all blindness.

The film emphasizes the symptoms which give warning of the condition and the importance of early eye examination if it is to be arrested in time.

Plans Discussed Pep Up Paper Sales

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13 (AP) Ideas on how to pep up newspaper sales were swapped Monday by newspaper promotion men from Canada and the United States.

About 125 members and guests of the National Newsaper Promotion Association discussed their problems at its annual convention.

Apparently their ideas are meeting with success. More than half of them interviewed said that, despite fears of inroads by television, their newspaper circulations are at all-time highs.

Irving S. Taubkin, promotion manager of The New York Times, was elected president of the association.

Museums Feel Pinch

German law keeps the stringent order in effect for 12 weeks after a rabies-infected dog is found.

Allied Patrol Cars Confined To Berlin

BERLIN, May 13 (AP)—Allied highway patrol cars were confined to Berlin for the fifth day today as the Russians again turned them back from the Bablesberg checkpoint near here on the Berlin-Helmstedt highway.

Regular civilian traffic is flowing normally from both ends of the road, which passes through the Russian zone.

UK Newsprint Mill To Operate In 1954

SOUTHAMPTON, England, May 13—(Reuters)—A new $55,000,000 newsprint mill of Britain's vast Bowater Paper Corporation will be in production at Charleston, Tenn., by the end of March, 1954, Sir Eric Bowater said here Monday.

The mill, first in the United States to be owned by a British company, will employ 1,000 Canadian, U.S. and British workmen.

Chairman of the Corporation, Bowater said: "The new mill, which will produce 130,000 tons of newsprint and 50,000 tons of pulp a year, is to look after our growing business in the United States.

"But it will indirectly benefit Britain through helping world supplies as a whole."

Bowater made the statement on his arrival here aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth.

Urge More Care

MANCHESTER, Eng., May 13 (Reuters) — The Manchester Guardian suggests editorially today that United Nations forces in Korea should try to avoid burning civilians with napalm jellied gasoline bombs. Declaring that anxiety is not confined to pacifists, the Liberal newspaper says "a definite statement that more care is now being taken to avoid use of the bomb close to villages inhabited by civilians would help allay anxiety."

Rolfe Will Remain As Detroit Manager

DETROIT, May 13 (AP)—Red Rolfe will stick around as manager of Detroit Tigers, who are uncomfortably berthed in last place in the American League.

But the Tigers will try to gain strength or new faces in the trade mart—even if it means dealing out such stars as third basemen George Kell or outfielders Hoot Evers, Johnny Groth and Vic Wertz.

That came straight from general manager Charlie Gehringer Monday after he huddled with president Spike Briggs.

"I'm satisfied with the way Red is running the team," Gehringer said.

S.D. And G. Highlanders Hold Reunion In Cornwall

"Up The Glens," the battle cry of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, will be sounding in Cornwall when the regiment holds its fifth annual reunion June 7 and 8.

This is the second reunion to be held in Cornwall, where the Highlanders held their first post-war get-together in 1948.

Headquarters Company of the regiment was recruited in Peterborough when the unit was formed in June, 1940, and the 1949 reunion was held here.

The 1950 reunion was held at Kingston where A Company was recruited and last year in Brockville, where B Company was formed. C and D companies were mobilized in Cornwall.

Honor Comrades

Old friendships will be renewed and engagements of the Second World War in which the "Glens" took part will be recalled, as members of the S. D. & G.'s first battalion association honor the memory of their 22 officers and 265 other ranks who died defeating Hitler's Germany.

Hell's Corners, Trun, Scheldt and Cleve, all famous battle in which the Highlanders figured, will recall the origin of the regiment's battle cry, "Up The Glens."

It had its beginning in an English pub before D Day. Replying to an English barmaid who commented to Lt.-Col. Christiensen and Maj. Fred Lander, "There's a lot of you Glens around here," the C.O. toasted the regiment with "Up The Glens," and it soon caught on to become the regiment's battle cry.

Among the events of the Second World War in which the unit took an active part were: the D Day assault landing on June 6, 1944; the Ems River, where Don Stewart won the M.C.; Caen, where Pipe Major Bob Wishart had his pipes blown up; and Bologne, where Jack Slothart surprised the German garrison by coming up behind them inside a fortress through a secret tunnel.

These and other exploits won the Glengarrys nine distinguished service orders, eight military crosses, 22 mentions in despatches, two distinguished conduct medals and 19 military medals.

Two former commanding officers of the unit, Lt.-Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, M.C., who took the regiment overseas in July, 1941, and Lt.-Col. Neil M. Gemmell, D.S.O., Croix de Guerre, now of Churchill, Manitoba, are former Peterborough men. Other commanding officers are: the first C.O. after mobilization, Col. W. J. Franklyn; Lt.-Col. W. S. Rutherford; Lt.-Col. M. S. Dunn, O.B.C., E.D.; Lt.-Col. Roger Rowley, D.S.O.; and Lt.-Col. G. H. Christiensen.

All items of the program have not been arranged but tentative arrangements are for registration early Saturday afternoon, followed by a reception; a banquet in the evening and a memorial service on Sunday.

Inquiries should be addressed to First Battalion Reunion Committee, S. D. & G. Highlanders, The Armouries, Cornwall, and all former members of the battalion are invited to attend.

Higher Pension Plan For Clergy

LONDON, Ont., May 13—(CP)—A new, higher pension plan, and a housing scheme for superannuated clergy, emerged Monday from the first session of Huron Synod meeting at St. Paul's Cathedral.

Formed by an amalgamation of two former plans, the new Diocesan Auxiliary pension fund will give retired clergy $300 a year, in addition to $900 they receive from the general pension fund of the church in Canada.

With $100 paid from a commutation fund, the new pension will provide retired men with a total of $1,300 annually. It becomes effective June 1.

A former auxiliary superannuation fund, which paid $200, has been abolished.

Widows under the new plan will receive $150 instead of $100.

In a second move to improve the position of pensioners, Synod approved an effort to obtain a group of homes, which they could occupy at low rental. Anglicans in the diocese will be encouraged to will homes for this purpose, and a minimum objective of two in each deanery has been set.

Third Group Joins Strike In Windsor

WINDSOR, May 13 (CP) — A third group of building tradesmen—the hoisting engineers—Monday joined Windsor carpenters and painters on a "holiday" to back wage contract demands.

Some 75 of the engineers—they operate machinery on construction projects—stayed away from their jobs. Some 900 carpenters and painters have been off work since last week.

Union officials say the men are not on strike but are "holidaying." It is believed they are asking a 35-cent boost on basic rates running between $1.55 and $1.90.

15-Cent Increases Offered In Agreement

WINDSOR, May 13 (CP)— Wage increases averaging 15 cents an hour are included in a collective bargaining agreement which the Teamsters' Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) members in Windsor, Chatham and Sarnia will shortly be asked to approve, officials of the union's local 880 said Monday.

The agreement—it involved some 3,500 Ontario union members—had been accepted in Toronto and Hamilton, the officials said. It proposed 14, 15 and 16-cent boosts on a basic rate running between $1.09 and $1.32.

$25,000 Fire Sweeps Ottawa Building

OTTAWA, May 13 (CP) — Fire early today gutted a business corner in west-central Ottawa.

F. A. White, owner of White's restaurant and the space occupied by Commercial Laboratories on the floor above, estimated damage at nearly $25,000.

The flames were brought under control before they could spread to a neighboring building.

Canada Expects Higher Army Bill

OTTAWA, May 13 — (CP). — Canada, already paying large sums to maintain servicemen in Korea, Germany and Britain, expects her military bill in Japan to go up considerably in the next few months.

It is anticipated that when final agreement on the status of foreign troops in Japan is made, Canada will have to pay for a number of facilities she has been getting free because of her technical status as an occupational power.

Canada has a reinforcement base and an administrative unit in Japan and her troops go to hospital and take leave there.

Canada and the other Commonwealth powers are expecting word shortly that an interim or standing agreement on the status of their troops has been signed in Tokyo. That will keep things as they were before the peace treaty was signed April 28. It will give time to work out a permanent agreement covering financial, legal and other angles.

Police Combing Reservation For Clue In Triple Slaying

Former Ont. MPP Kills Himself As Trial To Start

SOUTHAMPTON, Ont., May 14. (CP)—A former member of the Ontario legislature committed suicide today, five hours before he was to have appeared in court on charges of theft and fraud involving more than $100,000. James G. White, 47, shot himself at Dryden, about 1,000 miles northwest of here, while free on bail on 29 charges of fraud, theft, and breaches of the Ontario Securities Act. He was scheduled to appear in this Owen Sound district town for preliminary hearing.

To a hushed courtroom crown counsel Arthur Klein of Toronto announced the death.

Provincial Police at Kenora in northwestern Ontario confirmed the announcement. They said White killed himself with a .22-calibre rifle at his home at Dryden in that district. His wife heard the shot and found him dead.

Former P.C. Member

Prior to last year's Ontario general election, White was Progressive Conservative member of the Legislature for Kenora.

The Securities Commission started an investigation of White's activities last October after receiving a complaint.

At that time, White had been nominated to seek re-election. On the advice of Premier Frost, in view of the investigation, he withdrew as candidate.

He faced nine charges of fraud involving $36,035 and seven of theft involving $58,535 in connection with the sale of stock in the Premier Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd.

They were among 24 charges of fraud and theft under the criminal code and five charges under the Securities Act of unlawfully trading in shares of the Premier Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd., and in shares of Floregold Red Lake Mines Limited.

$126,620 Involved

The criminal charges involved a total of $126,620. Eight charges of fraud in connection with sale of the mining stock involved $12,050.

Investigating officials described White as a director of Floregold Red Lake Mines Limited and promoter of a company known as the Premier Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd.

The latter organization was described as a company which did not get past the incorporation stage. Provisional directors were named but no permanent officials or dirctors were ever appointed. Investigators said the company had no assets of any kind and that no stock was ever issued.

The investigators described Floregold Red Lake Mines as "just as good as any other junior gold mining company."

A warrant for White's arrest was sworn out at Walkerton last April 8. White was arrested at Dryden. He was taken to Walkerton where he was freed on bail and remanded until today.

The charges allege that between September 1, 1949, and December 31, 1950, through an agent in Southampton White sold to 71 district residents 573,017 shares of Floregold stock for $115,105 altogether and that during the same period he sold 27 persons 34,902 shares of Premier stock for a total of $118,865.

Labor Secretary Supports Steel Workers

PHILADELPHIA, May 14—(AP)—Labor Secretary Maurice Tobin told cheering steel workers of the C.I.O. today that he stands "heart and soul and spirit" behind them in their fight for a wage increase.

Tobin, in an address to the 2,500 delegates at the sixth constitutional convention of the United Steelworkers' Union, said:

"The only way to settle the steel dispute . . . is through the acceptance of the recommendations of the Wage Stabilization Board."

The W.S.B. had recommended a 17½-cent-an-hour wage increase to go into effect over an 18-month period, plus fringe benefits, including the union shop, estimated to cost an additional 8.9 cents an hour.

Hint New Strike

Earlier, the steelworkers hinted there might be a new steel strike in the United States unless the steel industry comes to terms—and very soon.

The threat of a walkout of 650,000 workers was contained in a resolution up for consideration by the 2,500 U.S. and Canadian delegates to the union's sixth (biennial) constitutional convention.

The resolution declares "the crisis in the steel industry must be promptly resolved."

It adds:

"We cannot and will not continue indefinitely to work in 1952 for 1950 wages and working conditions.

"We cannot and will not continue indefinitely to work without satisfactory collective bargaining contracts."

Philip Murray, president of the 1,100,000-member union, in a 34-page special report on "the dispute with the steel industry," wrote that the delegates "stand united in their determination to win a just and fair settlement."

Murray, in strong language that is duplicated word-by-word in the convention resolution, charged the crisis "remains unsolved because steel management wants it so."

"The companies in the steel industry created the crisis by refusing to bargain in good faith. They have perpetuated the crisis by refusing to comply with the government's moderate compromise recommendations."

Dodd, Colson Taken To Tokyo

TOKYO, May 14 (AP)—Brig.-Gen. Francis T. Dodd and Charles Colson, former commanders of the Koje Island Communist war-prisoner camp, flew to Tokyo today to confer with United Nations commander Gen. Mark Clark.

Dodd was captured by the Red prisoners last Wednesday and held hostage 78 hours. Colson succeeded him Thursday.

Both were relieved of the camp command and returned to former duties pending an investigation of the Dodd kidnapping and Colson's promise of concessions to the Reds to gain Dodd's release.

Colson was relieved of the Koje command Tuesday and replaced by Brig.-Gen. Haydon L. Boatner, Chinese-speaking professional soldier with several years' experience in China in war and peace.

Dodd and Colson were reassigned to their former commands. Colson as chief of staff of the first corps in Korea and Dodd is attached to Eighth Army headquarters.

Prison Officials Find Ward "Hot Potato"

PONTIAC, Mich., May 14 (AP)—Earl Ward, co-leader with Jack Hyatt of Leamington, Ont., of last month's $1,500,000 riot at Southern Michigan prison, has become a "hot potato" as far as state correction officials are concerned.

Ward arrived here Tuesday for temporary confinement at the Oakland county jail from the Livingston county jail in Howell at the request of Sheriff Loren Bassett. Bassett demanded Ward's removal after the mutinous convict staged a one-man rampage Monday night.

Meanwhile the state corrections commissioner, Ernest Brooks, Tuesday was balked in his attempt to transfer Ward to the state hospital for the criminally insane. Hospital officials said they wanted no part of Ward.

Missing Boy Turns Up On Farm

Sought 24 Hours After Leaving Millbrook Home

MILLBROOK, May 14 (ENS)—Thirteen-year-old Eldon Hunter, missing from his home since early Tuesday morning, turned up a 9 a.m. today at the farm home of George Moore, north of Port Hope.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Hunter of Millbrook, he left home sometime after midnight Monday barefoot, and with only a shirt and overalls pulled over his pyjamas. He took a quilt with him.

Twenty-four anxious hours ended this morning for Mr. Hunter when Mr. Moore, a cousin of Mr. Hunter, telephoned him to say that Eldon was at the Moore farm. Mr. Hunter said he hadn't spoken to his son over the telephone.

Eldon's father said he could think of no reason why his son, a Grade VIII pupil, left home. "He likes going to school, so I don't think he was playing hookey," said Mr. Hunter.

Preferred Farming

However, the boy said today at the Moore farm that he didn't like going to school. He much preferred farming.

The first night he slept in a field near Millbrook under a tree. He didn't feel cold. In the morning he hitch-hiked a ride to Port Hope. He then walked out of town and by chance arrived at the farm of his father's cousin George Moore. He had never visited the farm before.

Mrs. Hunter, a teacher at the Fallis line public school outside Millbrook, found her son was missing early Tuesday when she looked into his bedroom. She assumed for a time that he had gone to his father's farm, four miles northeast of the village.

Later in the morning, when she telephoned Principal Percy Hamilton of Millbrook public school, she found he had not been there. Prin-

Pleasure Yacht In Distress

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—(AP)—The Coast Guard reported today that the pleasure yacht Eloise, in distress 22 miles southwest of the Golden Gate, was in no immediate danger of sinking.

There was no report on the safety of the nine or 10 adults and 'teen-agers believed aboard. A Coast Guard patrol boat was within two miles, preparing to remove them if necessary. Planes spotted the Eloise.

The yacht radioed at 5:10 a.m. PDT (8:10 a.m. EDT) that it was sinking in rolling seas. The message said nine were aboard, although an 86-foot yacht named the Eloise left here Monday with 10 passengers.

The Coast Guard said it assumed the yacht is the 37-year-old schooner Eloise, which departed Monday for Hawaii and the South Pacific with a party of amateur sailors seeking adventure.

Chinese Migration

HONG KONG, May 14.—(AP)—Independent Chinese papers today published dispatches from Canton claiming that 100,000 South Chinese are to be sent into northwest China before the end of this year under a Communist migration plan. Some 10,000 persons were said to have been sent thus far into Sinkiang Province where the Reds are trying to speed the development of natural resources.

New US Passenger Liner Hopes To Take Speed Record

ABOARD THE S.S. UNITED STATES, May 14 — (AP).—This sleek and shiny new passenger liner heads for the open Atlantic today to stretch her sealegs in two days of builder's trials.

The 52,000-ton ship, U.S. challenge to Britain's two sea queens, the Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, will ease down James River, through Hampton Roads, across Chesapeake Bay and point her bows eastward.

It is the first taste of the sea for the $72,000,000 liner, whose builders eagerly await tomorrow's speed tests, confident she will prove herself a faster ship than the much heavier Queen Mary, present holder of the record for the fastest Atlantic crossing.

The Queen Mary has held the blue ribbon, emblematic of the fastest Atlantic crossing, since August, 1938, when she raced from New York to the English Channel —3,120 nautical miles—in 3 days 20 hours 40 minutes.

Americans are banking heavily on the United States' high pressure steam turbines, which can turn up more than 165,000 horse-power, and her relatively small tonnage—52,000 compared with slightly more than 80,000 for the Queen Mary and the Queen Elizabeth—to win back the supremacy missing since the days of the clippers.

The United States is 990 feet long, slightly shorter than either of Britain's Queens. The relatively low tonnage was achieved largely through extensive use of aluminum in her construction.

Aboard the liner for the tests are 1,200 crew members and some 600 passengers, including government, shipyard and United States Lines officials, guests and a handful of newspaper and magazine writers.

When the United States sails from New York on July 3 on her maiden voyage to Southampton, she will carry a crew of 1,000 and will have accommodation for 2,000 passengers.

Gov't Planning Economies But Won't Cut Taxes

WINNIPEG, May 14. (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said today the search for economies is being pressed in every branch of government, but Canadians must not "delude" themselves into believing that this will help lift the burden of taxes substantially. Tax reductions hinge on whether demands for more government services can be kept to a minimum, and particularly, whether the world picture will allow for a reduction in defence spending, he said.

No one was more "anxious" than he to achieve "maximum economy" in government administration and reduce the need for taxes, Mr. Abbott said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Winnipeg Canadian Club.

But he was "no magician" and Canadians "can't get something for nothing."

"There is no magic in government finance . . . every increase in expenditure must be met out of increased revenue sooner or later . . . if there is some monetary magic or fiscal sleight of hand by which this can be avoided, I regret to say that I have never discovered it."

Canadians had to consider the "inexorable logic of our present position."

"As long as we must set aside over $2,000,000,000 for defence, more than $1,000,000,000 for social security, $600,000,000 for interest on the national debt and payments to the provinces, and still carry on the general administration and other varied activities of the government, we must be prepared to foot a tax bill of not much less than $4,500,000,000.

Britain Names A-Test Site

LONDON, May 14 (Reuters) — Britain today named the Monte Bello islands off northwest Australia as the site where her first atomic weapon will be tested.

Prime Minister Churchill has already announced the tests will be carried out next December.

Today's announcement said it will be a joint operation involving the three services and the ministry of supply, the government agency responsible for atomic energy.

The Australian government and fighting services are co-operating closely, it said.

Two British ships now are at the islands unloading equipment for the tests. Three more ships are due this summer. Australian vessels have been running in supplies for months.

Police Capture Two Prisoners

ANGLETON, Tex., May 14 — (AP).—Two of four prisoners who escaped from Ramsey State Prison Farm were recaptured today, and a mother and young daughter who had been held hostage were freed.

Deputy sheriff M. V. Crain said Mrs. Lydia Sproles, about 32, and her daughter, Clara Jo, 6, were released voluntarily by the fugitives in downtown Angleton.

One of the prisoners was caught on a freight train at Liverpool, Tex., and the other was captured after overturning a truck while being pursued at nearby Alvin, Tex.

The armed fugitives stole a pickup truck at the prison farm, abandoned it and stole a passenger car in Angleton, then a few minutes before midnight abandoned that car and stole another in Velasco, Tex.

The young Angleton medical clinic technician and her daughter were the second set of hostages taken by the desperadoes during the night.

As they made their break, they took assistant warden O. O. Stewart, Alfred Minner, tractor supervisor for the farm and his wife and son. The four were released unharmed.

Rescue Beaver Trapped In Pit

CAMPBELLFORD, May 14 — (ENS)—The little community of Healey Falls, six miles north of this town, has been receiving a good deal of attention during the past few days and all because of a year-old beaver who was unlucky enough to fall into a 20-foot pit below the second lock at the Healey Falls power house.

The little fellow became curious a few days ago and toppled into the pit, uninjured. Lockmaster Harry Smith noticed him and has been looking after him ever since. His diet consists mainly of poplar branches, which he peels and neatly piles in one corner of his temporary home.

Conservation officer Reg. McCulloch of the Department of Lands and Forests checked each day on the unlucky beaver, and sometimes brought him choice bits of food. Mr. McCulloch felt the beaver might have been injured if an attempt had been made earlier to remove him from the pit.

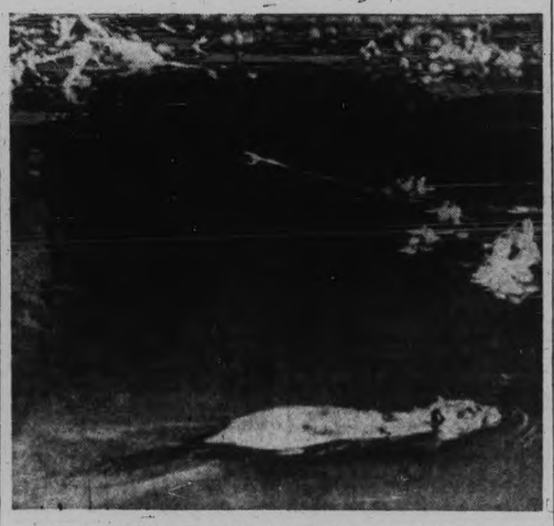
Water Low

Water in this section of the Trent Canal is low because the tug Trent is in drydock undergoing repairs. Until repairs are completed, the water had to be kept that way.

There was about 18 inches of water in the bottom of the pit, and lockmaster Harry Smith altered this slightly by changing a valve in the lock. When repairs to the tug were completed last Tuesday afternoon water was allowed to slowly fill the pit.

Once he gained his freedom, when the water was up to the level of the rest of the canal, the beaver seemed to be in no hurry to get back to his natural habitat. He lingered near the bank of the canal, curiously inspecting several dogs. The animals didn't bother each other.

The district is somewhat of a natural sanctuary for wild life. On Monday, a buck and doe wandered calmly through a small woodlot near the power house, across an open stretch of field and entered the water. They swam side by side to the opposite shore, about a quarter of a mile.



ONE YOUNG BEAVER swimming about in his pool caused quite a stir about Healey Falls, six miles north of Campbellford until he was released late Tuesday by flooding the lock where he had fallen in. He was fed poplar poles and he neatly stacked them in a corner after he had stripped off the bark and eaten it.—(W. W. Reid Photo)

Believe Witnesses Killed To Keep 1st Murder Secret

LONDON, Ont., May 14. (CP)—Ten Provincial Police officers today converged on the lonely lane where the bodies of the victims of the triple slaying on the Muncey Indian Reserve were found Sunday. In their inch-by-inch intensive ground search of the sides of the steep gully, eight officers from London and two from Glencoe sought clues to the identity of the mystery man who, police speculate: drove Mrs. Lydia Riley and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Henry to the Fourth Range road for a drink; shot, killed and robbed Mrs. Lydia Riley and cut down Mr. and Mrs. Henry with his .22-calibre rifle.

The investigation is under the direction of Inspector Len Neil of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the O.P.P.

He said police are unable to stick to one theory because "we have to keep an open mind to knit in any new facts which we may pick up."

It may take another day or so before results of laboratory tests of the blood-soaked gravel found 4½ miles from the gully show whether it is tied in with the murders. It is not known whether it is human blood.

Keep Secret

Inspector Neil said one or two of the victims were killed on the principle that dead men tell no tales.

Police theorize that because one of the victims was robbed of $50, the others were shot to silence witnesses to the first killing.

The three bodies were discovered Sunday just north of the reserve, 20 miles southwest of here. Police said a purse found in London Monday and at first believed to belong to a relative of Mrs. Riley has no connection with the case.

Had Been Celebrating

Archie Seneca, a resident of the reserve, said he left the three about 4 a.m. after celebrating with them the birth of a daughter. Police said Mrs. Riley and the Henrys apparently went on to look for another drink.

Police Tuesday conducted a house-to-house examination of reserve residents who may have seen the three early Sunday morning.

Provincial police and R.C.M.P. officers are co-operating in the investigation.

Ordered To Resign

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, May 14. (Reuters)—The South African government has ordered Dr. M. Dadoo to resign the presidency of the South African Indian Congress—b ggest Indian group in the Union—within 30 days and has forbidden him to move in the next two years from the Transvaal where he lives.

Taft Receives 15-1 Edge In Virginia Poll

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—Returns trickling in from West Virginia's heavy primary voting today give Senator Robert Taft a 15-to-1 edge in the convention-delegate race and a 3-to-1 margin in the popularity poll.

A late rush of voters Tuesday swamped many balloting points in the 2,822 precincts.

Taft candidates for presidential-nominating delegate seats were ahead in all but one of the 16 contests. A supporter of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was leading in that one. Taft people expect a clean sweep but say losing one delegate to Eisenhower could hardly be called a victory for the general.

Results in 1,043 precincts showed 49,474 votes for the Ohio senator against 14,312 for former Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota. Eisenhower was not entered in this preferential voting and write-ins were not counted.

No Contest

Democrats held no presidential popularity contest and, without a fight, named a 20-vote delegation to the nominating convention.

Both Republican and Democratic delegations are officially unpledged.

In Minot, N.D., a red-hot battle for North Dakota's eight-vote Democratic delegation was coming to a showdown. Backers of Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee waged a losing fight Tuesday to have the delegation instructed for him. Amid verbal fireworks, the convention voted to leave the delegation unpledged. It will be named today.

Groggy MP's In 17-Hr. Session

LONDON, May 14 (Reuters)—At 7 a.m. today groggy members of parliament yawned mightily and went home to bed after a 17-hour, all-night session which was one of the dullest in months.

They won't get much sleep today, though, because the House is due to reassemble at 2:30 p.m.

Longest sitting of the present parliament was 23 hours. That session broke up at 1 p.m. March 27. Longest sitting in history was in June, 1881, when M.P.s were in their seats for 41½ hours continuously.

Tuesday night parliament discussed a scheme for revised purchase (sales) tax arrangements on clothing and textiles, and its effects on prices.

From 3:30 Tuesday afternoon M.P.'s exchanged views on fur coats, pyjamas, ladies' underwear, curtain materials and general fabrics.

W. Germany Expected Ask For Billion Aid

BONN, Germany, May 14 (AP)—West Germany is expected to ask the United States for at least $1,000,000,000 aid to start arming German soldiers for western defence after the Allied-German "peace contract" and the European army treaty are finally approved.

Authoritative sources said today that the Germans probably will need this amount of foreign aid during the first year of rearmament.

The European army treaty envisions the raising of 400,000 German troops for the six-country force. Britain may contribute some equipment to the German units but the main burden will fall on the German taxpayer and the United States, these sources said.

They estimate the first year of German rearmament will cost between $3,500,000,000 and $4,750,000,000. The new German defence budget for the year beginning July 1 totals almost $2,500,000,000.

Government Plans Buy Sask. Cattle At Floor Prices

OTTAWA, May 14. (CP)—The Federal government is going to take cattle off the hands of Saskatchewan farmers at floor prices in a new move to ease surpluses piling up in that province because of foot-and-mouth disease embargoes. Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced the tentative plan in the Commons Tuesday. The government plans to buy at auction cattle which farmers must but cannot sell. Those that cannot be slaughtered immediately will be turned out to Federal community pastures which can hold between 10,000 and 20,000 head.

The minister said A. M. Shaw, chairman of the Agricultural Prices Support Board and Robert McCubbin, the minister's parliamentary assistant, are going to Saskatoon today to set up the organization.

He believed it would "take care of the situation" without eventual financial loss to the treasury.

The minister uncovered the plan after listening most of the day to opposition criticisms of government floor prices. Mr. Gardiner rejected charges that packing companies were to blame for farmers not getting floor prices and said the prices on beef and hogs have risen to the government's floor levels since announcement of the Canada-United Kingdom-New Zealand deal for an export market for Canadian meat.

Aid To Britain?

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, expressed the hope the meat deal will help Canada get back into the British market. She needed that market for agricultural stability but some way would have to be found to allow Britain to get Canadian dollars so she could buy.

Later in the day opposition members turned their criticisms to the government's housing policy.

George Hees (P.C.-Toronto Broadview) said persons with incomes under $5,000 a year are virtually excluded from buying new houses. J. W. Noseworthy (C.C.F.-York West) called for a revision of housing policy in the light of present-day conditions.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., (P.C.-Nanaimo) appealed for removal of restrictions holding an ex-serviceman's total of sefvice pension and civil service salary, when he joins the civil service, to his total pay and allowances in the armed services."

Want To Keep Officers

Defence Minister Claxton said it might be advisable to do this, but the government wanted to keep officers in the forces as long as possible.

The Senate had the unusual experience of a minister entering that chamber to explain a bill. Justice Minister Garson went to the Upper House to outline lengthy criminal code amendments on second reading and told the Senators the changes will mainly clarify rather than change the law.

Only two other ministers—Defence Minister Claxton and Transport Minister Chevrier—have ever taken advantage of a Senate rule allowing ministers to enter that chamber to explain legislation initiated there. Usually major government bills are initiated in the Commons.

Opposition criticism of the government's floor prices on beef, hogs and eggs, ranged from that of J. A. Ross (P.C.-Souris) that they were not high enough, to a charge by J. A. Charlton (P.C.-Brant Wentworth) that they were "nothing more than a farce and a hoax."

Asks For Board

William Bryce (C.C.F.-Selkirk) called for establishment of a board of livestock commissioners, and John Blackmore (S.C.-Lethbridge) said a government financial measure was needed to protect the livestock industry against unpredictable mishaps.

Mr. Gardiner, announcing the Saskatchewan plan, indicated he was hopeful it would be only a stop-gap until the Manitoba embargo on Saskatchewan cattle is lifted. He disputed the legality of the Manitoba ban on Saskatchewan cattle but had no intention of testing it in the courts. Manitoba would do something quicker if left alone.

Farmers still will be urged to keep their cattle off the market for the time being, but those who need capital will have the opportunity to sell to the government if the packing houses or other buyers do not take them at auction at floor prices.

In that case the government will take them and the minister indicated government purchases will not be limited to top grades.

Ready To Clamp Pay Ceiling On Oil Workers

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—The Wage Stabilization Board was primed today to clamp a general but flexible ceiling on the amount of wage increases 90,000 striking oil workers might get under anti-inflation rules.

The strike entered its third week with no signs of early settlement.

The Wage Board, in studying six scattered wage pacts already reached in the industry, obviously hoped that the amount it allows will act as a guidepost to more than 20 unions engaged in the strike against major United States oil companies. And company and union officials said they hoped the same thing.

Felt In Britain

The strike has brought on oil and gas shortages as far away as Britain, where the U.S. Third Air Force cancelled all but essential flights. The Petroleum Administration for Defence prepared to name petroleum-supply directors in 15 states most seriously affected.

The strike has cut off slightly more than one-third of U.S. oil production. It has brought a workhalt in oil fields, pipe lines and refineries.

O. A. Knight, head of the C.I.O. Oilworkers Union and major spokesman for the 22 unions involved, told reporters he questions whether the strike has resulted in a national emergency. Supplies to Korea and the military were being maintained.

...e must, of course, endeavour to achieve every possible economy in all these fields, but I think it is clear from what I have said that the possibility for a substantial reduction in taxation is dependent very largely on whether events will permit a reduced provision for defence."

Shown Concern

He noted that Canadian people and the press have shown concern over the size of the budget and for the need of making every possible economy in government administration. There had been criticism, but criticism was good for the soul —"especially for the soul of a finance minister."

And he agreed that every economy should be made. The search for economies "is being pressed forward in every branch of government." Many "desirable" projects were being postponed. Others already under way were being curtailed. The size of the civil service in non-defence activities "is being held down wherever possible."

But the cost of the whole general administration of the government would amount to $670,000,000 — less than 15 per cent of total expenditures and well under one-third of outlays for defence.

Critics had stated that the government had allowed this sector of its spending to expand unreasonably. But this wasn't so, Mr. Abbott maintained.

This phase of government operations "has shown a remarkable stability." The $670,000,000 item estimate compared with $589,000,000 spent in 1947.

US. Senate Plans Debate On Seaway

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—The Senate's Democratic Policy Committee Tuesday scheduled floor action on the controversial St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

But there was no assurance as to how soon the measure—authorizing the U.S. to participate in the construction of the estimated $818,000,000 dual-purpose development—would come up for debate.

Consideration of several other measures, including at least three appropriation bills, might intervene before the Democratic leadership gives the final go-ahead on the seaway.

Also enjoying the priority over the waterway legislation, Majority Leader Ernest McFarland (Dem., Ariz.) told reporters, is the Mutual Security Bill.

Thus, Tuesday's action by the committee had the main effect of placing the bill on the Senate calendar.

The seaway proposal, which has had a stormy—and lengthy—legislative career, was last voted upon by the Senate four years ago. At that time it was sent back to committee for further study.

Expect Rejection

Should the Senate again turn down the measure—as opponents are confident it will—Canada will have the opportunity to build the seaway herself.

Canadian officials have indicated that they would much prefer to have the U.S. join in the construction but, in the absence of affirmative action by Congress, they have said that Canada will build it entirely on her own side of the St. Lawrence River.

The project would give ocean-going shipping access to the head of the Great Lakes. It also calls for a 2,200,000 horse-power hydro-electric plant in the International Rapids section of the river.

The hydro development engineers estimate, will yield more than 13,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of power a year. It would be shared equally between Canada and the participating U.S. agency.

France Puts Bey Under Virtual Arrest

TUNIS, Tunisia, May 14—(AP) —France put the 70-year-old Bey of Tunis under virtual house arrest today for balking at a French martial-law decree.

French troops carrying bayonets moved in and replaced the blue-uniformed Arab soldiers of Sidi Mohammed Al-Amin's honor guard at his summer palace, built on the site of the ruins of Carthage.

At the same time there was a new outbreak of violence in this French protectorate. A bomb exploded in the office of the public works director. Three persons were wounded.

The Bey, nominal ruler of the country since 1943, refused a French demand that he countersign a decree declaring martial law in the country.

Picked Up Similar Boy

First clue to the boy's whereabouts came when Millbrook baker Tom Bredin reported he had picked up a boy in Centreville who vaguely answered to the description of Eldon Hunter.

Mr. Bredin said the hitchhiker was dressed in an overcoat and was wearing boots. The boy told the baker he was going to Port Hope.

Mr. Hunter said today that apparently Eldon had gone to the family farm, picked up a pair of old boots and an overcoat there, and then had gone on his way.

Provincial police in Toronto, Aurora and Peterborough had been notified of the boy's disappearance and were on the lookout for him.

Reds Threaten New Filibuster

MUNSAN, Korea, May 14 (AP) —Communist negotiators threatened today to filibuster against the Allies' proposed armistice package.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il made the threat after injecting into the negotiations the kidnapping of Brig.-Gen Francis T. Dodd at the Koje Island prison camp.

Nam Il charged the Allies were trying to delay truce talks by their "outrageous attitude." He said unless the United Nations command "explicitly declares" it wants to break off the conference the Communists will insist on daily meetings and continue to refuse to accept the final Allied package offer.

Nam Il charged the Allies were treating prisoners inhumanely. He said this was proved by concessions which Brig.-Gen. Charles F. Colson granted Red prisoners last week to effect Dodd's release. The wording which Nam Il quoted has been described by the United States military command in Washington as misleading.

Big 3 Ready For Talks On Germany

Demand Russians Be Definite On Discussion Plans

LONDON, May 14. (CP)—Britain, France and the United States have expressed willingness to open negotiations with the Soviet Union on the unification of Germany.

However, they emphasize there must first be a clear understanding of the fundamental problems to be examined.

The western powers outlined their position Tuesday night in identical replies to a Russian note.

The first problem to be tackled, the western powers said, is that of investigating political conditions throughout Germany and of creating conditions necessary for holding free elections. This would be the first step toward establishing an all-German government which could then negotiate a German peace treaty.

Already Set Up

In previous exchanges Russia had declared that the study of political conditions should be made by a commission created by the four big powers which occupy Germany. The western governments rejected this in favor of turning the job over to a United Nations Commission already set up for that purpose.

Recognizing, however, that the Russians were unwilling to use the U.N. group, the western powers offered a compromise Tuesday night "to consider any other practical and precise proposals for an impartial commission of investigation which the Soviet government may wish to put forward." The idea is that such a group could be established through the use of representatives on non-occupying nations.

U.S. officials said they had in mind such countries as Iceland, the Netherlands, Brazil and Poland.

Western Proposals

The western powers propose that, as soon as such a commission had reported on the political conditions throughout Germany, the occupation powers could then meet to consider:

1. "The holding of free elections throughout Germany, including the creation where necessary of the appropriate conditions."
2. "The assurances to be given by the four powers that the all-German government, formed as the result of these free elections, will have the necessary freedom of action during the period before the peace treaty comes into effect."

The western note developed the idea that, if the proposed all-German government was to negotiate freely, it would have to be independent of the domination of the occupation powers. Russia's reaction to this idea was sought.

The west also reiterated the resolve to go through with plans for bringing West Germany into the European defence setup by the end of this month.

Convict Decides To End Strike On Smokestack

SAN QUENTIN, Calif., May 14 (AP)—A convict who climbed to the top of a 135-foot smokestack inside San Quentin's walls because he wanted to be transferred to another prison gave up his perch Tuesday night.

The prisoner, Frederick Zelenc, 31, began his "sit-up" strike at 1:30 p.m. and some seven hours later came down after holding a shouted conversation with Warden Harley O. Teets.

Teets yelled to Zelenc: "Come on down." Zelenc, who is serving a term for attempted rape, shouted back: "I want to go to Folsom prison."

"I can't promise that—but come on down," Teets yelled back. Zelenc said "okay" and climbed down.

Higher Tariff Protection Rejected By Canada--Abbott

WINNIPEG, May 14 (CP)—The Canadian government has turned its back against increased demands by some Canadian producers for higher tariff protection against competitive imports, Finance Minister Abbott disclosed today.

At the same time, he disclosed the sterling area has been told Canada does not feel intensified import restrictions offer any lasting solution to the sterling area's exchange problems.

Mr. Abbott, in a speech prepared for delivery before the Winnipeg Canadian Club, said he made Canada's position clear at the January conference of Commonwealth finance ministers.

"High protectionism is a weapon which can easily back-fire," he said. In a recent Washington speech he had warned American businessmen of certain signs of protectionism arising in the United States and of the serious consequences they might have on American-Canadian trade relations.

Asked More Protection

Yet in Canada, there also have been "indications of some increase in protectionism sentiment among some of our producers."

"Over the past few months the government has received many representations, requesting increased protection. We have not acceded to these requests because we believe that such action would be contrary to the best interests of the Canadian people both as producers and consumers."

Canada, which lives mostly by its export trade, would have the most to lose if new trade barriers became general.

"Surely we cannot hope to get trade barriers down in other countries if we ourselves erect new ones as soon as competition appears."

Some of the Canadian tariff demands were directed against imports from the United Kingdom and other overseas countries.

"One of the limitations on Canadian exports to these countries has been their lack of dollar exchanges," said Mr. Abbott. "If we refuse to buy their goods, they simply will not be able to pay for the things they buy from us."

Driver Charged After Accident

Two charges have been laid against a Havelock woman in connection with a head-on crash on Highway 7, 13 miles east of Peterborough in which five Lindsay people were injured May 3.

Mrs. Mabel Youmans, 52, pleaded not guilty in police court Tuesday to charges of dangerous and careless driving. Both charges were adjourned until May 21, at the request of Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, who advised Mrs. Youmans to obtain legal advice in the meantime.

Mrs. Youmans was driving west towards Peterborough and was passing another westbound car, when her car met head-on with an eastbound car driven by Albert E. Fentum, 27, of 28 Elgin St., Lindsay.

Fentum and his four pasesngers were slightly injured in the collision.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1952

A Central Ontario Festival

The Peterborough Music Festival began this morning. It is the sixth annual music competition sponsored, directed and managed by the Peterborough Kiwanis Club, to which all citizens interested in fostering and developing the musical arts in this district are greatly indebted. Like most undertakings of wide social and educative importance, the Festival is a large and expensive enterprise. The Kiwanis Club has been heartened by unusually numerous entries; it now remains for the listening public to give their support by their attendance. There are sessions every morning, afternoon and evening until next Wednesday, excluding Sunday.

* * *

It is the largest music festival Peterborough has had—an entire week of it. Competitors range from small children making their first public appearance at the piano, to experienced choirs, and vocalists and instrumentalists of professional competence. Competitors are entered from the city in large numbers, from all the surrounding villages and towns, and as far west as Toronto (a gratifyihgly large number of Toronto entries), as far east as Perth and Kingston, as far north as Orillia. The hometowns cited on the program read like a gazetteer of southern Ontario: Oshawa, Bowmanville, Newcastle, Port Hope, Cobourg, Belleville, Kingston, Toronto, Scarborough, Willowdale, Aurora, Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Woodville, Orillia, Reaboro, Manilla, Enniskillen, Little Britain, Cameron, Manvers, Oakwood, Apsley, Harvey, Buckhorn, Rockcroft, Tweed, Bailieboro, Millbrook, Campbellford, Norwood, Lakefield, Warsaw, Perth. This list of placenames shows the standing and importance of the Peterborough Festival as a central Ontario festival.

* * *

It is estimated that 2,500 participants are coming into Peterborough for the festival. We welcome these outside competitors to the city, and also the adjudicators, Mr. Alex Redshaw and Mr. Ronald Biggs from England (it is Mr. Redshaw's second appearance as an adjudicator of the Peterborough Festival), and Miss Irene Fairclough of Hamilton, who is judging the verse speaking.

Military Lessons From Korea

A military correspondent of ours writes of the lessons which the Korean war has taught, particularly about American strategy and tactics. Although it is hoped that the Korean war is not to become a trial ground for a major world war, as the Spanish civil war was used to test tactics and weapons and men preparatory to the last World War, the mistakes and changes, successes and failures, in Korea have deep relevancy to the problems confronting Allied forces in Europe.

American forces have never been strong in defensive roles. The Korean war has shown that for the first time in this century, the U.S. army must be prepared to wage prolonged defensive campaigns. It has, therefore, to adapt its tactics to defense on wide fronts against numerically superior enemies.

Tactically, the U.S. emphasis has been on firepower to carry an attack forward, and shallow linear defence. The Commonwealth Division in Korea has shown the value of defense in depth, and allround protection. British and Canadian troops are well used to this; since June, 1940, it has been the essence of their training. Now that Canada is more and more integrating its weapons and tactics with American, it is well that this Commonwealth lesson has been learnt by the Americans: to train for defence as well as offence.

The Americans have relied on firepower rather than man-power. It was an unavoidable reliance, since the North Koreans and Chinese have been thicker than U.N. troops on the ground. But the emphasis on fire-power has been a chief principle of American military policy since 1945—and even during the last war. Today the firepower of a normal American division has been increased fifty per cent. since 1945, while the strength in men has gone up only thirty per cent. The number of automatic weapons in infantry battalions has been increased, and two battalions of tanks have been added to infantry divisions. The recoilless 57 and 75 mm. guns, we are told, have been outstandingly successful, for the troops have been able to manhandle them into most awkward postions in the mountains. But there is this justifiable fear of the increased fire-power: that the American army will have too long a tail, too many vehicles on the roads.

If added fire-power means that even the infantry are road-bound, the American army will have a serious loss of capacity to manoeuvre. Neither in Europe during the war nor now in Korea has the American army suffered from a numerically superior enemy air force. If the American army had to take the field in Europe, it would be unlikely to have air superiority, initially. If the enemy were Russia, the Soviet Air Force might play havoc with the present American method of operating on the roads.

Another lesson of the Korean War which the Americans (and particularly the American general staff) have quickly learnt, is that tactical air force in direct support of ground operations is vital. The American Fifth Air Force based on Tokyo and trained for strategic air war—to carry bombs and plenty of them deep into enemy territory—was unprepared for the role of close support in Korea. It improvised quickly and courageously, but was unable to give the army the help it needed in the first few months in Korea. As a direct result of this the Tactical Air Command has been re-established in the United States.

These air power lessons have also been learned: that even with complete command of the air (as in Korea), it is impossible to prevent a resourceful enemy from bringing forward supplies and maintaining his front; that the MIG 15 jet-fighter of the Russians is superior in many ways to the best American jets; and, thirdly, that strategic bombing by day is not economic as long as the enemy has a strong jet-fighter force.

As more officers from Korea return to Canada, more information about Korean campaigns and tactics will be known by those interested at home. We have outlined above some of the broader concepts and military lessons.

Peterborough's Parking Attraction

"Come to Peterborough where you can park" could be a new Chamber of Commerce slogan. While other cities groan about their lack of parking space, Peterborough is finding it, and right down town, too.

There is a huge new parking lot within a stone's throw of the town clock; the razed site for the forty-year-old phantom of Peterborough, the new Federal Building. Presumably this parking lot will be available for another forty years. Smack underneath the town clock is another big parking lot. This is to be increased by half when the old city hall is torn down. And if you do not wish to park so close to the town tick, you may drive a few hundred yards south on the main street, and park freely (except on market day) opposite the city's beautiful Little Lake. Public parking is provided at the two central places for a few cents a half-day.

Perhaps the city is securing this parking space expensively. To tear down the perfectly sound old city building for the sake of parking seems extravagant. However, economics are topsy-turvy when applied to big old buildings. Nobody wants the poor things, for love or money; they are no earthly use it seems. Or rather, they are of earthly use. The site of the old city offices will fetch more from parking meters than the building itself would get from rentals. At least, that is the statistical theory which the city fathers were working on when they voted to tear it down.

Peterborough may seem a parker's paradise to people from other cities. We who inhabit this paradise never seem to be able to find a place to park except half a block from our destination.

It Wasn't All Good

Most of us, when we visit Europe, or even our own sister province of Quebec, are impressed by the age of some of the buildings we see, and sometimes we generalize about the excellence of building in an earlier day. It rarely occurs to us that while the construction of buildings which are still standing must be good, many buildings contemporaneous with these have since fallen down, or have been pulled down because they were dangerous.

This matter is discussed very entertainingly by an architectural scholar, Mr. L. F. Salzman, who has no respect for the average builder of an earlier day. Building was particularly bad, he points out, during the eleventh century, when a great many European churches fell down for no other reason than that they were badly built. The medieval craftsman was at least as ready as the modern builder to do poor work, he asserts, and gives many examples to back up his argument.

This may provide some negative comfort for the much-abused modern builder. We hear a great deal about the decline in craftsmanship and the poor quality of modern work and materials. But apparently the same sort of talk has been going on for many centuries, and the average modern building will not fall down any faster than its ancient counterpart.

Olympic Games At Helsinki

By
E. MICHAEL SALZER
(in Helsinki)

FINLAND is a poor country. With its economy crippled by war damage and the burden of huge war indemnities demanded by the Russians, its living standard is still below that of most other European nations. Goods are still scarce, some luxuries like coffee are severely rationed, prices are high. Yet the gallant Finns promise the 150,000 or more visitors from all over the world, expected to attend the Olympic Games this summer, a warm welcome and plenty of everything.

Helsinki, the small capital of this easternmost outpost of Western democracy, is usually a rather drab city, attractive mainly through its charming surrounding woodlands, lakes, islands and seashore. But this summer Helsinki will virtually blossom forth with thousands of roses, planted in the streets approaching the Stadium.

THE ROSES ARE A GIFT from the Netherlands, which also sent a small forest of decorative trees to brighten the Olympic City. Thanks again to the generous Dutch, Olympic participants will not run short of fresh fruits and vegetables, normally scarce in the Finnish metropolis, which was robbed of its own orchards and gardens when the Russions occupied the fertile Porkkala, a canonshot from Helsinki, to turn it into an advanced fortification.

It is on the journey through the Porkkala region, the only existing railway approach from the West, that the foreign visitor is made to realise the proximity of the Iron Curtain and the shadow of the Kremlin which darkens Finland. On the journey from Turku, Russian guards mount the train, cover the windows with wooden blinds, seal the doors; the train rolls on, as through a tunnel, through this secret Russian base, until it reaches the outskirts of Helsinki and freedom again.

Just now, however, the Finns are in an exhilarated mood. To them the Olympic Games with all their gay and carefree splendour, are the symbol of a new era. For eight years the hardworking Finns have renounced all the well-earned fruits of their hard labour to pay off their war debts in kind to Russia. The Olympic Games coincide with the delivery of the last instalment of these reparations, and the Olympic torch, united with a special "Northern Flame"—kindled (with a Magnifying glass) by the rays of the Midnight Sun beyond the Arctic Circle, deep in the heart of Finnish-Lapland—will therefore mean more for the Finns than merely the symbol of a great athletic event.

IN DAY AND NIGHT air relays, with extra ships and special trains via Southern Lapland some sixty thousand travellers from abroad are due to arrive in Helsinki in the coming weeks. The city of four hundred thousand has prepared beds for one hundred and fifteen thousand visitors. Every bed is registered, and without previous booking visitors will not find even a corner in a tent. Prices range from five dollars (reckoned in dollars for convenience's sake, but payable in the visitor's own currency) for a single room in a private home to one dollar for a bed without blankets or sheets in a community camp, and sixty cents for a stretcher in a tent. The Lodging Office promise wherever possible to place visitors in homes where at least one member of the family speaks a language known to the foreign guest.

Thousands of official interpreters have been trained to take care of the visitors, three thousand linguistic messenger boys are to run errands for the Olympic athletes and Pressmen. Restaurants have menus in the four "Olympic languages", (English, French, Finnish and Swedish), taxi drivers, tram conductors, waiters and policemen have undergone special training in a "courtesy campaign", arranged by the Olympic organisers "to mellow the rather harsh and blunt Finnish character". If that campaign bears the expected fruit, the Finns will prove this summer to be the best-mannered people amongst the sixty nations represented at the Games.

BUT I DOUBT whether the hopeful Olympic organisers will achieve their aim of "changing the drinking habits of the Finnish people." These tough, taciturn, individualistic people can drink hard and their whole life is attuned to this. Their food is strongly spiced, pickled fish and strong cheeses stimulate the palate and a few tots of the potent schnapps go easy with every meal. Perhaps not so for the unsuspecting visitor, who should not take too seriously the cordial invitation to drink "bottoms up" at every turn.

Restaurants are fairly expensive. One can hardly get a decent meal for under two dollars, except perhaps in the many cheaper Co-operative restaurants, which serve substantial, if not especially tasty, food, based mainly on the national dish—potatoes—and in which the chances of finding an English-speaking waitress are small. Advising the foreign Olympic teams to bring their own cook or "spicer", the Finns themselves forewarn their guests by giving the available foodstuffs their own rating. Excellent (and also plentiful) butter, milk, cream, cheese, sausages, eggs, veal, pork—and water. Fairly good—bread, (hard, crisp rye bread is preferred), cereals, potatoes, chicken, canned foods (mostly imported) and ice cream. Average; beef, mutton, vegetables, fruits and berries. Fish is scarce, except for pickled herring. So far, the Finn's own estimate. I found pork chops, meat balls, pancakes and various sweets, especially the typically Scandinavian "cloudberries" (to many Finnish country families the only vitamin supply in winter) tasty and interesting. Finnish beer is weak, the various spirits (made from potato or wood) are sharp and potent, fruit juices are syrupy but refreshing. Milk is served with all meals. Tea and coffee are scarce, and although the Colombian coffee growers have supplied fifty sacks of choicest beans for the benefit of the Olympic athletes, visitors are advised to bring their own.

THE FINNS ARE reserved, but most hospitable. They are among the best educated people in Europe. Even the most modest homes have libraries with some two hundred books, and in the snowy desert of northernmost Lapland, where the Arctic winter night lasts six months, I found Spinoza, William Blake, Kent and Schopenhauer in lone farm houses. They are frank and honest, proud and strong. The girls are free and open-minded, simply dressed, shunning make up. They meet strangers with comradeship, and unceremoniously. The Finns dislike all fussy pomp and circumstance, are happiest in unrestrained surroundings. The open-air dancing in the woods around Helsinki are free for all. Open air life means most to the Finns, and a lucky visitor will be invited to one of the thousands of summer cottages on the innumerable lakes and there really learn to know the Finnish way of life. A day in the woods or on the water invariably finishes up with a "sauna", the legendary Finnish steam bath, an institution in every home, and one to which the Finns give credit for their physical strength and well-being—and for their ability to put down large quantities of schnapps without ill-effects.

Hard-drinking sportsmen, dance-happy booklovers, poor but lavish hosts—these qualities contradictory as they may sound, are the makings of the Finnish character. Most people know the Finns only through their celebrities, the composer Jean Sibelius, the legendary Field Marshal Mannerheim, the unique world champion runner Paavo Nurmi (who now sells ties at his little haberdashery shop in Helsinki). The majority of this summer's visitors will be meeting the Finnish people for the first time. There is no doubt that they will like them.

Opportunity Knocks Once

Autobiography of Sir Campbell Stuart, K.B.E., K.C.M.G.
By SENATOR RUPERT DAVIES

SIR CAMPBELL STUART'S autobiography is of particular interest to the people of Kingston and district, because of the fact that the Rev. John Stuart, D.D., his great-grandfather, was the founder of St. George's Cathedral, and for 27 years rector of Kingston. A handsome tablet in the cathedral, erected to his memory, testifies to these facts. It also records that Rev. John Stuart, as well as founding the first church in the province of Ontario, and the first school, was also chaplain to the garrison and to the first Legislative Council. At the time of the erection of the tablet, G. L. Starr was president of the Kingston Historical Association, and W. L. Grant, later principal of Upper Canada College, was secretary. The Reverend John Stuart married Jane Okill of Philadelphia. She inherited a large fortune. The Stuarts were given a generous grant of land in Kingston. Today five streets are named after them, George, Okill, Arch, Deacon and Stuart. The old Stuart homestead, is now the principal's residence at Queens.

✧ ✧ ✧

SIR CAMPBELL STUART begins his biography with the phrase "I firmly believe in heredity—in one's character it often jumps a generation, but it is always there." Sir Campbell descends from distinguished ancestors on both sides of his family, and there can be no doubt that the blood of his forebears had much to do with his own successful career. The Stuarts, the Smiths, the Dinwiddies, all played an important part in the development of New York State, Virginia, and later Upper Canada. While Sir Campbell, who last visited Kingston in 1927, as the guest of Dr. Bruce Taylor, has had a brilliant career in Great Britain, one cannot but wish, however, that he had decided to settle again in Canada after the 1914-18 war, and had given to this country the hard work, the energy, and the ability which led so many brilliant achievements in the country of his adoption.

✧ ✧ ✧

"Opportunity Knocks Once" is the life story of a man who might be said to have spent the years for the most part, acting as an unpaid public servant of the British Commonwealth and Empire. He gave his time and ability doing very important tasks, very ably, but in a more or less unofficial way. One of the great difficulties which always confronts a man or woman who tries to write a truthful biography, is how to avoid a certain amount of what appears to be egotism, Sir Campbell refers to this difficulty in his foreword. If a biography is to be of any interest—and indeed, of any value—to the average reader, it must be factual. If the author is lucky enough to have had unusual personal contacts with well-known and important people, the reader wants to hear about them.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE MIGHT be a tendency on the part of some who read Sir Campbell's biography, to conclude that he associated with only the great and the near-great. It is quite true that during a full life he has not met many people who can be truthfully called "great." He has also, no doubt, met many in the humbler walks of life, and has enjoyed their companionship. Sir Campbell's book deals, however, with important episodes in his life, and it is with people connected with these episodes about whom he writes so frankly and so entertainingly.

SIR CAMPBELL STUART was born in Montreal in 1885. He was educated and spent his boyhood in that city. During his youth, he visited extensively in the city of Quebec. It was while staying with Mrs. Molson Macpherson in Quebec, that he formed a friendship with the Marquis of Montcalm which proved very useful to him in later years.

Shortly after the outbreak of world war in 1914, Sir Campbell Stuart conceived the idea of raising an Irish-Canadian regiment, half Protestant and half Roman Catholic. His recruiting campaign was very successful, and the regiment was called "The Duchess of Connaught's Own Irish Rangers." It was during his early days in Montreal, too, that Sir Campbell met Ribbentrop, and got to know him well. Ribbentrop was at that time working in a bank in that city.

When the Irish-Canadian Rangers regiment was broken up and apportioned to other regiments, Campbell Stuart went to Rome with the blessing of Sir Robert Borden, the Prime Minister of Canada, to seek an audience with His Holiness the Pope, to discuss the problem of French Canada and the war. It was a difficult mission. It was, however, a success, in spite of, rather than with the help of, the British Ambassador to the Vatican. After a short and unsuccessful period in the British diplomatic service at Washington, Campbell Stuart was given what he refers to as "the great chance of my life." He became military secretary to the British War Mission in New York, under Lord Northcliffe. He came back to London with this great newspaper publisher, and took up residence at Crewe House, which became the headquarters of the British War Mission. At this point the author tells an interesting story of the first war. Lloyd-George, the then Prime Minister, was dissatisfied with his air minister, Lord Cowdray. He offered the post to Lord Northcliffe, who refused it. Not content with refusing the office, Northcliffe sent his letter of refusal to the press. As Lord Cowdray had not heard that the P.M. was planning to replace him, it is easy to believe Campbell Stuart when he says "Cowdray became a bitter and powerful enemy of Lloyd-George for the rest of his life."

THE IMPRESSION which Campbell Stuart made upon Lord Northcliffe must have been a very striking one. When the work of the War Mission was over, Lord Northcliffe appointed him managing-director of The Times—perhaps the most important post in British journalism. Later he had added to the duties of that office, which were, I am sure onerous enough, the managing-editorship of The Daily Mail. This was the first daily paper which Northcliffe started, and it was an immediate success. It was not Northcliffe's first journalistic effort. He had been associated with Sir George Newnes in the publication of Tit-Bits. He left Newnes, and started "Answers". The first issue came out on Northcliffe's wedding day. He had no money then. From these humble beginnings, he built a journalistic empire and became a man of great power and influence.

The chapter dealing with Sir Campbell's years at The Times are of particular interest to newspapermen. A lot of what he tells in his autobiography is confirmed in the latest volume of the History of The Times, which has just been published. Sir Campbell tells the inside story of The Times under Northcliffe, of Northcliffe's estrangement from Lloyd-George and of the sale of The Times at Northcliffe's death. Campbell Stuart arranged the sale of this great paper to Col. the Hon. J. J. Astor, now president of the Commonwealth Press Union.

It is an interesting tale. Lord Rothermere, the brother of Northcliffe, naturally wanted to retain The Times in the Harmsworth family. The matter, apparently according to the terms of the Northcliffe purchase, had to be settled in a court. Lord Rothermere bid £1,350,000. Mr. John Walter, grandson of the founder, who had retained an interest in The Times all through the year, bid a similar figure for the Northcliffe interests, and the property became the property of Col. Astor and Mr. Walter.

SIR CAMPBELL evidently wanted to preserve The Times from any personal influences. According to the History of The Times, there was a fear that Lloyd-George might acquire it. It is stated in Fleet Street circles that there were others much interested. In any event The Times eventually came under the direction of a trust, composed of the Lord Chief Justice, the Warden of All Souls College, the President of the Royal Society, the President of the Institute of Chartered Accountants and the Governor of the Bank of England. To place an important newspaper like The Times under the direction of a lot of men who know nothing about operating a newspaper, may appear to be a sound idea in the minds of some people. Others will feel that as a result of that course The Times has lost its individuality, and its editorial policy became unconsciously weakened. The Times is always eminently fair, and presents its news without bias and with great clarity. It is an open question, however, whether The Times is as influential in Britain today as is The Daily Telegraph, which is owned by a practical newspaperman of wide experience—Lord Camrose. One gets more forthright opinions on public questions in The Telegraph than one gets in The Times, and incidentally its circulation is four times as large.

✧ ✧ ✧

LATER Sir Campbell Stuart became the Canadian representative, at the request of Mr. Mackenzie King, on the Pacific Cable Board. Two events stand out in his life, however, as of great importance. One was the erection of a monument to General Wolfe at Greenwich, and the other the erection of a monument to the late President Roosevelt in Grosvenor Square, London. In the erection of both these memorials Sir Campbell played a very prominent part. I had the pleasure of being present at the unveiling of the monument to General Wolfe, at Greenwich, in June, 1930. The Empire Press Union was holding one of its quinquennial conferences in London at the time, and we were all invited to the ceremony. I was reminded forcibly of this most delightful affair, when reading the chapter he headed "Canadian Records". In that chapter the author tells of a trip which a group of English headmasters made to Canada at his suggestion, earlier that year. He says that "at that time Queen's University, in Kingston, Ontario, was seeking a vice-chancellor, and the board was advised to look at Fyfe, when in the course of the tour he came to visit them. The result was that he became the head of that great historic college for five years, and then returned to become vice-chancellor of the University of Aberdeen."

SIR CAMPBELL STUART concludes his delightful book with a chapter on The Pilgrims, and some very complimentary references to two warm friends of mine, the late Lord Greenwood who was born in Whitby, Ontario, and whose brother "Bill" was at one time editor of W. F. Maclean's Toronto World, and Sir Harry Brittain. Sir Harry is one of the best known men in London. Lord Greenwood, who graduated from Toronto University, started his career as a London barrister, became Chief Secretary for Ireland in the Coalition Government of Lloyd-George about 1920-21, and later was head of the big steel corporation, Dorman-Long. Hamar Greenwood developed a great flair for business administration which I suspect he was not aware he possessed when he was delivering temperance lectures up and down England in his very early days, over there.

Of Sir Harry Brittain, Campbell Stuart says: "The Pilgrim Society owes its great success to the genius of a man who has never failed in anything he has attempted." I had a striking illustration of that genius recently in London: Sir Harry took the place of Mr. Hopkins Morris, one of the deputy-speakers of the British House of Commons, as chief speaker at a big dinner at the Savoy Hotel at which I was presiding, with only a few hours' notice, and made the speech of the evening.

Sir Campbell's book is the story of the life (so far) of a young Canadian who went to Britain thirty-five years ago and has made a shining mark there. Those who enjoy reading about the intimate lives of prominent and interesting people will find that "Opportunity Knocks Once" holds their attention from cover to cover.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Know ye that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture. (Ps. 100:3).

✧ ✧ ✧

How excellent is thy lovingkindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings. . . For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light. O continue thy lovingkindness unto them that know thee; and thy righteousness to the upright in heart. (Ps. 36:7, 9, 10.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The Lord knoweth the days of the upright: and their inheritance shall be for ever. (Ps. 37:18.)

Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations . . . Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children. (Ps. 90:1, 16.)

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Wonder if Frank Gnup will be back as grid coach here comes fall. This Brantford item indicates otherwise: "A story out of Hamilton regarding a possible senior O.R.F.U. entry here was reported and the only new angle is that Merle Hapes, Panthers' coach of the Canadian intermediate champions, has not been paid for his services. Some time ago Frank Gnup had to go after the Wildcats of that city for some money alleged to be owing him. Now Frank is interested in the local situation. He'll make a good leader. The fact that Alouettes were mentioned as backing the local club was also referred to here. It might be that someone is dissatisfied with the Hamilton Ti-Cat executive and may be using the Brantford angle as a threat."

Port Hope columnist comments: "One of the main attractions on the Peterborough entry in the Lakeshore Baseball League will be the addition of Boston (hockey) Bruins' Red Sullivan in the lineup. Red, in addition to being a cracking good hockey player, is no mean man with the softball, being number one of Peterborough's best hot corner coverers. In hardball"—tach, tch, chum, it's baseball, not hardball—"he is said to be equally as good." Yeah, the colorful redhead from Ashburnham could easily hold his own on the senior ball squad if he cared to play, as a pitcher, infielder or hitter.

Preview of Lacrossers

Lacrosse fans can get a preview for free of the Petes' Timbermen O.L.A. senior and Mann Cup champs, and of the local junior O.L.A. entry, at 7:30 this eve in Miller Bowl. The teams are staging a practice exhibition tussle to ready themselves for schedule openers coming up. In fact, the senior schedule begins here Friday p.m. when Owen Sound Crescents return to the gutted-stick wars against the Petes. Doug Gillespie of the northerners has such stalwarts aboard as Don Campbell, Fred Marchant, Johnny Lumley, Tony Capula, Arn Smith, Johnny Hillier, Don Bain, Ross McWhirter, Ed Harris, Jack Foote, Norm Shortridge, Jack Piett, Johnny Matheson, and others. They'll likely provide stiff competition this senior lacrosse semester.

Skipping lightly over to the diamond for a moment, we note where Belleville Redmen of the C.O.B.L. have a six-man pitching staff. The addition of Sammy Mulholland of Kingston (fielder and hurler) gives 'em a lot of slab stuff. Bill Strahan, Dick Fitzpatrick, Cuffer Noakes, Art Wright and Bobby Bunton are others, and we expect that coach Ralph (High-Pockets) McCabe will loosen up that pro pitching arm at times, too. Manager Jack Carson has more than 20 players trying out for spots on the squad, including Ted DeGray, former Oshawa junior puck ace, who is after the first-base slot. A lot of homebrews likely to catch on, George Carver intimates.

Not a Peep Down South

Alex Sinclair, Fraser Wade and Arnold Olmstead are busy these days trying to line up more minor baseball entries. There is a considerable need for P.M.B.A. sponsors and coaches. The large south-end area has been most disappointing to date with not an entry yet, though we know the district has a raft of young boys wanting to play ball. Secretary Tom Rowdon of the O.B.A. advises that affiliations must be made by July 1 and players' certificates sent in by July 15. Playdowns commence right after the last Saturday in August, going two weeks, with survivors then in an elimination tourney to be over by the end of September.

Civic Softball League will operate this season with eight or 10 teams. Those in now include: Post Office, Provincial Police, Salvation Army, Grant & Loucks, Bell Telephone, Foresters, Timber Structures and B'nai B'rith. League is undecided on a Fairview entry, and is giving Fire Hall a last chance to get aboard. They can contact Secretary Art Reynolds by phoning 22556. Final meeting to take entry fees is next Monday p.m. in the "Y" at 7:30. Civil Loop games will be run off regularly at Ashburnham, Turner Park and on Friday and Saturday nights in the Bowl over east. It's a large and lively softball circuit.

247th Battalion Team Won 10 of 12 Hockey Games Played

When Jack Adams Was A Crackerjack

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor.

They call him Jolly Jack Adams today, the manager of Detroit Red Wings, who made N.H.L. history a few weeks ago by eliminating Toronto Maple Leafs four straight in Stanley Cup semi-finals and then ousting Montreal Canadiens four straight to capture the coveted cup. The big, plump, grey-haired manager looked jolly in pictures taken of the professional hockey champions of the world after the series. But he was not known as Jolly Jack when he played for Peterborough back in 1917. However, a Toronto writer at that time termed him a "crackerjack." Apparently he was all of that as a player here.

It was the second last year of the First World War, a holocaust thrust upon free peoples by Kaiser Wilhelm and his German hordes. Some sports, mostly with a military background, persisted even in those dark days. Peterborough was represented in intermediate hockey under auspices of the 247th Battalion in 1917, the year Jack Adams played here.

A Smaller City

It was a much smaller city then, about half its present size and population. But people still loved their hockey in those war years. They came by street car from as far north as Smith St. (now Parkhill Road), and from down south by the Fair Grounds, presently Morrow Park. Over east from Concession St. (it's Armour Road now) they trudged across the iron bridge on Hunter St., past the recently burned down Quaker Oats plant, to view hockey in the Brock St. rink. And they came from west as far as the boundary, or Monaghan Road.

For 25 cents (and don't forget two coppers as war tax) they saw good, exciting seven-man hockey, with no subs permitted. They talked over games at their 10-hour-day and six-days-a-week jobs for maybe 20 cents an hour. They argued heatedly at nights behind swinging saloon doors, and there were more saloons than churches in town then.

A Day of Horses

It was a day of dusty streets in Peterborough, as elsewhere, with far more horses than cars in town. The rich rode hacks or hired high steppers and rubber-tired buggies at the livery, and the poor walked or paid a nickel on the street car. The radio was unknown then, but they had plenty of good silent flickers in theatres, as well as plays, vaudeville and the annual circus. Pleasure steamers plied the waters from spring to fall, also. Plenty of sports, of course.

This then was the local setting in the autumn of 1916 when hockey manager Jack Meharry induced a quartet of promising players in Fort William to come here. He had obtained permission from Lt. Col. C. H. Ackerman, commanding the 247th Battalion, to ice a team under battalion auspices, with Bill Breen the coach. The players were to join the unit, and they did. Some financial assistance was given by the unit, though this proved not enough and later, the Fort William four maintained they had not received all the money they were promised.

Came From North

In any case, Bobby Armstrong, Jack Adams and the brothers Alf and Pat Flanagan, came from the north and played here for the 247th. Hubert Legros, wearing his famous finger-mitt, was the classy goalie. Pete Thornton and Grover Halpin usually teamed up on defence. Pat Flanagan was the rover, while Bobby Armstrong played centre between Jack Adams and Banty Evans. Occasionally, as replacements, Harry Thornton, Alf Flanagan or Barney Quinn saw action with the team.

Legros was a resident of Peterborough and is still, the only one of that 1917 team. He is in the cartage business. The Thorntons ran a men's store on George St. at the time, but left Peterborough many years ago. Grover Halpin died several years ago, and he was a native of the city. Banty Evans was another, moving later to Toronto, and Barney Quinn was a district product. The four imports left shortly after the hockey season was over.

A Short Season

At times these players had to help in the purchase of their equipment before bigger crowds meant a good profit at the gate. They practised on the river and canal before ice was installed in the Brock. Hockey seasons in those days of natural ice were much shorter than now, three months taking care of schedules and championship playoffs. All travel was by train.

Actually, the 247th played just 12 games, apart from a couple of exhibitions. They were grouped in intermediate O.H.A. with Cobourg and Lindsay, playing a double schedule. Mayor Joe Duffus faced off the puck to officially open the season here on Jan. 2 as a special G.T.R. train brought several hundred Lindsay fans down. Peterborough won 14-2 with Adams getting three goals and as many penalties. They didn't list assists then. Adams and Armstrong were the scoring stars all season. Stan Burgoyne of Toronto refereed. The Lindsay lineup included O'Loughlin, Richmond, Carew, Read, McElroy, Griffis and Haugh. Only seven men could dress for a game, no subbing was permitted and, if a team lost through an injury, it went right on playing with six against seven.

WHEN ADAMS PLAYED FOR PETES — Oldtime hockey fans in Peterborough will remember when Jack Adams, now general manager of Detroit Red Wings in the N.H.L., starred for the 247th Battalion team in Peterborough back in 1917. He came here from Fort William to star for the local intermediate squad which went to provincial semi-finals before bowing out to Hamilton, ultimate Ontario champions. Adams went on from here to professional ranks and wound up in 1926 as the first and only manager—to this date—of the Detroit N.H.L. entry.

Finished Lindsay

On Jan. 8, 1917, the 247th battered Cobourg 23-5 with Adams scoring seven goals. Percy Bond refereed that one. Jack tallied six more as the Petes won 21-8 in Lindsay and that did it — Lindsay defaulted the remaining two games. The Post said: "Adams, the Petes' right wing, looks good enough to catch a place with any team. He is a husky gent with plenty of speed, and packs a healthy shot."

The 247th finished out its brief schedule and had exhibitions with Nobel, losing 4-2 first and then winning 13-5 as Adams got five. It cost fans 25 cents ("and don't forget to ring two coppers for war tax") to see these tilts. No less than 1,500 of them saw Petes beat Kingstons army team 11-6 in playdowns and locals took the return 9-8 to win the round 20-to-14. No best-of-seven nonsense then!

Surprise Loss

In the next playdown round, they dropped a surprising 9-5 decision in Oshawa, but came back to win 7-0 here before 2,000 roaring fans to get the round 12-9. A lot of money changed hands and the wiseacres wondered audibly about that first game in Oshawa.

That put them into provincial semi-finals against Hamilton, a team which had a big young defenceman, named Harold (Snap) Parker, who later helped Peterborough win a senior title in the days of Ace Bailey, Frank Collins, Biffer Ranger, Bert McLeod and Joe Dwyer. The 247th beat Hamilton 9-3 here before a packed rink, Adams getting four of the goals. But Bobby Armstrong injured his arm and couldn't play in Hamilton. The Peterborough squad was beaten there 8-1 to drop the big round 11-10, Hamilton scoring the round winner with just four seconds to go. On March 9, Hamilton beat Kitchener (known earlier as Berlin) 9-6 to win the title. As soon as Armstrong had recovered, the Petes challenged Hamilton to an exhibition — feeling sure they could beat the champion when at full strength — but the victors declined.

The Petes had won 10 of their 12 games, scoring 142 goals to 73. They had enjoyed a good season but always felt that the injury to Bobby Armstrong was all that kept them from the Ontario championship.

Adams and Halpin were invited to fill in as replacements for Toronto St. Pat's in Toronto city playoffs with Riversides. St. Pat's won the first of the home-and-home series 7-5 with Adams scoring six goals and Halpin the other one! Jack got three in the next tussle as his side won 7-4. The Toronto News wrote: "Jack Adams of Peterborough is a crackerjack. He is a brother of Soldier Bill of St. Patrick's defence. Jack is a stout-built boy who handles a stick in great style and has a great shot." The other Toronto papers wrote him up, too, one suggesting that he was ripe for a crack at professional ranks.

A March 31 headline in The Examiner said: "The 247th Battalion Will Be Leaving Peterborough Next Month For Overseas." So, that wound up the 247th Bn. hockey team. Some of the players got transfers and later several were discharged. The Flanagans and Armstrong returned to Fort William, Bobby later dying there. Adams signed up professional with Toronto, playing there and then in Western Canada before being offered the managership of the new N.H.L. entry in Detroit, the Cougars, in 1926. He was the only member of the 1917 team to make the big time in hockey.

Starts In Detroit

Jolly Jack had put on weight and was all through as a player then. But he started building the Cougars. They played "home" games the first season in Windsor, the year that Ace Bailey started with Toronto Maple Leafs. Olympia Stadium was soon built in Detroit and Adams has managed the team, now known as the Red Wings, ever since.

He had to wait 10 years to win the Stanley Cup, and he took it again the next year. They captured the coveted cup in 1943, again in 1950, and once more this spring. The club is sure to be a top contender next season.

Years ago, Jack Adams married a Napanee girl and he spends part of each summer there. Sometimes at C.O.B.L. games he drops around to chat with officials from Peterborough and he recalls the time back in 1917 when he was starting out on his successful hockey career.

Western Victors In Basketball Tilt

LONDON, Ont., May 14 (CP)—In a one-sided exhibition of basketball, University of Western Ontario Mustangs drubbed University of Alberta Golden Bears 64-45 Tuesday night to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five Canadian intercollegiate cage finals.

There was little thrilling action for the more than 1,000 fans.

In Monday night's opener, Western led all the way. Tuesday night they trailed Alberta 8-7 early in the first quarter but quickly took over to forge their decisive win. Holding an 18-13 edge at the end of the first period, they pushed it to 31-21 by the half. It was 44-34 at three-quarter time.

Lack of bench strength cost the Albertans the game. They lost their top scorer, Don MacIntosh late in the first half when he bowed out via the foul route. Don Newton and Bill Laurenson fouled out during the second half.

Reserve Strength

Western lost captain Doug McNichol, Glen Pettinger and Wendel Wigle, but their reserve strength filled the breach.

Only Alberta player hitting with consistency was Ed Lucht, the lanky centre who potted 20 points. He sank five field goals and 10 free throws.

Little Bill Pataky pumped in 17 points for the Ontario college crew while Ray Truant hit for 13.

Referees Kitch McPherson and Barry Lowes called 56 fouls over the route, 29 against the winners. The game grew rough in the closing stages, but the officials had it well in hand all the way.

The winners connected for 12 of 43 field goals attempted in the first half while Alberta sank only seven of 31. In the closing session Western tipped in 10 of 42 tries and the losers seven of 37.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The Pacific Coast Hockey League which stretches to Saskatoon, officially changed its name Tuesday at Seattle to the Western Hockey League.

Last year, the professional loop added three Western Canada cities —Edmonton, Calgary and Saskatoon—on a tryout basis. All reported Tuesday they were happy with the arrangement and the league voted to accept them on a permanent basis.

The new Western Hockey League becomes officially an eight-team circuit. Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster in British Columbia and Tacoma and Seattle in Washington State are the other members.

In their tryout year, Saskatoon won the title, Edmonton lost in the second round of the playoffs and Calgary just missed getting into them.

The league attracted $1,000,000 worth of customer attention for the first time.

Carl Griffith, owner of Washington Senators, Tuesday sold his nephew, Sherry Robertson, to Philadelphia Athletics for an undisclosed sum. Robertson, a utility infielder, has been in the majors for nine years with a .240 average.

Earl Selkirk, former manager of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union, began suit Tuesday for $500 back wages from the club. Manager of the team from 1945 to 1949, during which the Argos won the Canadian title three times, Selkirk claims Bob Moran, then secretary-treasurer, agreed to boost his salary from $1,500 to $2,000 but never paid the difference.

A freak baseball accident in Denison, Iowa, caused the death of Don Lee Johannsen, 14, Tuesday. He was pitching when an opposing player hit the ball, the bat broke and part of it flew out, striking Don on the temple. He died of a cerebral haemorrhage.

Trainers and stablehands have tabbed Sub Fleet and Blue Man the horses to beat in next Saturday's Preakness Stakes at Pimlico race track in Baltimore. The colts ran second and third to Hill Gail in the Kentucky Derby. Hill Gail has been scratched because of a sore foot.

The powerful Manchester United team last Tuesday swamped Montreal All-Stars 10-0 in an exhibition soccer match on muddy grounds before some 5,000 fans. The English League champions are on a North American tour.

The British Columbia branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada announced Tuesday in Vancouver it will appeal the case of three B.C. boxers left off Canada's Olympic squad. Bob Osborne will take their case to the Canadian Olympic Association meeting in Toronto next Saturday. Left off the team were: Jack Batula, welterweight; Buddy Pearson, flyweight and Bob Shires, bantamweight.

Joe Louis, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, celebrated his 38th birthday in Chicago Tuesday with a golf game. Baldish and 230 pounds, he snapped a quick "no" when asked if he still had the urge to get back in the ring.

Bisons, Cubs Split Twin Bill

By The Associated Press

Montreal Royals are sitting high on their comfortable perch atop the International League watching the battle for second place—and none of the teams in the dogfight appear to be making any progress.

The Royals are four games in front of Buffalo Bisons, 4½ ahead of Springfield Cubs, five up on Syracuse Chiefs and 5½ in front of Rochester Red Wings.

The Bisons and Springfield played a doubleheader Tuesday night in an effort to unravel things and they wound up just as they started. Buffalo took the first game 4-2 and the Cubs the second 5-1.

The defeat in the afterpiece for the Bisons broke two streaks. It was their first loss in five games and it was Hank Borowy's initial defeat of the campaign after three triumphs.

Wes Carr hurled the Springfield victory, helping his own cause with a single and a double, while Dick Marlowe, who tossed three innings of fine relief ball after taking over for Paul Foytack, was the winner of the opener.

Cleveland Seeks To Join N.H.L. But Odds Against Success

TORONTO, May 14 (CP) — Cleveland, which ranks as a big wheel in major-league professional baseball and football, today sought big-league hockey status. The odds are against it.

On behalf of Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, general manager Jim Hendy will present the club's case to enter the select six-team National Hockey League, the acknowledged world's premier pro ice circuit.

Hendy will have to be at his oratorical best to convince N.H.L. governors that the Barons, who failed to hit the A.H.L. final this season, could make the jump into the big league and at the same time "house" a crowd that would at least make it financially feasible in big-time company.

His brief will be made to the governors of the N.H.L.—Conny Smythe, Toronto; Walter Brown, Boston; Montreal's Senator Donat Raymond; James Norris, Detroit; Gen. Reed Kilpatrick, New York, and Chicago's Bill Tobin. President Clarence Campbell of Montreal will preside at the closed session.

A unanimous vote of the governors is necessary before Cleveland could be admitted and undoubtedly a flock of questions will be put to Henry before the ballot is taken.

Campbell Against It

Campbell has gone on record as saying it would not be financially possible for a club to enter the N.H.L. unless its arena could handle a 13,000 crowd. That's one obstacle. Another is whether the Barons have a club capable of making the hop into the big time and staying around without becoming a weak sister of the loop.

The N.H.L., now in its 35th year, practically is at its 1917 strength in clubs.

That year it was organized in Montreal, with five clubs—Montreal Canadiens, Montreal Wanderers, Ottawa, Quebec and Toronto. Boston Bruins became the first American club to join the league —in 1924—and the circuit's biggest year was in 1926 when it was a 10-club league, divided into two sections:

The Canadian division had Toronto Maple Leafs, Ottawa Senators, Montreal Canadiens, Montreal Maroons and New York Americans and the American division consisted of Boston Bruins, New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks, Detroit Cougars and Pitsburgh Pirates.

After many changes, it was topped to its present six-team league in 1942.

SUB FLEET, who finished second in the Kentucky Derby this month, is shown arriving at Baltimore, Md., to prepare for the $75,000 Preakness at Pimlico, on Saturday. The Dixiana Farm's entry will likely start as favorite in the event.

Batters Blast 16 Homers For League's Season High

By JOE REICHLER, Associated Press Sports Writer

Warning to all Major League pitchers: Storm signals ahead. Take cover. Watch out for an early shower. The batters are knocking down the fences again. It's raining home runs. The hurlers got an inkling of things to come on Tuesday afternoon at Ebbets Field when five of their offerings were hammered Tuesday for home runs as Brooklyn Dodgers won a 14-8 slugging match from St. Louis Cardinals. Gil Hodges and pitcher Ben Wade homered for the Dodgers. Stan Musial hit two out of the park for the Cards and Larry Miggins got one.

By midnight, 16 homers had been rapped in the eight games, the biggest single-day output of the season. Heretofore, the Major League campaign had featured tight pitching duels with accent on shutouts and low-hit games.

Home runs by Ray Boone, Larry Doby and Dale Mitchell gave Cleveland Indians a 10-6 victory over New York Yankees. The win, Cleveland's fourth in a row over the world champions, enabled the Tribe to retain their two-game American League lead over Washington.

Second Triumph

Steve Gromek registered his second straight triumph over the Yanks and his third of the season without a defeat. But a two-run homer by Gil McDougald started him on the way to the showers and it took good relief pitching by Lou Brissie and Early Wynn to preserve his victory.

A trio of four-baggers helped the New York Giants defeat the Cincinnati Reds, 7-4, and maintain their one-game National League margin over the Dodgers. Bobby Thomson cracked a homer with a man on base and followed with a bases-loaded double to account for five runs batted in. Bob Elliott and Willie Mays also homered for the Giants. All blows came off loser Herman Wehmeier.

Larry Jansen went the distance to gain his 10th straight win over the Reds, but also fell victim to a circuit clout by Ted Kluszewski in the ninth.

Minnie Minoso was the Chicago White Sox homer-getter as they whipped Boston Red Sox, 5-0. Minoso blasted a 415-foot homer and added a two-run single to drive in four runs and make it easy for Billy Pierce as he handed the Red Sox their fifth straight defeat.

Seventh Homer

Eddie Mathews hit his seventh home run to lead Boston Braves to a 3-1 verdict over Pitsburgh Pirates. The four-bagger, off loser Howie Pollet, tied the rookie infielder for the league lead with Brooklyn's Andy Pafko. Vern Bickford, after three unsuccessful attempts, finally won his 1st game.

Curt Simmons, only a month out of the service, pitched Philadelphia Phils to a 6-0 victory over Chicago Cubs. Simmons fanned 12, including the last four to face him, for the highest strikeout total of the year. A lead off home run by Granny Hamner in the first inning started the Philly scoring.

Bobby Shantz pitched and batted Philadelphia Athletics to a 5-1 win over St. Louis Browns. The little lefthander threw a five-hitter for his fifth triumph and highlighted two scoring innings with a double and triple.

Washington won its ninth game in its last 10 starts, as Connie Marrero hurled a five-hit 4-3 victory over Detroit Tigers.

Detroit Tigers Cut Roster

DETROIT, May 14—(AP)—Detroit Tigers cut their roster to the major-league limit today by sending first baseman Ben Taylor, shortstop Alex Garbowski and pitcher Wayne McLeland to their Buffalo farm club in the International League. The Tigers will carry 26 players, one above the ordinary limit, since pitcher Art Houtteman is an ex-serviceman and exempted from the regular classification. He was discharged last winter.

No One Certain How Inquiry Will End Up

OTTAWA, May 14 (CP)—Parliament's foot-and-mouth investigation appears to be caught in a big political wheel, with no one sure where it is heading or when its dizzy spinning will finally come to an end.

After a four-day adjournment, the off-again-on-again investigation reopened before the Commons Agricultural Committee Tuesday for a fast, two-hour session. No turning point was reached.

Proceedings moved at such a fast clip that some members complained they hadn't time to utter a question before the inquiry again was temporarily shut down to be reopened "at the call of the chair."

The witness this time was Dr. N. D. Christie, federal veterinarian who covers the Saskatchewan field with headquarters at Regina, and who was at the scene when the original outbreak occurred last December and was diagnosed at vesicular stomatitis.

No New Facts

Native of a Lachute, Que., farm, with 42 years' service in the Agriculture Department and now about to retire, he gave the committee no new facts to chew on, with this one significant exception:

He was opposed, he said, to the shipment of foot-and-mouth virus from Regina to the Hull, Que., laboratories where the official diagnosis of the disease was made last February.

He always had been schooled in the opinion that such shipments were dangerous. Containers could break. Packages could get lost in the mail. And there was the danger that the disease might thus be spread to other parts of the country.

He believed diagnosis should be made on the spot, in field tests.

OLYMPIC PADDLERS—Jim Nickel, left, and Bill Brigden, both of Winnipeg, will represent Canada in the 10,000-meter paddling races at the Olympics at Helsinki in July. Nickel, 22-year-old R.C.M.P. constable, has had three years' paddling competition. Brigden, 35, is a salesman and has been paddling four years. Last year was their first double-paddling together in competition. They won the half-mile and 1,000-metre Canadian championships and the 10,000-metre and 1,000-metre Olympic trials.

Files Million Dollar Lawsuit Against St. Petersburg Newspaper And Publisher

ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla., May 14 (AP) — The St. Petersburgh Times and its publisher, Nelson Poynter, filed suit for $1,000,000 damages in Circuit Court Tuesday against the St. Petersburgh Evening Independent and its former publisher, Ralph Nicholson, charging malicious libel.

There were four separate actions for $250,000 each. One was by The Times against The Independent, one by The Times against Nicholson, one by Poynter against The Independent and one by Poynter against Nicholson.

The suit said The Independent April 2 published a story under a headline which linked Poynter with an alleged plot to defeat a public utility program for which he has fought editorially for many years.

This gave the impression The Times and Poynter had been hypocritical in their editorial support of the utility program and damaged the newspaper's goodwill, the complaint continued. It said goodwill was The Times' greatest single asset.

The eight-column, front-page headline read "Socialized Power Plot May Snag F.P.C. Rate Slash." (F.P.C. is the Federal Power Commission.) Poynter was not mentioned by name, but said a reference to "a publisher of a morning newspaper" obviously meant him, as The Times is the only morning newspaper here.

In a statement Poynter said he did not intend to profit personally by any damages awarded in the case. If any are awarded, they will go to a fund for a new city auditorium, he said.

Poynter said a demand for a retraction was made before Nicholson sold The Independent to Roy Thomson, Canadian publisher. Nicholson is publisher of The Charlotte (N.C.) Observer.

In Charlotte, Nicholson issued the following statement when informed of the suit:

"Very interesting. The only other time I was involved in a million-dollar suit in connection with an action of this sort was when I and my newspaper company in New Orleans were included in a group that Earl Long, then running for governor, sued for a million dollars. Long did not follow through and nothing ever came of that. Several of the persons involved regarded it as a high compliment.

"In St. Petersburg, a newspaper published by a company which I owned printed a news story to which Mr. Poynter objected. I was not there at the time and had no knowledge of the article until after it had been published.

"I looked into the matter subsequently and was advised by objective and well informed persons as well as by the executives of the newspaper that no damage had been done Mr. Poynter or his newspaper, and that no apology or retraction was warranted. Evidently Mr. Poynter thinks otherwise.

"Roy Thomson was fully acquainted with this matter before he bought The Independent from me on April 30."

Robinson Refuses To Turn Over Offices

HAMILTON, May 14—(CP)—An injunction was served Tuesday on John Robinson, director of the Hamilton Joint Textile Board, to restrain him from any use of union funds and property in his campaign to lead a secession movement from the Textile Workers' Union of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.).

But Robinson refused to turn over the union offices until the matter has been settled by the courts. He barred entry to Sydney Emerson, appointed administrator of the joint board by the T.W.U.A.

"We claim squatters' rights," said Robinson. He said he had legal advice that the injunction is not binding until the courts decide.

Robinson broke with the T.W.U.A. at the Cleveland convention when president Emile Rieve and his slate of officers were returned to the union's top posts.

Robinson said seven locals have definitely voted to secede from the T.W.U.A. under his leadership and another 19 will consider the issue before the end of the week.

The province of Saskatchewan was named after the river Saskatchewan, which in turn was named from a Cree word meaning "rapid river."

Two Sports Writers Receive Awards

NEW YORK, May 14—(CP)—Art Rosenbaum of the San Francisco Chronicle and Whitney Martin of The Associated Press have received top awards for writing the best newspaper sports stories in 1951.

Each received $250 from E. P. Dutton and Co., publishers of an annual collection of "Best Sport Stories." The latest book contains 45 prize stories plus the year's best sports photographs.

Rosenbaum was honored for his on-the-spot story of the California-Stanford football game last fall in which California beat heavily favored Stanford 20-7. The story featured California's defensive platoon. This was voted the best news story of 1951.

Martin was voted the best newsfeature award for his column on "The Little Giant," a story on Eddie Stanky's "Intangibles." The column was written after Stanky received a plaque from the New York baseball writers.

Paul said no cash was involved.

Pelicans Continue

LONDON (CP)—For nearly 300 years there have been pelicans in the lake at St. James's Park but when two died last year keepers feared the tradition might be broken. Now six pelicans from Texas, Pakistan and Kenya have passed the necessary fitness tests and will go to the park after a short spell in a private pool.

Playful Porpoise

DURBAN, South Africa (CP)—Three baby porpoises thrilled bathers here by playing in the water with their human companions for an hour and a quarter. While diving, swimming and taking sides, the young creatures several times were stranded on the beach. Each time they were picked up and carefully put back in the water.

Britain Treads Cautious Path On Ban Of Lash

By RONALD MacLURKIN

LONDON, May 14—(Reuters)—Britain is treading cautiously on the question of abolishing flogging as a punishment in her colonies.

Colonial administrators say they want eventually to see corporal punishment wiped out. But they point out that there are difficulties in the way of total abolition—including, in some cases, the opinion of the colonial peoples themselves.

Flogging of troops in colonial regiments caused a sharp quarrel between two Labor Peers in the House of Lords.

During a debate on the Army and Air Force annual bill, Viscount Stonsgate tried—and failed—to introduce a clause rendering null and void any law of any colony "which provided that a person should be flogged or attached to a fixed object as a punishment for any offense under Military Law."

Lord Ogmore, who as David Rees-Williams was colonial undersercretary in the former Labor government, opposed him, saying: "The less we interfere with Colonial legislators the better."

This brought Lord Stansgate to his feet with the retort: "My Negro-flogging colleague is in a minority among Labor Peers in wishing to give everybody the right to flog his own nigger."

U.N. Asks Ban

In the trusteeship committee of the United Nations, several resolutions have been passed urging Britain to abolish flogging in all territories administered by Britain under United Nations trusteeship.

These territories are: British Cameroons and Togoland, in West Africa, and Tanganyika, in East Africa.

Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttleton last January cited two main difficulties in putting the U.N. resolutions into effect.

First, he said, it is not easy to go against deeply-rooted traditional practices, particularly in parts of Africa where opinion is strongly in favor of retaining corporal punishment.

Second, alternative methods of punishment are not yet fully developed, especially in the case of juvenile offenders.

On another occasion, Lyttleton told the House of Commons: "In the absence of a proper probationary system, it is very easy to abolish corporal punishment and end up by making habitual criminals."

Nigeria Leads

Flogging as a means of punishment is on the statute books of most British colonies though in several it is seldom carried out. Each colony has its own list of what offences can be punished by the lash. These range from cattle-stealing to sex crimes.

Figures show that Nigeria, the steamy, Malaria-ridden colony on the west coast of Africa, has handed out the highest number of flogging sentences in recent years. In 1949, 1,145 adult Nigerians and 682 juveniles were flogged.

But the government of the colony says it is taking steps to abolish corporal punishment. The main obstacle is that many Africans will not tolerate any practical alternative punishment.

Big Search

LAUNCESTON, England —(CP)—After a rugby player lost his wedding ring, thorough search of the playing field in this Cornwall town yielded only a set of false teeth. Then the teeth were claimed by a man who had conducted his own search earlier—and who had found the missing ring.

CHANGED NAME

The Nicolet river in Quebec was originally named "Du Pont" by Champlain, but later re-named after the explorer Jean Nicolet.

W.A. Meeting Held At Minister's Home

SELWYN, May 14 (ENS) — The Rev. and Mrs. D. P. Morris entertained the W.A. of the United Church at their home in Bridgenorth for the May meeting.

Mrs. George McIlmoyl read the scripture lesson, and Mrs. Evans Blewett read a poem entitled "Mother's Way." Mr. and Mrs. Morris sang a duet in keeping with the Mother's Day theme.

Mrs. Carmen Bell was present and gave an address on the work of the Women's Council and of the W.A. convention.

The ladies voted to send $24 for the building of the Training School of the United Church in Toronto.

The old wool is being sent away for blankets, and anyone having wool to send is to bring it to the church hall before May 22nd.

Refreshments were served by the north group, and the June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. James McConkey.

Ancient Liturgy Used At Ida To End School

CAVAN, May 14 — (ENS) — A soil and seed service, using a liturgy dating to the 15th century, was used Friday night at St. John's Church, Ida. The service marked the conclusion of the 10-day course held in the parish of Cavan to acquaint 20 senior theological students with rural life.

Officiating at the service was the Rev. Allan Read, of Mono Mills, originator of the rural school for clergy. He was assisted by the Rev. A. A. Chote, rector of the parish of Cavan, the Rev. Warren Turner of Bowmanville, the Rev. T. Nind of Port Hope, and the Rev. G. H. Thompson of Trinity College, Toronto.

In the service, those carrying the offertory advanced to the sanctuary and gave it to the priest. Then two lay members gave him offerings of bread and wine; two others gave him offerings of soil and seed.

During the first verse of the recessional, "We plough the fields," the choir and congregation left the church and proceeded to an adjacent piece of land, where the soil was returned and the seed distributed to the congregation.

Following the service a social hour was spent at which the students presented Mr. and Mrs. Chote with a folding table. Spokesmen for the students thanked the parishioners for their hospitality during the past 10 days.

Truck Starts Forest Fire In Red Lake Area

TORONTO, May 14. (CP) — When a truck loaded with dynamite and lime overturns in a ditch and does not explode immediately, why should it blow into bits several hours later? Answer: the ditch was filled with water.

This happened May 1 in the Red Lake area of northwestern Ontario and gave the Ontario Lands Department one of its most unusual forse fire causes.

A truck bearing dynamite and lime to a mine in the area overturned in a ditch filled with water. Driver Henry Braun, 33, scrambled free uninjured and hiked up the road to the nearest road construction camp for help.

While he was gone, the lime and water mixed. The resulting chemical action made the water boil, the heat ignited the dynamite caps in the truck and the dynamite was detonated in a mighty blast that started a forest fire.

The department said today the fire destroyed 300 acres of woodland before it was brought under control.

FUTURE COMMERCIAL VERSION, the "gyroliner," compares with the Constellation in size and speed. It's designed to carry 50 to 60 passengers at about 350 mph with two turbo-prop engines, and could use a space 200 x 200 feet as its airport.

TROOP TRANSPORT VERSION of convertiplane, completely engineered and ready to be built, can carry combat troops in bucket seats or litter cases as a flying ambulance,

SEA-GOING VERSION of convertiplane, designed for anti-submarine warfare, has folding blades and wingtips to permit use aboard carriers and other warships. Speed is 160 mph.

New Type Of Aircraft Coming Eliminate Need For Parachute

By DOUGLAS LARSEN,
NEA Staff Correspondent . . . . .

WASHINGTON — The U. S. Army is developing a revolutionary new type of aircraft which has already flown. It is expected to eliminate the need for parachute troops. It may make most current Army logistical doctrines obsolete.

Called a convertiplane, it can fly straight up and down like a helicopter, needs no special landing field, and can fly forward faster than most present conventional troop transports. Such an aircraft has long been the dream of military experts.

One development contract is held by the Gyrodyne Co. of America with a big plant on Long Island, N.Y. Heavy secrecy now surrounds the specific Army project. But details previously released by the firm on a similar model tell the story of the new Army convertiplane's performance and possibilities.

The U.S. Navy has also invested heavily in the project.

Gyrodyne has various models but they all have in common a double rotor blade on top to give the aircraft the characteristics of a conventional helicopter, plus stubby wings and propellers for forward speed. The rotors are locked in a fixed position to create the least possible drag while the plane is in forward flight.

In addition to straight up and down and forward flight, the craft can hover and fly sideways.

Revolutionary use of helicopters during Korean war focused attention on the convertiplane. The tremendous value of straight up and down flight for evacuating wounded, air-sea rescue work, reconnaissance and air supply showed the need for a craft which could also fly forward as fast as conventional transports—the big limitation of helicopters.

Engineers at Gyrodyne claim their present models can fly forward faster than 200 miles per hour, with projected models in the 350-mile-per-hour class.

Of Great Value

The value of such a plane to the Army, Navy and Marines is obvious. Dropping paratroopers has always been a second-best way to get troops to a vital spot in a hurry. It involves time-consuming and costly training. Casualties are always heavy. And the weather has to be just right.

Lifting large numbers of troops over a long distance and landing them at the desired point without the need of an airport, on any terrain, has long been considered the perfect way to move troops quickly in combat. Ability to do this with a convertiplane would thus eliminate the need for the far less efficient method of dropping them from the sky in parachutes.

With enough convertiplanes, whole divisions could be moved hundreds of miles overnight. Studies reveal that troops can be moved by helicopter even cheaper than by truck. And the convertiplane would do it farther and faster, plus being able to provide constant, fast re-supply of the men.

A ship-to-beachhead operation for Marines via convertiplane would clearly be far the best way yet devised for making an invasion. The troop ships could put their men into the air and yet keep far beyond the horizon, providing complete surprise. Gyrodyne has designs of convertiplanes with folding wings and rotors for compact storage aboard Navy ships.

For use after the current military emergency ends, Gydrodyne officials have their eye on commercial uses for their unique aircraft. They think it will be ideal for "feeder line" operations, carrying passengers from small towns without airfields to the big airports.

As a safety factor they point out that if all the motors should fail; the plane can still float safely to earth on its milling rotors.

Life Of Joseph Theme Of Ebenezer Service

CAVAN, May 14—(ENS)—The Rev. James Hampson, Bethany, conducted the Christian Family Day service at Ebenezer United Church on Sunday. Mrs. John White was at the piano and played the accompaniments for the hymns.

One child was baptized, Ian Argue Rae Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rae Stewart.

The minister took for his theme the early life of Joseph and brought out the point that his father, showed him more honor and kindness and gave him more lavish gifts than his other children, thus bringing the jealousy of his brothers upon him and making him selfish and conceited.

JOHANNESBURG —(CP)—The effect of 30 cigarettes a day on the heart is insignficant compared to the continual stimulation caused by driving twice daily during rush hours to and from a city office, said Prof. G. A. Elliott in an address to medical students here.

Council Defers Action On Taxes

COBOURG, May 14 (ENS). — The tax collector's roll for 1951 was presented at Monday night's meeting of town council. Because there was only a bare quorum present, council only conducted a small amount of business and the matter of tax arrears collections of arrears, and other details relative to taxes was left over for a special meeting of council and the tax collector, to be held later.

Tax collector and assessor E. A. Hircock, in presenting his 1951 tax roll, reported arrears of $17,966.50 as of December 31, 1951. Since that date, he pointed out, the sum of $5,558.10 had been collected, leaving a balance of arrears which amounted to $12,408.

The minutes of a special committee meeting of the whole council on May 5 revealed that council had received a questionnaire from the architects of the East-end Public School, authorized by the voters not to exceed $288,000. The letter from the architects listed certain items and asked if the town were going to assume the cost of these. Council took the stand that these details were part of the school project, and should be treated as such.

A storm drain for Rankin Boulevard, a private housing project, is to cost $1,300, and the town's share will be 25 per cent.

Accounts passed totalled $26,136.52, the lowest committee account being 93 cents, a record low, and the highest $18,471.34.

YANKEE DOODLE DANDY—Capt. Gerry Coleman quickly slipped into the training routine after recall to active duty in the Marine Air Corps. The Yankee second baseman, a crack pilot in World War II, had never flown a jet plane, hoped the instrument panel would be easier to figure out than big league pitching.

Big Shakeup Expected At Fox Studio

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 14—(AP)—Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene:

One of the main topics of conversation around town is the rumored shakeup at 20th-Fox. Advance reports indicate it will be unique in studio reorganization; top executives will be dropped, not merely press agents and secretaries.

Adding fuel to the reports is the fact that Studio boss Darryl Zanuck took off for Paris with little notice. Presumably the ax will fall during his absence.

There are many theories as to why the shakeup is due. Most critics agree that 20th-Fox puts out the best pictures of any studio in town. But apparently box-office receipts have not matched the critical acclaim. One reason may be that the pictures cost too much; 20th-Fox has never gone overboard on the economy slashes that have been evident at most other studios in recent years.

There may be an increase of musical activity at the lot. The 20th-Fox output has not been too strong in the musical vein. About the only song-and-dance stars at the studio are Betty Grable, Dan Dailey, June Haver and Mitzi Gaynor.

Contrast this with M.G.M.'s huge list of musical performers. That lot has studiously built up a roster of stars, directors, dance directors and musicians who can turn out a steady stream of musical entertainment. The results have been such box-office winners as "Show Boat," "The Great Caruso," "An American in Paris" and "Singing in the Rain".

Tyrone Power is leaving his exclusive contract with 20th-Fox. He had been the king of the lot for more than 15 years, longer than any other star has remained there. The new deal calls for only two more pictures in the next two years. The reason for the break is simple: Power can make more moola elsewhere. He goes to Universal-International where he'll be drawing 50 per cent of the profits on the picture he makes.

A SIXTH GRADE STUDENT, 11-year-old Barbara Ann Stinson hunts for her books in what was left of the Alapaha grammar school after a tornado whipped through Alapaha, Ga., recently. Some 22 buildings were destroyed and 20 others damaged as the big wind whipped through town. Police said there were only three or four persons believed injured, one seriously.

Still Obstacles To Seaway Plan

BRANTFORD, May 14—(CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier said Tuesday night there are still obstacles in the way of the St. Lawrence Seaway project.

It cannot be said that "the last hurdle is soon to be surmounted," he said in an address to the Brantford Board of Trade.

However, the minister added, "we are making concrete progress towards early completion of both the power and the navigation development" of the big undertaking.

Despite the failure of Congress to ratify a 1941 treaty for a joint Canada-United States power and navigation project, Mr. Chevrier said the Canadian government still seeks approval of a development based on the 1951 agreement.

It was going ahead with an all-Canadian navigation system as a "second-best choice."

Mayors To Discuss Variety Of Subjects

TORONTO, May 14 — (CP) — Censorship, speed limits, hospital taxes and fireworks are among the subjects to be debated by the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves at the annual meeting in Ottawa later this month.

A resolution from Timmins asks that the Ontario government censor all magazines to eliminate those that are unfit for children.

Ottawa and Sault Ste. Marie have submitted resolutions on the amusement tax for hospitals.

Ottawa recommends that the tax be separated from the general revenue of the province and used "to relieve the hospital costs of the municipalities."

The Sault resolution asks the province to allocate at least 90 per cent of the tax to the municipality in which it was collected.

Sudbury seeks authority to regulate sale of fireworks.

THIS SAFE, together with everything from bank notes to pen nibs, was recently flown from Edmonton, 1100 miles due north to Port Radium, on the fringe of the Arctic circle. It is part of the equipment for a new branch of The Royal Bank of Canada, just opened to serve the men who work one of the world's greatest known deposits of uranium, on the shores of Great Bear Lake. This is the "farthest-north" bank in Canada.

Up B.C.'s rugged coast a giant new aluminum development is taking form. Since last November we have operated a branch at Kemano, site of the power house. Three sub-branches have since been opened to serve other construction crews at isolated inland points in the area.

Up north at Churchill on Hudson Bay —at the international airports of Goose Bay (Labrador), Gander (Newfoundland) and Montreal's Dorval—the Royal Bank brings modern banking services to military and civilian personnel, and to airlines and air travellers from every corner of the globe.

Pioneer camps and towns are springing up in areas of Canada which a few years ago were known only to trappers and prospectors. The Royal Bank of Canada carries on business in many of these isolated communities. Wherever and wherever the need arises, the Royal Bank heads north with the men who are establishing Canada's new frontiers.

A 27-year-old Peterborough mother of three children fainted about 11 a.m. today as she was talking on the telephone with a friend in the southend of the city.

In St. Joseph's Hospital in "fair" condition is Mrs. William A. Phillips, 509 Wolsley St. Mrs. Phillips was operated on Tuesday and has been in ill health for a number of years.

While talking with her friend, Mrs. Florence Hele of O'Connell Rd., Mrs. Phillips had an attack. Mrs. Hele heard her fall to the floor as the receiver swung loose on the cord.

Mrs. Helen went to the home of Mrs. E. A. Killingbeck and Mrs. Killingbeck asked the telephone company to put on their emergency buzzer and try to rouse Mrs. Phillips. When this failed police were called, and Constables Jack Wilson and Ed Niziol found the semi-conscious woman lying on the floor beside the telephone.

Dr. J. M. Wishart, who answered the emergency call, ordered Mrs. Phillips taken to hospital by ambulance.

Frightened To Death

PAINTED POST, N.Y., May 14 (CP).—A 70-year-old farmer was found dead Tuesday night and a state trooper said he may have died after being frightened by a mystery animal. Willis Robinson had no marks on his body to indicate other than death from natural causes. However, an animal variously described as looking like a panther or a wildcat was seen in the area before he died. Residents have reported seeing the animal a number of times in recent weeks, but none has been able to hit it with rifle fire.

District Fishermen Have Gear Ready As Season For Pickerel Opens At Midnight

Tonight's the night pickerel fishermen have been waiting for.

The season opens at 12:01 of May 15, that is, on the echo of the last clock stroke of 12 tonight.

On the 79 navigational and 66 reservoir control dams in the Trent Valley Systems thousands of sporting angry fishermen will try all their skill and lures in their bait boxes to take home a mess of walleyes. The legal catch is six fish and the legal length, 13 inches. It is unlawful to troll, drift-fish or cast any artificial lure from a boat in the Counties of Peterborough, Northumberland, Victoria and Durham. Artificial baits may be used from shore but natural bait only may be used from an anchored boat.

Summer Conditions

Low water conditions at the present time might change the locale of pickerel fishing tonight, experts think. Fish are more apt to be found in deep summer holes rather than in fast water. Only reports on Thursday morning will prove whether they are right or wrong.

Pickerel, our most prolific game fish, first entered inland Ontario streams in their greatest numbers by the Trent River. They are tasty eating, give a fair fight in landing and by the masses of fishermen, considered to be the best fish of all species.

Local Army Units Impress Three Inspecting Officers

"I've seen most of the units in the Eastern Ontario area and I haven't seen any that are better than you," Brigadier A. F. B. Knight, commander of the Eastern Ontario area, told the 50th H.A.A. Regiment and the 28th Technical Squadron Tuesday night after the annual inspection.

Later Brigadier Knight said that he was favorably impressed with the ceremonial and before the regiment was dismissed, "I wanted to tell them they had done a good job." This was one of the few times that he has spoken to the assembled units after an inspection.

Referring to the ceremonial Brig. Knight added that "it was one of the best," the men were "steady on parade, confident, and well precisioned." He said that the turnout was "good," explaining that the men were "clean, brass was polished and shoes clean."

"The regiment is definitely on the upward trend," said the Brigadier, "Its growing in a better direction."

Brig. Knight praised the "splendid spirit in the units," adding "they are justified in the pride taken in the corps."

The brigadier added that his comments were only on the units' appearance during the ceremonial. He had not received reports from his accompanying officers, Major Armstrong and Major H. W. C. Stethen, on the training and administration.

Other officers in the inspection party were: Brigadier H. T. Airey, commander 1st Army Group Royal Artillery, Toronto; Col. H. E. Brown, commander Canadian anti-aircraft artillery, Ste. Hubert, P.Q. Col. Brown was accompanied by Major V. M. Higgs, St. Hubert.

Definite Improvement

Brig. Airey said, "There's a definite improvement in attendance and smartness on parade over last year, proving that the past year has been worth while."

He said that "there is a growing need for citizens to realize that the units are good here and need more recruits."

Col. Brown, making his visit to the 50th and 28th units, commented that the inspection was "quite good," impressed most by the steadiness on parade and the turnout.

Brig. Knight, Brig. Airey and Col. Brown were most impressed by the 50th H.A.A. Regiment's trumpet band, one of the best in Eastern Ontario competitions held recently. It is conducted by former Canadian band master, Albert Croasdale.

In reviewing the band's display, Brig. Knight said, "the band contra-marched well, played well and had a fair repertoire". He added that the regiment's band is unique in the area for its bass and soprano trumpets which give an effect similar to both a bugle and brass band.

"It's a good band; I'd like to see them get distinctive caps," he said. "The band has an excellent bandmaster".

Both Brig. Airey and Cpl. Brown were impressed by the band's display.

Hon. W. J. Dunlop To Lay Stone Masonic Temple

The foundation stone of the new Masonic Temple will be laid by Hon. W. J. Dunlop, minister of education for Ontario, on June 10, R. L. Dobbin president of the Peterborough Masonic Hall Ltd. announced today.

Mr. Dunlop is a past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario and at present is grand treasurer.

He was a Mason in Peterborough Lodge more than 50 years ago when he was the principal of King Edward School. He will be accompanied to Peterborough by the grand secretary Ewart G. Dixon.

Remove Stone

The stone is to be placed in the northeast corner of the building and will require the removal of a stone from the old stone house and the insertion of the foundation stone.

The ceremony is scheduled at seven o'clock.

Immediately following the ceremony the Masons from the three Peterborough lodges and the visitors from the sister lodges in the district will adjourn to St. Andrew's Church Sunday School hall where dinner will be served by the Women's Association of the congregation. At the dinner Mr. Dunlop is expected to speak and along with other leaders in Free Masonry in Peterborough and district.

New Temple Progressing

Splendid progress is being made on the new Masonic Temple by Walter Mortlock the contractor. Plastering has been completed in the new lodge room and dining hall on the west side of the temple and much of the renovation work in the old home, which was more than 100 years ago the home of masonry in Peterborough, has been completed.

The directors are busy planning for furnishing and moving into the temple.

Family, Stock Move In Box-Car

TRURO, N.S. — (CP) — When Phillip Van der Borch a Dutch immigrant, decided to move from Ontario to Nova Scotia he didn't worry about inconvenience.

He packed his wife and two children, along with household furniture, six cows, five heifers and other assorted livestock into a freight-car and away he went.

They arrived at nearby Scotsburn in fine spirits and proud that the trip cost about $170.

Mrs. Van der Borch was the one who organized the move to Nova Scotia.

"There was no real good reason why we left Ontario," she said, "except the fact that Nova Scotia seemed so much better for us."

"I was pleased with the good land I saw when I visited here and the fine climate and the friendly people . . . so here we are."

A LAST LOOK WAS SNATCHED by three young contestants before their class in verse speaking at the opening session of the Sixth Annual Peterborough Music Competition Festival this morning. First Of 2,500 Invade City As Music Festival Begins

Erik Baaten of Port Hope was the first winner of the Sixth Annual Peterborough Music Competition Festival. The Port Hope boy was awarded first in the first class, 260, verse speaking Grade 5, to be heard by Adjudicator Miss Irene Fairclough of Hamilton. Jack Carroll was awarded second and Lorna Crilley, third. Both these two contestants are from Peterborough.

Approximately 116 children arrived at the Canadian Legion Hall this morning to take part in the opening session of the festival.

This group is the first of a total of more than 4,000 contestants who will be taking part in the 1952 festival, May 14-20. An estimated 2,500 to 3,000 contestants will be coming into Peterborough from outside communities and districts during the festival week.

Speaking Today

Sessions today will be made up completely of verse and choral speaking classes. Music adjudicators, Ronald Biggs and Alex Redshaw will arrive in the city tonight to start the music classes Thursday.

The morning and afternoon sessions are at the Canadian Legion Hall and the evening session at Queen Mary School auditorium.

Senior verse and choral speaking and drama classes will be held tonight.

A special feature of today's festival activities will be a meeting of music teachers of the festival area with the festival committee in the committee rooms of the city hall. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss festival arrangements and problems.

Thursday sessions will include vocal solo and choral classes and instrumental classes and daytime sessions will be held at both the Legion Hall and Murray St. Baptist Church.

The festival, sponsored by the Peterborough Kiwanis Club, is planned and arranged each year by a smaller group within the Club, the festival committee. The members of this committee are: Wilson Gemmell, chairman; Norman Armstrong, Dick Raine, Stanley Longhurst, Mort Knox, Ben Collis, Laurie Mitchell, A. S. Blaskett, Vince McCabe, Ernie Balmer, Don Fitzgerald, Clark Murkar, Stan Northrop.

PUC Unanimity Comes To End; Langley Dissents

The long record of unanimity in the Utilities Commission's decisions and business ended abruptly Tuesday afternoon on a question of whether two or three salaried employees should attend the annual convention of the Canadian Waterworks Association in Montreal.

Dr. Gordon R. Langley refused to approve sending more than two. Chairman Gordon S. Matthews supported Fred Hills in authorizing that three of the staff attend. They are: Ross L. Dobbin, general manager; Howard Powell, assistant; and James Harrison, chief operator at the pumping station and filtration plant.

Dr. Langley became a dissenting minority of one to the motion of Mr. Hills. He said the sending of three representatives of the commission was needless expense, and from attending probably 200 conventions in his own experience he considered them for the most part joyrides. Their main benefit he said was in forming valuable contacts with other men in the same business.

Mr. Hills included in his motion a clause to the effect that if he attended the convention it would be at his own expense.

Stop 'Extravagance'

Dr. Langley objected to that addition to the minute on the ground that it was extraneous to the subject, and it was only an attempt to "show up the objector". He said that he was interested in saving public money, and "if there has been extravagance in the past, it is time to put a stop to it."

Dr. Langley had previously, in the reading of the minutes of the last meeting of the commission, questioned the adequacy of one or two of the minutes, in explanation of their record of what they were intended to report.

Mr. Hills apparently took a cue from that passing discussion and at the later incident he amplified his motion. He said that if anybody ever raise a question as to who attended the convention in Montreal about the end of this month it would be shown that he was to pay his own expenses if he went. The information would be there in detail if any person were to comment on his attendance at the convention.

Policy of the commission for many years had been to avoid disunity in decisions, and to the extent of deferring them until a later meeting to the end that probably consideration meanwhile would result in agreement of the members.

In the reading of the minutes at the opening of the session, Dr. Langley had criticized as being meagre the record of his proposal that the commission adopt immediately an employee suggestion system, and that an incentive allowance of 15 per cent of the first year's savings be paid to any employee whose suggestion was adopted.

He said that the minute should make some reference to the fact that the suggestion system was for the purpose of saving money in the operation of the utilities by inviting the co-operative ideas of the commission's employees.

One Enough

Then at the later division of the commission, he said that one representative of the commission should be ample to go to Montreal. He contended that, as direct gains from convention papers and discussion, all that information was usually printed and distributed, and was thereby available. Contacts with men engaged in the same business could be important, but two delegates could obtain that benefit and two other employees of the Commission could attend the next year.

"The Waterworks Convention is certainly no joyride," Ross Dobbin said. "I think you would change your mind if you would come down with us to this convention."

"I have gone to some of the conventions" Mr. Hills said, "and as to expenses I have always kept the public in mind, and have not been extravagant."

Dr. Langley said that the commission was concerned about avoiding increase of water rates, and the way to go at it was by trying to keep down costs. If two representatives went to the convention instead of four, that would cut that item of cost in half.

"If three of our men go, it would be a saving of 25 per cent," Mr. Matthews remarked.

"That's not enough," Dr. Langley answered.

He added that his long experience at conventions had left him with an adverse impression of their value, except in the one particular he mentoined.

Mr. Hills commented that as a layman on the commission he had learned a great deal at the Waterworks Association meetings. He said their conventions were about the best he had ever attended. He also said it was proper for his motion to include the fact that if he went to Montreal he was paying his own way. It would be an answer to any person curious enough to look into the minutes.

Truck Runs Into Ditch Driver Scrapes Nose

Victor Glenn, 44, of Toronto, received a scraped nose Tuesday night when his truck ran off Highway 7 and plowed into the ditch, two miles west of Peterborough.

Glenn told O.P.P. Constable George Louth of Peterborough H.Q. that another vehicle, coming toward the city, forced his truck off the highway on to the soft shoulder. He then lost control and the truck plunged into the six-foot ditch, ran over a culvert, and narrowly avoided turning over.

Before coming to rest it snapped off a fence post and tore down some wire fencing. The 1950 panel truck received about $80.00 damage.

Canada Misusing Resources Of Young People

Canada needs to take a look at its human resources, Prof. C. E. Hendry, director of the School of Social Work, University of Toronto, said in Peterborough Tuesday night.

Prof. Hendry was the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society held in the Y.W.C.A.

The increasing trend of young people to enter professions with the highest financial returns and the falling off of enrollment in courses leading to the teaching profession, the ministry and social work was described as deplorable by the speaker.

"What's happened to value orientation, which is so basic?" he asked. "There is a great need for the mobilization of some effective activity and some overall and aching concern for the survival of great values."

Prof. Hendry pointed to the Scandinavian countries where, after suffering the great disasters of war, the people are facing thir life tasks with sincerity and reality. Here, he explained, priorities have taken on a special significance in times of great adversity and first things are first.

As one example of these countries' clear perspective the speaker pointed to Finland where child and maternal welfare are considered most important in the social welfare of this country.

"Perhaps a good symbol for Canada, unmarred by war, would be, No Real Achievement Without Suffering," he said.

Eminent Speakers

One step that will be taken towards helping Canada look at its human resources is a series of lectures to be given six nights at Massey Hall in Toronto. The general topic of these lectures will be Canada's Human Resources and the list of speakers will include Eleanor Roosevelt and Lester B. Pearson.

Prof. Hendry pointed out that the School of Social Work is extremely concerned with the problem of providing social workers adequately equipped for their work when they go out in the field.

"We are trying to design our program of social work training so that our students will be able to meet the needs of communities such as Peterborough."

Three Tensions

The speaker explained that this program includes the studying of tensions in three kinds of communities—urban, suburban and rural. Students are sent out to communities which are examples of these three groups to analyse these tensions and work on solutions.

"We are trying to train students to look fairly into the techniques and principles that will help individuals, agencies and communities come to grips with and settle their problems."

Prof. Hendry pointed to a prominent Canadian industry's program of commissioning artists to paint scenes of Canada's natural resources as an excellent precedent of what might be done in social welfare work.

"I would like to see some company commission artists in human relations to study and present illustrations of Canada's human resources," he concluded.

"Let's hope we don't confine our activity to our natural resources and ignore our human resources."

Prof. Hendry was introduced by Norman Crook and thanked by K. C. Dalrymple.

92 Pounds Of Meat Seized For Inspection; Believed Sent By Horsemeat Plant

Dr. Harold Worton Says Not Horsemeat
Shipping Agent Definite On Identification
Butcher Says Meat Bought For Beef

Police and health authorities are holding 92 pounds of meat under seizure to determine if it is horsemeat. The shipment arrived early today, consigned to a local butcher shop via C.P.R. express from Smiths Falls with a bill of lading stating it was horsemeat. When Dr. Harold Worton of the city health department examined the meat, he said it was not horsemeat. It was believed that a mistake had been made at the Smiths Falls express office.

However, a check with Leonard DeGrosse, Smiths Falls C.P.R. express agent revealed that no mistake had been made.

Mr. DeGrosse told the Examiner he remembered the shipment, because there was another similar shipment for an Eastview firm, from Daley Brothers, a Merrickville firm which processes horsemeat.

Tell By Odor

"It was sure horsemeat," Mr. DeGrosse said, "I could tell from the strong odor." Mr. DeGrosse said there have been several shipments from the same company and the meat is used as food for dogs or foxes.

The purchasers of the meat confirmed that the meat was to have been offered for human consumption but he insists he bought the meat as beef from a traveller who did not represent Daley Brothers.

Dr. Worton's first opinion that the meat was not horsemeat was confirmed by a second veterinarian who examined the shipment and when informed that the meat had been shipped from a firm which kills horses, he repeated that it "looked like horsemeat," but further tests would have to be made. Meanwhile, it is being held under seizure.

A spokesman of the company which shipped the meat was contacted and he stated the company slaughters horses and cans some of the meat for dog food. The meat is also sold to fox farmers and for "any other purpose," he said.

It is illegal in Canada to sell horsemeat except when it is labelled as such and then, only after the local municipality has approved of it being sold and the retailer has obtained a permit.

In addition the law requires that only horsemeat can be sold in the store.

Shipment Traced

Police came into the investigation first, when a bill of lading was brought to their attention. The shipment was traced to the butcher shop and then Dr. Worton was informed at 7.30 a.m. and asked to examine the meat.

City sanitary inspector Ron MacPherson admitted that at least "two other" similar shipments had been brought to the attention of authorities recently but that in both cases, the meat was found not to be horsemeat.

Given Dinner Man Robs Old Folks Home

This year's candidate for the meanest thief in town, 33-year-old Claude Ruttan, was sentenced to 15 days in jail for theft Tuesday.

After being befriended by two Sisters of St. Joseph who gave him and his companion a free Sunday dinner when they begged for a meal at the House of Providence Sunday, Ruttan repaid the kindness by stealing a windbreaker belonging to an employee of the institution.

Ruttan pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing the jacket Monday and was remanded for sentence Tuesday. In April he was convicted of theft and placed on suspended sentence on condition he report regularly to Major Harry Everitt of the Salvation Army.

Drinking Again

"I was drinking again," was the only explanation Ruttan offered, after Constable Louis Rodreque related the story told him by the Sisters who noticed the jacket missing from a hook where it had been hanging, after Ruttan and his compatriot left.

Constable Rodreque said he had an idea who one of the men was after he had been given a description of the pair. He picked up Ruttan and his companion on Charlotte St., and took them to the House of Providence where the Sisters identified them.

The owner of the jacket was able to give a detailed description of it and identified the one Ruttan was wearing under his suit coat as the one he had lost. Constable Rodreque said.

BEAUHARNOIS CROWDS wach flames partly destroy the boarding school of the Sisters of the Holy Name of Jesus and Mary after it caught fire, in the Quebec town, recently. None of the 260 pupils and 20 sisters was injured and firemen from four towns fought the blaze in the 100-year-old building for four hours. The school was to celebrate its centenary in September.

FIREMAN UP A TREE—With all the extension ladders occupied, this Beauharnois fireman ran one of the nine hoses fighting the boarding school fire up a tree less than 30 feet from the building. From this vantage point he fed a powerful stream of water into the upper floors of the building.

Nehru Keeping Princess In His Cabinet

NEW DELHI, May 14 (Reuters) —A slight, gentle princess who cuts her hair in a short bob and loves the English game of cricket has again taken on one of the world's toughest jobs — health minister in the Indian government.

Prime Minister Nehru announced today that this little lady of 65, the Rajkumari Princess Amrit Kaur, is once more the only woman member of his new cabinet, formed after the recent general elections.

As health minister she will continue to lead the fight against ignorance and disease in a country where there are too-few doctors and nurses and too-little medical equipment.

That would be a formidable task for anyone. But Amrit Kaur, only daughter of the late Raja Harnam Singh of Kapurthala, faces it with confidence.

Complete Change

Fifty years ago, after a polished schooling at the Sherborne School for Girls in England, she was the typical young society woman — fashionably dressed, a magnificent horsewoman and a tennis player of near-champion standard.

Then she met Mohandas K. Gandhi. It changed her whole life. Helping the poverty-stricken peasants became a whole-time crusade.

Today she wears homespun saris, eats the plainest vegetarian food and scorns jewellery.

When India became independent she took on the job of health minister. She is the only Christian in Nehru's cabinet.

Believe Boy 12 To Run Again

TORONTO, May 14 — (CP) — Little J. P. Morgan is going home.

For three years 12-year-old Jean Paul, of Hearst, hung in an intricate harness in the Hospital for Sick Children. He entered the hospital with one of the most severe cases of tuberculosis of the spine ever seen there. The disease had also attacked his knee and his chest was infected.

During the long years when he was suspended half upside down in the Whitman frame, J. P. wove a leather collar for the dog he hoped to own some day. He has been promised the dog.

In two days, in the care of a railway conductor, he will leave for home, some 200 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie. He has almost forgotten the faces of his mother, four brothers and two sisters.

Jean Paul will still wear braces on his back and knee but doctors say some day the braces will be gone and he will run like other youngsters.

Lake Waves Climb To Beach Cabins

COBOURG, May 14 (ENS). — High water level of Lake Ontario, plus the strong winds of late Monday afternoon, flooded the tourist camp at Victoria Beach in many sections, tourist cabins being surrounded on all sides by water.

The waves swept forward until they reached the southwest corner of the dance pavilion.

At The Breakers, a tourist home at the foot of Green Street, waves climbed the breakwater and splashed against the windows of the house. Old residents said that they had never seen anything like it before.

Farm Floor Prices Criticized By M.P.

OTTAWA, May 14 (CP).—J. A. Charlton (P.C.-Brant-Wentworth) described in the Commons Tuesday the government's policy on farm floor prices as "nothing more than a farce and a hoax."

Mr. Charlton said the government is handing the farmers a "pretty bare bone." The floor prices were not being paid and even if they were they had no relation to the cost of production. This could only result in dropping production and the consumer would be paying more in the end.

Mr. Charlton said he wondered how long it would take Agriculture Minister Gardiner to keep his "promise" about a floor price for cheese.

Mr. Gardiner replied he had never made such a promise.

Pilot Training Cut 40% To Save Gas

LONDON, Ont., May 14 (CP)— Pilot training at R.C.A.F. Station Centralia has been reduced almost 40 per cent to conserve aviation gasoline, an Air Force spokesman said Tuesday.

Flying at the big aviation school has been pared to the bare necessities. Only the two senior courses of pilots in the basic flying training section are continuing on schedule.

The remainder are in the air only 60 per cent of the normal number of hours.

Report Sales Higher, Profits Down

TORONTO, May 14 — (CP) — Canadian manufacturing companies made an average profit of 5.8 cents on each dollar's worth of goods which they sold in 1951, or 1.3 cents less than they made in 1950.

The figures are from a survey made by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, announced today by Hugh Crombie, of Montreal, association president.

The survey covered 733 companies which had sales in 1951 of $5,015,573,000, compared with $3,918,609,000 in 1950; total investments of $2,827,729,000, compared with $2,592,658,000; 335,000 employees, compared with 320,000; and 271,474 shareholders, compared with 264,728.

Out of the profit of 5.8 cents in each dollar of sales, 2.3 cents was paid in dividends to shareholders, and 3.5 cents was retained in the business. This compares with 3.1 cents paid in dividends in 1950, and four cents retained in the business.

Income taxes were 5.8 cents out of each dollar, the same figure as profit, compared with 4.9 cents in 1950.

In announcing the results of the survey, Mr. Crombie said in part:

"These surveys began four years ago and were aimed originally at finding out what were the true facts surrounding profits. The public, according to reputable opinion surveys, have always thought that manufacturing profits were far higher than they actually were. Our findings over a period of four years have proved conclusively that profits were barely half of what the public thought a fair profit should be . . .

"We were criticized in some quarters in the past on the grounds that the accepted method of establishing a profit figure was on the basis of net worth. That is a question that is open to a lot of discussion, but what we are trying to show is quite simple—the exact number of cents of profit the manufacturer makes on his sales dollar and how little this profit affects prices."

The s... gives the following break-do... of the disposition of each dollar taken in by the companies (with totals in brackets):

Materials 46.9 cents ($2,378,031,000); wages and salaries 22.0 $1,114,230,000); other expenses 11.6 ($587,946,000); income taxes 5.8 $297,675,000); excise and sales taxes 3.5 ($176,237,000); retained in the business 3.5 ($178,134,000); depreciation 3.1 ($156,122,000); dividends 2.3 ($115,811,000); employee benefits 1.3 ($64,396,000).

N.B. Modifies Angling Rules

FREDERICTON—(CP)—Regulations requiring use of guides by non-resident salmon anglers in New Brunswick have been modified for this year.

Formerly, all non-resident salmon fishermen had to employ a guide—one for up to three sportsmen. Under the new regulations, a guide is still requifred if the fishing is from a canoe or other type of vessel. However, if the angling is done on foot in an area where no forest travel permit is needed, a guide is no longer necessary.

The regulations apply only to non-resident salmon fishermen.

With certain industrial and similar exceptions, all persons require permits for travel in forested areas during the season of forest fire danger.

Pioneer Printer Hunted Buffalo

MACLEOD, Alta. (CP)—Thomas Clarke figures he took part in one of the country's last wild buffalo hunts—from a train. And they did not get the buffalo.

A pioneer Alberta printer, Clarke was on his way west in 1884 with a troop of Mounties. He believes he was the first man to set type for the Calgary Herald which started publication in the 1880s. The Mounties of course had already been on the prairies for 10 years. They came to Macleod in 1875, the year that Clarke landed at Quebec with his parents from Suffolk, England, where he was born in 1863.

His father settled near Owen Sound, Ont., and young Clarke became an apprentice printer at Meaford, but the spirit of adventure caused him to move west in 1872. He got a job with the old Winnipeg Sun but soon enlisted in the North West Mounted Police.

He was sent to Qu'Appelle, Sask., then to Regina and helped to build the Regina police barracks. From there he went to Maple Creek, Sask., and on to Calgary in 1884.

It was on the train ride from Medicine Hat to Calgary, Clarke recalls, that a brakeman came into the coach and said there was a buffalo up the tracks.

"Everybody grabbed a carbine, regardless of number—the police numbered everything, even the men—and stuck them through windows and fired away as we passed. But nobody hit the buffalo."

Clarke was given permission to work as a printer in Calgary while still in the police force, but in 1887 he got a job with the Macleod Gazette. Later, with his brother Fred, he started the Macleod Advance and Southern Alberta Advertiser.

He still has the equipment to turn out business cards and handbills at his home, but says that at his age "a fellow shakes a bit too much" to hold a stick of type.

TROUBLED WORLD FOR "PREEMIE"—Baby Elizabeth Dillon, above, has had more than her share of troubles since arriving in the world. Push Inquiry Into Army Thefts and Fires

OTTAWA, May 14—(CP)—The Commons Committee on Defence Spending Tuesday opened new parliamentary ground in its task of checking into $7,500,000 worth of Defence Department losses through fire, theft, fraud and write-offs during the last two years.

With 12 departmental officials present, the committee's inquiry finally got down to actual cases—two minor ones—when members began to wade through a pile of statistics.

A new document estimated losses at $7,500,000 including $5,200,000 from fires, $2,212,930 from writeoffs and only $85,800 from theft and fraud. The last figure indicated there have been no major thefts reported in the last two years except the Petawawa case which cost an estimated $50,000 and Tuesday produced a seventh arrest.

It was the Petawawa case which provoked the current inquiry.

Hour's Debate

The check of figures was preceded by an hour's debate concerning whether the committee has the right to receive auditors' reports and the findings of military courts which might throw light on specific losses.

The upshot was a ruling by the chairman, Lt.-Col. David Croll (L., Toronto Spadina) which the committee accepted and which Col. Croll said will give members access to documents of a type parliament has never received.

The chairman ruled that the committee can receive findings of fact and recommendations from any auditor's report or military court decision but not any "hearsay" proposals or "iffy" evidence from them.

Ontario Scientists Aid Crime Detection

TORONTO —(CP)—Scientific experts of Ontario's crime detection laboratory can take a chip of motor-car paint and in a short time identify the make, model and year of the vehicle it came from.

But this is one of the less spectacular jobs handled daily by the group of scientists and their assistants who run the laboratory.

Operated under the Attorney-General's Department, it consists of several laboratory rooms, an exhibit room, a chemical storeroom and several offices.

The lab's photographic equipment is capable of taking pictures—in black and white or color—of objects invisible to the naked eye.

One of the most important jobs of the laboratory is to make determinations of alcohol in the blood to ascertain if a motorist involved in a highway accident has been drinking.

Another phase of operation is the blood-analysis department where scientists can establish if a sample is human or animal blood. Similar tests are used to determine whether there is poison in the blood stream.

Besides samples of all types of car paints used since 1936, the laboratory's "museum" contains many articles such as firearms and bullets, cloth, chemicals and drugs which may be used for reference when bits of evidence are brought in for examination.

The section of bridge wrecked by collision with a freighter last month then will be removed. It was expected to take about a month for this.

DOROTHY DIX

Deserted Wife Advised To Stay With Children

DEAR MISS DIX: I was married at 16, had my first child at 17, followed by one almost every year until I was expecting my sixth at 25. Then my husband said he couldn't stand the responsibility any more, and left us. He went back to live with his mother in another state. I am now 29, the children are from 4 to 12. About a year ago I met a man two years younger than I. He seemed very understanding and mature. We got along very well, and soon were seeing each other four or five times a week.

He said he loved me, and I know I loved him. However, he wanted me to marry him and leave the children. He felt he couldn't accept their care. Naturally, I wouldn't think of deserting my family; for one thing there's no one but me to care for them. My friend says he still would like to come to see me once or twice a week, but I feel if I continue seeing him I'll learn to care more.

TINA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You have certainly had a hard life, Tina, and it is greatly to your credit that you have done such a splendid job of caring for your large family. Added to your material worries, you haven't been very fortunate in meeting decent men. Your husband proved to be nothing but a contemptible coward, and his mother must be nearly as bad to let him stay away from the family he deserted.

New Beau No Improvement

Your present young man is no better. Knowing that he would never accept the obligations of a ready-made family, he won your trust and love only to treat you as shabbily as your husband did. I'm afraid your prospects for second marriage are not too good, anyway. Few men are willing to take the responsibility of so large a family.

With the two unfortunate experiences you've had, your future dealings with men should be very carefully handled. You are, apparently, an overtrusting soul, and to avoid another wound, you'll have to toughen up a bit. Your immediate happiness lies with your children. Bringing them up right is a full-time job, and leaves little room for romance. Of course, they'll be grown while you are still a comparatively young woman; then, and then only, will be the time for you to look around for another husband. The experience of maturity will, I hope, lead you to a better choice than you have made up to now.

By all means stop seeing your young man. He has no serious intentions toward you, and further dating will only end in more disaster for you. Try to get an objective view of your life. Profit by the mistakes you have made and work toward a happier, more wholesome future.

You could use some first-hand advice and I suggest you see your clergyman, or someone at the Family Service Association, who address you will find in the telephone book of your nearest large city. Apparently you have no family aside from the children, and to face the world and your many responsibilities with no one to help is a sorry state. There are, however, many counseling agencies who can lend a helping hand, and I urge you to make use of them.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am an 18-year-old senior and go on dates frequently. My father believes I should get out of the car immediately upon arriving home, and go into the house. He says the neighbors will talk about me if I sit in the car too long. While I can partly see his point, I feel there's no harm in staying outside for ten or twenty minutes.

✧ ✧ ✧

DISCOURAGED DAUGHTER

ANSWER: While gladly conceding that romance must have its moments, I must also agree with your father that a parked car is not the best place for them. However, if Dad expects you to heed his advice, he must be ready to offer an alternative to the parked car. What's the matter with the family living room? Or inviting the young man in for a snack in the kitchen? Your family should co-operate with you to the extent of having some place available for you to entertain the boy.

Regrettable as it is, neighbors will talk—and not always kindly. It's best not to give them material for gossip, but conduct yourself in a manner above reproach.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I've met a very nice man whose wife died recently leaving him with a 14-month-old baby. He is 25, I am 16. I like him very much but he thinks there is too much difference in our ages for us to go out together.

MISS S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Of course you're too young to go with a widower of 25. He needs a sensible, settled companion nearer his own age, and you need boy friends much nearer 16.

Children At Selwyn Baptized

SELWYN, May 14 (ENS) — At the Mother's Day service in the United Church on Sunday morning, the sacrament of Holy Baptism was administered to Donna Marie and Donald Melville, children of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Millar, and Rita Marie, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Logan.

The Rev. D. P. Morris sang a solo, "A Mother's Love," during the service, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. C. Fitzgerald.

Two stories for Family Day, and taken from the pamphlets published for that occasion, were read by Donald McIlmoyl, and Barry Fitzgerald.

Special hymns were sung, and Mr. Morris spoke a few words, in tribute to all mothers.

And delicious Kellogg's ALL-BRAN may bring back your youthful regularity if your suffering has been due to lack of bulk in your diet. It's the only type ready-to-eat cereal that supplies all the bulk you may need. ALL-BRAN is high in iron and protein —not habit-forming. Eat ½ cupful of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily; drink plenty of liquids. MARY MOORE SAYS:

Offer Mulligatawny Soup On Special-Purpose Menu

Mulligatawny Soup
Wheat Germ Muffins
Peady's Avocado Special
OR
Emem's Stuffed Tomato Salad
Spanish Cream Cookies Coffee

Are you looking over that menu with a fishy eye? Can you picture it? We chose Peady's Avocado Special because we had the avocadoes, and they were at the just-right stage of ripeness, but my tomato number is good too, and it has an added advantage—you can use the centres you scoop from the tomatoes in the Mulligatawny

When you read through the Mulligatawny recipe you will see that it calls for 1 cup raw diced chicken, and 5 cups white stock. This means that for some other meal you will be using boiled fowl, from which you filch 1 cup raw meat before it is boiled, and use the liquid in which it is boiled for the soup.

Mulligatawny Soup

One cup uncooked chicken diced, 1-3 cup each minced green pepper, chopped onion, diced carrot, diced celery, 1 medium apple pared and sliced thin, ¼ cup chicken fat or butter, ¼ cup flour, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, 1 teaspoon curry powder, 1 blade mace, 4 whole cloves, 1 cup tomato pulp, 1 quart chicken stock, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup cooked rice (this is cooked separately). Saute in the chicken fat or butter the chicken, apple and vegetables except parsley and tomatoes for about 7 minutes over medium heat. Add all remaining ingredients, starting with blending in the flour, except the rice. Stir until thickned a little, then simmer until chicken is tender — about 1 hour. I never strain Mulligatawny but most instructions say to—returning only the chicken dice to the soup. Add the hot cooked rice just before serving. Wonderful for Sunday supper.

Wheat Germ Muffins

Cream together 1-3 cup shortening (part butter), ½ cup brown sugar, then beat in 1 egg. Sift together 1 cup white flour, 1 cup graham flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon soda, and 1 teaspoon salt. Add 1 cup each bran and fresh wheat germ. Stir dry ingredients into creamed mixture alternately with 1 cup buttermilk. Fill greased muffin tins 2-3 full. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 20 or 25 minutes.

Peady's Avocado Special

On each individual salad plate place a large slice from compact head of lettuce or shredded lettuce. Place in centre 1 half ripe, small avocado. Put 1 teaspoon French dressing in depression and fill it with orange sections. Flank this with quarters of banana coated with mayonnaise and garnish each plate with about 5 or 6 jumbo pecans.

Emem's Tomato Salad

Scoop about half of the centre from firm tomatoes and use them for the soup. Season cottage cheese with chopped olives and salt and pepper, use this for refilling tomatoes which should have been salted and inverted to drain before filling. Serve on bed of watercress. Pass mayonnaise.

If you do not have a recipe for Spanish Cream watch for a column on that subject next week.

Officially named, "The School of His Majesty King Willem III and Her Majesty Queen Emma of The Netherlands," the school was established by Juliana's grandfather in 1852.

10,000 Nurses Able To Cope With Atomic Warfare

OTTAWA, May 14 (CP) —Dr. G. D. W. Cameron, deputy minister of national health, said Tuesday that about 10,000 Canadian nurses now are qualified to care for victims of atomic, biological or chemical warfare.

Dr. Cameron was speaking to the 54th annual meeting of the board of governors of the Victorian Order of Nurses of Canada at Government House.

He told the delegates from more than 100 Canadian branches of the order that the nurses received special training in the treatment of atomic, biological and chemical warfare victims, under Canada's civil defense program.

The nursing instruction program was organized last year by a team of five Canadian nurses, including Miss E. Robertson, assistant superintendent of the V.O.N.

Dr. Cameron urged the V.O.N. to maintain bedside nursing in the home as a central core of their policy, however alluring other special branches of nursing may be.

"Canada's growing population, the rising number of elderly Canadians and the high cost of hospital construction and care is steadily increasing the demand for community home nursing," he said. He added that the home nursing service of the V.O.N. will continue to alleviate this problem.

Earlier Christine Livingstone, chief superintendent of the V.O.N. said the home nursing services of the order now are available to a third of the people of Canada.

She told the group at Government House that V.O.N. branches are operating in 111 Canadian communities, serving 33.2 per cent of the population.

"The Victorian Order of Nurses," she said, "clings to an unchanging purpose in a changing world, to relieve the suffering of the sick, to reduce disease and to advance the cause of national health."

E. P. Taylor of York Mills and Montreal, was elected president of the executive council.

President of the Argus Corporation Limited of Toronto, Mr. Taylor succeeds Mr. Justice Charles H. Locke of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Women Must Set Example For Christian Life

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., May 14 (CP)—It is the responsibility of women, particularly mothers, to set the stage for Christian family life by training, example and prayer, Mrs. J. L. Halpenny of Toronto said last night.

President of the Dominion Woman's Association Council of the United Church of Canada, she spoke at the opening session of the 12th annual meeting here.

Delegates representing 188,344 members across Canada, are meeting out of Toronto for the first time. The sessions will close tomorrow.

"We must make our work the expression of our worship," Mrs. Halpenny said. "No matter how busy we are in our homes, our schools, churches and communities we should judge our efforts in an attitude of prayer."

She warned delegates against "too enthusiastic commercialism" in their activities and said they should not allow commercial interests to exploit this enthusiasm by "taking us into ventures which are not worthy of our organizations."

Members of the United Church Woman's Association earned nearly $4,000,000 for the organization last year.

"On every hand, in the church, community and state, we are being called upon for help," Mrs. Halpenny said. "We are providing leadership and training leaders."

"The United Church is in desperate need of leaders, ministers and missionaries, and these must come from our homes, places where the children have been encouraged to carry on the work of the church."

Kinette Club's Two Projects Aiding Children

Kinette Club monthly meeting was held at the Empress Hotel on Tuesday evening with 25 members present. Miss Jean Stenton showed colored pictures of France taken during her trip to that country a year ago, also some pictures taken in the Canadian Rockies. This entertainment was greatly enjoyed as Miss Stenton gave a brief commentary about each picture.

Mrs. Howard Powell, president, conducted the business meeting which followed. Kinettes are sending four local children who require special care to Ilahee Lodge, at Cobourg. At this Lodge children with ailments such as heart conditions and diabetes are specially treated and by sending needy children to this Lodge, it not only gives the child's mother a break for three weeks but also teaches the child how to look after himself and too, he is with other children who have similar handicaps, thereby helping the child to realize that he is not different from other youngsters.

This is the club's summer project and, too, it is the wish of the Club to become a "Parent" to some needy child in Greece. Through an international organization, it is possible for the club to send an amount monthly for the care of the child requiring medical help, cod liver oil, clothes etc., which supplies are purchased in Canada and forwarded to the "adopted" European child. It is expected that this will be a year round project for the club.

The lucky draw was won by Mrs. Jack Gamsby. The club noted a sum to he donated to the Cancer Society and too, at a later meeting the members will make bandages for the society.

The club's clothing exchange is being held at the Y.M.C.A. this Wednesday evening and tea will be served. On Friday afternoon the spring rummage sale is being held at 381 Water St. Proceeds from these two affairs will go towards the club projects of "Ilahee Lodge" and "Europe."

Rachael Young Tells History Of Children's Aid

The development of welfare work with children in Peterborough during the past 60 years was outlined by Miss Rachael Young, superintendent of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society Tuesday night.

Miss Young gave this outline in her report at the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society's Board of Directors held in the Y.W.C.A.

"The chief interest of the branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children which was established in Peterborough in 1892 was the protection of children from physical cruelty," Miss Young said. "The Society referred such conditions as desertion and drinking to the rector as these cases did not come within the scope of the society's work.

Change Thinking

"The society now known as the Children's Aid Society, has reversed its thinking from that time 60 years ago, because desertions, drinking, non-support and marital differences are symptomatic of the kind of child neglect about which we must be most concerned."

The statistics of the society's work during the past year were included in Miss Young's report. The number of families given service by the society during the year totalled 380 with 88 children in these families. There were 115 unmarried cases came to the society.

The society made 17 investigations for family allowances and 17 reports for official guardian under the Matrimonial Causes Act.

A total of 235 children were looked after in the Children's Home, and foster homes. There were 54 children taken into care by the society during the year and 90 were discharged from care. Fifty adoptions were completed.

The staff of the society attended 529 hearings of Family Court.

Financial Report

J. McKerchar, treasurer reported that the year's revenue totalled $55,019 and the year's expenditures $53,652, making an operating surplus of $1,366.

Mrs. E. B. MacMillan, matron of the Children's Home, reported that 2,408 days' care were given at the home and 9,288 meals were served.

Mrs. Keith Lech, sewing convener, reported that groups from the following churches, St. Paul's Presbyterian, St. Luke's Anglican, St. James United, Mark St. United, George St. United and Murray St. Baptist and the Welfare League mended 1,793 articles and made 55 new articles and three patched quilts. There were 78 donations of clothing made during the year.

Bruce Sargent, president of the board expressed his appreciation to Miss Young and her staff, to the board members for the work they had done during the year.

Greetings were brought to the society from the City Council by Mayor Hugh Waddell, and from the County Council by Warden R. R. Stewart.

Representatives from the Lindsay and Port Hope Children's Aid Societies also attended the meeting.

Offer Bargains

HUTCHINSON, Kas., May 14 (AP).—How would you like to buy a silk necktie for 35 cents, a pair of nylons for 39 cents, or a $20 table lamp for $3.95? Those were some of the bargains listed for an hour-long sale at 24 Hutchinson stores today. The prices were rolled back to 1902 levels as part of a city-wide celebration. In connection with the premiere of a movie, "Wait Till the Sun Shines, Nellie." The movie was filmed in this city of 35,000 last summer.

Drive For Quotas

VIENNA, May 14 (Reuters).—A campaign to see that coal miners attain their daily Government-set production quotas is operating in Czechoslovakia, reports received here indicate. Foremen, for example, in the Ostrava state coal mines now are required to report the output of every worker at the end of each shift, the Czech Communist newspaper, Rude Pravo, reports in an edition just received here.

Two World Wars Just Part Of International Revolution

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, May 14. (CP)—The Second World War was just a stage in an international revolution which is still going on, says an analysis published here.

In this interpretation, based on a comprehensive study of international affairs from 1939 to 1946, the revolution resulted from the breakdown of the pattern of world relationships that prevailed before 1914—a system based on spasmodic wars and the balance of power.

The analysis is made by British columnist Sebastian Haffner. In a review of the first of 12 volumes dealing with the 1939-46 period to be published by London's Chatham House, Haffner says that the strongest impression which emerges is that the Second World War appears "not as a climacteric turning point in history by itself, but rather as an episode in a greater catastrophic process which started some 20 years earlier, which has not yet run its course, and which, for want of a better name, might be called the international revolution."

Haffner's main point is that the breakdown of the old system of power politics left international anarchy in its place. He quotes Arnold Toynbee, one of the authors of the Chatham House volume, as saying the vacuum was caused by the "premature humanization" of the western democracies, "the weaning of the western peoples from the 6,000-year-old tradition of militarism in an age still haggridden by the institution of war."

Dictators Tempted

In other words, writes Haffner in the independent Sunday Observer, it was as though "in a tug-of-war, one side realizing the childishness of the game, suddenly let go—with the result that all fall down."

Thus Hitler and Mussolini were tempted into wild adventures while the western powers stood aside, the United States retreating into isolation and Britain and France toying with appeasement and disarmament. Even after the Second World War, the situation has been similar, with what Haffner calls a "weaker" power, Russia, expanding and getting her own way against countries which though superior in potential strength are passive and psychologically impotent.

What is the alternative? Neither anarchy nor a return to classical power politics, says Haffner, but the creation of enforceable law and order based "on a permanent over-balance of power held by peoples united in a Roman determination to pacify the world."

World Survival

"This may well . . . be the condition of the survival of our civilization, and may prove the ultimate terminus of the international revolution through which we are living. . . In the meantime, power continues to remain a blind force outside human control. International anarchy remains our condition, and the deeper challenge set by the Second World War remains unanswered."

Haffner's analysis is of considerable political significance. It comes at a time when sections of the British Labor Party are having second thoughts about the foreign policies—for instance German rearmament—initiated by the late Ernest Bevin, Labor Foreign Secretary in the early post-war years.

In General the British Socialist party and its continental counterparts are seen here as gradually drifting away from the firm line in foreign affairs espoused by the governments of their respective countries.

Walter Bowles Named Assessor Of N. Monaghan

Walter Bowles of Springville was appointed assessor of North Monaghan at a salary of $600 at the township council meeting Monday.

Council discussed with Melville Johnston, county weed inspector, a program of spraying roadside weeds and brush. The council has been proposing to spend around $300 on weed control on township roads this summer.

The following accounts were passed for payment: Balance on tax collector's salary $125; insulin $1.25; roads and streets $299.48; printing, postage etc. $35.27; tax refund, balance of overpayment 1951 tax roll $1.32; relief and welfare $42.23; grant to Millbrook Agricultural Society $25; sundries $2; expense collecting dog taxes $8.10.

Council decided that the penalty on unpaid taxes be added at the rate of 2 per cent from July 1st on the first instalment and 2 per cent after Dec. 1, on the second instalment.

The tax collector's returns for 1951 tax roll was accepted, the final returns having been approved by the auditor, Edward Humpage.

92 Pounds Of Meat

R. A. Kelly and Dr. Worton both said that "rumours" that horsemeat was being shipped into the city had been investigated but in all cases, they had been found to be "unfounded," when they were investigated.

According to one reliable source, about 1,300 pounds of horsemeat have come into the city since Friday. Although there is no official confirmation to this report, the Smiths Falls express agent said he recalls other shipments passing through to Peterborough where the meat is transferred, and the owner of the business which purchased the meat which has sparked the investigation said he had bought meat from the same traveller before.

Although the price of the suspected meat is slightly lower than the prevailing rate, the man said it was not unusually low, because "different firms charge different prices," and he bought the meat as beef.

At press time, it could not be learned whether other local firms are also buying meat from traveller whose name has not yet been revealed.

The meat was boneless and in small pieces. The man who bought the shipment said that boneless beef is not always easily obtained and that was why he bought it. The meat was packed in a slatted packing case and was not refrigerated. The express agent at Smiths Falls said he recalled the shipment because of its "odor". However, Dr. Worton said that in fast shipments it is not unusual for meat to be shipped without being refrigerated.

He added that the butcher is co-operating with police and health authorities to determine whether the meat is beef or horsemeat. Samples are going to be sent to Guelph for identification.

There may be no connection, but in Calgary a packinghouse official said Tuesday that some unscrupulous meat wholesalers are operating a "grey" market in meat, sneaking western beef into Quebec where it is banned.

He said such operators get around the ban by taking the western dressed meat to Toronto where the legend number of the plant in which the animals were slaughtered is gouged out of the carcass. The carcasses are then placed in different box cars and shipped as Ontario beef, he said.

Chinese Free 7 Missionaries

HONG KONG, May 14 (Reuters).—Seven Roman Catholic missionaries, including a Canadian, arrived here today as the latest victims in the Communist attempt to purge China of western influences.

The priests were put aboard a Hong Kong-bound boat by the Communists at Tientsin. They had been under arrest for periods ranging from several months to years at missions in northern China.

The Canadian expelled was a Jesuit missionary, Father Eugene Lauzon, 42, of Falher, Alta. He was accused of being an "American spy."

He was arrested at his mission at Fenghsien, near Suchow, in northern Kinagsu Province, Sept. 4, last year, and held in a local prison for six months. Before his jailing the Communists had confined him to his mission for two years.

Lauzon said that two months ago he was handcuffed, had a rope tied around his neck and bundled off to the Tsinan provincial capital of Shangtung Province, 200 miles away, for questioning.

He was then brought back under guard to his mission and ordered to leave China.

Chatham Voters To Decide 5 Money Bylaws

CHATHAM, May 14 (CP) — Chatham taxpayers will be asked to vote on five money bylaws totalling $1,084,700 at a referendum late next month.

If approved, the bylaws will almost double the city's present debenture debt, which Mayor William A. Donovan said stands at $1,325,477 or a per-capita debt of $61.73.

When council assembled Tuesday to consider requests for money for the public general hospital building fund, the board of education, the city's share in new bridge, renovations to the police depot and a municipal garage, the mayor warned that financiers consider that a municipality has when the per-capita debt reaches $100.

The mayor said the city's per-capita debt "would reach that amount or more," should all the debentures be approved.

General taxpayers will be asked to vote on four of the bylaws while only Protestant taxpayers will have the right to vote on the debenture asked by the board of education.

The five money questions to be submitted are: Public general hospital building fund, $600,000; board of education, two schools, $268,700; the city's share of a new bridge, $130,000; renovations to the police depot, $30,000, and a municipal garage, $25,000.

Pass Up Chance For Bombers

LONDON, May 14 (CP) — The Daily Express implied today that Britain passed up a chance to have jet bombers built for her at the Canadair plant in Montreal.

Group Capt. Hugh Dundas, the paper's air expert, said "Canadair's high-efficiency resources" might have been occupied now in producing some of the new jet bombers urgently needed by Britain, but the opportunity was not taken. Dundas did not elaborate.

This comment came as British papers published the news, previously announced in Canada, that a third R.C.A.F. squadron equipped with Canadair - built Sabre jet fighters will fly to Britain late this month or early in June.

The Sabre is regarded as the only fighter capable of matching Russia's most advanced types. Thus Britain is in the rueful position of knowing that her greatest protection at home, qualitatively speaking, comes not from the R.A.F. but from the R.C.A.F.

CANON F. J. FIFE

Canon F. J. Fife Leaves Ministry

SELWYN, May 14 (ENS)—After six years of service to the Stony Lake Mission, Canon F. J. Fife brought his ministry to a close, Sunday afternoon when he gave his farewell address to the combined congregation of Holy Trinity, Haultain; St. Matthew's, Buckhorn; and St. Aidan's, Young's Point.

Canon Fife is retiring after a long ministry, a great deal of which was spent in the province of Saskatchewan, where he served both the white people and the Indians as a minister and a school teacher.

Mrs. Fife has been a Sunday School teacher at Young's Point.

England Vacation

Canon Fife is leaving for a six-week vacation in England before he and Mrs. Fife take up their life of retirement.

The church was filled to capacity for the service. A choir from Holy Trinity, Haultain, was present, and Robert Johnson of Peterborough presided at the organ. Also present in the chancel was the Sunday School of St. Aidan's, with their teachers, who led the processional into the church and up the aisle to the strains of the "Praise Him, praise Him, all ye little children."

E. G. Brown, a lay reader from St. John's Church, Peterborough, read the prayers and George Booth of Haultain read the lesson.

Following the service all retired to the parish hall, where a reception was held and presentations were made to Canon and Mrs. Fife.

The hall was decorated with spring flowers, which were a gift for the occasion from E. Waldon of Lakefield.

Presentations

Arthur Morris introduced the various people who made the presentations, and also welcomed the visitors who were present.

The parting gift from the Haultain congregation to Canon and Mrs. Fife was a purse of money, presented by Wellie Dunford and Douglas Dunford.

On behalf of the Buckhorn congregation Tom Gordon and John Fawcett presented a piece of luggage to Canon Fife and Mrs. Fulton and Mrs. Reeves presented Mrs. Fife with a handsome leather bag on behalf of the Women's Guild of St. Matthew's.

Pays Tribute

Capt. J. E. Sloan paid a warm tribute to Canon and Mrs. Fife before he presented a purse of money from St. Aidan's congregation at Young's Point.

On behalf of the Sunday School, Carol Pelton read a short address to Mrs. Fife and Karen Rutherford and Susan Hillier presented a gift On the Tuesday previous, Mrs. J. Townsend, president of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Aidan's church, presented both the Canon and Mrs. Fife with flannel dressing gowns.

Canon Fife, on behalf of his wife and himself, thanked the people sincerely.

Pouring tea were Mrs. William Thompson of Haultain and Mrs. H. Reeves of Buckhorn.

Refreshments were served by the women of St. Aidan's W.A., assisted by some of the younger girls and boys of the church.

Guests were present from Toronto, Peterborough, Burleigh Falls Haultain, Buckhorn and Selwyn.

Clark Repudiates Colson Agreement With Red Prisoners

TOKYO, May 15. (AP)—Gen. Mark W. Clark today repudiated the much-criticized "Colson agreement" with Red prisoners of war on Koje Island. "It has no validity whatsoever," Clark said. The United Nations commander said Brig.-Gen. Charles Colson, temporary prison camp commander, since removed, had no authority to "accept any of the vicious and false charges" made by the Reds. Colson signed the statement to win the release of Brig.-Gen. Francis T. Dodd, former prison camp commander. North Korean prisoners held Dodd hostage 78 hours last week. Communists now are using the agreement for propaganda in truce negotiations.

General Clark announced today:

"The exchange of communications between Brig.-Gen. Colson and inmates of Compound 76 who were holding Brig.-Gen. Dodd by force and violence has no validity whatsoever.

Propaganda Issue

"The circumstances under which these exchanges took place from the very beginning were those of duress involving the physical threat to the life of a U.N. officer. Investigation made so far indicates that this affair was carefully prepared to manufacture propaganda for the purpose of beclouding the whole prisoner-of-war issue at Panmunjon (truce) negotiations.

"General Colson's authority to deal with the prisoners in Compound 76 did not extend to authority for him to purport to accept any of the vicious and false charges upon which the Communist demands were based."

Statements which drew particular censure, and which North Korean Gen. Nam Il seized upon for new verbal attacks on the Allies in Panmunjon truce talks, were:

"Many prisoners of war have been killed or wounded by United Nations forces." Prisoners "can expect humane treatment in the future." "There will be no more forcible screening."

Started By Reds

American authorities quickly stated: Prisoners have been killed only in riots instigated by the Communist prisoners themselves; prisoners have been treated humanely; and there never has been "forcible screening" to determine whether prisoners want to go back to Red rule.

The Colson agreement also provided for prisoner committees.

Clark's repudiation was expected to have prompt repercussions in armistice negotiations and on the Communist radio.

Colson has been returned to his old command as chief-of-staff of the First Army Corps in Korea and Dodd is back with U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters.

Rebellious Koje prison camp now is under command of an old China hand, Brig.-Gen. Haydon Boatner. He relieved Colson on Tuesday.

Clark got a first-hand account of the kidnapping and release of Dodd from the two former prison camp commandants Wednesday. Clark said:

4,000 Workers Vote To Keep Present Union

TRAIL, B.C., May 15 — (CP).—The 4,000 workers at the multi-million dollar Trail plant of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company have voted to maintain their present bargaining agency.

It is the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), headed by Harvey Murphy, an avowed Communist.

In a two-day fight, the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) battled to oust the Mine-Mill Union, fighting their case through the British Columbia Labor Relations Board and the courts.

Two days of balloting, in a vote ordered by the Labor Board, ended early today and the count showed:

Mine-Mill 1,949, Steelworkers 1,669.

This gave Mine-Mill a majority of 280. Only a straight majority was necessary. There were 16 spoiled ballots.

Employees had the choice on the ballot of saying they wanted neither union. Only 49 voted "neither."

Up To Labor Board

Final decision on the bargaining agency, however, rests with the Labor Board.

It will hold hearings shortly on the Steel Union's application for bargaining authority. Twice—on May 5, 1950, and May 7, 1951 — the board refused to certify the Steel Union.

The battle for control started in 1950 when R. C. Billingsley led a breakaway of workers from the Mine-Mill Union to the Steel group.

The Mine-Mill Union was ejected from both the Canadian Congress of Labor and the C.I.O. on charges of Communist domination.

Murphy claimed 3,000 paid-up members in the big Consolidated Mining plant. The Steel Union placed its membership at more than 50 per cent.

In a hectic campaign in the last 10 days, top executives of both unions were here.

Top Statesmen Photo Problem

LONDON, May 15 (Reuters) — The problems of getting Britain's statesmen to appear as such in newsreels—and not as escaped convicts or henpecked husbands—was bemoaned Wednesday night by a leading newsreel producer.

Clement Attlee, though co-operative, lacked that photogenic gift —"There was the poor little gentleman sitting there and all he could do was look very bewildered," British Pathe's Howard Thomas said at a banquet.

The irascible Winston Churchill, though oozing glamor from every pore, wouldn't hold still long enough to let the camera men put him in the best light.

And Hugh Gaitskell, former Labor treasury chief, was given up as a bad job. "He invariably looked like nothing so much as a refugee from Sing Sing," said Thomas.

Russians Apologize For Highway Ban

BERLIN, May 15 (Reuters).—Russian officials apologized for preventing a U.S. jeep from resuming routine patrols today along the Berlin-West German highway, saying that it had been held up because of a "regrettable mistake."

They said it wouldn't happen again, indicating that the six-day ban on traffic patrols was lifted completely.

The jeep, setting out from Berlin for West Germany, was the only one delayed. A British jeep was let through and allied military cars coming from the other direction also got through without trouble.

British and American jeeps usually patrol the 100-mile highway several times a day to help allied civilian motorists whose automobiles break down. A week ago the Russians refused to allow them through, but traffic was resumed Wednesday night after a four-power conference "clarified" the issue.

Four Missing As 2 Ships In Collision

Unable To Get Near Blazing Tanker Carrying Gas Cargo

WILMINGTON, Del., May 15. (AP)—Two ships collided halfway through the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal today, unleashing a series of explosions on the oil tanker F. L. Hayes. Four crew members are missing.

Five of the tanker's 10-man crew leaped into the 200-foot wide waterway and paddled ashore. Another was rescued from the water.

Flames visible for five miles engulfed the west-bound Hayes soon after the collision with the steamship Barbara Lykes shortly after midnight.

At daybreak a column of black smoke rolled lazily over the Delaware countryside from the still-burning tanker. The 270-foot Hayes was carrying 700,000 gallons of high octane gasoline.

Couldn't Get Close

No one tried to put the fire out. Firemen were unable to get close enough to battle the flames. Mud banks and woods border the canal.

The crash occurred near Summit Bridge, Del., about 20 miles south of Wilmington and halfway across the 19-mile canal which connects the Delaware River with the upper Chesapeake Bay.

The missing men were identified as R. E. Oakes, first assistant engineer; Weyland Ellis, 2nd assistant engineer; Ollie Landee, deckhand; and George Carter, seaman.

Roger Sears of Jackson Heights, L.I., captain of the 270-foot tanker and one of those saved, said his vessel was struck on the side by the Barbara Lykes.

See Oil Strike Ending Soon

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP)—Government labor officials today predicted an early end to the United States oil strike which already is affecting the country's tourist trade and air service both here and abroad.

The Wage Stabilization Board decision Wednesday to limit to 15 cents an hour wage increases to 90,000 striking oil workers brought prompt response from the unions involved.

The proposed ceiling earlier had been agreed to by part of the strike-bound industry.

B. J. Schafer, vice-president of the C.I.O. oil workers international, issued a statement in Denver Wednesday night saying the C.I.O. policy committee, and the co-ordinating committee for the C.I.O.-Independent-A.F.L. unions coalition, had reluctantly approved a proposed settlement on the basis of the 15-cents-an-hour increase, plus shift differentials of six and 12 cents and retroactive pay equal to the full amount allowable under W.S.B. regulations.

The W.S.B. refused blanket approval for the shift differentials, but said they would be considered on their merits.

Bobcaygeon Officer Hired By Whitby Bd.

WHITBY, May 15 —(CP)—William Rex Caverley, former Chief Constable at Bobcaygeon, about 50 miles north of nearby Oshawa, and High Constable of Middlesex County, Wednesday was hired by the Whitby Board of Police Commissioners.

He will have the rank of Sergeant in the re-organized force. Charles J. Fletcher of Huntsville, has been engaged as Chief. Three constables are still to be hired.

TICKLING THE IVORIES to the tune of Country Dance by Keenan, Bowmanville pianists Carol and Gael Harvey placed first today in the Kiwanis Music Festival class for piano duos, children under 14 years. They competed against three other Bowmanville piano teams and scored a high of 79.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Decline Of 21% In TTC Traffic In Four Months

TORONTO, May 15 (CP) —The number of passengers on city street-cars dropped 21 per cent in the first four months of 1952, Harry Pettett, secretary of Toronto Transportation Commission, said today.

The announcement followed an arbitration award Wednesday of three cents, which raised the basic wage rate of the 4,768 T.T.C. employees to $1.48 an hour. Following the 19-day strike in January the employees, members of the Street Railwaymen's Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.), were given a five-cent increase to $1.45. They had asked for $1.55 whereas the Commission had agreed to no more than the $1.45.

Mr. Pettett said further study will be made before reaching a decision on possible fare increases. Street car tickets now are three for 25 cents.

Mr. Pettett said there was a drop from the 103,569,436 passengers carried in the first four months of 1951 to 81,407,410 carried in the corresponding period of this year. He said there were several factors contributing to the decline besides loss of business which often follows a transit strike.

Eisenhower Lunches With Queen In London

LONDON, May 15 (AP). — General Eisenhower came to London today for farewell talks with government officials and a lunch with the Queen at Buckingham Palace.

The Queen and Queen Mother received Eisenhower and his wife.

Eisenhower, in obvious high spirits, waved to a crowd of 300 that awaited his arrival.

The visit is part of Eisenhower's farewell tour of North Atlantic Treaty Organization capitals as retiring supreme commander of Allied forces in Europe. He will return next month to the United States, where he is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Award For Eisenhower

PARIS, May 15 — (Reuters) — General Eisenhower will be given France's highest military award—the Medaille Militaire—at a ceremony May 21, it was announced today. The medal—given to non-commissioned officers and commanders-in-chief—must be presented by a former sergeant who holds the award.

Reporters Pose As Saboteurs Find Victoria Wide Open

VICTORIA, May 15. (CP)—The Daily Colonist said today that three reporters assigned to pose as "saboteurs" were successful in "destroying" vital defence installations and public utilities and in most places went unchallenged about their activity. The newspaper, in a story which called Victoria "an open house to attackers," said that five trained sabotage experts could, with two days' preparations, "leave the city and its defences in smoking ruins."

The story told how the three reporters—none of whom used press credentials—strolled into supposedly out-of-bounds defence areas and placed simulated explosives.

The story said in each case a "cover" story was rehearsed by the mock saboteurs.

"A large percentage of the areas that are supposedly out-of-bounds to civilians were ridiculously easy to enter," the story added.

In no case was a 'saboteur' caught or a cover story challenged.

". . . information was gained mostly by phone. Public utility offices handed out detailed information as to sources of power, power routes, water mains, and how the utilities were expended."

Inquest Ordered In Trenton Death

TRENTON, May 15—An inquest has been ordered into the death of Bert Baker, 29, of Rochester, N.Y., who died Tuesday in hospital here of injuries suffered when he was run over by the dual wheel of a truck Friday night.

Baker, a Second World War veteran, was riding with Keith Gunter, Trenton trucker, when the truck went out of control. Baker was thrown out when the right front door flew open, and he fell under the rear wheels.

Baker was visiting relatives in Trenton with his wife and two children. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan said Coroner Dr. E. A. McQuade would preside at the inquest.

RCAF Going To France

OTTAWA, May 15 (CP) —Canadian fighter squadrons will be based in France this fall, Defence Minister Claxton announced Wednesday.

He told the Commons Canada and the French government have concluded an agreement allotting Canada an airfield in the region of Metz, in northeast France south of the industrial Saar Valley.

Cheese Officials Vote At Once

BELLEVILLE, May 15—(CP)—Cheese factory officials in Ontario will be asked to vote immediately on whether they will accept a co-operative marketing scheme for the disposal of their cheese.

This was decided here this week by directors of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association.

Their decision followed disclosure Wednesday by Agriculture Minister Gardiner in Ottawa that he has received Cabinet authority to guarantee Ontario cheese prices.

Charles N. Heath, secretary of the producers' organization, said Wednesday that ever effort will be made to have the factories vote on the co-operative scheme as soon as possible.

To speed up the balloting, only one official from each factory would vote. For approval of the co-operative marketing scheme, whereby the Federal government may guarantee up to 80 per cent of the average price in the last three preceding years, a two-thirds vote is necessary.

Father Of Four Being Held For Woman's Death

LONDON, Ont., May 15. (CP)—Archie Seneca, 33, today was charged with the murder of Mrs. Lydia Riley, one of three persons shot to death Sunday near Muncey Indian Reserve. Seneca, father of four children, was arrested after intensive police investigation into the triple slaying of Mrs. Riley, her niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Henry. All were residents of the reserve about 15 miles north of here. The bodies were discovered in a gulley near the reserve last Sunday, shot with a .22-calibre gun. Police said Mrs. Riley's purse, containing $50, was missing.

Reserve residents were on their way home from funeral services Wednesday for the triple-slaying victims when Seneca was taken to jail in London.

Make No Report

Earlier in the day, a 10-man police detachment searched the gully where the bodies were found but made no report of their findings. Mrs. Riley's body was discovered on the slope of the gully and the others more than 100 feet away.

Bloodstains were discovered about 4½ miles away beside a road the three victims were said to have used early Sunday morning while celebrating the birth of a baby to Seneca's wife.

Earlier, Seneca told police that he left the three about 4 a.m. Sunday after Mrs. Riley and the Henrys had an argument. Police said there was evidence of a drinking party but nothing positive on the numbers involved.

The spot where the bodies were found has been used as a meeting place for bootleggers selling wine to operators inside the reserve.

A post mortem examination of the bodies showed that all three died of chest wounds from .22-calibre bullets. Mrs. Riley was shot once in the back and three times in the front. The other victims were shot from in front.

Police said that one or two of the victims were shot on the principle that "dead men tell no tales." The person responsible apparently wished to silence witnesses to the first killing.

In Canada 2 Weeks Family Loses Home

RIPLEY, Ont., May 15 (CP).—The home of an immigrant family who arrived here from the Netherlands only two weeks ago burned near here Wednesday. Loss was estimated at $8,000.

Riene Vander Hoek and his wife watched as furnishings, which arrived from their homeland two days before, were destroyed. Mrs. Vander Hoek's mother, Mrs. T. A. Hahm, who arrivd Tuesday for a visit, also lost all her belongings, including her ticket home and her passport.

Ripley is about 40 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

LONDON, May 15—(Reuters)—L. Dana Wilgress, Canada's retiring high commissioner to Britain and newly-appointed undersecretary for external affairs, will leave for Canada May 27, a spokesman of the Canadian high commission announced today. Norman Robertson, the new high commissioner, will arrive in Britain by sea from Canada towards the end of this month.

Will Tighten Up POW Camps New OC Declares

KOJE ISLAND, Korea, May 15 (AP)—The outspoken new commandant of Koje Island said today "you're damned right" there will be changes in running this turbulent prisoner-of-war camp, but "no sudden revolutionary change."

After 24 hours on the job, Brig.-Gen. Haydon Boatner said he thinks Communist prisoners had been treated too leniently.

Had he seen anything that needed to be changed?

"You're damned right I've spotted some things," he said. "For one thing I don't like those insulting signs, and the flags and the demands."

Signs Insulting

The signs were insulting to the United Nations Command and the U.S. The flags were red banners flying over some of the 17 barbed-wire stockades holding 79,000 prisoners. The demands were those made for the release of a former camp commander, Brig.-Gen. Francis Dodd. Brig.-Gen. Charles Colson was removed as commandant when he agreed to some of them. His promises were disavowed by the U.N. Command today.

Boatner is the 14th officer to hold the job in 16 months.

"We are going to give (the prisoners) every right they have according to the Geneva convention," Boatner said. "We're going to give them every latitude, but" —and he tapped a copy of the Geneva convention—"this is the Bible."

"We have given them more, in my opinion, than required by the Geneva convention."

Prisoners Ill Food Too Good

MONTREAL, May 15—(CP)—An outbreak of suspected dysentery—possibly caused by "too much good food"—has stricken more than 100 prisoners at Bordeaux jail, where a two-day riot against unpalatable meals was staged 10 days ago.

Dr. Zenon Lesage, governor of the big jail on the outskirts of Montreal, said the illness developed Monday and Tuesday and that all the convicts affected now have recovered, except for four reported in "fairly serious" condition.

Dr. Lesage said the cause of the malady has not been determined, but suggested it may have resulted from the fact the food now being served prisoners is perhaps "too good" or that prison bread now is being made outside of the jail. The jail ovens were damaged in the rioting.

Turn Machine Gun On Crowd During Election Disorders

TORONTO, May 15 —(CP)—A former Toronto newspaperman now a missionary reported today that 23 persons were killed and at least 50 wounded during Communist election disorders in French Equatorial Africa.

The Rev. V. E. Veary told of the clash on April 16 between French troops and natives in a letter to headquarters of the Sudan United Missions here.

He wrote that a machine gun was turned on a crowd of 150 Africans who surrounded a M. Rosser, French civil chief of the region, at Bebalem and refused to let him arrest leaders of previous disorders.

M. Rosser donned his Magistrate's scarf and summoned a bugler. "When the bugle blows, we fire," he told the natives. The mob replied with a savage whoop. The Captain of the Guard fired one volley, aiming low.

Silence reigned for a moment, Mr. Veary wrote. Then, when the natives saw their wounded and dead "they scattered like frightened sheep, yelping and wailing with fear and pain. Eighteen died immediately and were buried on the spot."

The ringleaders had seemingly escaped but within a week most of them were in custody and on their way to Fort Archambault for judgment.

Mr. Veary wrote that the towns of Bebalem and Benoi were still under Martial Law, and a sad, fearful quietness reigned. "The young men want to run away, they know not where. The older folk curse the political agitators who have brought death and sorrow to their village. And those agitators who have escaped, far from being daunted, prepare their propaganda of hate against the white man."

The disorders followed defeat of the Communists by the de Gaullist party March 30 in an election for a consultative assembly of 15 whites and 30 Africans.

Scientist Creates Pattern Of Weekly Rainfall In U.S.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 15 (AP) —Dr. Irving Langmuir, Nobel prize winning scientist, says he has created a country-wide pattern of weekly rainfall by seeding clouds with silver iodide.

By creating rainfall in the southwest, Dr. Langmuir said in a copyrighted story published in The Tucson Daily Citizen Wednesday he changed the rainfall pattern over the entire country.

The experiments had put the success of cloud-seeding beyond "valid doubt."

Dr. Langmuir, associate director of the General Electric Research Laboratory, in evaluating the results of a 21-month project which he said was sponsored by the army, navy and air force. His full report is to be completed next September.

Dr. Langmuir said in an interview with The Citizen that the project was set up to determine the value of cloud-seeding.

"Most of the persons who doubted the worth of seeding clouds with silver iodide asked the same question: 'How do you know it wouldn't have rained anyway?'

"To dispose of that argument once and for all we set out to establish a pattern of rainfall that could be measured across the United States."

A check was started of weather bureau records for as long as they have existed. Dr. Langmuir said in all the recorded history of weather no similar pattern could be found.

Dr. Langmuir said he and a group of scientists found that when they had seeded the New Mexico air on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, it had rained in the east on Friday, Saturday and Sunday—the lapse being the time it took for the seeded air to move across the country.

Dr. Langmuir won the Nobel prize for his work in chemistry in 1932.

Charge U.N. Using POW's For A-Tests

MUNSAN, Korea, May 15 (AP) —Red truce negotiators today accused the Allies "of every crime in the books," including use of prisoners of war for atomic bomb experiments.

The United Nations command termed the charges "transparently ridiculous."

In a 43-minute speech, North Korean Gen. Nam Il asked:

"Can your side deny that the criminal acts of insults, tortures, forcible writings of petitions in blood, threatening, mass murder, shooting and machine-gunning, making experiments with poison gas, germ weapons, atomic bombs caried out by your side are all concrete facts?"

Vice-Admrial C. Turner Joy, chief Allied delegate, replied:

"It has been our thought that in a very short time your propaganda would become so transparently ridiculous as to condemn itself.

"Your statement today confirms that judgment."

Cabinet Backs Guaranteed Cheese Price

OTTAWA, May 15 (CP) — A proposed agreement for a federally-guaranteed price for Ontario cheddar cheese under a co-operative marketing plan will be discussed today by Agriculture Minister Gardiner and the Ontario Cheese Marketing Board.

Mr. Gardiner announced Wednesday following a cabinet meeting that the province's cheese producers—hard-hit by falling prices and lack of overseas markets—had asked for aid under the co-operative plan.

The cabinet gave him authority to guarantee prices of 24 cents a pound, basis deliveries at factories, for all cheese offered for sale under the plan.

The minister said he would meet with the marketing board today to work out an agreement for the guarantee.

Sales Non-Existent

Sales at recent cheese markets have been non-existent, with buyers offering from 21 to 25 cents a pound. The producers asked for federal aid.

Mr. Gardiner said they had two alternatives—a federal floor price, which existed last year at 27 cents a pound, or aid under the 1939 Agricultural Products Marketing Act.

The producers, at a meeting in Belleville, asked for assistance under the act, which never before has been applied to cheese.

Under this, the government may guarantee up to 80 per cent of the average price in the last three preceding years. This average has been about 30 cents, and 80 per cent of that would be 24 cents.

The co-operative scheme provides for producers to market their own cheese. If the price falls below the guarantee level, the government will make up the difference. It will also underwrite administrative costs.

Can Obtain Loan

The guarantee is expected to permit producers to obtain loans from banks, based on the amount of cheese they have available for sale.

Last year Canada sold about 30,000,000 pounds of its 85,000,000-pound production in foreign markets. Ontario sold about 20,000,000 pounds to Britain.

This year dollar-short Britain has not renewed a cheese-buying agreement and the United States market has been virtually sealed by U.S. import restrictions.

Mr. Gardiner said he believes Ontario will be able to sell all its cheese this year on the home market. The amount of production depends on the producers.

Given 2 Names In Brink's Holdup

HOWARD, R.I., May 15—(AP)—Authorities said Wednesday night a prisoner in Rhode Island state prison "has given us the names of two alleged principals connected with the Brink's holdup"—the fabulous $1,219,000 armored car garage robbery in Boston in January, 1950.

The announcement, by attorneys-general Francis E. Kelly of Massachusetts and William E. Powers of Rhode Island, was terse and uninformative. It followed questioning by Alfred A. Gagnon, 41, of Pawtucket, awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to rob a Providence diamond merchant.

The joint statement said:

"Mr. Gagnon has given us the names of the alleged principals connected with the Brink's holdup. Any other information he gave us must be investigated by police authorities of Massachusetts and Rhode Island."

The two officials carefully refrained from expressing any opinion whether they thought Gagnon's information of any value.

Jet Ace Shoots Down Two Enemy Aircraft

SEOUL, Korea, May 15—(AP)—A sabre-jet pilot today turned a Red Mig-15 into "a ball of flame" and shot down another in a screaming 50-mile chase at tree-top level to become the 15th U.S. jet ace.

One other Red plane was destroyed in the fight over northwest Korea in which Lt. James H. Kasler of Indianapolis shot down his fourth and fifth Communist planes, the Fifth Air Force said.

Kasler said the first plane was "a ball of flame as it crashed just on this side" of the Yalu River separating Korea from Manchuria.

Kasler then turned to aid one of the four Sabre-jet pilots in the fight and chased a Mig "about 50 miles toward the mouth of the Yalu. We were screaming along right at tree-top level and I gave him three or four bursts. The Mig snapped over and crashed to the ground with a terrific explosion."

Urges Canada Have Currency Exchange Centre

OTTAWA, May 15. (CP)—Canada can make a start in lifting international monetary restrictions by setting up a trading centre for the exchange of soft currencies into gold, the Commons has been told.

Rodney Adamson (PC-York West) said Wednesday that move would make Canada one of the great international banking centres of the world.

Debating a resolution to extend the government's emergency gold-mining aid through 1953, Mr. Adamson, a mining expert, said his proposal would be of great use to countries with blocked currencies. If soft-currency—sterling—countries were given machinery for converting their monies into gold through a Canadian market, he said, they would have a useful standard. The productivity of the sterling area would make a market for their currencies.

Mr. Adamson said he did not claim that would overcome existing embargoes or currency restrictions, but it would be a "step along that path."

Free Gold Market

Mr. Adamson urged, too, a return to a free world market in gold to make possible better prices for the output of Canada's mines.

Canadian gold now is bought by the government at a fixed price of $35 an ounce in United States funds, except for premium non-monetary gold. The government's assistance measure provides a subsidy to mines with high production costs on monetary gold.

The measure discussed Wednesday—a resolution to a bill to extend the assistance formula—was still under debate when the house adjourned until today.

Speakers generally approved of the aid bill but Progressive Conservatives particularly insisted that it was only a "stop-gap" and a "pallative" and that a long-term policy on gold is needed.

Costly Failure

Donald Fleming (P.C.—Toronto-Eglinton) and Mr. Adamson declared the International Monetary Fund—which fixed gold policy for the subscribing countries—is being used as an instrument of United States fiscal policy to the detriment of the Canadian gold industry. Mr. Adamson called it a "costly failure."

Mr. Fleming said Canada should make clear she will not support the I.M.F. if its present policies continue. There should be more freedom on the world market for gold to find a natural price level, which would be higher than the fixed price.

Ray Thomas (S.C.—Wetaskiwin) said he will support the aid bill, but he suggested gold miners might be better employed elsewhere during an "arms race".

H. W. Herridge (C.C.F.—Kootenay West) said government assistance to gold mines is a recognition of the principle of subsidies, and he advocated subsidies for home construction.

E. T. Applewhaite (L.—Skeena) suggested that the gold aid now restricted to sizeable producers be extended to help out small operators such as prospectors.

$1,200 Damage Done In 2 Car Accidents

Property damage amounting to nearly $1,200 resulted from two traffic accidents in the city Wednesday night but there were no injuries in either accident.

Leonard Swistilvikoff, 342 Stewart St., found his car sandwiched between a parked car ahead, and a car travelling west on Albert St., as he pulled away from the curb beside the C.G.E. at 5 p.m.

Damage to the westbound car driven by W. H. Swift, R.R. 5, Peterborough was estimated at $250. The front fenders were damaged and the left side of Swistilvikoff's car was scraped by the impact with the Swift car and the damage was approximately $300. The parked car, owned by Richard N. Scrace, 932 Western Ave., received about $30 damage to the rear left fender.

At Water and McDonnel Sts., two cars collided at 11 p.m., causing estimated $750 damage to the vehicles.

Ray MacLeish, 57 William St., Lindsay, was going west on McDonnel St., and George A. Thomas, 1296 Clonsilla Ave., was driving north on Water St., when the accident occurred.

The right front end of the Thomas car received approximately $350 damage, while $200 damage resulted to the front end of the car MacLeish was driving.

Constables Arthur Beardsmore and Robert Menzies investigated the accidents.

Garner Guest At Truman Talk

H. L. Garner, general manager of The Examiner and president of the Air Cadet League of Canada, was one of a Canadian delegation that heard President Truman speak Wednesday night at the annual dinner of the Civil Air Patrol in New York.

President Truman expressed fear that the United States may lose the "cold war" if Congress continues to cut his defence and foreign aid programs.

Officials of the Air Cadet League, headed by Mr. Garner and Group Capt. W. F. H. Newson, R.C.A.F., Trenton, were present at the dinner. They were also scheduled to confer with the C.A.P. leaders.

"We are winning the 'cold war'," said President Truman, "but I fear very much that if Congress goes the way it has been going, and continues to follow the attitude it has, we may lose it."

Taft Picks Up 15 More Votes

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP) — Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio apparently picked up 14 more votes in the race for nominating delegates Wednesday and Taft-for-President headquarters promptly said it put him "within striking distance of a first ballot victory" at the Republican National Convention in Chicago in July.

Latest returns—still not complete—showed Taft men leading in 15 contests for Republican delegates in Tuesday's West Virginia primary, with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower leading in one.

In The Associated Press tabulation, that would put Taft out in front with a total of 364 delegates against 304 for Eisenhower.

The AP tally sheet is based on known alignments of delegates — pledged, instructed, conceded, favorable or willing to state a first-ballot choice.

Western oil losses ranged to about 50 cents. Britalta, Gridoil, New British Dominions, North Canadian, Pacific Petroleum and Peace River traded lower.

Base metal leaders sagged as Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel, Labrador, New Calumet and Steep Rock dipped. Ontario Pyrites and United Asbestos climbed pennies.

Senior golds slipped as Lamaque, Malartic and Teck Hughes eased. Secondary issues drifted lower.

Pre-Natal Course Becomes Popular

Dr. R. A. Kelly, Medical Officer of Health, and his nursing staff are delighted over the enthusiastic response of expectant mothers to their course on pre-natal education.

A class of a dozen or so has swelled to 26, and others are wanting to register.

"We're swamped," said Miss Gene Clark, supervisor of public health nurses. "We can't take any more as there are not sufficient facilities."

"Quite encouraging," was Dr. Kelly's comment. He said that a previous group of women who had already taken the pre-natal course and had their babies have voluntarily formed another organization.

"The 'graduates' have formed their own organization at the Y.W.C.A. and are continuing with an educational program of infant and child health," said Dr. Kelly.

However, it means extra work for Miss Clark and her staff of public health nurses.

A program of educational classes for expectant mothers was started in October, 1950. It consisted of a series of six weekly classes conducted by the nursing staff of the Peterborough Department of Health, and held at the Y.W.C.A. The course has been repeated regularly, the most recent one in April.

Border Rules Prevent Band Going To U.S.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 15 (CP)—Border regulations will prevent 36 musicians in the British Salvation Army Band from crossing into the United States Friday for luncheon.

Officials said today that U.S. immigration refused to waive the $8 head-tax or the necessity of giving a biography of every bandsman which would have entailed heavy expense and time.

The band, now touring Canada, will play here Friday night.

Steel Workers Hint Shutdown

PHILADELPHIA, May 15. (CP) —The United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) today considered such matters as the union shop and the Taft-Hartley labor law after issuing a threat to launch a new country-wide steel strike in the United States.

The 2,500 delegates from Canada and the U.S. attending the sixth biennial constitutional convention gave unanimous approval Wednesday to a resolution threatening a strike of 650,000 workers unless a satisfactory wage increase is won promptly.

They had the support of two top leaders of the administration —Vice-President Alben Barkley and Labor Secretary Maurice Tobin.

No date has been set for a strike but rank-and-file steelworkers, in angry attacks upon management, hinted the new shutdown might start — perhaps suddenly and without notice—should the U.S. Supreme Court void federal seizure of the steel properties.

Besides the matter of a wage increase, the issue of a union shop is another top steelworker demand. The Wage Stabilization Board suggested that this be included in a new contract.

A resolution unanimously approved by the Union's top policy-makers is before the convention. It renews the union's determination to win the union shop, under which all workers must join the union.

New Co-Ed School Set For Lindsay

LINDSAY, May 15 (ENS) —A largely attended meeting of laymen in connection with St. Mary's Church was held in the Canadian Legion hall Tuesday night, when plans were presented for organizing in an effort to provide better accommodation for old people at the House of Providence in Peterborough. The gathering was attended by some 150 men from Lindsay and district, including representatives from Kirkfield, Victoria Road, Kinmount, Bobcaygeon and Peterborough.

Guests and speakers included Bishop G. J. Berry of Peterborough and the Right Rev. J. V. McAuley of St. Mary's Church.

Leo Skipworth, chairman of the Separate School Board, made an announcement concerning educational matters and the decision to increase educational facilities in Lindsay. Approval has been secured to erect a new and modern boys' and girls' school facing on Glenelg Street with frontage of school and grounds extending from St. Lawrence to Huron Street. The new ten room structure will be of two storeys and constructed of brick. It will be thorougly modern in design and appointments, allowing for the latest equipment. It is expected that work will start in the near future. The present school at Russell and Lindsay Sts. will be discontinued.

NEW YORK, May 15 (AP). — Leprosy seems to be increasing in New York State, Drs. Orlando Canizares and Frank C. Combes, of the New York University College of Medicine, said today. Present fares are 17 cents for street cars and buses and 18 cents for elevated-subway trains.

Lindsay Cadets' Inspection Held

LINDSAY, May 15 (ENS). — L.C.I.'s campus was turned into a parade ground Wednesday for the annual cadet inspection. Annually since 1898, cadet inspection has been an integral part of collegiate life and this year was certainly no exception.

This year as last, a Brigadier was the senior inspecting officer. The party was made up of Brigadier A. F. B. Knight, O.B.E. commander, eastern Ontario area; Lt.-Col. B. C. Maidens, commanding officer 4th Field Regiment (S.P.), R.C.A., Capt. E. A. Howey, cadet training officer, eastern Ontario area; Dr. F. M. Graham, chairman board of education; the Rev. B. Armstrong, chaplain; Col. T. H. Eberlee, principal; Cdt. Lt.-Col. B. Smith, aide-de-camp.

Battery and troop drill was carried out after the inspection of the ranks, the march past in column of troops and the advance in review order. Perhaps a highlight of the afternoon's activities was the displays of general military training which ran concurrently around the parade grounds after the general inspection.

Designers Query Cobourg Council

COBOURG, May 15 (ENS) — A questionnaire from the architects of the $288,000 public school on which work is to start this summer, was recently studied by the town council at a special committee meeting.

It was referred back to the architects with the comment that the matter was one which was concerned with the construction of the school and did not come within the scope of the town council. The architects asked who would undertake to carry out several details.

The architects asked the council who was to provide culverts if required, the owner (school board) or the streets department. The final question asked would water main and sanitary sewer be provided along the proposed street between D'Arcy and Major Sts. The foregoing has to do with a proposed new road to north of school property over lots 6, 39, and 50.

Heroism Without Death

A cabled despatch from Japan tells that 975 Canadian soldiers are on board the U.S.S. Buckner, sailing for home. This is the largest contingent of Korean veterans to return. The report says that a U.S. army band gave the "heroic combat veterans" a farewell, and that among the veterans is the commander of the "heroic" Royal 22nd Regiment.

* * *

We are glad to accord these veterans and regiments from Korea the epithet "heroic". The Korean terrain and weather are foul for fighting men, and the Red Chinese enemy fanatic and unschooled in the niceties of soldierly conduct. We are particularly happy that the Korean veterans can be called heroes in view of our Canadian casualty lists.

* * *

Ordinarily heroism on battlefields and heavy tolls in death and wounds have gone hand in hand; the heavier the casualties the greater the number of heroes and the more exalted the heroism. That has been a usual and sad condition. In fact, some of the most heroic regiments during the Great War of 1914-18 gained their fame primarily from the slaughter they suffered, and it was rumoured that commanders wishing to make great names for themselves felt that casualties were of the essence of that reputation.

* * *

A change in this attitude towards heroism came during the last war. Casualties were, comparatively, fewer, but the number of heroic deeds and of heroes created did not seem to grow less. Now in Korea heroism has, it seems—and we hope—become a thing apart from death and injury. Heroic Canadian combat veterans are coming home after more than fifteen months service, and leaving behind them, according to the latest casualty lists, a total of 143 dead, six missing and one captured.

* * *

Thus in a period of time four months longer than the entire campaign on the western front in which Canadians engaged from D-Day to V-E Day, Canada's Korean force has suffered only 784 casualties of all kinds: 143 dead, 573 wounded, 61 injured, six missing and one captured. It is a great relief to know that heroism can be attained at this small cost of life, blood and limb. These are the total Canadian army casualties in nearly a year and a half since Canadian soldiers were sent to Korea. In no other war in which Canada has taken part has a fighting formation 5,000 strong, with additional reinforcements, had so few casualties in a year and a half's action. This fact should gladden Canadian hearts.

Comet Wonder For Canada, Too

Last Friday a 36-seater plane left London for Johannesburg. Not a notable flight in these days, one may say. But there was something very notable about this 6,724-mile passenger-carrying flight. It was the first ever undertaken by jet plane. It opened the jet-age air travel.

No amazing speeds were attempted. The plane cruised at an average of 500 miles an hour (how fast the world has come that we can think a 500-m.p.h. speed unexceptional!) flying more than seven miles high, and covered the distance in the scheduled 18 hours and 40 minutes of flying time. (The plane could have made faster time, but that would have brought it in ahead of schedule.) Its flight began a regular weekly service between London and Johannesburg, leaving London on Fridays, Johannesburg on Mondays.

The flight was a great achievement for British commercial and engineering enterprise. The jet route to and from South Africa is a British Overseas Airways Corporation (B.O.A.C.) scheduled service. The plane was a Comet, built by de Havilland, powered by Sir Frank Whittle's turbo-jet engine. The Comet's development is said to have put Britain at least five years ahead of the rest of the world in jet plane engineering and use.

This wonderful plane makes flying not only quicker but more comfortable. There is no throb or vibration. The flight is so smooth that coins will stand on end without falling while the plane is travelling far above the bumps and clouds at more than eight miles a minute. Such is trans-ocean travel today, only twenty-five years since Lindbergh made his epic flight across the Atlantic.

Jet plane service was begun by B.O.A.C. between London and Rome on April 21st (Comet time 2 hours, 17 minutes compared with the normal air-liner's 4½ hours). Sir Miles Thomas, B.O.A.C. chairman, flew on this initial Rome flight and said afterwards: "I know now for certain that anybody who travels by Comet will never willingly travel any other way."

In view of this glowing tribute, Canadians can cheerfully greet the Comet. Canadian Pacific Airlines has been the first operator outside the United Kingdom to place an order for Comets and will receive them later this year. However, they will not be flying in or from Canada. They are to be based on Sydney (Australia) and put into service between Sydney, Auckland and Honolulu. The jet link between Honolulu, San Francisco and Vancouver will not be forged before 1954, when British Commonwealth Pacific Airlines (owned jointly by the governments of Australia, New Zealand and Britain) will start to receive the six Comets ordered last year.

The Comet is indeed the wonder plane of the times. There are several models, and so far 45 Comets have been ordered. The Royal Canadian Air Force was the first military buyer of Comets; two have been ordered to give Canadian transport crews experience of multi-engined jet types and to practise high-speed bombing attacks. When B.C.P.A. runs Comet passenger service between Sydney, Auckland, San Francisco and Vancouver, the flying time will be reduced from 39 hours to 26 hours. Thus is the Commonwealth being brought together in space and time. Passenger flights between New York and London will be made in six or seven hours when, by 1954, Comets are put into North Atlantic service.

The Comet is indeed a flight into the future, and the proud credit for its development goes to Britain.

Are We On The Brink Of Hysteria?

We have been thinking about a piece of testimony given by Dr. N. D. Christie, an employee of the Dominion Department of Agriculture and its chief veterinarian in Saskatchewan, when he was questioned by a member of parliament concerning the epidemic of foot-and-mouth disease. Asked why he did not make known his diagnosis of the disease earlier than he did, Dr. Christie said that he did not wish to take the responsibility for causing hysteria in the U.S. or in this country.

We know nothing about Dr. Christie, but his record suggests that he must be a man of considerable ability, and probably of good judgement. As a veterinarian, his work must have been done chiefly among farmers. Now we have never seen or heard anything to suggest that farmers become hysterical easily; indeed, we should think that they were among the last groups of people to give way to hysteria. We wonder why Dr. Christie was troubled by such a fear?

Perhaps it was a matter of intellectual fashion. It is common, nowadays, to suppose that large groups of people may become unbalanced by fear, and behave foolishly. Over and over again, during the past five years, we have seen statements from people, more or less in positions of authority, expressing a dread of such hysteria. But of hysteria itself there has been little evidence.

We think it would be better if officials trusted people to use their common sense. We can all become hysterical if we are encouraged to do so; but everybody knows that most people can call upon deep reserves of courage, ingenuity and just plain gumption if they are asked to do so and trusted to do so. You can look upon mankind either as hysterical simpletons, or as courageous men and women: they usually respond according to the view you take of them. We think that it is better for every person in an official position to take the optimistic view.

Fear Of The Results

"Your side," said Admiral Joy, head of the U.S.-U.N. Korean truce delegation, "even fears the results of a joint, open verification of the screening of prisoners of war." That is the nub of the situation which has resulted in an impasse in the truce deliberations.

Agreement has been reached on every issue excepting the repatriation of prisoners. The U.N. side insists that 62,000 of its 132,000 Red prisoners do not want to be repatriated. Fearing that the Reds will take reprisals on the 62,000 if they are sent back, and feeling it is unhuman to force them to go against their will and in fear of their lives, the U.N. truce delegation, supported by the chief U.N. nations involved, has refused to repatriate the 62,000. The Reds say that all the prisoners must be sent back.

In refusing to accept a "joint, open verification of the screening of prisoners" the Red position is very suspect. It is cruel and unfair to send prisoners back who are utterly unwilling to go back. The U.N.-U.S. decision to allow these prisoners to remain is not taken out of self-interest. What value is it to their side to have to clothe and feed 62,000 additional Koreans and Chinese? In refusing to verify for themselves the numbers of prisoners unwilling to return, the Reds show the rest of the world that the U.S.-U.N. party is not lying, and that the Red propaganda has failed among thousands of their own men.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Hollywood moguls, we read, are backing Eisenhower. The significance of this is lessened if the U.S. sticks to that old democratic principle—"One mogul, one vote."

38 Million Japs Under Age 20

By O. M. GREEN

NO DEFEATED COUNTRY ever regained independence with fairer prospects than Japan. True, she has lost her overseas empire. But industrially she is the most advanced country in Asia, not only in textiles but in the making of machinery, railway rolling-stock and motor cars. She is building ships for foreign order, and this month will start regular sailings to and from London and Continental ports with sixteen-knot ships of 10,000 tons which she has built since the war. Her worst deficiency is capital for industrial development. But she has ten times as many skilled technicians as India or China; she produced last year nearly 85 per cent of the food she needs—more than ever before; she has 38,000,000 people under twenty years old; in vitality and devotion to their country they are unexcelled.

WHAT WILL JAPAN make of the destiny put back into her hands a week ago? It is too early for a clear answer, but certain broad tendencies stand out. Pessimists who prophesy a sharp recoil towards the old autocratic paternalism of government can find much to support their forebodings. More and more the intrusion of the police is seen. The creation of the National Police Reserve of 75,000 men (to be increased this year to 110,000), with machine-guns, mortars and bazookas, is indeed a standing army in little, a cause of anxious suspicion for many Japanese, although the Government asserts stoutly that it is for defence only, and therefore within the terms of the Constitution.

There is serious talk in Government and business circles of the need to revise the Labour Standards Law, the Magna Charta of the working class. And it is only a question of time before the zaibatsu—the half-dozen big family syndicates which controlled all Japan's business—are back in the saddle. Nominally dissolved by General MacArthur for their help in financing the war, they merely retired behind the scenes.

TWO RECENT Government Bills have specially excited public hostility—one, to give to the Central Education Minister the power to appoint presidents of State universities; the other, the Peace Maintenance Law, ostensibly designed to suppress Communist disorder but obviously capable of wide use against public liberty. "This is 'thought control' again," cried the Socialists, "the end of freedom of speech and the Press." There were two one-day token strikes against the Peace Maintenance Law by some 3,000,000 workers. And when detectives tried to attend a mass meeting of students at Tokyo University, the students hustled them off the campus on the perfectly legal ground that they had not obtained permission to be there.

Such demonstrations indicate the Japanese people's determination to stand up for the benefits which six and a half years of American rule have brought them—trade unionism, new standards of wages and hours, conditions of life for farmers such as the countryside had never known, freedom of speech and assembly, free and secret voting at elections. Most important of all American gifts was the right not only to think, but to express one's thoughts. The first general election in 1947 showed plainly enough that the Japanese people had already been thinking a great deal, when they rolled up en masse to vote—among them cohorts of the supposedly docile, inarticulate Japanese women. It was the American regime which for the first time gave them the right to voice their thoughts without fear or favour.

THE PEOPLE SEEM much less afraid of Communism than they are of the Government, which is particularly nervous of the unruliness of the student body. Sprung mostly from the middle class, which has suffered worse than any from currency inflation, the students are poor, ill-clad, ill-fed, working in cold, ill-found classrooms, despondent of the future, natural meat for Communism. Yet the Communists have plainly lost ground since the high-water mark touched in the general elections of January, 1949, when they polled 3,000,000 votes and won thirty-five seats in the Diet. The outburst of sabotage with which in the following summer they tried to profit by the thousands of dismissals resulting from the austerity Budget enforced by Mr. Dodge, the American banker, only turned public indignation against them. Their recent prophecies of revolution when Japan recovered her independence certainly do not seem to worry the chiefs of police.

ONE MAY SAY that the Japanese people are against violence in any form; against the ultra-nationalists as much as against the Reds. They are at present deadly afraid of being drawn into another war, and against militarism in any form. National pride is deeply touched by America's retention of bases in Japan (where and what they will be is still unknown), and there is a good deal of anxiety as to where this may lead. On the other hand, thinking Japanese are bound to recognize that, weak as they are, they must belong to one or other of the two rival world blocs, and the protection afforded by America and the free peoples behind her is worth some risks and responsibilities.

Japan's future relations with China are unpredictable. Geographically so near, in their respective products mutually so complementary, they will inevitably trade together, though for the present it will be an unofficial trade. Did not Mr. Yoshida say in his New Year Press conference that "Japan cannot associate with any Communist country"—which, he added, would use an agreement only to stir up internal trouble for her? Much will probably depend upon Russia, who recently seems to have been adopting a suspiciously dulcet tone towards Japan. The Japanese probably think they can manage China. But Russia is their oldest, most dreaded bogy, and they see her shadow all over the Far East.

THAT WE SHALL SEE a large measure of return to old Japan is certain. Already there is a recoil against the orgy of licentiousness natural enough in the years of defeat, yet so alien to the normal decency of Japanese streets. Have not the police forbidden public kissing as "not conducive to public morals"? The exaltation of the Emperor (he and his three brothers have recently had their salaries raised) is already conspicuous. But there is no doubt which way his influence will be thrown. And although 120 admirals and generals have recently been "depurged," they can no longer wield the immense power over Governments which their former right of direct access to the Emperor gave them.

Japan will wear her rue with a difference. From the far-off days when the Meiji Emperor's Ministers advised that "we must change our attitude to foreigners and cease calling them pigs and goats" she has shown extraordinary skill in learning by experience. De-mok-ra-sie was always a mystery. But it has borne acceptable fruits which Japan will preserve.

MODERN ELIZABETHAN AGE

In Memory Of A Wood

By LORD DUNSANY

THERE IS an old wood on the North Downs which death and the taxes have given over to what was probably called at first the Demolition Commission, but which, perhaps for the sake of euphony, is now known by the more melodious name of the Forestry Commission. And there I went one day to say farewell to the survivors of the old beeches, and, as grim tracks showed me all through the wood, I went only just in time.

A few survivors stood there, with the initials of generations of villages cut in their bark, in memory of romances some of which only the beech trees remember now, standing like mourners at the side of a grave. Beyond them was the ruin of white stumps and the desolation of battered hazels, whose limbs had been struck by the fall of their great neighbours, and among them ran the huge tracks of their enemy the machine, that sly ally of Man that some believe even yet to be his friends.

Among the hazels was peeping up dogs' mercury, its greenery so bright that it almost smiled, seeming undisturbed by disaster, gay among cast-off things of trees and men, dead leaves and rejected tins—tins that around black circles of old fires looked like clues incriminating Man with having murdered a dryad. By the edge of the wood was a mausoleum or morgue for woodland things that had met with a violent end, whose severed limbs were tidily piled in a heap about twice the height of a man and about as deep and nearly eighty yards long.

Gloomily watching the sad scene in the wood stood a long row of yews, like witches prophesying something that trees might understand. And, seeing that much, I wondered if I could not tell what they were prophesying. Was it merely the disaster that should come to the wood? No difficult thing to prophesy, for it had already begun. Or was it, as we so often suppose with all omens, something concerning us? But it seemed more reasonable to suppose that whatever the wild children of Nature see is concerned only with themselves, and yew trees may feel in their fibres, and all wild animals think, that the future is shaped for them. And yet in whatever plans all wild things brood upon, in whatever visions they see, Man must surely have some place, if only, alas, as an enemy.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN if one should come on a dryad in such a wood, or on any representative of Pan? Would it come with its hands up, surrendering to the might of Man and his machine, which certainly will sweep this wood away in a year or so? Or would it say: "Yes, we have losses here on this hill, and elsewhere, too. But forests and jungles still hold out in the world."

"Not for long," I might answer. "Our machines can deal with them, as they are dealing now with this wood."

And the dryad might let a glance stray to those prophetic yews and back again, and say: "It will not be so always."

And I might reply: "What can your birches and hazels, and even your oaks, do against our machines and our axes? What have you that can fight them?"

And the dryad might answer: "The thistledown and the willow-herb."

And just as I was about to brush aside such trifles as being utterly powerless against the might of our cities, I should remember how those very things had not only come into some of our streets, but had made themselves at home there. And to this the dryad might say that fighting was violent and noisy, and that all that the thorn trees and elders needed to do, that were now just putting on green, and the violets that shone already along the edge of the wood, and the anemones that had not yet bloomed in it, was quietly to wait. For Man's machines, it would argue, need not be attacked by the willowherb. Other machines will turn on them, and when these terrible things have overthrown each other, the mild, wet winds of summer that nourish the willowherb will turn the machines to rust, and the willowherb and the bramble will in due time come to their own.

For the willowherb and the bramble, and that great wanderer, the thistle, do hold that the world is their own; and the wild things of the wood, the foxes, rabbits and hawks, although they avoid cities, except on nights when they creep in closer than ever we know they do, hold the same view of their rights as the bramble and thistle hold. We advance with resounding strides in a progress that is surely a wonder to all the world, while Nature only waits. And this threatened wood maybe thrills through all its recesses with an ancient knowledge of the ruin of cities, that has taught it, looking perhaps, at the ages as we look at the seasons, that Nature's arbours are evergreen and our cities deciduous things.

LADYLIKE

In a large store a man who had gone to make a purchase noticed that nylons were being sold in one of the departments, and decided to get a pair for his wife. He was a dignified middle-aged man and soon found himself buffeted by a crowd of frantic women, also after nylons. He stood it as long as he could, then, with head lowered and arms outstreched, he barged through the crowd towards the rapidly-diminishing stock of hosiery.

"Here!" cried a shrill voice, "can't you act like a gentleman?"

"I've been acting like a gentleman for an hour," replied the man, still charging forward, "but from now on I'm going to act like a lady!"

Bible Message

Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden? And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden: but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die.

And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die: for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil. And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat. . .

And the Lord called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked, and I hid myself.

And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat? And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat. (Gen. 3:1-6, 9-13.)

Letter To The Editor

LOCAL GASOLINE PRICES OUT OF LINE?

Sir: Being a rather frequent visitor to Peterborough by car, I am naturally interested in the price I pay for my gasoline.

On a very recent trip I discovered that although there have been announcements of reductions in wholesale prices, there was no difference to be noticed in what I was being charged. This seemed a little peculiar inasmuch as the prices in Peterborough are considerably higher than in other similar centres.

This treatment of the travelling public, to say nothing of the local people, by Peterborough merchants is not only bound to become known, but will certainly have the same reaction on others as it has on me; namely, buy elsewhere when possible!

TRAVELLING SALESMAN

High Pay and No Hardships!

(Toronto Financial Post)

—The north country? Horrors, my goodness no!

The Financial Post has been taking a look at job opportunities for this year's crop of university graduates.

The opportunities are many; most of them carry a sweet salary tag and good prospects.

But, it seems most of the young gentlemen want to stay close to the bright lights. The jobs in the north country? Well, really!

So we hear from the employers' side of the fence.

Jobs in Labrador at $100 to $175 a week to start (most of the money can be saved) are going begging.

One engineer has specified that the job he will accept will be in a Toronto industrial suburb where the buildings are mostly new and where the grass is green. He doesn't like driving downtown.

Well, do the best you can, boys.

"HEALTHY COMPETITION"

Ex-Alderman Claims City Overspends On Garbage

"When I was appointed chairman of the Sanitation Committee of the Council," ex-Alderman Norman G. Graham said in a statement Wednesday relating to his resignation, "I made a pretty thorough check-up on the operations of collecting and disposing of the city's garbage.

"I concluded that the department did not need a superintendent and a foreman, and that we could dispense with one man and one truck and save the taxpayers something like $7,000 a year. That was in my first year, when Max Swanston was still Mayor.

"I told him what I was doing and what I found, and he agreed to look into the matter, which I think he did. I believe he thought I was right and was doing his best to help me along.

"But he retired, and I feel that he had done a good job. Coming into 1952, I started again to check on the superintendent of the sanitation department, Mr. J. E. Pierce. I still felt satisfied we didn't need the second truck and man, plus the cost of truck maintenance.

Washing Car

"On several occasion I found one of the city's employees cleaning and washing Mr. Pierce's car, and I objected to that. I also checked up on his having repairs made and tires bought at the one place of business all the time, but that didn't change his opinion. He continued that way of doing business, instead of spreading it around among dealers.

"I found smaller work going to another garage, but the larger amount of it all went to one individual. I had him twice before the committee, but he denied the criticisms on the various matters I raised. In April he came into my office and told me that after being on the Grand Jury two days he was going to spend a day at the court house listening to a certain trial. He didn't ask permission. A week later he told me he was going to Kingston for two days to see his father, and again he didn't ask permission to go. I concluded Pierce had a lot of pull or he was taking a lot on his own shoulders.

Machine Disappeared

"About the disappearance of a scrubbing machine belonging to Mrs. Cross, Mr. Pierce covered up the man who had taken it, and for six weeks did not tell the chairman about it being missing.

"When I told him the Examiner was coming out with the story about it, he swore and said the Examiner ought to mind its own business. I called a special meeting of the sanitation committee, and two aldermen said Mr. Pierce was to be commended for finding the woman's polisher. To my way of thinking, the police should get the credit because Mrs. Cross was advised by them that possibly the garbage man had picked it up. In my opinion Mr. Pierce knew who had it, and should have given the Examiner this information, instead of holding it back.

"These are only some of the troubles I had with Mr. Pierce. At one meeting of the committee he said he couldn't do without a truck for one hour, but he can hand this truck over to the fire hall for twelve days, and without asking the chairman anything about it.

"According to the Examiner's report of last Monday's committee meeting at the City Hall he is still loaning it to the fire hall, so he is apparently getting along without the truck which he said he couldn't get along without for an hour.

Give It To Firemen

"In the first place I felt that the sanitation department didn't need that truck, and that it should be given to Chief Smith where it could be some use, instead of sitting on Rink St. six or seven hours a day.

"Mr. Hill of that department does all the book work and the correspondence, and Mr. Darling, the foreman, arrives at 7 a.m., looks after the men and getting things started, and picks up odd garbage that may be left behind.

"From all my observations, and at all hours, I could see no work for which Mr. Pierce was needed, while the city was paying him a salary and the upkeep of his truck. If you are elected to look after the people's business, and you're ignored by an official like Mr. Pierce, and you don't get support from your committee, well, what would anyone do? I felt that the atmosphere was against me, and that I couldn't get to first base.

"I want to say that Mayor Waddell is doing a splendid job for the city. He is one of the finest men I ever worked with, he is putting in the time and effort to make Peterborough what it should be, and I certainly don't include him in what I say about the City Hall and J. E. Pierce. There are several aldermen up there who would like to have as much authority as the Mayor.

"At a meeting of the committee of the whole one of the aldermen addressed me as Mr. Flash. That was evidently a reference to the weekly paper that was mentioned here some time ago. That's the kind of thing you get. I'd like to make it public that at no time did I ever give any information to Flash or to any other paper of that type, and I still resent that incident.

"Ask the firemen how a certain alderman addressed them when they were present before the committee about their working agreement?

Fired 30

"Another thing about Mr. Pierce. Since last September he has hired 31 men for the sanitation department, and has fired 30 of them. All those men could not have been wrong, or duds; or is it Mr. Pierce?

"He made a statement at my final meeting of the sanitation committee that one man was leaving on the Friday of that week. I asked Pierce if this man was leaving or was he dismissed. He said he was leaving on his own accord. That man is George Pulford. He told me on the following Monday that he was let out by Pierce. I took him to both Mayor Waddell and Ald. Burrows to make sure there could be no denial.

"I think the men of the sanitation department do a fine job in spite of Pierce, and if it had the right kind of leadership they'd be far better.

"Thirty out of 31 men fired by Pierce, that's a rather high average I'd say.

"When I asked him how it was that Mr. Butcher, head of the parks department, could get along in working clothes, Mr. Pierce said: "We do twice the work Butcher does." Whatever his men did, he didn't, and, as I say, I think the men of that department deserve a lot of credit."

"When a committee was considering purchase of radio equipment for the fire department, an alderman who would like to be mayor came into the meeting of which he is not a member, and tried to sway the committee to buy C.G.E. radio equipment although it was at higher price.

"A CGE salesman said all parts were available in Peterborough, but it wasn't long until it was found there were no parts here, not even a tube. I don't think that equipment was to be compared with the first one that was tried out.

"Last week I see Cyril Agnew of the assessment department was given a job for repairing a floor in a city building, and City Clerk Outram said it would have cost $150 more if any one else had the contract. In my estimate no contractor could afford to lose that difference in a job of that small size. In my father's time in the council City Clerk Armstrong would wait until he was asked for a statement. Mr. Outram takes pleasure in making statements for the council.

"At a welfare committee meeting Mr. Metheral said he saved money by cutting off people's fuel 15 days ahead of time. I asked him how he saved $200. He said by "chiselling". I told him I didn't like that word "chiselling" against people on relief and who needed fuel. I asked him if his home was warm, and did he want other people to feel as he did. And, so it goes.

"If citizens know what it is like to be placed at the head of a committee and get no support from that committee and be ignored by the superintendent, they will have an idea of why I resigned.

"I am saying this: I could not let the ratepayers know and still sit on the council because of the feeling or may be the atmosphere. I feel that the employees of sanitation department realized that I was trying to do the best for them and also for their efficiency, and to feel that their work was appreciated. I tried to make it a friendly department, because I think that is what the ratepayers would like to have. And, I have never been a yes man and don't intend to be.

"My present feeling is that I'll come back in the field next December and see if the ratepayers will support me in what I tried to do for them."

"Mr. Graham said he was deeply grateful for the encouragement he had received from the two mayors under whom he had sat, Hugh Waddell and Max Swanston.

New Process For Newsprint

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 15 (AP)—Tests on a new process for the manufacture of newsprint from sugar-cane waste at the Herty Foundation Laboratories were pronounced successful Wednesday.

Joaquin de La Roza, Cuban-born American inventor who perfected the process, was enthusiastic at results—in spite of trouble with the pulp which delayed start of the run.

Under the process the waste, called bagasse, is converted to a strong, opaque and very white paper. The experimental run was witnessed by a number of southern publishers and paper experts.

Ed Powers, representing the Hercules Powden Company at the demonstration, described the paper which roled off the lab's paper machine as "very white and strong much finer than ordinary newsprint."

Walter L. Hendrix, general manager of the pilot plant, was in charge of the demonstration. There were some complications at the beginning of the tests due to high alkaline content of the pulp, but it was emphasized that the situation could easily be corrected in full-scale commercial pulp manufacture. Chemists solved the problem quickly Wednesday.

Truman Stresses Progress Made

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP) — President Truman said today the New Deal and his own "Fair Deal" have proved a planned economy works in agriculture and in every other aspect of U.S. national life.

Claiming on behalf of 20 years of Democratic administrations "a real revolution" in American farming, Truman at the same time hit out at "mossbacks" who object that the cost has been regimentation and socialism.

"All this talk about socialism is just plain hokum, the president declared in a speech prepared for an agriculture department ceremony on the Washington monument grounds.

Truman said a great crusade on the part of the government has transformed most American farmers in 20 years from a state of real poverty to a prosperity that helps give the American people the highest living standard in history.

Accept Cleveland In N.H.L. If Meet Money Conditions

TORONTO, May 15. (CP)—Cleveland Barons' bid for a Major League berth in the National Hockey League today hinged on one stipulation: that the club arrange certain internal finances" to meet requirements set by the board of governors of the N.H.L. by June 1. That was the word Wednesday night as the N.H.L. brass considered the American Hockey League team's request for admittance into the league. If the Barons meet the requirements—not disclosed—it is considered almost a certainty they will be voted into the big league at the N.H.L.'s annual meeting in Montreal June 10-11.

Cleveland Arena board of directors will meet May 24 and General Manager Jim Hendy is confident they will vote the necessary monies. The matter will be studied by N.H.L. President Clarence Campbell who will report to the N.H.L. annual session.

"No announcement will be made until the annual meeting," Campbell told reporters after the hours-long closed session of the governors. He indicated, however, that if the stipulation is met, the Barons will be the seventh club in the circuit.

The board of governors, one from each team in the league, considered the Cleveland application for hours and apparently was convinced the Barons were entitled to a major-league franchise at a cost of $50,000—with the one financial hitch.

Question Of Fund

Campbell and Hendy told reporters these "internal finances" concerned the amount of money Cleveland could raise for a fund devoted entirely to the development and promotion of hockey in the Ohio city arena.

Campbell said the governors studied all aspects of the Cleveland setup, including the arena capacity, its geographical position in relation to other N.H.L. teams, player prospects and working capital. "They were unanimous on all these points but certain internal finances were the one hitch," he said.

The Barons, with no tie up with an N.H.L. club, is on its own for big-league talent. "It will be dog eat dog and we'll be in there," Hendy told reporters.

The N.H.L. schedule structure will not be upset if Cleveland is admitted. Campbell will start work today on two schedules for the 1952-53 season "on the assumption that Cleveland is both in and out."

In any event, Campbell said, the schedule will be the same length as last season except that each team will play 72 games—36 at home and 36 away—instead of 70 games.

Hendy, who presented a bulky brief to the meeting, said prices now in effect for A.H.L. games—$1-$2.60—will be set at a $3.50 top and $1.25 minimum if the team enters the N.H.L. He predicted the club would do a net business of $700,000 over the season.

Lauro Salas Unsets Carter To Take Title

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES, May 15 (AP)—New York's Jimmy Carter won the lightweight championship in an upset, he lost it the same way, and so today the boxing world greeted a new ruler of the 135-pound divisiono—Lauro Salas of Monterrey, Mexico.

Just as 28-year-old Carter captured the crown with a surprising 14-round knockout over Ike Williams last May 25, so did Carter create a surprise by dropping it to his 24-year-old rival, a comparative unknown in title circles, in 15 rounds Wednesday night.

True, the decision was a split one, and many boxing writers disagreed with the verdict, but the fact remained today—the new champion is Lauro Salas, an overstuffed featherweight.

First To Hold Title

Salas is the first native Mexican to win an undisputed world championship. Baby Arizmendi held a version of the featherweight title years ago, and Jaun Zurita held the National Boxing Association lightweight bauble later on. Manuel Ortiz was the unquestioned king of the bantams, but Manuel, of Mexican descent, was born in El Centro, Calif.

"This was no win for myself alone," exclaimed the tempestuous Salas. "I am glad for the people of Mexico—the Mexican people here, the people in Mexico."

Promoter Cal Eaton promptly began efforts for a rematch as provided in the fighters' contracts in the event of a Salas upset. It calls for a rematch within 60 days, but both fight camps indicated they might like a little longer interval.

Carter, dethroned in his third defence of the title, was disconsolate. So was his manager, veteran Willie Ketchum, who declared: "Jimmy got tired, but I don't know how they saw the ohter guy winning."

At The Kawartha

Far behind are the ice and snow and now the friendly Kawartha in its Spring-time dress of rich green beckons all golfers to get "on the beam" and "fly right" to their "home upon the hill."

Official opening days are at hand so this will be a large week for the Kawartha Golf Club people. Once more, the ladies intend to beat the men to it.

This Thursday the nine and 18-hole sections will converge on the fairways for their opening day.

The 18-holers will tee off at one o'clock, followed by the nine-holers shortly afterwards.

For the men, their big day will be Saturday. At exactly 1:00 p.m. the first divots will go flying high in the air. The competitions will be medal play and the cost only 50 cents a person.

All members are welcome to bring out their friends and prospective members, to enjoy all that the club has to offer. Guests of members will be admitted free, or rather no green fees will be levied for the day. The 50 cents will include the field day and the dance in the evening.

The tennis section is holding its opening to coincide with the golfers'. A splendid program has been arranged with activities to begin at 2:30. Members are invited to bring their friends to join in the fun and to remain for the dance.

The use of the club house is one of the many privileges available to members. A cordial welcome is given to all by Jack and Lil Brickstock who are fast becoming known to all. The friendly reception given will lead to a desire to return more often.

Plan Belleville Loop Will Open May 26

Opening night will see CNR Athletics "AA" squad visiting Point Anne Cementmen, Belleville Motor Car visiting Wooler, Frankford playing host to the Trenton R.C.A.F. Flyers and the CNR Diesels "A" squad and Crawford Metals clashing in Belleville.

The two remaining teams, Northern Electric and Glen Roy AC Juniors will see their first action the following night when they meet in Belleville.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Frank Menke, quite a historian on sports, writes: "Lacrosse was originated by the Canadian Indians many centuries ago under the name of baggataway. The French Canadians renamed it lacrosse because the webbed stick reminded them of a bishop's crozier or cross. Modern lacrosse differs in some ways from ancient baggataway. Teams are limited; so is the size of the playing field. The lads of today can go onto fields of conflict with a reasonable assurance that they won't end up in an embalming shop. In the original Indian game, strategy called for crippling as many of the enemy as possible before settling down to the blase thing of scoring points.

* * * * * *

"The baggataway galoots always were terribly inaccurate in the beginning of a game in their swipes at the ball, but were supermarksmen when it came to smacking a rival on any smackable spot. Each game was preceded by a big pow-wow, a feast and wild dancing. Women folk, who were the rooters, ran up and down the sidelines beating men of their tribes with stout switches to urge them on to more furious and inspired action. Medicine men were the referees and also the goal lines. In the beginning, the spots where the rival medicine men stood served as a goal line. If either chose to wander or become absent-minded and went for a long hike, the line moved right along with him."

The Game Is Now Boxed

Box lacrosse replaced field lacrosse a little more than 20 years ago. It started here in 1931 and has been played continuously since but for the war years. Had its ups and downs locally on various outdoor cushions and in the Brock Arena but finally took a solid grip on public fancy in the late 30s at the spot now known as Miller Bowl. The Petes won a couple of senior "B" provincial crowns and drew crowds of 2,000 and up frequently. One playoff saw more than 3,000 on deck. The club, after post-war re-organization and in the newly built bowl, jumped to senior "A", Climbed steadily in three years to finally win the O.L.A. and Canadian titles last year.

* * * * * *

The popular gutted-stick game returns to Peter's borough this Friday night. The opening of the 1952 O.L.A. senior "A" schedule, with Owen Sound Crescents playing Petes' Timbermen here. Crescents won the Mann Cup two years ago but dropped out last semester. Three of their former stars, Moon Wootton, Curly Mason and Russ Slater, are now with the local squad, as is Jack Gainey of the Petes' executive—a former Owen Sound official. Kazarian & Co. will strive their utmost to make their former teammates sorry they left the northern town to play lacrosse in the Liftlock City. The latter chaps will see to it that the Crescents feel sorry, too, that they left. A whopping opening-night crowd should see a swell scrap.

Tossin' The Ball Around

Some odds and ends on lacrosse: Don Holden is calling his bolstered Torontos to finish no lower than third in this year's senior schedule. Harry Kazarian of the Owen Sounders is getting hooked up in a matrimonial sense. Still lots of reserved season ducats available for local games, we hear. Some big boys working out with Lou Vitarelli's junior squad, though they found the pitch a bit greasy last e'en after the rains. Seniors took the practice game 12-4 and 'twas a neat workout for seniors and juniors. Orillia manager was down looking for material from here. Vancouver Combines, under a new name this year, have been suspended out west for wearing sponsors' names on sweaters. P.M.L.A. bantams have an open workout at 6:30 tonight, the midgets and juves going at 7:30.

* * * * * *

Annual three-day Kawartha Golf Club tourney this summer on Aug. 2-3-4 has been extended to a 72-hole event, with 36 holes on the last day. However, only golfers being in the low 99 on the first two days get a crack at the final double round. Of these, 39 go in the first flight, 45 in the second and 15 in the third. First 250 to apply for entry get into the competition which has $2,000 in prizes. All prizes but those for winners and runners-up will be awarded on the first 36-hole scores. This open amateur tournament has become a big golf affair, indeed.

Herb Bradburn President Of The Curlers

By HERB MARTIN

At the first meeting of the newly elected board of directors of the Peterborough Curling Rink Co. held at the curling rink, Herbert I. Bradburn was elected president, Dr. M. McCartney vice-president and Ira D. Moore secretary.

In choosing Mr. Bradburn for president the board made no mistake. Although he is one of the younger members of the club, he has had board experience in golf affairs which will go a long way in helping him discharge his duty as president of the curling club.

He joined the club about five years ago and the same year was elected to the board, and he has been a member of it ever since. He has been chairman of many committees, and last year was chairman of the property committee. He was also vice-president last season. He is supported by a strong board of directors and already they are planning for next season. We join with all curlers in saying, "Happy hunting."

Dr. M. McCartney as vice-president has had much experience, and he too will give a good account of himself. He was chairman of the bonspiel committee last season and did a fine job.

Ira Moore as secretary needs no introduction on our part. He belongs to the "old school" and is well known by all.

It all adds up like this: It's going to be a big season in 1952-53.

Peterborough Curling Club officers 1952-53: President, H. I. Bradburn; vice-president, Dr. M. McCartney; secretary-treasurer, Ira D. Moore; committee, F. Stenson, T. Doughty, N. Hamley, B. Grant, O. Price, R. Payne, B. Harrison, Dr. R. Clark. Committee chairmen —membership, B. Harrison; ice, O. Price; property, T. Doughty; social and friendly games, R. Payne; schedule, N. Hamley and B. Grant; bonspiel, F. Stenson; ladies and skating, Dr. M. McCartney; junior boys, Dr. R. Clark.

Maglie Restrains Cincinnati As Giants Triumph 8-3

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer

Sal (the Barber) Maglie is shaving National League hitters so close the boys are objecting to the lather. Cincinnati did its best to upset the New York Giants ace Wednesday with repeated demands to see the ball. The intimation was that Maglie might be sneaking in a "spitter." The umps could find nothing wrong.

Maglie was so upset he cooled off the Reds with six hits, 8-3, for his sixth straight victory. Unbeaten, in 1952, the 34-year-old righthander is off to a flying start toward another big year, like his 23-6 last season.

The champion Giants, on a five-game win spree, have won 16 of their last 18 to open up a two-game lead on the runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers.

Bobby Thomson, the golden boy of the '51 season, got the Giants off fast with a first-inning triple and a steal of home. Home runs by Willie Mays and West Westrum helped.

Gerry Staley, beaten only by Maglie in compiling a 6-1 record for St. Louis, shoved Brooklyn another game behind the Giants with a steady six-hitter for a 5-1 victory. Solly Hemus was the big hitter for the Cards, hammering home three runs with a home run and triple.

Revamped Infield

After Tuesday's trade, the Cards presented a revamped infield with Dick Sisler, an old Card of 1946-47 vintage, returning from Cincinnati to take over first base. Manager Eddie Stanky benched himself to return Red Schoendienst to second and reinstated Billy Johnson as his third baseman. Only Hemus remained. With Granny Hamner and Willie Jones doing the heavy bombing, Russ Meyer finally dodged the hard luck that trailed him in four previous games to lift the Phillies over Chicago, 9-2. Hamner homered, tripled and singled while Jones drove in four runs with his fifth homer and a single. Bob Kelly was the loser.

Pete Whisenant's single with the bases loaded, juggled by shortstop George Strickland just long enough to let Jack Daniels score, gave the Boston Braves a 10th-inning 4-3 edge over Pittsburgh.

Rookie Ed Mathews led the Braves' attack with three doubles and a single.

Chief Agents

Hank Bauer and Johnny Sain were the chief agents helping the New York Yankees catch up with Cleveland for a 5-3 win after losing four straight to the Tribe.

Bauer, sizzling as a lead-off hitter, paved the way for tobacco-chawin' Sain with a homer, double and four runs batted in. Bauer's fourth homer of the season with two men on came off Bob Feller in the third inning for a 3-2 Yank lead.

After Cleveland tied the score in the fifth, relief pitcher Sam Jones loosened a wild pitch that let pinch hitter Jim Brideweser score the tie-breaking run in the sixth. Bauer's double, following Sain's single, produced the final run in the seventh.

The Boston Red Sox continued to wrestle with their same old problem—how to win away from Fenway Park—as they lost their sixth straight on the road, 6-3 at Chicago.

Game Called

Rookie southpaw Bill Henry took a 3-0 lead into the sixth where the White Sox cut loose with a six-run blast. Rain forced the umpires to call the game after seven innings.

Newly-wed Vic Wertz rejoined the Detroit Tigers and blasted a tie-breaking home run off Washington's Sid Hudson in the eighth for a 3-2 win. Art Houtteman turned back the Senators, who had won nine of their last 10, with a six-hitter.

Pat Mullin helped get the Tigers out of their losing ways with a fine catch and a home run in the first inning.

The St. Louis Browns snapped out of a batting slump to rack up four Philadelphia pitchers with a 16-hit attack as they broke a three-game losing streak with a 12-7 win. Satch Paige kept the Browns in front with a fine relief job after Gene Bearden faltered in the seventh.

Trading Deals Completed In Big Leagues

NEW YORK, May 15—(CP)—With St. Louis Browns barely beating the midnight deadline, the major league clubs Wednesday night completed trimming their rosters to the required limit of 25 players.

Just 35 minutes before midnight, the Browns optioned four players to minor league clubs.

Righthanders Cliff Fannin and Bob Mahoney and rookie catcher Darrell Johnson were sent to San Antonio of the Texas League. Veteran shortstop Stan Rojek was optioned to Toledo of the American Association.

This left the Browns with 26 players, one over the limit. St. Louis is allowed to hold on to 26 because pitcher Dave Madison is a returning serviceman.

Other Changes

Here's what the other clubs did Wednesday:

New York Yankees—Optioned rookie lefthander Bill Miller to Kansas City of the American Association.

Cleveland — Optioned pitchers George Zuverink and Bob Chakales and veteran infielder George Stirnweiss to Indianapolis of the American Association.

St. Louis Cardinals — Asked waivers on infielder Gene Mauch.

Boston Red Sox—Optioned first baseman Dick Gernwert to Louisville of the American Association and outfielder Gene Stephens to Albany of the Eastern League.

Chicago Cubs—Optioned Harry Chiti, army-bound catcher, to Springfield of the International League.

New York Giants—Optioned pitcher Roger Bowman to Minneapolis of the American Association and requested waivers on outfielder Dick Wakefield.

Pittsburgh — Optioned catcher Jim Mangan to Toronto of the International League, pitcher Joe Muir to New Orleans of the Southern Association, infielder Dick Hall to Burlington of the Carolina League and infielder Lee Walls to Waco of the Big State League.

Detroit—Sent first baseman Ben Taylor, shortstop Alex Garbowski and pitcher Wayne McCleland to Buffalo of the International League.

Ottawa Divides Twin Bill With Toronto Maple Leafs

By The Canadian Press.

Ottawa Athletics are discovering that a few well-placed victories are still the best cure for poor attendance at home.

After a long streak of losses at the opening of the International League season accompanied by consistently small crowds, the Athletics appear to have snapped out of it.

Their sweep of a four-game series at Rochester last week and the climb from last to seventh place were indications of an improved team, and the fans responded.

A crowd of 4,899—best of the new season—watched Ottawa split a doubleheader with Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night.

A two-run homer by John Metkovich gave Ottawa the seven-inning opener 2-1.

Scores On Wild Pitch

In the second game, Grover Bowers scored on a wild pitch by reliefer Bill George in the eighth with what proved to be the winning run in Toronto's 6-5 victory.

Syracuse Chiefs, meanwhile, swept a doubleheader from Baltimore Orioles 2-0 and 4-2. Alva Lee (Bobo) Holloman, 27-year-old rookie, gave up five hits in the second game as he won his sixth game against one defeat. Bob Keegan blanked the Orioles with six hits in the seven-inning twilight game.

The second place Buffalo Bisons leading the Chiefs by a half-game defeated Springfield Cubs 1-0 to pull to within three games on the front-running Montreal Royals. Lynn Lovenguth blanked the Cubs on four hits.

Montreal Royals dropped an 8-7 decision to Rochester Red Wings. The Wings jumped on Hamp Coleman for five runs in the second but needed some fine relief work by Jack Crimian to win.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Ted Morris, former coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Interprovincial Football Union, said in court at Toronto Wednesday that Bob Moran, president of the club, could be "awful dirty."

Morris made the statement under cross-examination of Russell Payton, counsel for the Argonaut Football Club which is being sued for $500 back wages which former manager Earl Selkirk says the club owes him.

Morris testified that he was present when Moran, then secretary-treasurer, promised Selkirk an extra $500 in 1949. Earlier, Selkirk blamed a personal feud with Moran for his failure to receive the $500. Selkirk said the feud started when he failed to have a United States import included in a picture to illustrate an article he was writing for a magazine.

Pint-size Morris closed out a five-year coaching job with Argos Jan. 4, 1950. The Double Blues won three successive Canadian titles during his regime.

But Morris said he "never did retire as coach; Moran released it to the papers without my consent."

Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Interprovincial Football Union announced Wednesday the signing of four new United States players, bringing to 11 the number of imports already signed by coach Carl Voyles. The new players are: Biss Gosney, 235-pound middle from Howard Payne College, Washington; Gordon Herron, middle from Kentucky Teachers; Dick Mace, centre from Syracuse, and Bill Byron, fullback from Mississippi State.

Jockey Johnny Longden Wednesday registered win 3,999 in his long career. He booted home Ve Bullion in the fourth race at Hollywood Park, Inglewood, Calif.

Vince J. Sheridan of Toronto Wednesday was elected for a fourth term as president of the Ontario division of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association.

Lindsay Sets Up Education Fund

LINDSAY, May 15 (ENS). — The Business and Professional Women's Club of Lindsay, announces today that it has set up a fund in the amount of $100 for loan without interest or gift annually to any boy or girl in Victoria county 16 or over who needs financial assistance to attain higher academic or vocational training.

The committee formed to administer the fund will receive applications by way of letters setting out what training the applicants wish to pursue and what their ambitions are, their need for assistance, and whether or not they wish to repay the fund while they get their work and their school record.

Although the award will not be on the basis of scholarship as much as need, the committee does want to be assured that the applicant who receives the fund will be able to use it to bring his or her further training to successful conclusion.

Forecast C.N.R. Line To Kitimat Will Pay Way Very Soon

OTTAWA, May 15 (CP) — A C.N.R. vice-president painted an exciting picture Wednesday of the multi-sided developments that should stem from northern British Columbia's now-famous Kitimat aluminum project.

S. W. Fairweather, a man who is proud of the accuracy of his prophecies, told a Commons committee that Kitimat should open a new window on the Pacific through which could flow wealth to benefit Canada from coast to coast.

The committee, under this buoyant impact, gave approval to the C.N.R.'s proposal to build a $10,000,000 46-mile branch line into the remote B.C. village to spur this dream.

However, A. W. Whittaker Jr., vice-president of the Aluminum Co. of Canada which is backing Kitimat's huge aluminum project, said "I got hell from my boss" for accepting one phase of the company's bargain with the C.N.R. for constructing the branch line.

That is the guarantee the company has given the C.N.R. that rail revenues for the first 10 years won't fall below a set minimum. Mr. Whittaker said his company doesn't like it, but had to take it because the C.N.R. insisted.

Private Company

"We're a private company spending millions on this project because we have faith in aluminum in Canada," he said.

"I wouldn't be surprised if this branch line turns out to be one of the most profitable moves the C.N.R. has ever made. So why should the C.N.R. and the Government demand a guarantee? Why haven't they got enough faith in British Columbia to do this without one? . . ."

Earlier Mr. Fairweather predicted the guarantee will never be put into effect because, unusual as it is for branch lines, this one should carry itself from the start.

These were the developments Mr. Fairweather said might happen after Kitimat's aluminum project gets going in 1954:

1. A huge now-inaccessible stand of mature timber will be much more easily available when the rail line is finished 1954. There is a distinct possibility that a pulp mill will be established at Kitimat and a sawmill is sure.
2. Kitimat offers a sheltered port which should cut into halibut landings at Seattle.
3. Fairly extensive farmlands lie nearby, waiting for industry to give them a chance to prosper.
4. Ships bringing the raw material for aluminum will be hungry for cargoes to take away, offering the chance for Western Canada to ship her produce to the markets of the world. This wouldn't hurt Vancouver or any other part of Canada. It would open up new markets which would bring in wealth benefitting all Canada.
5. Kitimat is in the coast mountain area which is one of the richest mining areas in the world.

Mr. Whittaker testified that his firm intends to build one of the finest communities on the continent at Kitimat and predicted that it will some day have 50,000 people.

He said a small plant for production of oxygen and acetylene will definitely be started there and that pulp and possibly newsprint production is under study. A New York firm is studying establishment of a chlorine plant there.

WEYBURN, Sask., May 15 (CP)—A Coroner's jury inquiring into the death of Dr. Lister Moore, 36, Ottawa veterinarian found dead in a hotel here May 6 returned a verdict of suicide Wednesday.

The body of Dr. Moore, in charge of the Federal health of animals branch foot-and-mouth disease eradication here; was found in his hotel room by Dr. Frank Mulhern of the United States Bureau of Animal Husbandry.

The Coroner's jury said Dr. Moor came to his death by self-inflicted strangulation. Dr. H. A. Brookler who performed the post mortem examination, said cause of death was asphixiation by strangulation.

108 New Industries Established In Ontario

OTTAWA, May 15 (CP)—A total of 108 new industries have been established in Ontario by foreign industrialists in the last two years, more than in any other province.

A return tabled in the Commons Wednesday for Gordon Higgins (PC—St. John's East) also showed that foreign industrialists have established 71 industries in Quebec, five in Newfoundland, three in Alberta, three in British Columbia, two in Nova Scotia and one in New Brunswick.

The new industries, ranging from manufacturing and chemicals to food, beverages and paper and miscellaneous products, were established mainly by United Kingdom, German and Czechoslocakian industrialists.

Reject Request

TORONTO, May 15—(CP)—The Law Society of Upper Canada has turned down a request by the University of Toronto to admit graduates of its law school to practice in Ontario after articling for a year under a solicitor anywhere in the province. Admission to the bar at present requires graduates of the University's law school to complete the final two years of the Society's Osgoode Hall course.

Aided By Toronto Fund Young Woman Dies

TORONTO, May 15 (CP) — Mrs. Grace Henderson, 29 and incurably ill, left Toronto last October on her way home to Glasgow. Word of her death reached here Tuesday.

Mrs. Henderson learned in September she had only a few months to live. Her one wish then was for $550, the fare for herself, her husband, Barclay, and their children to return to her birthplace.

Telegram columnist Wessely Hicks wrote her story and told of her wish. Readers donated $3,734.

CHANGING TIMES—Time was when the only props a politician needed for his election campaign were strong lungs and a handy soapbox. Not these days, though—what with courses on makeup and how to behave on television forming part of campaign procedure in the United States. Presidency seekers and electioneering senators are attending the courses and here, Sentor Edward Martin (Rep.-Pa.) starts off his "schooling" under the direction of Alma Walker. The senators are being taught how to sit before a camera, how to stand, how to walk and how to read.

Big Canada Moose Has Poor Stomach

WINNIPEG — (CP)—City folk here have been asked to resist that good-natured impulse to feed the moose in the zoo such things as the remnants of last week's roast, or brown paper bags.

They could be fatal, because the moose has diet problems.

Dr. Richard Glover, a member of the zoo advisory committee, says that despite its sturdy appearance the moose "has a most sensitive digestive tract."

The average life of a moose in captivity is estimated by Dr. Glover at only two years. But carefully-controlled feeding increases its life span.

While on the subject, Dr. Glover also frowned on the practice of flashing mirrors at the caged monkeys. He says the monkeys take a very poor view of this.

Indian Rainmakers

NEW DELHI—(CP)—A scientific committee here recommended that the national physical laboratory undertake experiments in rain making by artificial stimulation of clouds. The Indian meteorological branch and the Air Force have been conducting initial experiments on the basis of similar work in other countries.

Marmora C.W.L. Plans To Hold Holy Name Banquet

MARMORA, May 15—(ENS)—May meeting of the Catholic Womens' League was held in Sacred Heart Parish Hall on Monday evening. The new president, Mrs. B. W. Hughes, occupied the chair and expressed thanks to the past president, Mrs. C. Cook, for leaving a tidy sum in the treasury, the financial report having been given by Mrs. Joseph O'Neill.

Mrs. F. Woodhouse and Mrs. E. D. O'Connor volunteered for visiting the sick and shutins for the coming month.

Arrangements were made for the Holy Name banquet to be held in June and Mrs. C. Crawford was appointed convenor of the committees, in which the several groups would assist.

It was decided to provide suitable clothing for some needy children in the parish for confirmation which will take place next month. Mrs. C. Cook, past president, was appointed a member of the executive.

Mrs. J. Black then took charge of the program: readings by Miss Mary Hughes, Mrs. Don Shannon, Mrs. J. Black, Mrs. C. Cook; piano solo by Mrs. Carl McCoy, "Mother Machrie" sung by Mrs. H. Brady with Mrs. J. Black at the piano.

Mrs. Hughes mentioned the Diocesan Convention to be held in Kingston on May 26-27 to which she will be a delegate. The alternate is the first vice-president, Mrs. Donald Shannon.

It was decided that group leaders would be members of the executive and the executive meetings would be held in the homes.

Struck Man With Bottle Fined $50, Costs

Bopping John Cotton of Chemong Park over the head with a beer bottle cost Charles O'Brien, 207 Stewart St., a $50 fine and $11.15 in costs when he was convicted of assault occasioning bodily harm Wednesday.

The row occurred at a banquet April 24 and started over a side bet in a crap game.

The blow opened a four and one half inch wound in Cotton's head which required 24 stitches to close. He lost a considerable amount of blood and spent two days in hospital.

Both crown and defence witnesses gave slightly different accounts of what happened as they saw it, but O'Brien admitted to Constable W. A. Scott the night of the fracas that he was involved in the disturbance. On the witness stand, he said Cotton pushed him during the argument. He said he had a beer bottle in the hand he struck Cotton with but did not intend to hit him with the beer bottle.

Picked Up Bottle

Crown witness William Lenuette, 303 McGill St., gave the most concise story of the affair. "There was a part bottle of beer sitting at the left hand side of the table. The other fellow was just in the motion of throwing the dice when O'Brien picked up the beer bottle and hit the other man over the head with it," said Mr. Lenuette.

After the crown's case was completed, Magistrate W. R. Philp refused to grant Gordon H. T. Farquharson's motion for dismissal of the charge on the grounds that there was no evidence that O'Brien was the man who hit Cotton. When the defence evidence was heard, the magistrate said he was finding O'Brien guilty as charged.

A brother, Torquil, went to Canada several years ago and works with an automobile company in Edmonton. (See story on Page 18).

Jap Theatres Flourishing Actor Finds

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 15—(AP)—A United States movie company, just back from filming in Japan, reports that entertainment is flourishing there, from American movies to native strip teases.

Tom Ewell, who is a serious student of the Theatrical Arts despite wacky film roles, has returned with a survey of entertainment in Japan. Along with a U.I. film troupe, he travelled to the re-established island country for location scenes of "Willie and Joe Back at the Front".

"I found the Japanese enthusiastic about all forms of entertainment, from the classic theatre down to burlesque," reported Ewell. "Many of the entertainments are amusing, and even use startling adaptations of American styles.

No Tease

"But they don't seem to have caught the technique of the strip tease. The girls come out with only one garment on. They walk around for a few minutes and end up by taking he garment off. This is accompanied by any kind of music. I saw one girl stripping to the tune of 'Home on the Range.' "

Advancing up the theatrical ladder, Ewell remarked that the Japanese musicals appear to be patterned after Hollywood films. The dances, costumes and plots are the same, but the shows use old music instead of writing new tunes? Japanese lyrics are set to anything from "Parlez Moi D'Amour" to "Come on a my house."

The classic theatre, or kubuchi, is really impressive, the actor continued. "It is as effective as any theatre I have seen in any part of the world."

"The theatre gives two performances—at 11 in the morning and 4:30 in the afternoon. The stage is enormous and the place holds 4,500 people. Shows last 4½ to five hours and include a three-act, two-act and one-act play, plus four or five dances. There are intermissions for lunch and dinner, and everyone eats in restaurants in the theatre."

So effective is the theatre that the Kubuchi is being brought to New York next season, Ewell reported.

SEEKS A WIFE—Joseph Carey, at 81, one of Wales' most eligible—and one of the oldest—bachelors, arrives in Montreal in search of a Canadian wife. He specified she must be not more than 40 and must be a good cook. He holds a bottle containing a special elixir to which he attributes his sprightliness and cheerful outlook on life. It contains three tablespoons of sulphur, two of cream of tartar, and a half teaspoon of saltpetre. He is headed for Calgary and Edmonton to visit two sisters. Two young admirers are shown with the visitors.

Diabetic Convicted

PRESTON, May 15 — (CP). — Magistrate J. R. H. Kirkpatrick Wednesday ruled that insulin is a drug within the meaning of the Criminal Code and convicted Clemens Talbot, a diabetic, of driving while his ability was impaired by drugs. He suspended sentence for six months.

Hint Taxpayers Strike

HAMILTON, May 15 (CP). — Citizens are threatening to mo out of the city or call a taxpayers' strike as a result of the 1952 tax bill, Alderman Russell Reinke said Wednesday. "Relief must come to the municipalities," Mr. Reinke said, "from Toronto and Ottawa in the form of shares of gasoline, cigarette, and amusement taxes."

New Version Suggested For "O Canada"

VANCOUVER — (CP)—Spurred by the London Spectator's competition for new words for "God Save the Queen," and by divided allegiance to the Weir and Buchan versions of "O Canada!" the Vancouver province has just concluded a contest for a new version of the Canadian national song.

The contest, conducted through Wilf Bennett's "Lantern" column, was won by Mrs. Ira Grindlay Jackson of Vancouver.

Here's the winning entry:

O Canada, dear country of our birth!
Mighty among the nations of our earth!
Our loyalty shall be thy strength
And down the years to be,
With boundless faith, O Canada,
We pledge our all to thee.
Chorus:
O Canada! Glorious and free!
We pledge our all to serve and honor thee!
O Canada, to serve and honor thee!

Second verse (for "new Canadians"):

O Canada, accept us who have known
Homes in far lands and take us for thine own.
With grateful hearts thy peace we share
And down the years to be,
With boundless faith, O Canada,
We pledge our all to thee.

GUN-SHY?—Then you'd better stay away from the windows in the home of Mrs. Emil Mentel (left), the trees near the house of Mrs. Norman Stadtler (centre), and the pea patch of Mrs. Opal Smith. Or you're likely to acquire a hole—bullet-sized—in your head. Just the other day Clevelander Mrs. Mentel sent four slugs whistling the way of a Peeping Tom. The shootin' finger of Mrs. Stadtler began to itch when word got around that two escaped convicts were hiding in the woods near her Parma, O., home. High-school baseball players are what Mrs. Smith is aiming to aim at. She lives next to Piedmont, Missouri's only baseball diamond and has declared, "Not one more boy is going to chase a ball into my garden." (The ballplayers are getting out of practice.)

Bomb Wrecks Office Building

CLAWSON, Mich., May 15 (CP)—The office of a building supply firm was partially wrecked by a bomb after the owner received two phone calls asking his co-operation in a carpenters' strike.

An explosive on the roof of the cinder-block office of the Brewster Lumber and Supply Company went off early Wednesday, knocking a two-foot hole and causing damage estimated at $1,000.

William Brewster, the owner, said he had received two telephone calls from persons who asked him to pull his six drivers off the job in sympathy with the 15,000 union carpenters who struck Saturday to back contract demands.

One of the men was a business agent of Local 247, the Teamsters' Union, he said. The other refused to identify himself. The union agent had called Brewster "very uncooperative."

The carpenters' strike has halted construction work throughout southeastern Michigan.

Report Dreams Come In 4 Different Packages

By FRANK CAREY

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., May 15—(AP)—Dreams come in four different packages, the American Psychiatric Association was told today.

And, said Dr. Iago Galdston of New York, psychiatrists should pay more attention to these differences in the "structure" of dreams—as an aid in treating the mentally ill.

For many years, he said, much emphasis has rightly been placed on the "contents" of dreams—but practically no attention has been paid to the form, or stage setting, of the dream.

Saying that in the case of the mentally ill, the dream structure is closely correlated with the patient's personality and the type of his mental disturbance, Dr. Galdston listed these four patterns for dreams in general:

Four Patterns

1. The dream that has a "consistent story."
2. The dream that is presented as a "montage"—a serial form of disjointed episodes, yet staged upon a consistent background.
3. The "meandering" dream, where there is a constant shift in terrain and lots of inconsistency.
4. The "amorphous", or shapeless dream—where the characters are dim and vague and don't make much sense at all.

He said there is opportunity for utilizing these differences in diagnosing a patient's illness, and following the progress of treatment.

"Basically," he added, "each patient dreams his dreams in his own unique pattern, yet, within that pattern there is possible much variation. And the variation indicates and reflects progression or regression in the (treatment) experience of each patient."

Directory Lists 5,000 Free Films

OTTAWA —(CP)—Clubs, study groups and associations who want to make use of free films now can find out what is available in a directory listing more than 5,000 different 16 mm. movies.

The movies listed can be obtained from 185 different sources and can be obtained by any motion picture projector owner who promises to take care of them and return them the day after using.

The directory, first of its kind ever distributed in this country, is a 15-page folder, compiled and distributed by Crawley Films Limited of Ottawa. Its preface notes that Canadian industries, educational groups and associations are sponsoring and increasing number of films every year. Last year nearly 500 films and filmstrips were produced for such groups.

The subjects listed in the directory range from cooking recipes and sports to accident prevention and a variety of Canadian industries.

Says Deer Dying

MILTON, Ont., May 15—(CP)—Deer in Halton County are starving to death, Game Warden Dudley Hitchcox said Wednesday. He reported finding five to 10 deer in a single herd near Milton. Hitchcox said lack of winter food is forcing the deer to southern sections of the province and they are

Cite Some Examples Of Polish Propaganda

TORONTO, May 15—(CP)—The Polish Daily of Warsaw says that Canadian women cyclists who dare to wear trousers are in danger of being beaten by angry mobs, that the Canadian Government "carefully spreads the art of boogie-woogie dancing among Canadian youth" and "carefully nurtures darkness and backwardness among the Canadian people."

The article was quoted by the Polish Voice and Gazette of Toronto in an editorial urging extension of Polish language broadcasts by the CBC to counter Communist propaganda.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

COOLER THAN '51

Peterborough was sweltering a year ago today with the temperature at 82 degrees. Today at noon the mercury had reached 51 degrees, only three up from the 9 a.m. temperature of 48.

TWO HYDRANTS

Peterborough Exhibition Board has asked the Utilities Commission for two hydrants at the east half of Morrow Park. Commission has asked R. L. Dobbin for a report.

TOWARD AGREEMENT

Negotiations between the Utilities Commission and its employees' organization were reported Tuesday in satisfactory progress. Discussions have passed through the preliminaries.

NO FROG SONG

The river frogs out from the end of Sherbrooke St. were silent in the chill weather last night. But men with fishing rods and pails were about on George St. heading toward some water place.

FIRST GOOD FISH REPORT

Night factory worker Jack Labonte of 763 Duffus St., quit his shift at 2:06 today, arrived at Nassau dam at 3 a.m. and went home at 5:30 with five nice pickerel. He estimated the largest would go about five pounds, and the four others nearly four apiece.

THREE-HEADED DANDELION

Nine-year-old Marie Martell, 528 Rose Ave., found a three-headed dandelion in the back yard of her home. The three heads were on one flat stalk about half an inch across at the base. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Martell.

TO MEET MR. BURNIE

For the purpose of introducing William L. Burnie, who has begun his duties as Industrial Commissioner, Ald. J. A. Dewart, chairman of the manufacturers' committee of the council, has invited the industrial leaders of the city to a social hour at the Peterborough Club at 5 p.m. Friday.

FEDERATION BROADCAST

Wilson Gemmell will be the speaker on the Federation of Agriculture broadcast at 12.15 p.m. Saturday. He is speaking about the Kiwanis musical festival to which the Federation has given two trophies. Significant in the announcement is the desire of the Federation to assist in promoting the big undertaking of the Kiwanis Club.

THE BRADY STRING

Rupe Brady is taking three ball teams under his wing for this season. The juveniles are working out Saturday, 1 to 4 p.m. at the Oval; East City Braves turn our Friday evening 7 to 8; and Anthony's Bantams have batting practice this evening, also at Nicholls Oval. The Peewee Braves have a game here with Belleville on the 24th at 3 p.m.

PAVEMENT HACKING

People have probably noticed the continuing work of employees of the Utilities Commission in cutting through street pavement to renew gas main joints. Howard Powell said at the meeting of the Commission the other day that about 100 of these joints have been completed. But, here is the awesome corollary—there are 1,000 altogether. It may be that the total number will not have to be rejointed, but presumably it is a possibility.

2 City Soldiers, 16 Of District Coming Home

Two Peterborough soldiers and 16 others from the district will arrive on the west coast this weekend on rotation leave from Korea.

P. Johnston, Apsley; Spr. R. Pyett, Fenelon Falls; Pte. J. T. Smelt, Bancroft; L. Cpl. R. R. Spence, Cobourg; Pte. E. M. Wight, Picton. They will arrive in Toronto.

Five of the 18 will report at Kingston. They are: Lieut. P. L. Ash, Madoc; Pte. Caldwell; Sgt. A. R. Martin, Madoc; L. Cpl. R. A. Post, Brighton, and Pte. G. Vieau, Trenton.

Car Hits Stones Driver Cut

George Fair, 27, of Omemee received cuts on his head requiring several stitches early today when his car ran off highway 7, a mile west of the village and crashed into a pile of stones.

The impact, which caused nearly $600 damage to the car, jerked Fair's head forward and he struck the windshield. He was treated by Dr. William Earle of Omemee and then allowed to go home.

Fair was driving home about 3:30 a.m. It was raining and O.P.P. Constable S. W. Judson of Lindsay reported that the pavement was wet and slippery. When within a mile of the outskirts of the village, the car went out of control and ran into the south ditch.

It bumped along in the ditch for about 400 feet and finally ran into the pile of stones, receiving heavy damage and injuring Fair.

Fishermen By Hundreds Flock Rivers For Pickerel

By NICK NICKELS

ALONG WALLEYE WAY, May 15.—The Trent waterways system was bursting at its dark seams with pickerel fishermen from early Wednesday evening until daylight today. And although fishermen outnumbered the caught fish by thousands to one, everyone was reasonably happy. And very wet.

Greatest numbers of rodmen gathered at the pretty village of Bobcaygeon where hotel and private rooms were at a premium. Fifty per cent of the 1,000-odd influx were Americans from the Northern States. Resort proprietors are wringing their hands in anguish to find cot-room for all comers, according to Roy Hicks of Rockland House. Boat rental-baitmen are doing business 'round the clock and popular minnows are selling at about a dollar a dozen as fast they can be dipped out of tanks.

Village fathers say it is their heaviest pickerel season kick-off, and the most orderly, with 12 deputy game wardens making the fishermen toe the legal line.

The story is the same at Buckhorn—accommodation, boats and bait at a premium and crowds larger than any year heretofor. Fifty boatloads of fishermen are now casting on the swift channel and having very fair luck, regardless of the drizzling weather.

Good At Dams

At the foot of the fast rapids at Burleigh south shore rocks and channel islands winked with beams of fishermen's flashlights as pickerel in good numbers were taken in the very early hours today. Control dam and Powerhouse dam in Lakefield were crowded and at Nassau fishermen overflowed the banks, dam and floating cribbing.

London St. dam, Auburn, the Locks, Bensfort Bridge and at the foot of whitewater in 50 spots along the Trent River standing space was at a premium and anything but the most straight-forward casting technique would gaff a fisherman instead of a fish.

Conservation officers and their deputies kept the eager types in hand. Fifteen cases of fishermen being nabbed for trying to beat the starting gun at Nassau and Young's Point have been reported. Undoubtedly there were others.

The general opening picture was excellent. Thousands of fishermen, fair catches for all, good business for storekeepers, baitmen, resort people and guides.

Everybody's happy.

Employees And Raybestos Accept Board's Decision

The union and management at the Canadian Raybestos Co. Ltd., have agreed to accept the majority report of an O.L.R.B. Conciliation Board whose recommendations included a 43¾-hour work week and a four-cent-an-hour increase for 125 production workers. A few minor details must still be worked out but the new one-year contract between the company and Local 527, United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America, will likely be signed by next Wednesday at the latest.

This removes the threat of a strike which would have been legal at Tuesday midnight. The union had described the majority report of the Conciliation Board as "inadequate and unsatisfactory," and the company were making preparations for carrying on with their office staff should the production workers actually go on strike.

Workers Vote To Accept

The big decision was made on Tuesday night at a membership meeting of Local 527 when the Raybestos workers voted to accept the majority report. The negotiating committee did not recommend acceptance. Further meetings were held Wednesday with the company and an agreement was reached on the major contract clauses.

Here are the main provisions of the new contract:

A 43¾ hour week instead of 45 hours and a four-cent an hour increase in pay.

Continuation of the cost-of-living bonus which, during the past year, has given the workers a cent an hour for each 1.4 rise in the index above the base rate of 170.7. This has amounted to 14 cents.

The voluntary checkoff of union dues remains. So does the present vacation setup and the group insurance and pension plan. There will be no change in the size of the negotiating committee and grievance procedure must be initiated within 30 days from the time of the alleged grievance.

The company must give seven days' notice of any layoffs and the employee must give seven days' notice if he is leaving.

In an emergency—where the shift has to be cancelled—workers can be laid off for three consecutive days, and not more than nine days in the year, without regard to seniority.

Pay For Holidays

An employee on leave of absence or ill, providing the period is not more than two weeks, will be paid for a statutory holiday if it falls within that period.

The night shift bonus is increased from seven cents an hour to nine cents.

Minimum labor rate for men at Raybestos is now $1.24 an hour (including the cost-of-living bonus).

The Conciliation Board majority report, on which the new agreement was based, was signed by Judge M. A. Miller of Cobourg, and E. Macaulley Dillon, Q.C., of Toronto. Drummond Wren filed a minority report for the union.

Farmer Refuses To Spray Cattle

B. Webster, a Mariposa farmer, was charged in police court at Lindsay Wednesday with obstructing officers in the spraying of his cattle for warble fly.

It was reported that Mr. Webster objects to the township sprayers entering upon his farm because approximately 10 of his cattle died last year, and he blamed the cortisone in the derris powder, the active element in the spraying treatment.

Officials of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, in recommending the spraying plan to farmers, have declared that there is no danger to their herds from the spraying treatments. They warned, however, that care should be taken to keep pigs from the range of the liquid spray

Shipping Fever

It is understood that whatever cattle Mr. Webster lost a year ago was not from the warble fly treatment but from shipping fever. Magistrate E. A. Gee adjourned the case for a week.

One of the clauses of the special Act of the Legislature requires assurance to the inspector appointed by a municipality that all herds be treated to the two sprays in the spring period. If a farmer prefers to do the work himself, the inspector has to see that it is done.

According to a Lindsay report of the police court action, Magistrate Gee said "he could not make the accused allow the warble fly control officers on his property."

That statement is not in accord with the information which was given to farmers of Peterborough and elsewhere that, as a protection to all farmers, every herd had to be treated either by hand or by spray. Otherwise, it was said, the purpose and effect of the statute would be defeated.

The herds referred to are those in municipalities whose farmers have, by petition to their councils, applied for warble fly control

AN EXPRESSMAN'S MISTAKE is now blamed for a meat shipment, part of which is being inspected by City Food Inspector Dr. Harold Worton (above), being seized to determine if it was horsemeat. A bill of lading accompanying the shipment stated it was horsemeat. Both Dr. Worton and another veterinarian who examined it Wednesday said it was beef. The C.P.R. Express agent in Smiths Falls where the bill of lading was made out now admits, although he first denied it, that an employee in the express office is probably responsible for the mistake.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Seized Meat Condemned, Unfit For Humans Says Sanitary Inspector

Loosely Packed In Orange Crates Labelled Horsemeat But Mistake At Express Office Blamed.

A shipment of meat seized by police and health authorities Wednesday to determine if it was horsemeat has been condemned as being unfit for human consumption. "We even objected to the packing," City Sanitary Inspector Ronald MacPherson said today. "It was poorly packed. There was only one sheet of paper around the loosely packed boneless meat which arrived in used orange crates. The meat is definitely unfit for human consumption," he said.

A bill of lading covering the shipment which arrived Wednesday morning stated the 92 pounds of meat was horsemeat. It was held under seizure by police and health authorities after it was delivered to a local butcher shop. Dr. Harold Worton, city food inspector and another veterinarian both stated the meat was not horsemeat after they examined it.

When it was learned that the shipment came from Daley Brothers Limited, a Smiths Falls firm which also processes horsemeat, a sample of the shipment was sent to Guelph for further investigation.

The man who bought it said it was to have been offered for human consumption but said he did not purchase it from Daley Brothers, but from a traveller who did not represent the Smiths Falls firm which manufactures dog and pet food, and also processes meat for "many other purposes," according to an official of the company.

However it was not shipped under refrigeration and arrived in such a condition that it would have been rejected as being unfit for human consumption. Dr. Worton said that in fast shipments it is not unusual for meat to be shipped without being refrigerated. The man who bought it said he had purchased boneless beef from the same traveller before.

John Daley, manager of Daley Brothers Limited of Smiths Falls which shipped the meat, said Wednesday it was beef which was shipped to Peterborough.

The meat, which Mr. Daley said was boneless beef carried no stamp. "We merely ship the meat to people and do not designate that it is for any particular use," Mr. Daley said.

An employee of the C.P.R. express office in Smiths Falls is blamed for the mistake which resulted in the meat being seized and held for investigation by the police and health authorities in the first place.

Mr. Daley said his company has a subsidiary firm which slaughters horses for dog and pet food and that two shipments were sent out Monday night, one to Eastview, which was labelled as horsemeat and the other, a shipment of beef addressed to a Peterborough firm. The express agent at Smiths Falls, being familiar with our name and knowing we handled horsemeat, apparently assumed both shipments were horsemeat and stamped the bills of lading horsemeat," Mr. Daley said.

Possible Mistake

Express agent Leonard DeGrosse who at first denied any mistake had been made because he remembered the two shipments and they were both horsemeat, later admitted that "one of the employees seeing the shipment came from Daley Brothers might have billed both as horsemeat."

Committee Denies Requests By Civic Union

Application of the Independent Employees' Union for incorporation of the cost of living bonus in their salaries, plus an increase of 10 cents an hour across the board, was not approved by the finance committee of the council Monday.

It was estimated that the proposed rates under the union schedule would be a net increase of 20 cents an hour. Pay from April 1, as sought, would be $1.15 an hour for starters; $1.25 for unskilled men; $1.30 for semi-skilled and $1.40 for skilled employees. They comprise the board of works, parks, sanitation and sewage disposal staffs.

Comment in committee was that at the previous meeting with representatives of the union, the delegation said they would be satisfied with the existing wage arrangement.

Committee recommended one of the clauses of the union letter to the effect that after three months of satisfactory employment, a starter would be raised to the unskilled bracket.

The committee was unwilling to depart from its policy this year of refusing to incorporate cost of living bonus in wage schedules.

Major Jack Peterson Speaks At Dinner

Major John F. Peterson, D.S.O., of St. Thomas, recently home from active service in Korea, drew the biggest attendance of the season at the United Services League dinner in his honor at the armouries Wednesday night. The company of commissioned officers, who comprise this League, was reported at 140 or more.

As speaker, Major Peterson's talk was "off the record." He returned to Peterborough among his friends of his several years here as a member of the Examiner staff, and also with those with whom he served with the Prince of Wales Rangers and associates on active service overseas with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders.

Ald. J. A. Dewart was chairman.

BRIGHT "SALADA" BOX

New Minister Of Health Matches Bevan

By ALAN HARVEY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 15 — (CP)—Iain Macleod, Britain's newly-named Minister of Health, has in effect passed up psychic bidding in favor of politics.

As an international bridge master, equally at home with Hansard or astride the dizzy heights of slam, vulnerable, doubled and redoubled, Macleod chose the parliamentary life. He still writes about bridge, but the strict ministerial and House of Commons schedule leaves little time for card games.

"Of course, one does miss bridge," says Macleod, a youthful Highlander whose elevation to high office after only two years as a Member of Parliament caused some surprise. "But once you get started on politics there's no getting away from it, anybody will tell you that."

Bright Young Man

Despite his short parliamentary experience, Macleod has been regarded as one of the Conservative party's bright young men. He is co-author of a well-received study of the social services, served four years as a back-room boy in the Conservative planning office under R. A. Butler, now Chancellor of the Exchequer, and was elected for Enfield West, a London suburb, in 1950.

The parliamentary exploit that put him in the public eye was his spirited clash with Aneurin (Nye) Bevan. Speaking after the Labor left-winger, Macleod admitted he had waited three years for a chance to wallop him. A debate on the health service without Bevan, Macleod said, would be like putting on "Hamlet" with no one in the part of the First Gravedigger.

Newspapers without any party strings called the speech "brilliant" and noted that when Macleod finished Bevan was no longer in his seat. The debate also strengthened Macleod's reputation for mastery of detail, a flair which may have been enhanced by his bridge background.

For this versatile politician, who is also a bagpipe-player, a Gaelic speaker, a self-confessed romantic and "rather a bad poet," started playing bridge as a youngster of nine, filling in at family games and picking up the know-how that enabled him to be ranked among the handful of top players in Britain.

At 22, he represented England in tournaments. About that time, in a house in Acol Road in Hampstead, he and three other experts worked out experimental principles now used by most top British players. Playing night after night into the small hours, scrawling hands on scraps of paper and tablecloths, they perfected the system known as acol, an approach-forcing method with light opening bids and light informative doubles.

Now, at 38, the new health minister is leaving bridge behind. There are some regrets, although he says surprisingly that the people you meet in tournament bridge aren't always the mental giants you might expect.

As for politics, he finds that the pace of modern parliamentary life, with its many all-night sittings, is hard on health and family ties. "I have a 10-year-old son, Torquil," he said in an interview over lunch at London's press club. "He's a lot like I was at that age. I'd like to take him out and play cricket, but there isn't any time."

Torquil, which is Norse for Thor, is also the Christian name of a brother of Macleod who is with an automobile company in Edmonton.

RIDGWAY LEAVES JAPAN—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway (centre) shakes hands with Japanese Premier Shigeru Yoshida at Haneda airport in Tokyo before taking off on the first leg of a 12,000-mile flight to Paris, where he will become Supreme Allied Commander for Europe. Mrs. Ridgway holds a bouquet. On hand to see them off were U.S. Ambassador Robert Murphy (left) and Gen. Mark Clark, who will replace Ridgway as U.S. and UN commander in the Far East.

SEDGEWICK, Alta.—(CP)—Village councillors here set a tax rate of 47 mills, down one mill from last year, including 22 mills for schools. The decrease was possible because of a re-assessment completed during the past year.

Churchmen's Sec'y Speaks At Marmora

MARMORA, May 15—(ENS)—United Church men from the Marmora and Springbrook charges accepted the invitation of the Rev. G. D. Young to assemble in St. Andrew's Hall on Monday evening to hear an address from his brother, Ralph Young, secretary for the 14-month-old movement known as United Church Men.

Ralph Young said that the Christian family is a great influence in national life. The object of the movement of which he is secretary, is not to tell the men of the church what to do but rather to feel their pulse in spiritual matters and to become "a servant to the men of the church."

"You and I" continued Mr. Young, "have to challenge each other as laymen." He then referred to the rise of lay religion in the evangelical academies in Germany and highlights of the Buffalo conference last February, when the theme was "The Christian at his daily work."

Mr. Young showed colored slides taken on a visit to Newfoundland and others of a miscellaneous nature.

UP FRONT at atom bomb test, two soldiers watch the bomb cloud mushroom up as they stand in foxhole trenches close to the blast. Psychological tests showed they took it in stride.

INTO FOXHOLES before atomic test at Yucca Flat, Nev., go Pte. Kenneth Larson (left) and Cpl. Clifford Stephens, Air Force observation troops. Like others in the tests, they underwent psychological tests before and after the blast.

As Soon Sit Near A-Blast As Take Parachute Jump

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON, (NEA)—Being right up close to an atomic bomb explosion is no more frightening to a paratrooper than making a jump.

In fact, the average American G.I. takes manoeuvres with live atomic weapons pretty much in his emotional stride, with the implication that he could face real atomic warfare with no more qualms than any American soldier has ever had when facing combat.

These conclusions are based on extensive scientific psychological and physiological testing of the troops who participate in live atomic detonations. Some of the top psychiartiests of the country are running the study for the army and act as observers with the troops during an atomic manoeuvre.

Various psychological examinations for troops who are going to be close to a blast are given before they are told what they are going to do, the night before the explosion, and immediately afterwards.

The physiological testing includes use of a polygraph which measures rate of heart beat and breathing during questioning, a device similar to a lie-detector. Factual tests are given on how much the men learn from the briefings and seeing the explosion.

Purposes of the tests are twofold, according to Maj. Jay B. Mowbray, an army psychological research expert. First, the army wants to know if the men learn enough to make an atomic manoeuvre worth all the trouble. And second, Mowbray says the army wants to know exactly how scared the men get.

So far the only results which have been completely analyzed are those from the first explosions in Nevada, which involved only paratroopers. Many of these results are secret. However, some of the general findings can be revealed, along with preliminary results from the most recent atomic manoeuvres at Yucca Flat.

Watch For Panic

Before each test, psychological observers planted among the men watch carefully for evidences of panic or attempts to escape it. No panic has been detected. And no more than normal attempts to alibi out of an all-day exercise have been seen.

In fact, an opposite interesting fact is observed. During any given time among a group of troops a fixed fraction of the men will develop some kind of emotional trouble, from ulcers to complete breakdown. During the time the men are waiting for the actual atomic test, the number of psychoneurotic casualties decreases.

Mowbray admits the results involving paratroopers might not be valid for the whole army. They are an elite, volunteer and highly-trained group. But the preliminary results from the most recent tests involving ground, air force and Marine troops indicate that the reactions of all G.I.s are just about the same.

Mowbray cites one example of the factual tests of the men's knowledge of atomic weapons given before and after the detonation, although most of the results are secret.

Before the explosion, more than 80 per cent of the men mistakenly believe that they need special protective clothing at the distance they are to be from it. Afterwards, in a written examination, all but about three per cent of the men show they have learned the facts involved.

Little Passed On

A factual written exam before the explosion was given to another unit which was not going to participate but which was in the same division as the one that participated. The same exam was given a month later to find out how much the non-participating outfit had learned by word of mouth from the men who had gone through a blast.

There was very little distortion of the information passed on, no wild tales told of what an A-bomb explosion was like. But there wasn't much total information passed on, either.

2 Locals Reject Robinson Secession Move

HAMILTON, May 15— (CP). — J. Harold Daoust, Canadian director of the Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), said Wednesday night that membership meetings of two locals in the Hamilton area "completely repudiated" the secession movement headed by Jack Robinson, former union official.

Local 1269 at the Nubone Corset Company, Port Dalhousie, voted to rescind a former decision that lined the local up with the Robinson group.

Local 720 at Porrits and Spence Company, Hamilton, voted to remain in the T.W.U.A. Two members of the executive resigned after the membership vote.

The dispute is a result of dissatisfaction of some union members with the administration of the International Union.

WASHINGTON, May 15 (CP)— George Baldanzi, defeated candidate for president of the Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.) will go to work for the rival A.F.L. Textile Workers within a few days, it was reliably learned Wednesday night.

Baldanzi, until last month executive vice-president of the 400,000-member C.I.O. union, lost his battle to oust Emil Rieve as union president at the union convention at Cleveland earlier this month.

Although A.F.L. union headquarters here refused to comment, it was reported that Baldanzi hopes to take with him, when he severs his C.I.O. conection, upwards of 25,000 rank-and-file members of the C.I.O. union.

Baldanzi has been hired as organizational director of the A.F.L. union. The union claims a membership of 90,000 and recently launched a stiff organizational drive throughout the South. At present, the A.F.L. union is strongest in Canada, the Central East Coast States, and the South.

Charged In Thefts

OTTAWA, May 15 (CP)—Lionel Damphouse, suburban Eastview contractor, has been charged in connection with theft of supplies at the R.C.A.F. air station at Rockcliffe and will appear in city police court today for preliminary hearing.

Arrested by R.C.M.P. officers following an investigation into the disappearance of more than $4,000 worth of material and equipment, Damphouse faces a charge of theft of coal and coke valued at more than $200.

Judge Criticizes Two Newsmen

WINDSOR, May 15—(CP)—Two Windsor newspapermen were criticized Wednesday by Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven of the Ontario Supreme Court in connection with a column which appeared Saturday in The Windsor Daily Star.

After lecturing W. L. Clark, editor of the Star, and R. M. Harrison, a Star columnist, on the right of the press to comment "fairly and candidly" on the administration of justice, Mr. Justice Treleaven asked both men to return to court Friday. In the meantime, he said, he will consider the case.

Mr. Justice Treleaven took exception to a column by Mr. Harrison in which the columnist commented on the May 7 acquittal of Ernest Clayton, 19, and Raymond Gagnon, 22, on charges of raping an 18-year-old Windsor girl.

Mr. Harrison had stated that the charge was "laughed out of court" by Gordon Fraser, defence counsel for Clayton and Gagnon.

Mr. Justice Treleaven said that the columnist had displayed an "utter and absolute . . . disregard for the truth . . . the comment was not fair and candid."

SEAFORTH, Ont., May 15 —(CP)—Overcome by swamp gas while attempting to dismantle a water drilling rig, William Davidson, 34, Wingham, plunged down a well 30 feet to his death Wednesday on a Tuckersmith township farm, five miles south of here. Two men, one of them a Seaforth fireman wearing respirator equipment, also were overcome as they were lowered into the 50-foot well in an effort to rescue Davidson.

Revived Play Hit On Broadway

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK, May 15—(AP)—"Tovarich," Jacques Deval's play about exiled Russian Royalty, was revived on Broadway Wednesday night and it proved to be as delightful as when it ran for 356 performances here in 1936.

The play, written in French and translated into English by Robert E. Sherwood, has an extraordinarily good cast of stars including Uta Hagen, Luther Adler, Herbert Berghof, Tomney Brent and Paul Laurence.

The story is about Prince Mikail Alexandrovitch Ouratieff and the Grand Duchess Tatiana Petrovna who have reached Paris after escaping from Russia. There they find happiness working as a butler and a maid, although their employees turn out to be good friends of a Russian General.

Tovarich is still a dynamic play, and undoubtedly more timely today than when it first came to Broadway.

Dutch Couples Wed 50 Years Get Gifts

By HENRI SCHOUP

AMSTERDAM, May 15—A few days ago, a long black limousine drew up before a quiet little house in one of Amsterdam's poorer districts. Out stepped the driver, carrying a portable gramophone. He put on a record, and knocked at the door of Mr. and Mrs. Slesker. To the strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin he presented the 80-year-old couple with a large sausage, a bouquet of tulips, a box of cigars, a box of chocolates, and an envelope containing £10.

It was a gift, on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary, from a donor in America—a millionaire who preferred to remain anonymous. He had chosen this novel way of celebrating his own golden wedding, and during the coming month no fewer than 80 old couples will receive similar gifts. The American announced a year ago that he intended to pay a tribute to Amsterdam, his birthplace, by paying it a visit to celebrate his 50th year of marriage, and he wanted to make other couples in the town as happy as himself.

The gifts could hardly have been better chosen. Mr. an Mrs. Slesker are poor people who had decided to let the memorable day pass by without ceremony. Jan Slesker was once a well-known pace-maker in cycling races, but is now living in difficult circumstances. There is pathos too. Of the second couple visited, the wife is crippled, and has been confined to her bed for the last 21 years.

Idea Wrecked

Unfortunaely, the naive charm of the whole idea was wrecked by the untimely publication of the donor's name—76-year-old Johan K. Smit, so he stayed in America and entrusted his gifts and messages, accompanied by the incidenal music, to Mr. D. J. Koopman, secretary of a benevolent organisation known as the Friends of One's Youth Association. Hence it comes about that Mr. Koopman, surrounded by sausages and bon-bons, cigars and tulips, is making his way around Amsterdam by car, clutching his portable gramophone and playing the part of a summertime Santa Claus.

Johan K. Smit was born in Amsterdam, the son of a diamond merchant. His business became a world-wide organisation with its head office in Amsterdam until 1940. When the Germans invaded Holland, Johan K. Smit put two sacks of diamonds on board a British destroyer bound for Britain from the Hook of Holland. While he stayed in Holland, one son, Jan, continued to manage his London branch and the other son, Piet, headed the New York office.

Smit called his villa, near Utrecht, "Welcome", and today his residence in the United States (at Little Silver, Monmouth County, New Jersey) bears the same name.

During the past two years numerous Dutch charitable institutions have received cheques from him, but the sender was always anonymous. Forty-five years ago he led a fight against usury by making loans without taking interest to 5,000 people.

So many Dutch people have been impressed by Smit's golden wedding gifts that there is some likelihood that he will himself receive some anniversary gift when he celebrates his own golden wedding this Saturday.

It means the detection and computation of the dangerous gamma rays left after an atomic explosion. The 4,000,000-volt atom smasher at the University of British Columbia was used.

Golfers Must Go West To Find Fame And Fortune

By The Canadian Press

Golfers in Canada will have to go west this year for fame and fortune.

A Canadian Press survey shows all the major Canadian golf tournaments scheduled for points west of the Great Lakes.

Beginning in Winnipeg with the Canadian Open Championship July 16-19, the "big time" moves westward to Edmonton for the Canadian Ladies' Open and Close tournaments Aug. 7-17 and concludes in Vancouver Aug. 25-30 with the Canadian Amateur Championship.

Jim Ferrier, Australian-born Californian, will be trying for his third straight open triumph and top money of $2,500 in the $15,000 scramble at Winnipeg's St. Charles Country Club. Among his competitors there likely will be Jack Burke, the Texan who was an early-tournament leader in last year's open at Toronto Mississaugua Club and leading money winner in the United States winter circuit last year.

Marlene Stewart, the ex-caddie from Fonthill, Ont., who at 17 won both Canadian ladies' titles last year at Laval-Sur-Le-Lac, Que., will be out to repeat when the women golfers meet in Edmonton.

At Vancouver's Capilano Club, the amateurs will vie for the championship won last year in Ottawa by Vancouver's Walter McElroy.

Junior Championship

The Canadian Junior Championship will be held at the Capilano Club Aug. 23. Laurie Roland of Vancouver beat Doug Silverberg, defending champion from Red Deer, Alta., by one stroke to win the match last year in Ottawa.

Also Aug. 23 at the Capilano, Ontario, will defend its interprovincial team golf championship for the second year in a row. Sharp-shooting Nick Weslock of Windsor, led his team to its 26th Willingdon Cup Cup victory last year in Ottawa.

The Canadian Professional Golfers Association will decide next Monday in Montreal when its championship will be held. The date likely will be in July and the course in Winnipeg.

Vancouver launched its tournament season—probably as early as any city in the country—May 4 when Hugh Morrison, Victoria amateur, defeated Vancouver professional Fred Wood 2 and 1 in the $1,450 Vancouver open. And one of the last tournaments of the season will be held at Vancouver's Shaughnessy Club—the British Columbia open Oct. 2.

In the interval, New Westminster will hold its amateur contest June 1; B. C. Seniors will play June 3 at Vancouver's Point Grey Club; July 27 the closed provincial amateur tournament will be held in New Westminster; a day later at Vancouver's Marine Drive Club, the provincial amateur will be held, and the province's Willingdon Cup trials will be held at the Capilano Club Aug. 9.

To Select Team

Alberta's Willingdon Cup team will be selected during the Alberta amateur championship July 23-27 at Edmonton's Highlands Club. Bill Tait of Calgary is the defending champion. Doug Silverberg will defend his Alberta junior championship June 14 at Edmonton's Riverside Club, and the $2,000 Alberta open, Bud Loktus, Edmonton, defending champion, will be played in Calgary during the Labor Day weekend.

There are no major tournaments in Saskatchewan.

In Manitoba, the Provincial open will be held July 3-4 at Winnipeg's Elmhurst Golf Club. Joe Tachan of Winnipeg won the $100 first prize last year. The province's amateur tournament will be from Aug. 13-16 at the Niakwa Country Club, Winnipeg, with Bill Judd of Winnipeg as defending champion.

Manitoba's Willingdon Cup trials will be held July 27 and Aug. 10 at Elmhurst and Pine Ridge Golf Clubs, respectively, in Winnipeg.

Nova Scotia will hold its amateur and professional tournaments, along with its junior and senior, July 7-10 at Truro. The Maritime championships will be decided Aug. 4-7 at the Brightwood Club in Dartmouth, N.S., and the Maritime Seniors will play Sept. 3 at Digby, N.S.

The New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island tournament will be held in Edmundston, N.B., July 21-23.

17th Tournament

The 17th annual Duke of Kent tournament, a 36-hole medal play event open to all amateurs in the British Commonwealth, will be held June 28 at the Royal Quebec Golf Club in Boischatel, near Quebec City. Jack Guthrie, Royal Montreal Club, won it last year.

Quebec's women golfers will vie for honors in the provincial women's amateur championships at the same club July 7-11.

Montreal Ilesmere Club will be the setting for the Quebec open July 25. A Quebec spring open will be held May 30 at Montreal's Summerlea Club and the Quebec amateur championship will be decided Aug. 8-10 at the Mount Bruno Club in Montreal.

In Ontario, the provincial open will be July 3-4 at the Weston Golf Club. Smiley Quick of Los Angeles won the $1,000 first prize last year at Kitchener with a 54-hole score of 209.

Qualifying rounds for Ontario junior championship final July 11 at London's Highland Club will be held July 2 at Kingston's Cataraqui Club, The Summit Club, Toronto and the Roseland Club, Windsor, and July 7 at the Sunningdale Club, London and the Glendale Club, Hamilton.

The junior best ball tournament will be held July 18 at Toronto Summit and the international boys' match will be at the Mississaugua Club, Toronto, July 29.

Ontario amateurs will play Aug. 6-9 at Kingston's Cataraqui Club. Toronto's Lambton Club will be the scene of the provincial seniors' championship Aug. 15.

Willingdon Cup trials will he held at the London Hunt Club June 11, Scarboro Club June 21, Burlington Club June 25 and during the Ontario open July 3 at the Weston Club.

Ontario's pros will play for the Millar Trophy Aug. 14-16 at Toronto's Islington Club.

THE BETTER PART OF VALOR—Sen. Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin, whose fitness to sit in the Senate was being considered at a hearing of the Senate Elections subcommittee, indicated that he would not testify as he was invited to, but would instead boycott the proceedings. Here, while the hearing goes on, he sits reading on a park bench in the Capitol Grounds.

Look For Husbands

LONDON (CP)—A woman wrote to the London Daily Mirror saying she wants to emigrate to one of the Commonwealth countries with matrimony in mind. The newspaper answered that Canada might be a possibility, and said there are 168,000 surplus men there.

Army Democracy

OSLO — (CP)—The Norwegian parliament has voted unanimously to set up a civilian grievance committee to safeguard the rights of conscripts and officers in the Armed Forces. The body will be headed by a salaried grievance inspector with power to carry his investigation to the highest military authorities, but reporting to parliament.

8,535 People Saw 101 Films During April

There were 101 showing of films in Peterborough city and district to 8,535 people during April.

These figures were reported by R. C. Ward, National Film Board respresentative, at the meeting of the Peterborough Film Council held at the public library.

William Graff, secretary-treasurer, reported that $230 in donations had been received since the council opened its campaign for funds in February.

Join Pool

Mr. Graff also reported that the Peterborough Council has purchased two shares in the Eastern Ontario Federation of Film Councils purchase pool which will entitle the local council to draw on $6,000 worth of films from the federation alone.

The showing of the film, Hold Back the Night, was the feature of the meeting. This film is an account of the symptons and treatment of glaucoma, the eye condition that causes 12 per cent of all blindness.

The symptons of this disease as shown by the film are a tendency towards clumsiness, a series of discarded eye glasses, morning headaches, rainbows around lights and mistiness before the eyes.

The film shows that the disease can be checked and stresses the importance of early diagnosis.

Discussion

Following the film a discussion was led by Colin McEachern, district representative of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Three other films were also screened at the meeting. They were: Crossroads of Life—a United Nations film on juvenile delinquency; Accidents Don't Happen—one of a series of National Film Board films on factory safety; and Art in Haiti.

Says Reasonable Rent $85 For Four Rooms

OTTAWA, May 15 — (CP)—A reasonable rent for a four-room apartment is $85 a month, considering the times.

That's the opinion of D. B. Mansur, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

He told the Commons Banking and Commerce committee Wednesday he doesn't think apartment houses can be built now to rent four-roomed accommodation for less.

Cycling Surgeon

LONDON — (CP) — Dr. Edgar Cyriax, 75, is a manipulative surgeon in one of London's more expensive districts but he can't get used to automobiles and still rides a 1914-model bicycle. For the benefit of wealthy patients he usually parks the bike some distance away.

THEY'RE BACK — The Montreal Alouettes, hot on the trail of topnotch football material for their 1952 team, recently announced the signing of veterans Herb Trewick and Virgil Wagner. That means that these two darlings of the football campus will be back with their proud poppas. Left, Michael Wagner, triple-threat back from Belleville, Ill., and Toni Trawick, No. 1 cheer leader for the Als' big lineman.

Oak Heights Women Plan Sale Of Aprons

WARKWORTH, May 15 (ENS) —The Women's Association of Oak Heights United Church met on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Jack Potter with 18 ladies and five children present.

Your A&P is in the food business primarily. But it likes to feel it sells more than groceries . . . more than meats . . . more than dairy products, baked goods and vegetables.

A&P deals in neighbourliness . . . friendliness . . . service. We think you're entitled to them every time you shop — at no extra charge.

We can't wrap them . . . but you get them with whatever you buy. And you always will — as long as they make A&P a more pleasant place to shop!

LEANING TREES—A huge landslide four miles from Ohsweken near the Grand River, in the Six Nations Reserve, near Brantford, left these trees slanted drunkenly. Many trees and thousands of tons of earth dropped into the river during the landslide, which covered an area of 600 feet by 200 feet. Deanna Jamieson, standing erect on the ground, shows the extent of the angle of the trees, whose deep-seated roots resisted their fall.

6,000-Ton Pillar To Be Tipped Into B.C. River

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The swift flow of the Pend-d'Oreille River in southeastern British Columbia will be blocked in spectacular fashion later this year.

A pillar, or monolith, 180 feet high and weighing 6,000 tons, will be built beside the river, 13 miles south of Trail, and then tipped into it.

One side will have contours so that it will fit the river bottom. In position, it will be 25 feet deep at the deepest point, and 30 feet thick, tapering to 10 feet at the top. It will block the river through the south two-thirds of the channel, enabling construction men to bare the river bed and proceed with erection of a dam.

The monolith will be the highest ever built, but not the heaviest. One erected in Quebec's Saguenay River in 1930 was only about half as high, but weighed twice as much.

Will Be Tipped

The B.C. pillar will be the first to be tipped into place. It will be pulled off balance through a cable attached to the top and powered by a winch. A steel hinge embedded in the foundation will guide the direction of the fall. Previously such pillars have been blasted from their foundations and rolled into position.

The monolith will be built by Northern Construction Company and J. W. Stewart Ltd. It is a step in the $30,000,000 Waneta power project, which, in turn, is part of the $63,000,000 expansion program of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd.

The Investment Dealers' Association of Canada, with head office in Toronto, has issued a new edition of its booklet, "Investment Terms and Definitions." Since it was first published in 1947, some 35,000 copies have been distributed.

The Packaging Association of Canada will hold Canada's first packaging exposition in Toronto Oct. 21-23 in the Coliseum of the Canadian National Exhibition grounds, Toronto. More than 100 exhibitors of packaging services, materials, containers, machinery and material-handling equipment will be on hand. Five thousand packaging users and suppliers, and representatives of United States, British and European manufacturers, are expected to attend.

The current monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada, noting that universities and schools are finishing up another year, comments:

"The person who quits learning upon leaving university or school is giving in to an idea of limited usefulness, limited satisfaction and limited happiness."

Fears Of Price Wars Unfounded–Garson

TRENTON, May 15 (CP).—Justice Minister Garson said Wednesday night the ban on retail price-fixing by manufacturers has not caused large department and chain stores to engage in "ruinous" price-cutting.

In a speech to the joint service clubs and Chamber of Commerce of Trenton, Mr. Garson said that when parliament passed anti-price-fixing legislation last year it was feared that price wars would develop. The fears were unfounded.

Later, in a second speech at Belleville, he addressed the Eureka Masonic lodge on the Commonwealth. He described it as a living symbol of co-operation among nations.

Norwood 50-50 Club Plans Weiner Roast

NORWOOD, May 15—(ENS)—May meeting of the 50-50 Club, was held Tuesday evening in the Sunday school room and was presided over by Stanley Flett.

During the business discussion it was decided that the June meeting will be in the form of a weiner roast at Earl and Angeline Hamblin's cottage on Stony Lake.

The group leaders, Irwin and Norma Warner, then took charge of the meeting. The worship service consisted of two hymns, a scripture portion read by Norma Warner and prayer by the Rev. H. K. Wright. Robert and Audrey Garden played a piano and accordion selection. The main event of the evening was a scavenger hunt with the club divided into four groups.

No Ingenuity In Kitchen Housewives Criticized

WINNIPEG — (CP) — A cooking expert claims the average Canadian housewife does not use her ingenuity when cooking meals.

Miss Elaine Collett of Toronto doesn't claim that women should revert to the old-fashioned homemaker type, bending over the kitchen stove all day. But she claims that there is not enough home-cooking to serve at the family table.

Too many prepared foods are served. There are too many meals "purchased at the corner delicatessen store."

Get Variety

Miss Collett also wants to cure Canadian women of serving the "eternal sandwich" to guests who arrive unexpectedly, and of making "the same old cakes" every time there's baking done.

The problem, she says, is lack of time, leading to lack of interest in what has to be prepared in the kitchen.

Miss Collett claims modern children contribute to their mothers' lack of interest.

They rush in at lunch time for a sandwich then rush out again to play marbles or baseball.

Lunch time never used to be like that, she says.

Miss Collett's ideas for raising the standard of home meals include preparing food in bulk ahead of the time when it will be needed and storing it in the freezing cabinet of the refrigerator.

Then there is a list of quick recipes and "stretcher" dishes for those who have to prepare meals day by day. The "stretchers" cut the cost of meals by making meat go further.

Home and School Association News

MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK, May 14 (ENS)—Alex. Gilbert was elected president at the meeting of the Home and School Association held in the school auditorium on Monday evening. Other officers elected included: Mrs. Clifford Hall second vice-president, Mrs. Ed. Nattress returned as recording secretary, Mrs. M. E. Hobbs returned as corresponding secretary, and five executive members, the Rev. A. M. Butler, the Rev. A. A. Chote, the Rev. W. H. Heustin, Mrs. Homer Ouellette, and Mrs. Douglas Sheppard. The positions of first vice-president and treasurer are yet to be filled.

Mrs. Bruce Ingham, the retiring president, thanked the members for their co-operation during her term of office since the formation of the association two years ago.

Guest speaker was John Londerville, of the Peterborough Normal School staff, who spoke on the subject, "The Play and I." He said that in a play, as in a picture, it was necessary to have a centre of interest. If the action of the play were stopped at any time, it should present a picture with lines pointing to this centre of interest, and there should be harmony of color. There should be different levels in the picture presented. Some characters should be standing and others sitting, or part of the stage itself should be on a higher level. Only the Dutch had succeeded in painting in flat lines, and even there the flatness is relieved by windmills or trees in their landscapes.

The good use of gestures was of great help in presenting plays. It was necessary for the actor to win the confidence of the audience and to take them right into the play with him. The choice of play was important. Only those that were really good were worth the effort required to produce them.

Drama has a definite place in schools because it teaches rhythm and trains the children to speak clearly. Even pupils of Grades 5 to 8 can successfully present sections of Shakespearian plays, such as the three funny men scenes from Midsummer Night's Dream. The presenting of a play ties in good oral English, social studies in period costumes, and art in the harmonizing colors of costumes. The practising of gestures gives poise. A play is a group activity and teaches co-operation. It teaches children to think. A play cannot be produced without thought.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. W. W. Kennedy and Percy Hamilton moved the vote of thanks.

Beverley Patton played a piano solo.

Mrs. A. M. Butler, Mrs. Alex Gilbert, and Miss Edith Clarke were appointed as a committee to see how many parents of 4 and 5-year-olds would be interested in the forming of a kindergarten class.

Mrs. Ingham gave a report of the 33rd annual convention of the Home and School Associations, held in Toronto during Easter week

Mr. Hamilton's and Mrs. Henry Gray's rooms tied for the parents' attendance award. Since Mr. Hamilton's room had won it last, he suggested that it go to Mrs. Gray's primary class.

Refreshments were served by Miss Helen Kent and her committee.

During the past weekend Senator W. A. Buchanan of Ottawa and Mr. Tracy Freeman of Burlington were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Payne. While here they also called on Mr. and Mrs. Fred McIndoo of Fairmount.

Mrs. Mac Walker, Barbara and James, of Garden Hill, Miss Mary Powell, Susan Powell and Evelyn Beatty of Elizabethville were visitors with their aunt Miss Mary L. Widdis on Sunday.

By GAIL DUGAS

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Fabric is working fashion miracles every day, making important changes in both our buying habits and our wardrobe outlook.

Recently designers started doing sleepwear that doubles beautifully for public appearances, and once again, the trick lies in the fabric.

This time, it's acetate tricot that's opaque for wear in public and yet both smooth and soft for comfortable sleeping.

High - fashion loungewear (left) is designed by Henson for use in overnight travel. Pyjamas have a tied-in bloomer effect at the knee and are in solid dark color. They're paired with a robe in printed acetate-rayon tricot. The robe has still other wardrobe uses since it can double for either a brunch coat or as a beachcoat.

For hot-weather sleeping, many women are addicted to the neatness and comfort of the shortie pyjama. These (right) in aceate tricot are ideal for this purpose and equally good for getting a suntan during the day. Further, the fabric is quick-drying and needs no ironing.

Martyn, convener of the A.Y.P.A. convention banquet last Saturday evening, was praised for the success of this affair undertaken by the W.A. Delegates to the W.A annual meeting in Toronto gave pleasing reports and introduced the study book for next year, "Thine is the Glory". Mrs. T. H. Floyd reported on G.A. activittes. A request to Archdeacon Robertson from Mount Dennis W.A. to hold a picnic here was read to the Association and it was decided to ask these ladies to have a joint picnic with Peterborough. Presidents Mrs. F. E. Hooper presided and devotions were led by the Archdeacon. Mrs. W. M. Cruthers and Miss M. English were tea hostesses during a social hour.

PCVS Girls' Assoc. Gives Tea For Mothers

About 400 mothers were guests at the Mother and Daughter Tea at P.C.V.S. on Wednesday after school. This event marked the close of this term's activities of the Girls' Athletic Association, an organization which approximately 90 per cent of the girl students belong to.

It was perhaps the largest crowd to attend one of these teas in the past few years and the ladies found themselves thoroughly enjoying it, while their young hostesses revelled in their "dressed-up" roles.

The girls had decorated the gymnasium with huge paper flowers and streamers in pink, yellow with green and they had wall trellises entwined with delicate mauve lilacs. The candle-lighted tea table had a charmingly arranged centrepiece of fragrantly dainty apple blossoms with pink and white tulips and a matching bouquet was on the piano.

Tea pourers were Mrs. P. A. Martyn, mother of Miss Margaret Martyn, the president of the G.A.A., Mrs. C. S. Browne, wife of the principal, Miss Helen Gerrard, a former teacher in the home economics department, and Mrs. A. S. Hustwitt of Toronto, mother of Miss Audrey Hustwitt who is in charge of the girls' athletic training.

Refreshments were in charge of Miss Barbara Clark and were served by senior girls. A background of piano music was providede during this time by Misses Mary McBride, Shirley Pritchard and Carol Wood.

After tea there was a demonstration of gymnastics and figure moulding routines and an intriguing Scottish dance by a company of girls wearing very attractive short pleated skirts in a variety of plaids.

Chevrons and awards for basketball, volleyball and swimming in the various grades were announced by Miss Hustwitt and presented to the winners by Mr. C. S. Browne.

Each of the guests was given a small corsage of pastel sweet peas which were made up under direction of Miss Maisie Shearer and handed out by Carolyn and Josie Hendren. Decorating of the room and tea table was in charge of Miss Gwen Mitchell.

Care Of African Violets Interests 200 Homemakers

"African violet growing is past being a housewife's hobby; it is a disease, — and there is no cure" said Mrs. Joan Copeland of Cooksville, in introducing herself to 200 ladies, who Wednesday afternoon attended a dessert luncheon given by ladies of Peter Robinson Chapter, IODE.

Mrs. Copeland was given her first plant as a wedding gift and the disease was also caught by her hus and, Frank Copeland, who now assists her with a flourishing business in African violets. Together, by the method of trial and error, they have found out how they can grow beautiful, healthy plants that will bloom all year round, and they now have nearly 60 varieties. Their way is simple and in most cases contrary to the "old wives' tales" so freely circulated by amateur growers.

But, Mrs. Copeland told the ladies who have been successful with their violets to continue their way of caring for them, and pay no at tention to her advice. She warned against following instructions in any magazine or paper unless the address of the writer is stated, for differences in climate make considerable difference in the care needed.

"Window ledge culture" and "greenhouse culture" are different as regards violets, she stated. They are really "house plants" and are not "temperamental and hard to grow" as the florist may tell you. In fact, Mrs. Copeland's plants did better when she was away at work and forgot to tend them, she confesses.

Lack of humidity in the house will show in drying up of the buds before they open, and escaping coal gas has the same effect. A red clay pot is best for the plants and this can be set in a jardiniere for appearance sake if at least an inch of air space is allowed between.

Wet soil is important for the plant, since it came from a swamp, but Mrs. Copeland has found it doesn't matter if it is watered from the top or the bottom. However, she prefers watering from the top and gave a list of reasons to support that method. Water should be tepid or lukewarm, but never boiling, and rainwater is best. Some water should be boiled in an open dish to evaporate gases before using it.

Mrs. Copeland even gives her plants a bath, dunking them right into a soapy solution and then rinsing them to kill insects or clean them of dust. No harm can come so long as they are kept out of direct light until dry. Similarly, water spilled on the leaves will not mark them unless sunlight should "burn" the place.

Correct lighting can be gauged by the principle: "If it's too hot for you, it'll burn the plants," Mrs. Copeland stated. Soil mixture should be mulchy and should be treated with a liquid plant food from time to time she believes.

Over-watering is indicated when tiny white worms are found in the bottom of the jardiniere and too much water will cause "drown rot" which is first noted in a leaf curled over the pot and getting jelly-like.

The enemy of the violet is called "cyclamen mite" and it cannot be seen but can be carried by handling another person's plants. The disease can wipe out an entire houseful of plants, the danger signal being the leaves turning a sickly green.

Eeveral guests in the Y.W.C.A. recreation room had brought along their own violets for advice on proper care. These and ladies who asked questions were rewarded for their interest by gifts of plants, plant food, etc., from Mrs. Copeland.

Chapter Regent Mrs. P. Sanders introduced the speaker.

St. James' Girls Bring Mothers To Affiliation

A mother and daughter banquet was an enjoyable event which took place in the junior room of St. James' United Church Sunday school Tuesday evening, with about 150 mothers and daughter of the C.G.I.T. and Explorers' Mission Band and Mission Circle attending.

Tables were attractively arranged, and spring colors of mauve and yellow used in decorations Flowers adorned each table.

Mrs. G. Hewitt, W.M.S. president, was chairman for the program which opened with singing the Doxology. Mrs. H. McCormack led in a lively sing song.

The On-We-Go mission circle conducted worship service on the Mothers' Day theme. Those taking part were: Miss Muriel Hall, Miss Barbara McCullough and Mrs. H. F. Doig.

Ann Gibson proposed the toast to the mothers and Mrs. R. B. English responded.

The girls of the Explorer group recited their purpose, and four girls of the Mission Band, Beverley Fife, Marion Finnie, Shirley Phillips and Betty Webb recited the Mission Band purpose.

The Rev. H. McCormack addressed the gathering briefly, basing his thoughts on the words of the psalmist, "The King's daughter is all glorious within." He referred to the ideal which the C.G.I.T. purpose seeks to plant in the lives of the girls.

A solo entitled "Morning" by Mrs. L. McLaren, a former C.G.I.T. leader, was much enjoyed. Also a humorous reading "Spreading the News" by Mrs. L. Aikenhead.

The impressive affiliation service of the C.G.I.T. with the W.M.S. closed the meeting. Miss Gladys Langton, Presbyterial secretary for C.G.I.T., assisted, also Mrs. Clysdale leader.

The girls presented a crib quilt and a money donation to the W.M.S.

Mothers' Aux. 14th Birthday Is Celebrated

At the meeting of Trinity Baby Band Mothers Wednesday evening the 14th birthday of this auxiliary was celebrated. One of the highlights was the lighting of the 14 pink candles on the beautifully decorated birthday cake. This was carried out by honorary presidents Mrs. S. D. Carver and Mrs. D. B. Gordon and past presidents Mrs. V. Skitch, Mrs. A Malby, Mrs. N. Elliott, Mrs. W. R. Philp and Mrs. Mrs. Eric Edmondson.

The program was in charge of Mrs. R. Huffman's group. Mrs. R. M. Elliott read scripture and Mrs. R. Kemp led in prayer. Guest speaker was Mr. Charles Phillips National Parks Department at Jasper and Banff, Alberta

Mr. Phillips showed colored slides he had taken of the many beauty spots in the Canadian Rockies and he explained each one with thorough first hand knowledge. He was introduced by Mrs. Huffman and Mrs. F. Stenson thanked him for the enjoyment and education the travelogue had provided.

President Mrs. W. B. Gordon presided for business. Mrs. E. Wellman gave a very satisfying account of results of the May Tea. Although all reports in this connection have not yet been received, there promises to be a good profit to further the missionary work of this Auxiliary

June 12 was announced as date for the annual picnic for mothers and children at Nicholls Oval. The executive will be in charge and arrange the races and games.

A social time followed the meeting when the group in charge served dainty refreshments.

500 Ladies See Fashion Show Of Beach Wear

About 500 Peterborough women were privileged Wednesday to be invited guests to manufacturer's showings of the very latest in bathing suits and accessories and sun-time and summer party dresses.

The invitations were extended by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Levine and the fashions shown are available through them exclusively.

Before the appearance of the models, Miss Marilyn Davis, Miss Roni Burkette, a former "Miss Toronto", and Miss Lucille Collins, there was shown a film in color featuring some of the same garments modelled as they were seen on California beaches and in fashion parades late in 1951.

Here were shown suit designs that have just come from the workrooms. This year's styles are on the theme of the moment "Heavenly Bodies", and they have such names as "Outer Space", "Take-Off," etc., and feature "upper strata" bra treatment; whole idea of the styling being "conquering curve space" with the result of "controlling space on beaches".

The fabulous suit of 24-karat gold, which it is said can be melted down to two ounces of solid gold, if the owner should go bankrupt, was a simple miracle of style. More flashy was the sequin-trimmed velvet suit.

Most enthusiasm was shown for the ensembles that had so many way of making a girl more glamorous in the sun. A printed terry cloth number was terribly smart as a cape and hood but also nice as a strapless sun-dress and as a skirt to go over a wet bathing suit.

Dresses liked best were a brown print with a dash of red and bright yellow, the skirt tiers piped with the yellow. The strapless top, expertly fashioned with built-in elastic shirring so it will stay absolutely in place, could be topped with a tiny matching bolero for afternoons in town. A new sundress was of gold moire with a very full skirt and nicely fitting bodice, also with its own bolero.

Very smart was a colorful striped woven chambray dress with tiered full skirt and a matching stole with flares to blend with the skirt idea. An African print was also nice.

Gold rough linen made an attractive bolero, sun dress and swim suit featuring the ruffled bra which flatters both those who "have" and those who "have not". The mother and daughter dresses were both delightful designs, with charming ruffled, off-the-shoulder decollete.

Some of the siuts shown are more adaptable for the ardent swimmer and others are specially designed for the sun-bather who just likes a dip. Nearly all have detachable straps. There are also cotton suits that double as play suits.

Dry-off suits to go over the wet bathing suit are to be sold only in Peterborough. Other terry cloth designs, such as the "cinch coat" and the "pilot coat", can be obtained here also.

Leader Praises St. John's G.A. On Year's Work

Twenty-five members of the Girl's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church met Tuesday in the parish hall for their closing meeting.

Leader Mrs. W. C. Boate in expressing appreciation of the splendid average attendance at meetings, gave praise to president Josie Hendren and her executive for their wonderful co-operation througout the year. Leaders Miss Margaret Stevenson and Miss Gwen Sarby were also given credit in assisting to make this a most successful and enjoyable year.

In appreciation for her three years' service as G.A. president, Josie Hendren was presented with a G.A. pin by Mrs. Boate.

Results of a most successful year were revealed by 86 Badges and 13 Chevrons earned by 27 members for studies in cooking, Dorcas, handicraft, home nursing, churchmanship and missions.

The G.A. are proud of the fact that they placed second for the Silver Challenge Cup of Merit presented at the Annual Diocesan G.A. Festival in Toronto.

Badges and chevrons are to be presented to the St. John's G.A. by Archdeacon Robertson at the morning service this Sunday. Members are to meet outside the church in uniform at 11:45.

On behalf of the members, Beth Conley presented Mrs. Boate with a beautiful cup and saucer in appreciation of her leadership.

A highly enjoyable incident of the day was having ice cream, donated by Mrs. H. C. Sootheran, a keen supporter of the G.A.

Following the closing, a ball game under the leadership of Beth Conley was enjoyed.

DOROTHY DIX

Stingy Lady-Killer No Matrimonial Prize

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 24 and very much in love with a handsome young pilot of 25. We have known each other over a year, and have dated steadily for six months. He tells me he loves me, and would like to be married some day, but doesn't love me enough to get married now. He wants to date more girls and feels I should go with other boys.

His main interest seems to be meeting and dating girls. He delights in talking about his conquests. In view of this attitude, and the fact that he has often been [illegible] I decided not to write or see him again, which didn't seem to affect him. He just says I'm foolish for being so arbitrary, that in time our situation would have worked out.

Do you think I'm right in feeling that this friendship would never develop into anything serious, and that I should forget him and concentrate on someone new?

LIZBETH

ANSWER: To use an inelegant slang expression that dates back to my childhood—"good riddance to bad rubbish!" You are well rid of a very unsatisfactory suitor, and I hope your next choice is a decided improvement.

A Born Philanderer

Be assured, a man who, at the age of 25, likes nothing better than to boast of female conquests, will never make a decent husband. He is a born philanderer, and your married life would be a constant worry over his extra-marital affairs. That is just the beginning. Add to it the very bad qualities of thoughtlessness, lack of consideration and miserliness, and you have just about as bad a combination as any girl could unfortunately acquire for a husband.

Apparently you don't set very high standards for yourself in the matter of men friends! Otherwise, this one wouldn't have lasted two out of the twelve months you've known him.

A lot of drivel masquerading under the name of "modern thinking" or some other such impressive title, seems to have replaced good old-fashioned standards in setting the scene for many of today's marriages. Outward appearance, sociability, driving a smart-looking car—all these are considered the prime requisites of a good husband. What sort of foundation does this make for a life-time partnership? If girls would stop to realize that they are choosing, not a gay companion for a week or a month, but a husband for life, a loving father for the children she hopes to have, a patient attentive companion for old age, the tragedies that mark so large a percentage of our marriages would never occur.

A man who fancies himself as a lady-killer, a man who values the acquisition and hoarding of money above all human affection, the man who has an ego requiring constant attention, is not good matrimonial material.

Keep looking, Lizbeth, until you come up with a fine man who can appreciate you. Let your present Lothario go with nary a regret!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend has a car. The other night he was driving recklessly and had a bad accident. Now he wants me to help pay for it. I have no money; but he threatens to go to my mother and tell her. She has forbidden me to go out with this boy because he has a bad reputation. I have no money and don't know where to get it.

D. S. D.

ANSWER: You have had a very unfortunate experience, but I hope it has taught you the lesson that mothers are usually right. Your so-called friend is a contemptible scoundrel, and if your escapade has convinced you of that fact, it wasn't in vain.

Your only recourse is to make a clean breast of the matter to your mother. Let her know that you realize that she was right.

You have absolutely no financial responsibility for the accident; don't let the boy try to tell you otherwise. And don't let him frighten you into doing anything reckless. You have had enough trouble, and have escaped much more drastic consequences; profit from the lesson.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 14 years old, and in high school. A boy I like asked me out twice, but I refused both times. Now when I'd like him to ask me again, he won't. What can I do to encourage him?

NORMA

ANSWER: At 14 one isn't expected to know all the social graces, but one of the first to be acquired is the ability to accept an invitation graciously. Since you like the boy, why did you refuse his invitations? If it was merely to keep him guessing, or to see how many times he'd ask before you accepted, you have now accomplished your purpose. Boys are easily discouraged, and this one cannot be blamed if he doesn't ask you out again. All you can do now is hope.

JUST NOW it's the striped hat that has captured the fancy of women everywhere, judging from store re-orders. White—with black, red or blue—is proving the biggest seller in both straw and fabric. A favorite with suit wear is the small, rather flat sailor of striped rayon taffeta with matching ascot. A typical favorite has a narrow velvet crown band that forms a flat bow at one side, and the whole hat is softly misted with sheer veiling that ties in back.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Baked Beans For Dinner Eases Budget

Last night I played bridge and one of my partners was a bright and capable young matron who was telling us how little she ate—yet persistently gained weight.

She said that after eating only a coffee-and-toast breakfast and a tea-and-sandwich lunch she had to have her meat-and-potato dinner every night.

There are too many of us that are in a rut—myself included—who miss dozens of eating adventures because we will not change our meal-planning minds or our eating attitudes.

How would your family react to a big genuine bean pot full of the most delicious baked beans imaginable—for dinner? Accompanied that is, with a crisp green cabbage salad and maybe genuine New England Brown Bread? Right now to me it sounds wonderful. Incidentally, you wouldn't have any objection if this dish helped you to stretch your housekeeping money a little further this week? The meal will be well-balanced too without any other meat—for beans are one of the few protein vegetables you know.

Deluxe Baked Beans

Two cups picked over navy (little white) beans are soaked overnight in water to cover them well. Drain them in the morning but save the water. Through the medium knife of the food chopper put ½ lb. rindless salt pork (or smoked jowl), 6 sprigs parsley, 1 onion cut up, 1 clove garlic, 1 green pepper (and if and when available 2 sweet red peppers). Mix these ingredients with the drained soaked beans, and stir in 2 tablespoons maple syrup (or honey or light molasses) and 6 tablespoons best quality catsup. Add enough fresh cold water to just cover. Simmer over low heat for 2 hours. Put into 2-quart bean pot (or casserole with tight cover or even a 5-lb. lard pail) and add enough of the reserved bean liquor to cover beans. Cover tightly and bake 2½ hours. Then uncover and bake 1½ hours longer. Serve hot from bean pot or casserole. These are even better when reheated in low oven, on the second day—if there are any left over. Serve with

Boston Brown Bread

One cup each rye flour, yellow cornmeal and graham flour, two teaspoons soda, ¾ cup light molasses, 2 cups sour or buttermilk, 1 or 1½ teaspoons salt. After measuring sift the flours together with the soda and salt into bowl, tipping the bran that remains in sifter into bowl too. Stir in the molasses and milk. Fill two 1-lb. baking powder tins which have been well-greased 2-3 full—or use one round baking dish. Steam 2 hours tightly covered. This may be baked one hour, but is not as good.

The Variations for Boston Brown Bread are very interesting. After you have made the above recipe once or twice try some of these changes: Add 1 cup steamed and dried raisins, OR 1 cup of coarsely ground or chopped nuts. Instead of rye flour use buckwheat OR instead of graham flour use fine grind oatmeal.

When Boston Brown Bread is two days old it slices very neatly with sharp knife and makes delicious sandwiches for carried lunches or midnight snacks, using white cream cheese with a little orange malmalade for a filling.

6—In Memoriam

COLEMAN—In ever loving memory of Edmund Coleman, who passed away three years ago today, May 15, 1949.

And with the morn those angel faces smile,
Which I have loved long since and lost awhile.

—Lovingly remembered by Charlie, Annie and the Coleman family.

McDONALD—In loving memory of our dear son, Brian David, who passed away on May 15, 1949.

No stain was on his little heart,
Sin had not entered there,
And innocence was written,
On his little face so fair.
He was too pure for this cold earth,
And perhaps not meant to stay,
And so God's holy angel took
Our darling Brian away.

—Daddy and Mommy.

NICHOLLS—In loving memory of our mother, Maude, who died May 15, 1950.

Her weary hours and days of pain,
Her troubled nights are passed,
And in our aching hearts we know
She has found sweet rest at last.

—Ever remembered by her son Percy and family.

Believe Truman To Attend Party Convention

NEW YORK, May 15—(AP)—The New York Times says today that President Truman plans to attend the Democratic national convention as a delegate from Missouri.

The chief executive also intends to address the convention prior to the selection of the Democratic presidential candidate, the newspaper says.

The Times attributes its information to an intimate acquaintance of the President

Truman's role in the forthcoming Democratic convention has been a subject of keen speculation since his announcement that he would not seek re-election.

Rare Thing

"It is believed rare if ever that an incumbent has gone to a national convention of his party in the status of a delegate."

"It is assumed he will make a fighting speech, re-stating the main objectives of his fair deal program."

The President's approach to his convention role "if one of neutrality," the story quotes Democratic sources as saying.

The Times adds:

"Many politicians take the neutrality line with a grain of salt, believing that Mr. Truman cannot but help being a decisive influence in all phases of party strategy this year—selection of a candidate, party platform and campaign strategy."

Music Section Of Festival Starts With 300 Competing

Aprroximately 300 contestants crowded into the Canadian Legion Hall and Murray St. Baptist Church today for opening sessions of the music section of the Peterborough Music Competition Festival.

Represented in this group were choirs and solo contestants from Peterborough, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Campbellford, Bobcaygeon, Oakwood, Millbrook and Newcastle.

English adjudicators Alex Redshaw and Ronald Biggs arrived in Peterborough Wednesday night and started their six-day adjudicating sessions this morning.

Wednesday was verse and choral speaking day at the festival with the adjudicating done by Miss Irene Fairclough of the Hamilton Conservatory.

Highest marks of the day, 88, went to Helen Pemberton of Port Hope, for her rendition of "Laugh and Be Merry" by Masefield, and Malcolm McMartin, a student at the Peterborough Normal School, for his interpretation of a scene from Thornton Wilder's "Our Town."

In her general remarks, Miss Fairclough said that the standard of work she had heard was high.

Excellent, Moving

Special praise went to Mr. McMartin.

"It was one of the most vital performances I have heard today. It was an excellent and moving performance," Miss Fairclough said in her criticisms.

The adjudicator stressed the projection of atmosphere to the audience in all classes. She explained that highest marks went to the contestants who "could put it across to the audience so that the audience could share in the experience."

In the drama classes the high marks were given to those who most nearly brought the characters to life.

"The importance of these dramatic scenes classes in festivals lies in the fact that here is developed the talent that will later be used in drama groups across the country and evehtually perhaps in a national theatre," Miss Fairclough said.

Easing Controls On Four Metals

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP)—The U.S. government today lifted controls from four metals and ordered relaxation, effective July 1, of its ban on the building of amusement and recreation places.

The National Production Authority also restored the use of structural steel and aluminum to new houses, as of mid-year, and eased its restraints on construction of shops, stores and office buildings.

Four metal orders—those regulating lead, antimony, cadmium and bismuth—were revoked outright. In addition, allocation and limitations on the use of zinc were lifted. This left zinc subject only to inventory control.

N.P.A. Administrator Henry H. Fowler, in issuing the construction relaxations, said N.P.A. acted because the demands of defence construction will be substantially reduced during the last of this year.

Relaxation of zinc controls was based on a new estimate indicating that this year's supply of slab zinc will be about 1,079,000 tons, or 15 per cent above consumption. While the metal is kept under inventory control to prevent hoarding, users are permitted to carry a 60-day supply instead of a 30-day inventory.

Cobourg Union Takes Case To Labor Minister

COBOURG, May 15—(ENS)—Layoffs at the local plant of Canadian Canners which followed the recent organization of a local of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America (A.F.L.) has been regarded by the union as possible discrimination and the matter will be placed before the minister of labor for Ontario for an investigation. Following the organization campaign an application was sent in to the Ontario Labor Relations Board to affect certification. About 10 workers are in the union.

Comet Jetliner Leaves On Singapore Flight

LONDON, May 15—(Reuters)—A Comet jetliner left here today for Singapore on the first of a series of development flights preparing for a regular London-Orient service to be opened in August.

The Comet will land at Rome, Beirut and Bahrein today and will arrive in Singapore Sunday.

This series of 18 flights has been planned to familiarize air crew and ground staff with the route.

The world's first regular jetliner service was begun by British Overseas Airways Corporation between London and Johannesburg, South Africa, on May 2.

A Comet on test has covered the 7,748-mile journey to Singapore in 24 hours, 51 minutes. This is less than half the 60 hours taken by piston-engined planes.

Fluorine Still Doubtful Says MOH Kelly

Fluorine in the city water supply is "something for the future," Dr. R. A. Kelly, medical officer of health, told the Board of Health Wednesday afternoon.

Brantford, he explained, is in the seventh year of a 10-year experiment with fluorization. At the end of five years there was a preliminary investigation, and it was found that the teeth of school children had improved.

Doesn't that prove that fluorization of the water supply is a good thing? Not necessarily, was Dr. Kelly's verdict.

In that same period the dental health of Peterborough school children had also improved.

What Cause

"We don't know how much of the improvement was caused by fluorine and how much by better diet of the child and by better diet of the mother during the prenatal period," said Dr. Kelly.

People tend to ignore these factors in dental health and seize on something "dramatic," such as fluorine, he said.

"They want a cure-all," was Chairman J. A. Dewart's comment.

"We'd be wise to wait and see," continued Dr. Kelly.

He said that the fluorine must be absorbed in certain quantities to be of benefit. Because people's tastes differ there is no way of regulating the doseage for individuals. And too much of it may result in the mottling of teeth.

Alderman Dewart said there was a great deal of wastage, too, because water was used for other purposes than just drinking.

"Why don't they put it in toothpaste?" asked Alderman Dewart.

Dr. Kelly said that fluorine must be absorbed to some degree; though there had been experiments with painting of the teeth.

"I notice that dental societies don't go on record as recommending it," said Alderman Dewart.

As a result of Dr. Kelly's report fluorization of water in Peterborough seems to have been given an indefinite hoist.

Who's Fighting Who? Chinese Not Sure Grenade Tossed Wrong Way Starts Battle

WITH FIRST COMMONWEALTH DIVISION, Korea, May 15—(AP)—Things were going pretty much according to form the other night as a Commonwealth raiding party attacked three Chinese bunkers.

The party was firing away and chucking grenades into the Red position. The Chinese were throwing grenades.

Then one Chinese threw a grenade into his own lines.

"This caused some confusion and consternation in the enemy camp," a British report said.

It apparently gave the Chinese commander a strong, but not altogether correct, impression of where his enemy was.

Chinese mortars engaged their own advance elements.

The patrol then became engaged with enemy fire from both sides.

The patrol withdrew and the Chinese still shot at their comrades, the report said.

Two nights later the Chinese fought another battle with each other in the same area, calling in mortar to handle both factions.

They lit up their area so well that the Comonwealth artillery gave each side an assist.

"Owing to the distance and darkness it was not possible to ascertain who won," the report said.

Restrictions Eased On Plane Gas As Strike Settled

OTTAWA, May 16. (CP)—All restrictions on the use of aviation gasoline in Alberta, Yukon and Northwest Territories are being lifted immediately, T. N. Beaupre, assistant deputy minister of defence production, said today. The 35-per-cent cut, caused by depletion of supplies resulting by the United States oil strike, also is being removed from certain grades of fuel in British Columbia, but still will remain in force in Eastern Canada, Mr. Beaupre said in an interview.

In B.C. the restrictions are being removed from Grades 91 to 98 which can be used in lighter aircraft such as helicopters and bush planes, but not in such heavier aircraft as North Stars.

Easing of some of the restrictions followed announcement Thursday night in Washington that the U.S. oil strike is being called off. Canada gets most of her aviation gasoline from the U.S.

Partial Easing

The Defence Production Department ascertained from Washington authorities that tthe U.S. is lifting its restrictions on the use of grades 91-98 aviation gasoline in Washington, Oregon, California Hawaii and Alaska. This type can be used in lighter aircraft.

"We ascertained," said Mr. Beaupre, "that British Columbia will also be able to get supplies of this type from the U.S. Our restrictions on its use are being lifted in that province."

All restrictions are being lifted in Alberta, Yukon and the Northwest Territories because of the existence of a small plant in Calgary which can feed all the needs of that area. The plant produces Alkylate, a petroleum essential in production of aviation gasoline.

Mr. Beaume said this move will help bush pilots and other commercial aircraft users just starting spring operations in the northern areas.

"As for other parts of Canada, we will lift restrictions just as soon as it appears possible through increased U.S. production," he said.

Meanwhile all "hardship" cases are being looked after. Industry opening up new mineral devlopments such as the Lynn Lake development in Northern Manitoba and the iron ore development in Quebec, are getting sufficient fuel to keep helicopters and other aircraft moving.

The 25-per-cent cut applied to both commercial and military flying. Commercial aircraft such as Trans-Canada Airlines, reduced schedules. All non-essential military flying was gounded.

Adenauer Wins Approval To Sign Treaty

BONN, Germany, May 16 —(CP) —Chancellor Konrad Adenauer triumphed over his Socialist opposition in the courts today and won approval to go ahead next week with the signing of treaties to rearm West Germany and ally it with the West.

Earlier today Allied and German negotiators, after an 18-hour session, announced they would complete on Monday all but a few clauses of the proposed peace contract and that the Big Three foreign ministers would come here late next week to settle those points and sign the treaty with Adenauer.

Adenauer's legal victory came in the Federal constitutional court at Karlsruhe, which rejected a Socialist petition that the Chancellor be forbidden to sign the peace contract and its companion European-Army treaty to raise 400,000 German troops for western defence.

The court ruled Adenauer's signing of the pact would be legal, and since they must be ratified by the Federal parliament. That left it up to the Socialists to try defeating ratification.

Reach Agreement

Spokesmen for the Allies and Germans, meanwhile, announced after their 18-hour, all-night session they had reached agreement on 25 points in the contract, leaving only five to finish in their final meeting Monday.

A haggard and exhausted senior Allied official said afterwards that the session cleared up enough of the outstanding points in the treaty, which paves the way for German contribution to western defence, to make the signing "almost a certainty" by the end of May.

Eastern Germany is carrying on a propaganda campaign against the agreement, warning that its effects will be apparent in West Berlin the day after the treaty is ratified and threatening West German parliament members with reprisals.

Car In River Four Drowned

VAL DES BOIS, Que., May 16—(CP)—Four persons were drowned Thursday night when their car went out of control and plunged over a 75-foot cliff into Riviere Le Lievre.

The dead:

Donald Bastine, 26, Notre Dame du Laus, Que.; Anne-Marie Thauvette, 18, also of Notre Dame du Laus; Jeanne Morin, 21, Notre Dame de Pontmain, Que.; Jeannette Morin, 19, a sister, of Val Des Bois.

The driver, Gerard Thauvette, 21, brother of Miss Thauvette, escaped and swam to shore.

Val Des Bois is about 40 miles north of Hull, Que.

Police said the group was en route to a dance and the driver lost control when one of the car's wheels struck a soft shoulder near a bridge. The car overturned several times before rolling down the embankment.

Suggests Britain Have Matrimony Ministry

LONDON, May 16 (AP) — A French doctor suggested today that the British should quit griping about food rationing and concentrate on love.

Dr. Gabriel Mouchot, writing in the British publication Medical World, said with a twinkle that "one of these days it will be realized that being happily married is more important than having an ounce of rationed candy."

For the many unhappy Britons who can't find a mate "a deplorable state of affairs"— the doctor prescribed that " a ministry of matrimony should be set up immediately. Everybody should be given a marrigae coupon."

"One cannot rely on private enterprise to find communal bliss," he added.

Hold Open House

LONDON, May 16—(Reuters)—British nudists today invited the public and press to attend an "open day" at their North Kent Sun Club May 24. Visitors can keep their clothes on but taking of snapshots is taboo.

Canada's Meat Shipments Larger Than Expected

OTTAWA, May 16 (CP) — Canada's meat shipments to the United Kingdom under a barter plan among the two countries and New Zealand announced last week, will be even large than anticipated.

An additional arrangement under the tripartite plan was announced in the Commons Thursday by Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

The extra amount of meat will depend on the amount of profits resulting from the sale of frozen New Zealand beef in the United States.

The plan announced last Friday is designed to provide a market for surplus Canadian meat in the face of the United States foot-and-mouth embargo. It involves shipments of about 40,000,000 pounds of meat, mostly beef, to Britain.

This will replace a similar amount of New Zealand frozen beef, part of Britain's order under a long-term agreement with New Zealand. The beef from New Zealand will be sold in the United States.

Canada will be paid in dollars an amount equal to the U.K. price for New Zealand beef. But the U.S. price is expected to be higher than the U.K. price—and Canada and New Zealand will split this profit.

Under the new step announced Thursday, New Zealand will use her share of the profit to buy Canadian meat. Britain will purchase this meat and pay New Zealand in sterling.

Mr. Gardiner said all three countries will benefit.

"New Zealand will derive higher returns for her meat. The U.K. will obtain more meat, and Canada is getting an enlarged market for her surplus meat."

The first shipment of Canadian meat to Britain—600,000 pounds—will likely leave from Montreal May 23. It will be the first shipment of Canadian beef to Britain since 1948.

Mr. Gardiner previously indicated the loss to the government may be about $10,000,000 if the plan runs for a year, but federal officials hope the plan may be dropped before that long with the lifting of the American embargo.

Bowmanville Crash Kills Farmer

Vehicle Overturns Injured Man Trapped In Car

Richard Marchant, 31, of Darlington township died in Bowmanville hospital Thursday night from injuries received when his car hit a tree and overturned, two miles north of Bowmanville.

The fatally-injured man was trapped inside the overturned car for 15 minutes before Bowmanville Provincial Police and motorists managed to set the vehicle back on its wheels and free him.

Marchant died in Memorial Hospital less than two hours after the accident.

Police say that Marchant either went to sleep at the wheel or had a heart attack. His vehicles went off the Manvers road, two miles north of Bowmanville, ran along the east shoulder of the road for 43 feet, plowed into a ditch and through a clump of bushes and struck a tree before turning over.

No Brake Marks

The vehicle travelled a distance of 65 feet off the travelled portion of the road and police say there were no brake marks or any other indication that Marchant tried to bring it under control.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman of Cobourg said there will be no inquest.

Marchant was driving home when the accident occurred. By an ironic twist of fortune he met his death on the road outside the farm home of his brother Matthew.

He leaves his wife Peggy and two children: Wayne 8, and Delores 4; his mother Mrs. Leah Marchant of Bowmanville; three brothers: Matthew of Darlington township; Mark of Maple Grove and Murray of Bowmanville, a sister Mary of Orono.

The funeral will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Morris funeral home, Bowmanville, Mr. Luke of Salem United Church officiating.

Judge Fines Paper $1,000

WINDSOR, May 16 (CP) —Supreme Court Justice R. W. Treleaven today fined The Windsor Daily Star $1,000 and R. M Harrison, a Star columnist, $100 in connection with an article which appeared in the newspaper Saturday.

He said that comment by Mr. Harrison on the May 7 acquittal of two youths on charges of raping an 18-year-old girl constituted contempt of court. The fines were ordered paid by 4 p.m. Monday.

Star officials said the fine will be appealed.

Mr. Harrison stated in the article that Gordon Fraser, counsel for the two youths, "laughed" the charge out of court.

W. L. Clark, editor of The Star, who appeared in court with the columnist, said that neither he nor the newspaper had intended to embarrass the court. Comments on the administration of justice were carefully screened before being published, he said.

The Justice said that the article contained comments "which are untrue—whether deliberately so or with an utter disregard for the truth I do not know."

Former Tax Assessor Jailed For 3 Years

PORT ARTHUR, May 16—(CP) —Armand Seguin of Ottawa, former Fort William income tax assessor, Thursday was sentenced to three years in penitentiary on four charges arising out of irregularities late in 1950 in the Fort William tax office.

Seguin was given two years for conspiracy, three years for defrauding Mrs. Florence Hodgkins of Fort William, three years for defrauding Mrs. Irene Howard, also of Fort William, and three years for uttering a forged document. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Wallace Charles Duguay, 39-year-old Fort William accountant, was sentenced to two years less a day in reformatory on a conspiracy charge he faced jointly with Seguin.

AFTER 780 MILES ON THE SPEEDOMETER this is the present shape of a car owned and driven by Graydon Sheldon that was involved in a crash on Highway 28 early today near Fraserville. Sheldon and two of his passengers, J. E. Victor and Elvin Beggs of Sunderland are being treated in hospital for shock; their condition is described as "fair." Two other passengers were slightly injured in the head-on collision with a transport driven by John W. Spooner of Toronto.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Have No Walls Around Prison For Anti-Reds

AN ANTI - COMMUNIST PRISON CAMP, Korea, May 16—(AP)—The United Nations Command is demonstrating almost unbelieveable faith in Red prisoners of war who declare themselves anti-Communists.

This new P.O.W. camp near Pusan houses 10,400 of them.

Unlike the Koje Island stockade, it has no guard towers. There are no machine-gun positions, no tanks, no sandbags, no flame throwers.

The camp is merely surrounded by a two-foot-high barbed wire fence. Any man in combat boots could walk over it with ease. All prisoners have combat boots.

Trust Them

Camp officers explain the basic philosophy this way:

"These prisoners, former citizens and most of them soldiers under the North Korean Red regime, have said they oppose Communism enough, in fact, to die fighting it. Let's show them we trust them."

Asked what he would do if the prisoners decided to take over or to leave, Lt.-Col. Joseph James, the camp commander, replied:

"I'd just stand here and hand out candy bars as they went by. There isn't anything else I could do."

James said no prisoner has attempted to escape.

The prisoners work on projects outside the camp area. On work details one American and two South Korean guards accompany each 50 prisoners. A U.S. officer also oversees any work groups of more than 500 P.O.W.s. During the day, one officer and 15 enlisted men supervise prisoner work.

About 16 guards normally are on duty outside the compound.

Witnesses Report Seeing Items Taken From Camp

PEMBROKE, May 16. (CP)—Crown witnesses at the preliminary hearing of Capt. Donald W. Baldock, charged in connection with large-scale thefts at nearby Petawawa military camp, today testified that various items were removed from the camp during 1950 and 1951 under his supervision and orders.

Lieut. D. G. Elfner, works officer at the camp during the two years, testified that just before Christmas, 1950, he saw a truck loading sewer pipes from the engineer's stores. The lieutenant said he went to Capt. Baldock and told him of the incident, and that the pipes were in good condition and were still considered government property.

The lieutenant said Staff Sgt. J. M. Young, a member of the R.C.E. who first was erroneously reported as a member of the R.C.E.M.E., was with Capt. Baldock at the time, and replied that the truck was loading only broken tile. Staff Sgt. Young also faces charges of conspiracy and theft.

Lieut. Elfner was followed to the stand by a parade of truck drivers and labourers who were employed in civilian jobs at Petawawa during 1950 and 1951.

Two R.C.M.P. officers told of police raids on two junkyards which netted tons of scrap metal allegedly stolen from the camp.

Cpl. R. W. Malloch and Constable Case Arnold described raids on the junkyards of Pembroke Salvage Company, operated by the Morris and Harry Eisen, and the Jacobson Iron and Metal Company of Brockville, operated by Jack Jacobson.

Went To Junkyard

Constable Arnold said he went with other R.C.M.P. officers and several Petawawa army personnel last March 2 to the Jacobson junkyard in Brockville.

He listed material found there, including 119 heavy kitchen ranges, 14 to 20 stove heaters, 50 steel drums bearing the name "Petawawa Military Camp," five cement block presses, and 50 shower stalls.

Cpl. Malloch told of going to the Pembroke Salvage Company yard last February 25 and of seizing a weigh scale with a capacity of approximately 20,000 pounds.

Brig. Rockingham Believes War Will Go On Long Time Before Korean Settlement

VANCOUVER, May 16 (CP)—Brig. John (Rocky) Rockingham said Thursday he believes it will be a long time before there is any settlement of the Korean war.

Canada's bronzed, tough fighting general came here after 13 months in command of the 25th Brigade in Korea to take a new army post—director-general of military training. He arrived by plane from Sydney, following stops at Honolulu and San Franciso, after an 11-day Australian speaking tour.

He said Canadians were still fighting in Korea as they had been since they first landed ther.

He branded as "completely untrue" a report that Chinese Communists are burning at the stake captured Allied pilots who have bombed the Reds with jellied gasoline.

"I'd like to get hold of the man that started that rumor," Brig. Rockingham said.

He said Canadians are "far and away" the best Allied troops in Korea and that their morale is excellent.

He said his successor, Brig. Pat Bogart, was "fitting in well but I almost got him killed the frist day I took him up to the lines."

Gov't Supports Cheese At 24c

OTTAWA, May 16—(CP)—The Federal government today agreed to guarantee Ontario cheese prices at 24 cents a pound, basis delivery at factory.

The agreement was announced by W. Q. Coon, president of the Ontario Cheese Producers Marketing Board, following a two-day conference with Federal agricultural officials.

The guaranteed price is for first grade, large white unwaxed cheese, f.o.b. factory, sold under a co-operative marketing scheme.

"In addition a handling charge is to be guaranteed on the season's make of cheese to take care of the physical costs of assembling, handling, storing, selling and distributing the product," Mr. Coon said in a statement.

He said a vote of cheese factories will be taken as soon as possible to get their approval of pooling final returns on cheese sales as required under the provisions of the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Act.

Meanwhile a meeting has been called between the cheese producers and the trade to negotiate the selling price of cheese. Mr. Coon said the meeting will be held next Monday.

Manager Seeks Ghost Opening Bank Doors

AJAX, May 16 (CP) —Bank manager H. S. Jenkins and a police officer here don't believe in ghosts but they would like to know who is opening the Main Street bank doors—from the inside.

The policeman phoned Mr. Jenkins last night after finding the front doors swinging open. Nothing was missing and the side door was still locked. The front doors can only be opened from the inside.

A few hours later the manager was awakened from a troubled sleep by the policeman who reported the doors again open. The doors also were found open May 2.

Later the policeman found the doors of a nearby mortgage company office open. Again there was nothing missing and no sign of a forced entry.

3 Band Members In Hospital After Smash-Up

Five members of a well-known Peterborough dance band were injured early today when the car in which they were riding and a transport collided head-on near Fraserville on Highway 28. The car driven by orchestra leader Graydon Sheldon was returning to Peterborough from a dance at Millbrook when the accident occurred on the brow of a hill south of Fraserville about 1 a.m. Injured and in hospital are: J. E. Victor, 35, of 138 Park St., Elvin Beggs, 41, R.R. 2, Sunderland, and Mr. Sheldon, 37, of R.R. 3, Sunderland.

Mr. Victor who was riding in the front seat of the car received a deep cut on his head and is reported to have a broken leg and fractured kneecap.

Mr. Begg's injuries are described as a deep gash over his left eye and Mr. Sheldon is being treated for shock and eye and leg injuries.

None of the three are seriously injured, according to hospital authorities, who described their condition as fair.

Given Treatment

Mrs. Irene Quinlan, 38, of 307 Bethune St., was given out-patient treatment for a deep cut on her left leg which required several stitches. E. Bus Mitchell of Chemong, the fifth passenger in the car was dazed by the crash but was allowed to return home after being given first aid treatment at hospital.

According to police, the transport driven by John Spooner of Toronto was going south towards Port Hope when the accident occurred.

The car is said to be a complete wreck, but the truck was only slightly damaged. Provincial constable Cy Meadows of Cobourg O.P.P. detachment investigated.

$10 Increase For Newsprint

OTTAWA, May 16 (CP) —The federal government has agreed to allow a $10-a-ton increase in the price of newsprint for export, but not on sales to Canadian publishers, a federal spokesman disclosed today.

The spokesman said the increase was allowed because of the boosted exchange value of the Canadian dollar, lowering returns of sales in New York. Exporters quoted their price in New York in United States funds.

They have complained to the government that the rise of the Canadian dollar from a discount of almost 10 per cent to almost two per cent above par, has reduced their returns in Canadian funds by about $10 a ton.

They also indicated that higher production costs also cut their net return.

Fugitive From Tropics Upsets Townsfolk

BARRIE, May 16 (CP) —A fugitive from the tropics went for a stroll Thursday and upset townsfolk and police.

Army, a burrowinng, nocturnal armadillo, owned by Ken Emms, escaped from his den. He started walking up a street, dragging his foot-long tail and occasionally sticking out his long syrupy tongue.

Mrs. Edna Green first spied him. She took another look before calling police. They returned Army to its owner.

Swollen River Sweeps Away Dam In Quebec

CHUTE-AU-DIABLE, Que., May 16—(CP)— The rain-swollen Peribonka river burst through a 300-foot coffer-dam at this Saguenay district power site Thursday, causing damage unofficially estimated as high as $1,000,000.

Three hundred men at work on a 250,000 horse-power development at Chute-au-Diable (Devil's Falls) fled when water broke through the temporary sand-filled dam below a huge concrete dam.

There was no loss of life but part of the power development site was left covered by 30 feet of water and construction equipment was flooded.

Equipment Flooded

Officials of the Aluminum Company of Canada, which undertook the Hydro-Electric project in October, 1950, said the leak developed at the foot of the coffer-dam and water poured over equipment spread about the base of the nearby main dam.

The escaping water covered trucks and other building equipment and swept away sheds and temporary offices.

The flood swirled about the new power house about 100 yards from the main structure.

A bridge some distance down the Peribonka river from Chute-au-Diable was in danger of destruction.

The new power development, started in October, 1950, was within a few weeks of operation.

Murray Willing To Renew Talks

PHILADELPHIA, May 16. (AP) Philip Murray, president of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) said today he is willing to renew labor peace talks with the steel industry, but stressed he's still standing pat on his demands.

Murray told reporters at the union's convention that it would be up to the industry to initiate new negotiations, and that he is always ready to accept a bid.

Murray emphasized in his remarks to the convention that he is unwilling to retreat from the eventual 26-cent-an-hour "package," plus union shop, recommendations of the government's Wage Stabilization Board. The industry has balked at the W.S.B. proposals.

"This organization is not going to compromise any more on this issue," Murray told the cheering delegates. "Our demands already have been compromised by the W.S.B. We didn't get all we wanted by any means. And we're in no mood to compromise any more with anybody."

Malan Government Jams Supremacy Bill Through

CAPETOWN, May 16 (CP) — Amid opposition charges of Hitler tactics, Prime Minister Daniel Malan's Nationalist government jammed its court-veto bill through parliament's Lower House Thursday by a vote of 82 to 57.

The controversial measure, which would give parliament a final say on court rulings on constitutional questions, goes to the Senate next week. The government has a slight majority there.

The vote on third and final reading came after the Nationalists shut off debate by the opposition by invoking closure. Only 10 opposition speakers had been heard when discussion was cut off.

Just before the gag action, an opposition member likened the Nationalists to Hitler who, he said, had avoided averse court decisions by special legislation and had gone on to "pulverizing the Reichstag opposition by use of the gag, the guillotine and all-night sittings."

The immediate object of the bill is to reinstitute government-sponsored legislation taking the right of participation in general election-voting from 50,000 coloreds (persons of mixed blood) in Cape province. The appeals court had ruled the act was unconstitutional because it was passed without the two-thirds majority required for changes in the constitution.

When the government ended the debate Thursday night, there were shouts of "there goes another freedom."

The legislation is part of Premier Malan's white-supremacy program. But oposition members, many of them of British descent, fear that Malan will also use the parliamentary veto to ban English as a national language in South Africa, leaving only Afrikaans.

Mystery 'Camp X' Revealed In Army Inquiry

PEMBROKE, May 16. (CP)—Existence of a mysterious "Camp X" was revealed in magistrate's court here Thursday during evidence at the preliminary hearing of seven men on charges of conspiracy and theft. Military officers called as witnesses mentioned the Camp X, which they said was within the borders of Petawawa camp. All of them declined to give further details about it. The Petawawa camp commandant, Col. Duncan Douglas, said it was a classified project and added: "I think that is sufficient for your purpose."

The seven are accused of participating in recent large-scale thefts at the camp. Evidence was that two of them, Morris and Harry Eisen who operate the Pembroke Salvage Company, had a contract to clear debris from Camp X.

The others are Capt. D. W. Baldock, former army engineer at the camp, S./Sgt. J. M. Young of Fredericton, and Jack Jacobson, David C. Mawhinney and Amos Durant, all of Brockville.

Capt. Baldock and S./Sgt. Young also each face two charges of "breach of trust."

First Mention

First mention of Camp X was given in testimony by Maj. R. H. Munro, deputy assistant adjutant and quarter-master general at Ottawa.

Maj. Munro told of seeing a truck from the Eisens' Company loaded with metal, including what he thought to be the cupola of an army tank. Under cross-examination, he said he saw the truck on a road bordering Camp X.

Questioned further, he said he thought that only Defence Minister Claxton could release information about Camp X.

Maj. J. H. Reeves, Petawawa security office and camp engineer since last October, said the Eisens' Company had a contract for clearing debris from Camp X. Debris consisted of objects such as tree trunks, brush and stumps.

Asked About It

Maj. Reeves said Maj. Munro told him of seeing the truck with the metal. Maj. Reeves said he asked Capt. Baldock about it and was told that the Eisens were merely making up for an underestimated load from a previous contract.

He found later the Pembroke company had had no contract for scrap metal.

Evidence introduced by W. T. Collum, Canadian Pacific Railways freight agent, was that during 1950 and 1951, a total of 626,200 pounds of scrap material had been shipped from a siding in Petawawa Camp by the Jacobson Iron Company of Brockville.

J. W. Pickup of Toronto, special crown prosecutor, introduced documents showing that in the two years, 93,930 pounds of material had been authorized and paid for by the company.

The company had held a contract for the material with the government-operated Crown Assets Disposal Corporation.

Security Measures

R. K. Laishley, counsel for Capt. Baldock, questioned Maj. Reeves at length on security measures at Petawawa. He asked the major if he would be surprised to know that trucks went in and out of the camp without clearance slips.

"With what's gone on—no, sir," Maj. Reeves replied. He said it might be possible for any officer in camp to sign a slip that would be honored by the guard at the gate.

The hearing is continuing. All accused have chosen to be tried by a higher court. The hearing Thursday proceeded against all but S./Sgt. Young, who was charged only two days ago and whose case was remanded until today.

Call Police To Strike Plant

BRANTFORD, May 16. (CP)—Two carloads of police were called Thursday to the Robbins and Myers Company plant here when non-strikers drove a truck-load of packaged goods out of the strike-bound plant.

Pickets, members of Local 397, United Auto Workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), stood aside and jeered. There was no violence.

Strikers said it was the first load of goods moved out of the plant since they went on strike last month.

Negotiations between company and union broke off a few days ago over the issue of wage increases.

The company has offered raises of 19 cents an hour for production workers, 15 cents for day workers and five cents for piece workers. A concilation board recommended 19 cents for production workers, 15 cents for day workers and 10 cents for piece workers.

Some 250 workers are affected.

Taxi Takes Off Flies 90 Feet

LINDSAY, May 16—(ENS)—A hell driver trick was pulled by a Walkerton taxi man near Lindsay Thursday night. According to provincial police, Blaine Sornburger, 27, was driving from Walkerton to fishing grounds in this area. With him was a passenger, Sinclair Wallace. On the county road between Grass Hill and Cambray, north of Lindsay, the car failed to negotiate a turn.

By the roadside was a pile of old asphalt about 20 feet high. The vehicle climbed the pile and "took off". It travelled about 90 feet through the air, sailed over a four-foot high fence and lit on its nose before coming to rest on all four wheels. It is expected that a driving charge will be laid. Constable Bill Warner investigated. Both men were hospitalized and the driver, Sornberger suffered a broken jaw. However the two men were released at noon today.

Geometry Class Sends Dr. Einstein Thanks

HOLLYWOOD, May 16 (AP) — Dr. Albert Einstein has the thanks of the sophomore geometry class of the Westlake school. The eminent scientist responded to its call for help in solving a problem that had stumped it.

Johanna Mackiewicz, secretary of the sophomore class and daughter of movie writer Herman Mankiewicz, wrote the 73-year-old physicist at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, N.J.

He replied by return air mail, enclosing a diagram of the problem sketched on the back of her letter, and signed it "A E" His sketch indicated the manner of solution but did not give the explicit answer.

The problem? "The common external tangent of two tangent circles of radii eight and two inches is." Some details of Dr. Einstein's diagram were a cut above the heads of the sophomore class. Their best judgment as to the correct answer, however, was eight inches.

Stewardship Of Time Coldsprings WA Topic

COLDSPRINGS, May 16 (ENS) —Stewardship of time and possessions was the subject of an address given by Mrs. P. C. Brown at the May meeting of the Coldsprings W.A.

The speaker divided her address into two parts: What God expects of Christians in the use of time; what God exepcts of Christians in the use of possessions. In part, Mrs. Brown said: "The decisions made by children are things they see done at home by parents. We should strengthen the home and community in religion."

The meeting was held Wednesday evening in the Sunday school room with 16 members present. The president, Mrs. Clarence Brooks, presided. Mrs. Paul Harris was pianist and Mrs. Carl Bowman secretary.

Committees were appointed to buy rubber treads and runners for the church steps and platform, and to see that electric plugs were installed in the Sunday school room.

It was voted that Mrs. C. Brooks and Mrs. C. Bowman be a committee to gather the church flower baskets and paint them.

Ten dollars is to be sent to Toronto toward the United Church Training School for Women.

Shoots Photographer By Mistake In Korea

OTTAWA, May 16 (CP) —A National Film Board cameraman in Korea was shot and wounded by a Canadian soldier, the army reported today. The shooting was described as accidental.

John Carson Foster, 24, of Ottawa, is in an American hospital in Korea and the wound, in the left thigh, is not serious. The accident occurred Wednesday.

Foster, whose mother, Mrs. S. S. Walker, lives in Ottawa has the status of war correspondent. With another Film Board employee, Julien Biggs of Ottawa, he has been working on a film about Canada's 25th Brigade.

Details of the accident were not complete at headquarters, but it was understood Foster and an unidentified man were entering a Canadian camp in a jeep. They apparently were challenged by a guard. Foster claimed he did not see or hear him. The guard fired and hit him.

U.S. Dollar Up

MONTREAL, May 16 (CP) — The United States dollar today opened at a discount of 1⅜ per cent in terms of Canadian funds, up 1/32 from Thursday's close. That is, it took $0.98⅝ Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.76⅜, down 3/16 from Thursday.

Canada Plans Library At Ottawa

OTTAWA, May 16 —(CP)—The Massey Commission reported with sorrow last year that Canada does not have a National Library.

...e Minister St. Laurent ...day placed in the Commons order paper a notice of a resolution for the introduction of a bill to establish a National Library, equip it with a staff and furnish it with funds to buy books.

Officials said it will be several years before construction starts on the library itself at Ottawa. But the St. Laurent disclosure was greeted with elation in library and scholastic circles because it means that the green light has finally been given and important preparatory work can be started.

Establishment of a National Library "at once" was one of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on the Arts, Letters and Sciences last year. But pressures for such a step preceded the Massey Commission by a good number of years.

Spadework Done

Actually, a considerable amount of spadework for a library has already been done through the establishment in 1948 of a bibliographic centre at the National Archives under Dr. W. Kaye Lamb, the archivist, who may well be assigned the job of being the first national librarian.

That centre, conceived as the nucleus of a National Library, has been building up an index of books at Ottawa and other libraries as well as publishing monthly lists of publications in and about Canada.

Parliament's approval of the step proposed Thursday would mean a start on cataloguing the tens of thousands of books now available for a National Library, notably from the Parliament Library, which contains about 750,000 books.

The Parliament Library, with thousands of surplus books stored under the Senate and in the Supreme Court building, looks forward to the day when it can assume its original role, that of serving Parliament.

But the closest liaison is planned between the two libraries. National Library planners stress that they don't intend to take over every library service at Ottawa, that the various departmental libraries, for example, will remain in existence. But the books available there and in every other Canadian library eventually will be indexed at the national institution.

Industrials, Metals Climbing Slowly

TORONTO, May 16. (CP)—Industrials and base metals climbed slowly today in early afternoon stock market dealings. Oils and golds made little headway.

Industrial dealings were confined to a scattered list of selected leading issues and few metals, oils or golds attracted speculative interest. Volume for the first three hours was 948,000 shares.

Refining oils led industrials' advance with gains ranging to about 50 cents. Papers, utilities, agricultures and retail stores also drew firm support but foods, liquors and manufacturing companies slipped.

Western oils were mixed. Admiral, Asher, Central-Leduc, Leduc Consolidated and Okalta strengthened while Albermont, Canadian Atlantic, Harman, Marigold and Punch weakened.

Base metal gains ranged to about 50 cents. International Nickel, Ontario Pyrites, Opemiska, Consolidated Smelters and Sherritt-Gordon pushed higher.

Senior golds were quiet. A few secondary issues—Bevcourt, Newlund and San Antonio—climbed pennies.

Deny Airman Refused Entry At Hospital

OTTAWA, May 16 (CP). — R.C.A.F. headquarters checked back Thursday and offered some amendments to a Vancouver report concerning the treatment of aircraftman James Farthing.

The report Wednesday said Farthing, injured in an automobile accident Jan. 25 near Oshawa, was refused entry to the Saughnessy Veterans' Hospital in Vancouver, his hometown He had been treated at Trenton, and sent home on sick leave.

The Vancouver report said he was refused admission to Shaughnessy because his medical records were in Trenton. It added he now is in serious condition at Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto.

Air force headquarters Thursday telephoned Farthing at Sunnybrook where they said he is walking about and not in serious condition. A headquarters spokesman quoted him as saying he is "very much satisfied with the treatment given me by the R.C.A.F. and D.V.A."

Not Refused

The spokesman said Farthing went home on sick leave March 5 with instructions to report to the nearest air force medical officer or D.V.A. hospital. Shortly before his leave was up, he was bothered by his eyes. He went to Shaughnessy, where his condition was found to be not serious. He was advised to wait until he returned east for a further check-up, and he was satisfied with this advice, the spokesman said. He was not refused entry to Shaughnessy.

He returned to Trenton about the last week in March, and medical officers recommended further treatment and convalescence. He went to Sunnybrook hospital April 9, and his condition is described as "far from serious".

High School Boy Hurt In Blast

TORONTO, May 16 (CP). — George Redford, 15, was severely injured Thursday when a home-made bomb with which he had been experimenting exploded in a classroom of Western Technical School. The blast shattered five windows. A piece of the bomb entered the boy's forehead and the fingers on his right hand were injured.

According to school principal E. E. Cavell, the youth had apparently made a bomb at home, fashioned from a four-inch lead pipe, loaded with powder and BB shot.

The class teacher, E. R. Slade, said Redford stayed behind after the class was over and placed the pipe in a vice, in an attempt to tighten the plugs in each end. The pressure of the vice was believed to have caused the explosion, which was heard throughout the school.

The boy fell and Mr. Slade picked him up and drove him in his own car to St. Joseph's hospital.

Beer Store Lots Transferred At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, May 16 — (ENS)—The Campbellford town council met in special session on Thursday afternoon to pass a by-law authorizing the transfer of two town lots on the northwest corner of Doxsee Ave. and Market St. to the Brewer's Warehousing Company. This was the final step before actual construction of the warehouse, expected to start this summer.

The Public Utilities Commission were anxious to secure the two lots and had offered council two other lots nearby, if council could make the switch with the brewery interests. Council had already accepted a cheque from the Brewer's Warehousing Company, however, and the offer to purchase had been signed, leaving the hands of council tied in the matter.

At a special meeting of the P.U.C. on May 10, the commission decided to offer to trade the lots for two owned by the P.U.C. and wroter to the Brewer's Warehousing Company offering to trade. The Brewer's answered the letter, stating they would trade their two lots for two owned by the P.U.C., if the P.U.C. would throw in a third lot near the other two. Council had, in the meantime, sold the other lot, however, so the deal fell through.

A lot adjoining the one occupied by the Community Arena was sold to C. A. O'Connor for the sum of $250. Mr. O'Connor agreed to a lot 50 by 100 feet, which will leave the town a driveway 30 feet long and 13 feet wide so that they might have access to the arena building.

Council also considered the offer of the McFarland Construction Company of Picton to pave a section of one of the main streets at a cost of $16,000. The new offer is $3,800 less than the original estimate.

Members of council decided this was still too high for this year's budget, however, and various suggestions were made to overcome the situation. Councillor Ness suggested patching the holes in the pavement.

Chairman of the Road and Bridge committee, Deputy Reeve Oscar Mason will go to Picton to get prices on purchasing the black top, or hot mix paving material in the near future. It is believed he will also inform the company of a lower figure, which council may authorize if the company will accept.

Want Engineers Given Power

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—Representative George Bender (Rep. Ohio) proposed today that Congress broaden authority for the army engineers to combat damage to shore-line property by high waters of the Great Lakes.

Bender told a reporter he may introduce legislation to authorize the engineers to help protect privately-owned lakeshore lands.

Under the present law, the Government may spend money for beach erosion control works only along public-owned lands. A large part of the land along Ohio's Lake Erie shore is privately-owned—and thus not currently eligible for federal help.

Bender said he thinks it would be proper for the engineers to cooperate with the states, local communities and property-owners themselves in protecting lake shores.

Representative Frances Bolton (Rep. Ohio) meanwhile asked the State Department to include Lake Erie in discussions with Canada on the problem.

Mrs. Bolton noted that the Canadian Government has agreed to include Lake Ontario in consideration by the international joint commission of measures to remedy the situation.

Air Cadets' Role Outlined By H. L. Garner

Speaking in Washington Wednesday evening at the congressional dinner of the Civil Air Patrol of the United States, held at the Shoreham Hotel, H. L. Garner, president of the Air Cadet League of Canada, gave a full report of the Air Cadet League activities from its inception during the last war up to the present time.

He stressed that by the end of the training year of 1952, there will in all probability be 20,000 air cadets enrolled and active in Canada.

A glowing tribute was paid by Mr. Garner of the co-operation received from the Royal Canadian Air Force in support of the activities of the Air Cadet League.

"The ambitious program at present in operation by the Air Cadet League would be impossible of fulfillment were it not for the magnificent support and co-operation rendered at all times and in all places by the R.C.A.F.

"The R.C.A.F. has on numerous occasions referred to the Air Cadet League as their 'partners,' and I take this as the highest compliment which could be paid to our organization."

Exchange Visits

Mr. Garner said that the exchange visits this year would mean that 26 cadets will leave Canada and go to Great Britain and another party of 26 cadets will leave for the United States, their ultimate destination being Florida where royal entertainment awaits them.

Of the 26 cadets going to Great Britain, two will go to Holland, two to Sweden and two to Norway. In return, Canada will entertain two boys from each of these countries as well as 26 Air Training Corps cadets from Great Britain and 26 cadets of the Civil Air Patrol of the United States.

Mr. Garner compared the exchange visits to a small N.A.T.O. in action. The way these cadets get together, exchange ideas and find out how each other lives, is having a very great effect on the present and future lives of these boys.

Three years ago as the result of these exchanges the Swedish Government patterned an air cadet movement after the plan followed by the Air Cadet League of Canada, and today they have 2,000 cadets who are the exact counterpart of our Canadian cadets.

The Air Cadet League of Canada differs from the Civil Air Patrol operation in the United States, in that the Air Cadet League is made up of civilian members who work in co-operation with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Mr. Garner spoke after President Truman at a dinner of the Civil Air Patrol in Washington at which congressional, air force and Civil Air Patrol leaders also spoke.

Following the congressional dinner, Mr. Garner was presented to President Truman, who proved to have a very intimate knowledge of cadet matters.

Indonesia Orders AP Reporter Leave

Information Minister Arnold Mononutu said Kroon's residence permit had expired. He is a Dutch citizen. The request for renewal of the permit was refused because of what Mononutu called Kroon's "Dutch colonial attitude, antagonistic to the people of Indonesia."

Kroon, who has been in Indonesia for five years, denied lack of sympathy for the new state.

Mononutu said the order for Kroon to leave the country had "no connection with his reporting for The Associated Press."

Lakefield Stores Open May 24

LAKEFIELD, May 16 (ENS)—Lakefield stores will remain open Saturday, May 24 and close May 26, reported retail chairman Wes. Graham at the directors' meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held Wednesday evening. This decision was reached after Mr. Graham had interviewed 20 merchants on the question. Dodgers to this effect will be mailed to rural districts and notices placed in the village. The Wednesday afternoon closing, during the summer months, which has been a controversial subject for some time, still remains one, and the matter will again be brought before council at the next meeting. The president, Harold Hamblin, presided.

The report of a satisfactory interview with Harold Scott, M.P.P. was given by W. A. Killoran and Reeve E. H. Northey.

Civic improvement convener, W. Sheppard, submitted a report which was read by secretary Mrs. William O'Brien stating that the results of "Clean Up Week" had been most satisfactory with citizens co-operating one hundred percent. Mrs. O'Brien also stated that the membership fees were coming in very well.

A suggestion was made by Don Hendren that the names of all members of the local Chamber of Commerce be printed on a card and placed in the Tourists' Information booth, so that tourists will have a concise list of Lakefield merchants and the nature of their business concerns.

Mrs. O'Brien will again be in charge of the Tourists' booth and improvement will be made to the booth under the supervision of Reeve Northey and a committee which he will choose.

Plans were made for the annual dinner which will be held at Buckhorn Lodge, June 4th, with Reeve Northey and W. A. Killoran a committee in charge. Two guest speakers of note will be present.

Dr. J. O. Wilson and Kenneth Slater were appointed new directors with the latter named to the Industrial Committee.

Where Does Censorship End?

Even the most casual reader of the newspapers must be aware that the matter of censorship of books and periodicals is being discussed by many groups in Canada at present, ranging in influence from a Senate committee, and the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves, to small discussion groups. All the reports that we have seen of these discussions dwell upon the anxiety of the persons concerned to protect young Canadians from books which these persons consider to be obscene. Of course, obscenity is a general term, and what appears obscene to one reader may not be so to another. A rough and ready legal definition of obscenity is "matter which tends to corrupt the morals by inflaming the passions and inciting to immoral conduct that is punishable." A little thought reveals how broad this definition is, and what a wide range of taste it may include. However, it it not with this question of obscenity which we wish to deal at present; we believe that all those persons who are talking about it so heatedly are possessed of sincere, if not always carefully considered, motives, and truly wish to save young people from an influence which might be degrading. But it is the implication of what they ask for which troubles us, and which we should like to discuss here.

* * *

There is already a censorship in Canada, for an official of the Department of National Revenue may forbid the importation of a book into Canada, and 573 books and 86 periodical publications are on this list at present. The grounds on which these books are banned are not made public, but an examination of the list shows that not all of them are banned because some people might consider them obscene; some are obviously banned because they are communist literature, or books which might be considered politically subversive.

* * *

We make a great point of the freedom which we enjoy in Canada. We criticize Soviet Russia without mercy because democratic publications are not allowed to circulate there, and because Russians are not allowed to hear the democratic side of world questions. But all our boasts are no more than so much hot air, if we tolerate the banning of books preaching unpopular doctrine in this country. By such action we confess that we do not believe in free circulation of opinion, and we make it plain that we do not think that the democratic people of Canada are capable of reading communist doctrine without coming to harm. In other words, we are not free, and we do not really believe in freedom.

* * *

In opposing any doctrine, it is important to know what that doctrine really is. How are we to find out what the Soviets believe—or at least preach—if we are not allowed access to their books? And if we do not know what they believe, and if such knowledge is not fairly common in Canada, how are we to confute their ideas among ourselves, and in the congress of free nations of which we are a part?

* * *

Censorship is, and always has been, an instrument of governments which do not believe in the native good sense of their people. Censorship always makes its entrance on the national stage under the guise of a desire to protect the young against evil—usually sexual evil, as this is the sort of evil most people understand best, and fear most. But once censorship is established for one reason, the arguments are weak against extending it; censor indecency, and why not censor political opinion; censor political opinion, and why not censor religious opinion (attempts have already been made to do this in relation to some broadcasts of the C.B.C.); censor religious opinion, and every sort of opinion comes under the examination of the censors, and freedom of speech has been lost.

* * *

Freedom of speech is perhaps the most dangerous of all freedoms, for it is not impossible to make vicious and destructive ideas superficially attractive. But if we are to be free, we must have the courage and the common sense to use dangerous things intelligently, as physicians make intelligent use of powerful drugs. It is easier at first to deny freedom than to accept its responsibilities, but such a denial destroys the mind and will of a democratic nation and at last destroys democracy itself by rendering the nation unfit for freedom. Canada has shown beyond any doubt that her people are fit to be free in the fullest sense—free to sift and select among all teachings and modes of thought.

* * *

"The truth is great, and will prevail." Either we believe this or we do not. If we deny it, or try to impose conditions upon it, we show that we are afraid that what we believe may not be true, and may be overthrown by something else. If this is our state of mind we try to solidify the truth, and keep it in its present state forever. But as truth tends to grow and expand, it will not be solidified: or, to put the matter in a different light, truth may be constant, but our knowledge of it is not, and we may hope for increased enlightenment if we close our doors and windows against it and that, in effect, is what censorship tries to do. In a minor degree, but none the less truly, a censorship of political ideas exists in Canada now, and any strengthening of censorship in any sphere will strengthen it, and weaken our freedom. Can we afford any weakening of freedom?

Shall We Be Cursed For Wasting Uranium?

Many nations in the van of modern science are joyfully looking forward to the use of atomic energy for the production of industrial power, especially of electricity. Already, as a by-product of its work, buildings are being heated at an atomic energy plant in England. A famous atomic scientist of the university of Vienna, Professor Hans. Thirring, dowses the joy. He has made an urgent protest against such use of atomic energy.

Professor Thirring points out that uranium, the only known source of atomic energy, is simply "too precious" to be "burned away" in atomic piles. He estimates that the world's total reserves of uranium are about a hundred thousand tons. The quantity necessary to cover the world's total energy demand is about a thousand tons a year. Thus Dr. Thirring claims that supplies would be exhausted in a hundred years. Even if as much as nine-tenths of the total energy requirements of the world were filled from other, traditional sources (like oil, hydro-power, coal) the known stocks of uranium would last a mere thousand years.

Are we never to have any pleasure in atomic energy? First blow to the human heart is that it is primarily used for making dreadful bombs. Now the Vienese scientist is dashing our hope that atomic energy will be a beautiful, faithful and powerfully useful energizer of the world's work. He says that if this "waste" of uranium goes on, our technologists will be cursed by their descendants just as earlier generations are now blamed for their reckless waste of Canadian forests. Sometimes we wish that nobody had ever split an atom. Perhaps we should even wish that nobody had ever split wood.

Recruits For The Colours

A mobile recruiting unit for the Canadian navy is now in Peterborough, as we noted in these columns earlier in the week. The opportunities the navy offer should attract young men. It has already attracted 13,500 of them, the strength of the R.C.N. this month. Its objective is 20,000 by 1954. The air force now has 32,600 serving, and hopes to enlist others to fill the 45,000-man quota. The army has already passed its 50,000 three-year recruiting objective, two years ahead of schedule. Service with the NATO forces in Europe seems to have a particular appeal.

What effect the dismembering of the original 25th Brigade will have, or has already had, is not yet known publicly. All these men enlisted as volunteers for the Far East, and not as members of the regular army. Thousands of them are now approaching the time when they would ordinarily have their release. How heavy is the re-enlistment into the regular army?

Canuck Jets

Yesterday we paid tribute to the British deHavilland jet passenger plane Comet. It would be remiss in praising the British genius and enterprise which produced this wonderful machine if we withheld commendation from our own new product, the Canuck jet fighter being produced at Malton by the A. V. Roe aircraft plant. It is completely Canadian in design, although the company is British in foundation, and some of its head men at Malton are British and American. The latest Canuck (CF-100) is a very fast, manoeuvrable all-weather jet plane, and it is expected that by the end of the year two squadrons of the R.C.A.F. will be equipped with the new Canucks.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A 90-year-old man in Mississippi has had the same wife and the same pipe for 60 years. The wife is obviously a woman of uncommon endurance.

A haircut costs $2.50 in Alaska. But as nobody in his right mind would get a haircut during the Alaskan winter, the barbers there no doubt feel that they must make hay while the sun shines.

"Trivial Illness Results In Death" says a headline in a contemporary. Perhaps it is lucky that the comments of the deceased on this statement cannot be heard.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: How long has that devilish perversion of nature, Daylight Saving Time, been invented?

ANSWER. An Englishman named William Willet began a campaign for it in 1907, but not until the Great War was any attention paid to it. Then the British Parliament legislated that the clocks be put ahead for "Summer Time," as it is called in Britain.

Canada, already befuddled by seven time zones, further confuses time by leaving D.S.T. to municipalities to have or not to have, and to begin and end as each sees fit. Only in 1942 as a wartime necessity, did the Federal Government enforce national Daylight Saving Time, even on trains. By then Britain was having D.S.T. throughout the year, and in the five summer months, double Summer Time, i.e., putting clocks two hours ahead of Greenwich standard time.

Farmers in Canada and abroad have always fought D.S.T. One of their arguments is that the cows won't give milk an hour earlier. But the experience of 1942-45 shows that even cows will do their duty, and provide milk on D.S.T.

✧ ✧ ✧

SOME PEOPLE CONTRAST Daylight Saving Time with "God's time." But D.S.T. is no more a perversion of nature than standard time. That also is artificial. According to the sun, every place east or west of another should have a different time. Peterborough should be four minutes ahead of Toronto, for instance. But to throw up standard time for sun time would cause utter confusion. Standard time was invented by a Canadian, Sir Sandford Fleming, who had intimate connections with Peterborough. Fleming Place is named after him.

It is interesting to note that Canada's newest province, Newfoundland, has a standard time zone peculiar to itself. Newfoundland time is 1½ hours ahead of Ontario's, not one hour or two hours, but 1½.

The seven time zones in Canada, reckoning from Greenwich mean time, are: Newfoundland and Labrador, 3½ hours slow.

Atlantic Standard Time (60th meridian)—N.B., N.S., P.E.I. and those parts of Quebec and the Northwest Territories east of the 68th meridian: four hours slow. Railway time changes at Campbellton and Saint John.

Eastern Standard Time (75th meridian): Quebec west of the 68th meridian and Ontario as far west as the 90th meridian; Northwest Territories between 68th and 85th meridians: five hours slow. Railway time changes made at Fort William and Armstrong.

Central Standard Time (90th meridian): Ontario west of the 90th meridian; Manitoba; southeasterly part of Saskatchewan and N.M.T. between 85th and 102nd meridian: six hours slow. Railway time changes going west at Broadview, Watrous, Arcola, Neudorf, Humboldt, Kipling and Hudson Bay Junction.

Mountain Standard Time (105th meridian): Saskatchewan except south-easterly part; throughout Alberta and N.W.T. between 102nd and 120th meridian: seven hours slow. Railway time changes at Jasper, Crow's Nest and Field.

Pacific Standard Time (120th meridian): Throughout B.C. and in N.W.T. west of 120th meridian: eight hours slow.

Yukon Standard Time (135th meridian): Throughout the Yukon Territory nine hours slow.

You will note that after each time zone I have put a meridian of longitude. The theory behind standard time zones is that since it takes the sun an hour to cross fifteen degrees of longtitude, the hourly division between time zones should be made every fifteenth meridian.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S "Hell and High Water"—the Duchess of Roxburgh and Miss Stopford, a Woman of the Bedchamber, were not on speaking terms, Sir Frederick Ponsonby, officer in the household of the last five Sovereigns, relates in his memoirs. Queen Victoria's doctor suggested to the Queen that the Duchess might go and see her. "Oh, dear, no," exclaimed the Queen. "There would only be hell and high water." Sir Frederick's comment on this is as interesting as Queen Victoria's use of the expression. "Often the Queen used expressions that had long passed out of the slang vocabulary of her contemporaries." We in Canada must still be early Victorian, in the late Victorian Sir Frederick's ears, if he could hear the talk on any main street in Canada. "Come hell and high water" is as familiar in our ears as a household word.

DEAR ALPHA: Sometimes at the bottom of a story in the Examiner, a story which sounds like an advertisement but looks like a news story, there is a small star. I've seen similar asterisks beside stories and pictures in Toronto papers, too. Why?

ANSWER: The asterisk is used to indicate that the article is a paid-for advertisement. Many papers use this device, instead of running across the top of it the words advt. advt. advt. advt.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR ALPHA: A copy I have of the London Times shows the burying place of the Kings and Queens under St. George's chapel, Windsor. As a child I spent every school holiday at the British Museum. The Egyptian mummies of the Pharaohs were all embalmed a certain way. Do you know how the kings of this generation are prepared for burial?

ANSWER: I think in exactly the same ways that will be used on me in due course. No permanently preservative embalming processes are used—if indeed they are known to modern times. The sovereigns of the last century and earlier who lie beneath Windsor Chapel are as much dust and ashes now as our forebears in Little Lake cemetery.

The exact processes are a trade secret, I think. Evelyn Waugh in his satiric novel "The Beloved" comes near to exposing the technical details of the fashionable "mortician," as he practices his cult in California.

Undertakers have succeeded in securing laws in this Province (and generally throughout the western world) requiring their methods of embalming. Even if you want to be cremated, your body must first get their treatment.

The fact is that despite modern science, or because of it, no one can be absolutely certain in every case that a person is dead. Really very little is known about so-called "natural" death; nor the exact time when death occurs. When I was complaining to a medical professor about the elaborate and expensive preparations required by law for burial (why, for instance, the necessity for embalming?) he said: "The medical profession does not yet know enough about death. After a body has been embalmed we can be absolutely sure that it is dead and will not revive."

But I would still prefer to take the risks, and have the kind of simple, dignified funeral given to a front-line soldier in wartime. The medical officer (if he is available) certifies death. The body is wrapped in a military blanket. (Incidentally, it is a false rumor—popular in bitter days of fighting—that the cost of the blanket is deducted from the dead soldier's pay-book.) Friends in his platoon or regiment dig the grave. A simple, dignified religious service is held. And that is it. Later the bodies are collected in official military cemeteries, and the graves permanently marked and kept decent. Such a funeral is ceremony without pomp, sentiment without sentimentality, sorrow without display. And there is no parade of expenses, no festoons of tributes, no pride of place indicated by the ornate trimmings of a casket. Death is ennobled by simplicity.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR THE RECORD: It is a patriotic myth that all Canadian soldiers serving overseas always count the days until they can get back to dear old Canada. An officer recently returned from Korea and who has travelled in many countries all over the world says that Tokyo is the most wonderful and beautiful city in the world, that the climate is exceptional, the ladies lovely, the hotels luxurious, the amenities of life second to none. "If I could get a job in Tokyo that would pay me even $20 a week I'd happily spend the rest of by life there."

Existentialist Humanism And Christian Humanism

By JEAN-LOUIS BRUCH

FRENCH EXISTENTIALISM is today undergoing the fate of all philosophical movements whose adherents are growing more numerous. The public is familiar with it through several polemic formulas taken out of their context or through literary transpositions, while continuing to be unaware of its principles and method of thought. The little book that Francis Jeanson has just devoted to "Phenomenology," therefore fills a large gap by setting forth in a brief and concrete manner, without any properly technical argument, the phenomenological method which, since Husserl, has dominated the whole development of contemporary existentialism.

But through this popularizing work—in the most worthy sense of the word—we can also make out Jeanson's own personal thought. Its originality does not lie in its properly doctrinal content, for in this respect Jeanson closely follows the Sartrian method. But its essential aim is not the same as in Sartre, and the phenomenalogical method takes quite a different turn.

For Husserl, the aim of phenomenology was exclusively speculative. It consisted in describing the deliberate structures of thought in defining what the conscience is aiming at, what a line of conduct signifies apart from its expressed intentions. The world, the object of thought and the concrete human subject were treated as a side-line, relegated to the infinite. And the personal attitude of Edmond Husserl, who built up his philosophic researches with less and less idea of publishing them during his lifetime, sufficiently confirms this bias for pure speculation.

With Sartre and Merleau-Ponty, phenomenology remains expressly a description of the conscience and its object, the world; but the moral viewpoint, and at the same time the aim of a concrete action upon men, begin to prevail. The philosopher no longer poses as a disembodied witness describing from nowhere a world of pure essences. It is this view of phenomenology turned to a psychological and concrete moral use that Jeanson adopts. In this respect we may say that he continues Sartrian thought while shifting its centre of gravity.

I DO NOT AGREE that Jeanson has resolved the paradox of phenomenological description and this moral aim in whose service he places the Husserlian method. Perhaps he has not even clearly stated the problem. And we must admit, of course, that it would have been difficult for him to do so in a work presented as an introduction and destined for a fairly wide public.

In any case Jeanson completes a trajectory that places French existentialism of today at precisely the opposite point to the Husserlian thought on which it was founded. And I think that this development, even if it has not been justified explicitly enough from the speculative point of view, remains philosophically and humanly valid, for it is only on this condition that the philosopher can fully regain the world of men and link the experience of life to intellectual reflection.

Phenomenological psychology, in its description and concrete appreciation of the human side of things, would thus play, in relation to phenomenological entology, a role analgous to that played by French moralists of the 18th century in relation to classical substantialist metaphysics. It is an indispensable role, as we can see; for it is not enough for principles to be defined, they must be given their concrete human application, especially if our standpoint is in a philosophy of existence. So existentialist humanism today tends to be expressed, without losing any of its strictness, in a more subtle and effective manner than it was at that rather spectacular conference at which Jean-Paul Sartre formerly set the formula.

CONFRONTED WITH this existentialist humanism, could we define a Christian humanism? Perhaps so, although it is difficult for a Christian to accept a term that seems to exclude the supernatural vocation to the church. But the Christian thinker also knows that it is his duty to take his place in the world of the present, and insist more then ever on the human significance of his mission. This is the problem put forward very frankly by Canon Leclerq in a recent work containing several topical articles. Too often today, he remarks, Catholics behave as if the Western world were Christian, in the sense in which it might have been in the Middle Ages.

So they are preoccupied with "preserving" the Christian world than with "bearing witness." But if it is true that the modern world is to some extent "dechristianized," the Christian's real task will again be to bear witness. "To show: it is not a question of discussion nor demonstration, but of vital experience." He must prove first of all the efficiency of Christianity in the world of today and, in the fine phrase that forms the title of the collection, "to think our time in Christian terms." Hence, he adds, "The perspective in which Christianity is presented is reversed, as also the Christian's attitude in the world." Without reducing his religion to humanism, which would be incompatable with its destination, the Christian today feels that he must above all lay stress on the human significance of his testimony.

This Christian humanism will also have to guard against becoming stuck fast in the various forms of slavery of the present time. I can think of few more pertinent analyses than those in which Canon Leclercq sets against each other what he calls the short-term and long-term requirements, in other words, undertakings, that give immediate effect. But in social as in individual life, when a particular phenomenon occurs, it is generally carried forward by an irresistible determinism. "In the present moment we can act for the future rather than for the present because, for the present, the die is almost always cast." And it is perhaps the special virtue of Christian thought that it can thus project itself towards a human future, even a far distant one.

Torch Commando's Dislike

(Montreal Star)

Torch Commando dislike of the Malan program is not so much opposition to apartheid as distinct from the separation of function that already existed between black and white and with which most whites agreed. It is based on opposition to the Nationalist assumption that the Government can do as it pleases with a constitution which offers some protection in its entrenched clauses to both black and white alike. Passage of the Representation of Voters Act by methods the courts have declared unconstitutional was the first intimation that the Nationalist program was wider than apartheid and touched the rights of the non-Afrikander whites as well as those of the blacks and Cape Coloured.

It is of more than passing significance that the Torch Commando has the backing of the gold and diamond interests. It means something that these interests are concerned with something more than the supply of cheap black labour that has made the mines prosperous. They are concerned to keep this supply. They are not eager to abolish the clour bar altogether, but they are prepared to see the black given a better education and wider opportunities for work. This is part of the Torch Commando program, the beginnings of a gradualist approach in which many see the only hope of ever solving South Africa's complex problems.

It is with these, rather than with the Opposition in Parliament, that Dr. Malan must make his compromise if one is to be made. An effective compromise is hardly to be made merely by splitting off the right wing of the United Party.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

The same day went Jesus out of the house, and sat by the sea side. And great multitudes were gathered together unto him, so that he went into a ship, and sat; and the whole multitude stood on the shore . . . . And his disciples came, and said unto him, Why speakest thou unto them in parables? He answered and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given . . .

About Newspapers for a Moment

(Ottawa-Journal)

We are not so naive as to think we can persuade the public to pause more than a moment or so to consider the plight of the newspaper industry. But for that brief moment or so here are some facts mentioned at the annual meeting of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association last week by the General Manager, Mr. Ian Macdonald.

In the last 10 years the number of readers of Canadian daily newspapers has grown from 1,900,000 to 3,500,000, or 84 percent. True, subscription rates have increased 66 per cent in those years, but . . .

"circulation revenue at the end of 1951 fell short by 13.6 percent, of paying even the annual newsprint bill of CDNA member newspapers which had grown from $8,600,000 to $38,570,000—an increase of 316 percent."

In short, the man who pays the nickel for a paper doesn't remunerate the publisher for the price he had to pay for even the newsprint that went into that paper. Everything else is thrown in; news services, payrolls, costly equipment, taxes and so on.

A nickel newspaper is unquestionably the best buy on the market, to say nothing of its being about the only thing you can still get for a nickel.

It is, of course, advertising revenue that keeps the paper coming to the subscriber's door, though there has to be a limit to what even advertisers can pay. We think it only fair to say, too, that advertisers have not been given due credit for their part in maintaining the newspaper.

A democracy needs newspapers, as do liberty and freedom. The task of continuing to publish newspapers in these days of soaring labor and newsprint costs has had inevitably to be shared by publishers and advertisers and the former without the latter could not have done the job.

The buyer of a daily newspaper gets his paper at less than cost. If he is in a mood to show appreciation of this fact the way is clear for him to patronize the merchants and producers whose advertising is in fact the mainstay of newspaper publishing.

Meanwhile, the newspaper industry has cleaned house of extravagances and worked enterprisingly on money-saving inventions that will yet not impair the paper's quality.

The government has subsidized radio and goodness knows what else. We would want no government subsidy for newspapers, for obvious reasons. But the people of Canada who must all share that feeling might well ponder the value to themselves of their daily papers and do what they can to carry their own share of the responsibility of maintaining them. And in patronizing advertisers they are, of course, benefiting in the purchase of proven articles at fair or even sale level prices.

Higher Pay Lures U.K. Scientists To U.S., Canada

By JOHN DUDMAN

LONDON, May 15—(Reuters)—Britain, fighting to keep her place among the leaders in scientific progress, is finding that many of her young scientists are lured across the Atlantic to higher paid jobs in the United States and Canada.

Already 15 British scientists are working in the research laboratories at E. I. Du Pont De Nemours Company at Wilmington, Del., and another research expert is to join them soon. Two scientists from the Republic of Ireland also have been signed on by the company.

Salaries for the British scientists are reported up to $30,000 a year and average salaries are said to be about $200 a month more than those paid in England.

For nearly 18 months now, aircraft manufacturers in the United States and Canada have been advertising for technicians, scarce all over the world, in Britain's technical magazines and local newspapers in industrial areas.

The shortage of aircraft technicians in Britain has been aggravated by a steady flow to North America of experts of all ages—from juniors to seniors with 10 to 20 years' experience.

Atom Research Hit

In many cases young men, who have completed a five-years apprenticeship with aircraft firms in Britain, have gone abroad because of the tempting salaries offered by overseas firms.

The search for scientists, started by the rearmament race, is affecting particularly atom plants and gun and tank factories.

Britain's biggest search has been for atom research workers.

With a £100,000,000 budget for research in the coming year, the Ministry of Supply, the government department responsible for atomic development, has intensified its recruiting drive. The universities are being asked to recommend suitable graduates for atomic research posts.

The shortage of scientists and technical experts has become serious enough to threaten to delay the full-scale operation of Britain's £8,000,000 atomic uranium factory at Capenhurst in Cheshire, now nearing completion.

A research station at Sellafield in Cumberland, for plutonium—the fissionable material used in the A-bomb, which is produced from uranium— also is likely to suffer from a shortage of technicians.

Paper Chuckles Over Art Story

MANCHESTER, England, May 16—(CP)—Under the heading "O God! O Toronto!" The Manchester Guardian chuckled Thursday over the story of the picture which set a Toronto art exhibition on its ear.

As told here, a young man sent a picture to the exhibition and received high critical acclaim. Then the painting turned out to be an old bit of cardboard on which artists in a commercial studio used to clean their brushes.

The story was told Wednesday by Prof. Frederic Taubes, an American critic formerly with the University of Illinois. Taubes, addressing the Royal Society of Arts, delivered a strong attack on modern art and said art criticism nowadays amounts to little more than "exercises in automatic rumination, stuff spun upon the couches of the psychoanalysts, self-dramatizations of the professionals . . ."

The Manchester Guardian story apparently referred to a "painting" sent to Sidney Key, curator of the Toronto Art Gallery, in February. Its sender, Robert Lealess of Vancouver, asked for some "constructive criticism."

He received a tactful reply:

"You are considerably interested in a variety of effects that can be arrived at through experimental use of your materials, and you seem to be aware of the accidental effects that can result from lines, calligraphy, blots and the use of a spray gun."

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Earl Selkirk, one-time player and manager of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football League, Thursday was awarded $500 in an action brought against the club for back wages.

Judge Frank McDonaugh said he was satisfied an agreement had been reached whereby Selkirk was to receive $500. Earlier, Bob Moran, Argo president, said the club has $67,000 in subscribers' funds in addition to $47,000 in a trust fund "for a couple of rainy days."

He made the statement while under cross-examination by Norman Borins, Selkirk's counsel. Selkirk said Moran promised him the $500 in 1949.

Sam Snead, canning two eagles, blazed a five-under-par 67 and piled up a staggering total of 22 plus points Thursday to capture the first round lead in the $15,000 Wykagyl round robin golf tournament at New Rochelle, N. Y. Snead, P.G.A. and Masters titleholder, amassed his point advantage at the expense of British open champion Max Faulkner, defending champion Roberto De Vicenzo of Argentina and Byron Nelson, the golf king of the 1940s.

Gordon McLendon, president of the Liberty Broadcasting System, said Thursday night his system serving 268 stations throughout the United States will suspend operations because of what he termed "an illegal monopolistic conspiracy by organized baseball." His system has pending a $12,000,000 anti-trust suit against 13 of the 16 major league clubs, charging they conspired to keep Liberty from broadcasting games.

A Congressional committee in Washington Thursday postponed until next week a decision on what to do about bills exempting organized baseball from U.S. anti-trust laws. The group made public statistics dealing with financial affairs of the sport. Paul Porter, special counsel, told the committee in a letter that the sport's financial rewards "are virtually negligible." Baseball is a $65,000,000 operation but in 1950 the combined net income of the 16 major league teams was only 11 per cent he wrote.

Steve Brooks, who will ride Sub Fleet in the Preakness at Baltimore Saturday, rode five winners at Louisville's Churchill Downs Thursday, including the first four races in a row.

Philadelphia Phillies were upheld Thursday at Harrisburg, Pa., in their refusal to pay $3,500 medical expenses to Eddie Waitkus who was shot by a young girl in a Chicago hotel three years ago. The Pennsylvania Workmen's Compensation Board reversed a decision by one of its referees awarding medical expenses to the first baseman. The reversal was on grounds the incident didn't happen while in the course of Waitkus' employment.

Young Sculler Develops Back Ailment

TORONTO, May 16 — (CP) — Jack Guest, Jr., one of the greatest scullers Canada has produced in two decades and considered the brightest prospect for Canada in the Olympic Games at Helsinki, Finland, next August, has developed a serious back ailment that may force him out of competition. The ailment may mean permanent disablement.

The big 19-year-old—he's six feet 5½ inches and weighs 210 pounds—was stricken about a month ago. His condition is described in medical circles as a congenital malformation of one of the lower vertebrae. X-rays show that a vertebra was not properly formed at birth.

In 1950, at the age of 17, Jack won the Canadian and United States scholastic singles titles, the U.S. singles and the Canadian Quarter-Mile Association singles at the Canadian Henley at Port Dalhousie. Last year he won the Canadian singles and then suffered the only loss in his competitive career—the Diamond Sculls at the Royal Henley.

He is now priming for the Canadian Olympic Trials, which will be held at Port Dalhousie in the middle of June.

Ball Schedule Rained Out

By The Associated Press

With a little cooperation from Toronto Maple Leafs, the Buffalo Bisons could climb to within a game and a half of first place in the International League tonight.

After the entire schedule was rained out Thursday night, the teams will have another try at playing the same opponents tonight.

The Leafs will do battle with league-leading Montreal Royals in a doubleheader at Montreal. If the Leafs can win both ends of the twin-bill and the Bisons lick the cellar dwelling Baltimore Orioles in a single contest at home, the race would be tightened considerably. That combination would trim the Royals' lead to a game and a half.

The Royals have been threatening to make a runaway of the race almost since the start of the campaign, but the Bisons have been hanging on doggedly, and currently are three games out.

The third-place Syracuse Chiefs play at Rochester. The Chiefs will have a rooting interest in the Buffalo-Baltimore game—on the side of the Orioles—because a Chief victory and a Bison loss would put Syracuse in second place.

In the other game, Springfield Cubs are at Ottawa.

Grove Girls Victors

Grove girls trimmed King Edward 35-23 in a school softball affair. The hitting was terrific while the pitching and fielding on both sides was well below par. The losers got most of their markers in the last two stanzas, while the winners ran wild in every frame, particularly in the 15-run fourth. Teams:

Grove: R. Todd, S. Post, V. LaFrance, J. Ross, A. Merrett, G. Smith, B. Scott, G. Teneycke, S. Duncan.

King Edward: M. Harvie, S. Reynolds, B. Bell, L. Hunter, Sally Reynolds, L. Scott, D. Johnson, Callan, K. Hooey, A. James, G. Hobart.

WANTS IN BIG LEAGUE—Jim Hendry, left, general manager of the Cleveland Barons in the American Hockey League, gives a confident "thumbs up," to indicate chances of making his team the seventh entry in the National Hockey League are good. N.H.L. President Clarence Campbell gives smiling approval to the enthusiasm of the Cleveland manager's bid at an N.H.L. meeting in Toronto. The Cleveland arena board of directors vote May 24 on certain "internal finances," to meet requirements set by the board of governors of the N.H.L. by June 1.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Turf followers will get extensive eye-witness coverage by CBC this year in the thoroughbred events. Starting this Saturday at the Queen's Plate trials at Woodbine, the race broadcasts go all summer and fall. Del Mott and Byng Whitteker have the pleasant assignments of verbally dealing with the races and colorful background. Saturday's account is at four eastern daylight time. Of course, the Queen's Plate with $15,000 added for the 93rd running of this historic race is on May 24. In June, they go at Thorncliffe. Scene shifts to Blue Bonnets track in Montreal in July and back they come to Woodbine in September for another feature.

Windsor scribe describes a ball manager who has no real worries at all. No holdouts, no drafts, no military call-ups, no travelling expenses. You see he handles the Outlaws, the Oklahoma State penitentiary team. The ball is of Class "C" pro calibre and some of the "grads" have made professional teams. They play about 10 games a month with college clubs, and others. The pen has two teams, one of trusties and the other of the less privileged prisoners. They play separate schedules but occasionally meet, and then the rivalry is said to be very hot indeed. Must be interesting.

Stupid Scribe Gets Caught

The games are staffed by a former newspaperman and a camera guy. How the dickens did they get put in pokey, anyway? Mike Van-Hooten is one of their stars and has attracted major league interest, though he has another year to serve. Billy Moore, Negro firstbaseman is said to be a sure-fire big league prospect—but he's in for life! Warden Walters recently was looking to Tulsa for some pitching help. He knew that Tommy Warren, a 20-game winner in the Texas League, would soon be eligible. Sure enough, Warren was convicted for obtaining money under false pretences and has been given a three-year term. He should bolster the slab staff considerably.

Lou Vitarelli reports that Peterborough is in a six-team O.L.A. junior "A" grouping with St. Catharines, Brampton, Mimico, Dundas and Toronto Maitlands. Fergus is out. All clubs have bolstered considerably since the eastern winner this year goes into Minto Cup semi-finals in Winnipeg and, if they win, the Canadian finals in Vancouver in the autumn. Play opens here with Dundas the visitors on June 9, an 18-game schedule. Each team shows here three times, except that St. Kitts and the locals will stage one four-pointer here and in St. Catharines. Top four meet in best-of-five semi-finals and group finals. Lou's team has bolstered a lot but will find stiff competition.

Lacrossers Back On Scene

Senior "A" lacrosse returns to this borough tonight at 8:45 in Miller Bowl. First scheduled fixture and first time since 1950 for Owen Sound Crescents to be on deck. The 1950 Mann Cup champs didn't play last year, and the Petes' Timbermen—using three of these Crescents (Wootton, Mason and Slater)—took the Canadian crown last year. Their many local gutter-stick followers haven't seen the Petes in action since they won O.L.A. honors last September, as the Mann Cup series was held in Vancouver. Well, it's pretty much the same squad but for some juniors brought up to replace Em Creighton and Mick Magee, who have retired. Should be a dandy opener before a big lacrosse-hungry crowd this gloaming.

Baseball opens here next week. Gord Snape's junior entry in the Lakeshore Intermediate League is at Riverside next Thursday (on May 22) at seven p.m., playing Howie Dalton's Cobourg crew in a scheduled fixture. The juniors have open drills at 6:30 tonight, at two tomorrow aft, and nightly the first half of next week. Still several positions open. This team can use up to five intermediates in loop play. Senior Petes have Kingston here May 24 in a night game to start the C.O.B.L. schedule. That league is a three-club circuit, Smiths Falls and Brockville settling for an eastern loop. Some talk now of these two leagues staging interlocking games this semester.

Central Victorious

Central intermediates of the school softball circuit took a 17-12 victory over Queen Alex yesterday afternoon. Hayman replaced Tetlock on the winners' mound in the fourth. These two and McInroy went best for Central, while Hamilton, Tucker and Ratz stood out for the northerners. The latter got five runs in the second, three next time up, one each in the fourth and seventh, with two in the fifth, though they were held to five hits. The victors got seven safeties, scoring a run in the first, five each in the second and fourth, with six in the third. Teams:

Central: Lang, Dunford, Tetlock, Sorrie, Bolton, Simpson, Armstrong, McInroy, Hayman, Barber, Findlay and Vilnef.

Johnny Longden Rides 4,000th Winner

INGLEWOOD, Calif., May 16 (AP). — Jockey Johnny Longden has reached another milestone in his distinguished riding career by booting home his 4,000th winner.

The little guy with the iron grip attained win No. 4,000 in the third race at Hollywood Park Thursday and became the second man in racing history to do so.

Today the 44-year-old Longden, who shows no signs of retiring from the saddle, starts on the next 1,000.

He hit the charmed 4,000 circle in dramatic fashion aboard a heretofore-unraced filly, Fleet Diver, a direct offspring of Count Fleet, the colt Longden rode to the triple crown of American racing in 1943.

2 'Big' Horses Expected To Enter Race

BALTIMORE, May 16 (AP). — The names of the two "big" horses, Sub Fleet and Blue Man, are expected to be dropped into the entry box along with two others this morning, thus completing a lineup of 10 starters for the 76th running of the Preakness Stakes at ancient Pimlico Saturday.

The 1 3-16-mile gallop, carrying $75,000 in added money, drew six entries Thursday.

But Sub Fleet, the Dixiana stable express which got second place behind Hill Gail in the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago, and A. W. Abbott's Blue Man, which rushed up to get third, are yet to be named for the Maryland classic.

Others still missing from the prospective field of 10 which would make this the largest number of starters in the race since 1947, are Mrs. Gordon Guiberson's Arroz and Max Kahlbaum's Jampol.

Others Entered

Sam E. Wilson's Gushing Oil, Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' One Count, Gustave Smith's Handsome Teddy, Jack Amiel's Count Flame, Armageddon from Harry G. Guggenheim's Cain Hoy stable and Primate from the Starmount stable of E. B. Benjamin were entered Thursday.

Unless something drops out of the clouds, these 10 three-year-olds will make up the field, and if all face the starter at 5:17 p.m. E.D.T. Saturday the race will have a fat purse of $113,270.

Four of the horses got into the race as supplementary entries at $2,250 apiece, while the others were nominated regularly through various payments totalling $135 each. It costs an additional $750 to start the race. If any of the four supplementaries—Sub Fleet, Jampol, Arroz or Handsome Teddy—hit the winner's circle, they'll net $84,020. Any of the others can cash away $86,135 profit by getting there first.

Western Wins Cage Series

LONDON, Ont., May 16—(CP)—University of Western Ontario Mustangs today were set to meet Tillsonburg Livingstons, Canadian senior basketball champions, for the right to represent Canada at the Olympic games in Helsinki, Finland, next August.

The Mustangs, a classy combination put together by Coach Johnny Metras, advanced to the Olympic trials Thursday night with a 75-62 victory over University of Alberta Golden Bears. It was the Mustangs' third straight decision in the best-of-five series for the Canadian college championship.

Livingstons and Mustangs start the trials Monday night in Tillsonburg.

Webster's victory marked the first time a Canadian college title had been decided in basketball. It also was its 11th straight win over college clubs this season. The Mustangs whipped the Golden Bears 53-47 and 64-45 earlier this week.

Seven members of the winning club in the Western-Tillsonburg series will go to Helsinki. The remainder of the team will be selected all-stars.

Queen Alex Victors

Queen Alex defeated Grove girls 10-7 in a school softball league encounter. The losers were held to two runs each in the second and fourth innings but rallied for three in the fifth. The victors shoved over six in a big third stanza, adding three in the fourth and one more in the fifth of a neat tussle. Teams:

Queen Alex: C. Hayward, M. Brown, D. Kingston, I. Buckton, D. Dunnett, B. Montgomery, A. Arnold, S. Shaw, J. Weir, G. Clemens.

Grove: R. Todd, S. Post, V. LaFrance, J. Burfield, A. Merrett, G. Smith, B. Scott, A. Tenycke, S. Duncan, J. Parnell, M. Sherry.

Umpires, Linsey and Norris.

McGill Protects Its Amateurism

MONTREAL, May 16 (CP). — Sweeping changes, aimed at furthering amateurism in intercollegiate ranks, have been put into effect by McGill University

The report of a special committee, made public Thursday night, announced that the university has decided to remain a member of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union. However, a new athletic department to safeguard the "true character of university athletics" has been established.

The special committee was formed in February, 1951, and its report was amended and adopted in April by the university's senate.

The committee delved into problems of present-day sport and recommendations were adopted, the report said, "to prevent a steady decline toward that demoralization of university athletics which has taken place in many American universities."

Copies of the report have been forwarded the three other universities in the C.I.A.U.—University of Toronto, University of Western Ontario and Queen's University.

McGill will also urge the C.I.A.U. to become country-wide and to appoint a full-time president selected by member universities.

Trucks Pitches No-Hitter Tigers Clip Senators 1-0

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer

Virgil Trucks' fine no-hitter and the covey of Major League shutouts raise some old questions. Are the pitchers that good? Or the hitters that weak? The correct answer probably is somewhere between the two extremes. Certainly Trucks' no-hit, no-run game for Detroit against Washington Thursday was a superb effort. He walked only one and struck out seven.

But the batters in both leagues did little to earn their pay. They performed like trained seals leaping for a flounder. The combined batting average of both leagues for the day was a sick .167. But for Philadelphia Athletics' 10-hit burst against St. Louis Browns, it would have been much worse.

It was shutout day in the Majors, with four of the five games in that category. The Phils' Robin Roberts was the only winner allowing a run. And he gave up only one while throwing a five-hitter.

Trucks, Ray Scarborough of Boston, Alex Kellner of the A's and Billy Loes, Brooklyn's bonus baby, all blanked the enemy.

Dramatic Finish

The Tigers couldn't have arranged for a more dramatic finish for Trucks' no-hitter. Tangled with Bob Porterfield in a scoreless struggle, Detroit went down to the last out before winning the game, 1-0.

With two gone in the last of the ninth, newly-wed Vic Wertz blasted a home run into the upper right-field stands. Rightfielder Jackie Jensen didn't even bother to run back. He just trotted off the field.

Porterfield matched Trucks in the early going, pitching no-hit ball for 5 2-3 innings. He gave up only four hits in all.

The no-hitter, second ever pitched by a Tiger hurler, was especially welcome to Trucks as his first win of the season. The 33-year-old righthander, who was unable to pitch in 1950 due to arm trouble, depended on h[illegible] with an occasional fireball as an ace in the hole.

Scarborough blanked Chicago White Sox 1-0, as rookie Ted Lepcio's pay-off single won for Boston in the fourth. Faye Throneberry, another survivor of manager Lou Boudreau's spring youth movement, set up the run when he walked, stole second and went to third on catcher Phil Masi's wild peg. Lepcio drove him home with one of the three Red Sox hits off loser Ken Holcombe.

Shuts Out Browns

Lefty Kellner shut out the Browns for the second time in eight days with four hits in Philadelphia's 6-0 victory. Kellner had three of 10 hits off Tommy Byrne, driving in two runs and scoring a third. One of his hits was a double.

The St. Louis and Chicago defeats enabled the idle New York Yankees to take over fourth place. The Yanks' game at Cleveland was postponed because of cold weather.

Loes took advantage of his first starting chance for Brooklyn to whip Pittsburgh's feeble Pirates, 2-0. The 22-year-old kid, who got a $22,000 bonus for signing in 1948 had won three in a row on relief before manager Chuck Dressen gave him his big chance.

Roberts would have made it unanimous for the shutout pitchers if he hadn't dished up a home run ball to Joe Adcock of Cincinnati in the sixth inning. The 5-1 decision was Roberts' sixth straight since he lost the opener.

Rain and cold weather knocked out the Chicago at New York and St. Louis at Boston scheduled games.

Canada Stiffens Export Laws

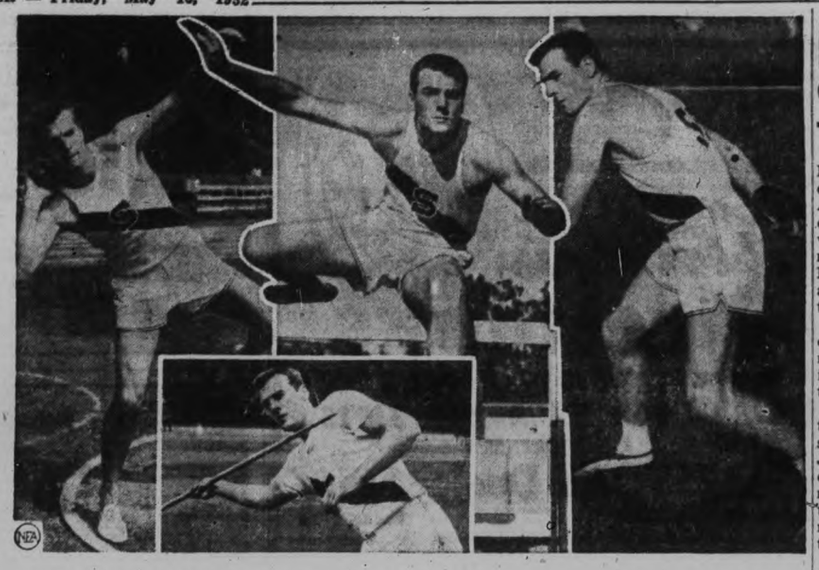
OTTAWA, May 16. (CP)—The Commons Thursday gave final passage to legislation stiffening the penalties for breaches of regulations requiring a government permit for shipment of strategic materials out of the country.

The legislation, amending the Export-Import Permits Act, increases the maximum penalty in all cases to $5,000 from $500 and lengthens the period allowed for initiation of proceedings.

The measure already has been endorsed by the Senate and now needs only Royal assent to become law.

Hon. C. D. Howe said Canada's controls are made jointly with the U.S. to prevent Canada from becoming a "back door" for the re-exportation of U.S. strategic materials.

Canada does no business with Red China or Russia. But she does business with Czechoslovakia and other satellites of Russia in certain non-essential goods.



ALL-ROUND—Bob Mathias put the shot 51 feet 2½ inches. Mathias hurled the javelin 189 feet 1⅝ inches. The world record-holder in the decathlon negotiated the high hurdles in 14.3, threw the discus 173 feet 4 inches.

Daoust Claims Smashing Victory

HAMILTON, May 16 (CP)—J. Harold Daoust, Canadian director of the Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), Thursday night claimed a "smashing victory' over a union secession movement after the 200-member Monarch Knitting Company local at Dunnville, voted to remain in the T.W.U.A.

The president and vice-president of the local, supporters of the move to break away from the international union, resigned after the vote.

The secession move, headed in the Hamilton area by Jack Robinson, former head of the Hamilton Joint Textile Board, started over dissatisfaction of some union members with the top administration of the union. The joint board represents some 4,000 members in the Hamilton area.

Wednesday night the union local at Nubone Corset Company in Port Dalhousie voted to rescind a previous secession decision and remain in the T.W.U.A.

Mr. Daoust claims definite adherence of 35 per cent of the union membership here.

Have New System To Identify Horses

COLUMBUS, O., May 16 (CP)—The U.S. Trotting Association today announced adoption of a fool-proof system of identifying harness horses racing at 518 tracks under U.S.T.A. jurisdiction.

The Trotting Association will embark this week on a program that will result in the "chestnuts" or "night eyes" of every harness horse in the country being photographed.

The "chestnuts" are horny growths located on the inside of each leg and are as effective as fingerprints in providing positive identification. No two are ever alike.

The photographic records will be filed at the association's national headquarters here and duplicates will be made available to member tracks

In addition to photographing the "chestnuts," U.S.T.A. teams also will take front and side views of every horse and will note for the permanent record distinguishing characteristics such as scars, blemishes, imperfections of conformation.

A new survey by the Associated Press of Pennsylvania delegates to the national nomination convention in Chicago in July gives him a total of 92 voes assured at the convention compared with 87½ for Kefauver.

The totals are still a long way from the 616 votes necessary to gain the nomination at the convention.

Leading Fighter Pilot Shot Down In Korea

U.S. FIFTH AIR FORCE, Korea, May 15. (AP)—The air force announced today that Col. Walker M. Mahurin, one of the leading United States fighter pilots, was shot down over Korea Tuesday.

The 33-year-old Sabre jet pilot who shot down more than 25 planes in two wars hasn't been heard from since he radioed:

"I've ben hit by flak and I think I'm on fire."

The air force said it didn't know whether he parachuted.

Mahurin, from Fort Wayne, Ind., was pioneering the use of Sabre jet fighters in dive-bombing.

Mahurin shot down 21 planes in Europe and one in the Pacific in the Second World War. He was credited with 3½ planes shot down in Korea, one probably destroyed and one damaged.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Fred Crowe of Dummer Urges Farmers to Support the June Set-Aside of One Cent a Pound Butterfat . . . Crop Improvement Association Plans Two-Day Trip to Kemptville and Ottawa . . . Herefords Average $450 at Huron County Sale . . . 4-H Club Meetings Arranged for Next Week.

Storage surplus of 60,000,000 pounds of butter next fall, would not be an excessive stock, Fred Crowe of Dummer said in his CHEX broadcast last Saturday.

As a means of diverting milk from cheese in the emergency looming this season, the switch to greater output of butter would help to relieve a critical problem and period in the dairy industry.

Mr. Crowe intersected a personal recommendation for the pooling of all milk as his closing remarks indicate. The text of his address under the auspices of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture follows:

Predictions Upset

"Just a little over four months ago, government statistfcians, with full access to authentic statistics, told us that, after taking into consideration both exports and imports, Canada was scarcely self-supporting in dairy products, and also that, contrary to what msot people believed, milk production had increased 8 per cent since prewar years.

At the Manitoba convention in Winnipeg, in February, J. S. Turnbull, president of the National Dairy Council, said that if our population continued to increase at the same rate for three more years we would need 300,000 additional cows to supply every one with the same amount of milk now being used per person.

Now, at the beginning of the heavy production season, we are told that there will be an estimated surplus of 650,000,000 pounds of milk to be disposed of in Canada in 1952.

Causes Of Change

The change has been caused by three main reasons beyond the producers' control.

First—the loss of the British market for cheese. From confederation until the end of 1951, there has always been a market in Britain for all the cheese Canada could ship. Thus, by converting surplus milk into cheese and shipping it to the United Kingdom we had a safety valve which kept the whole dairy industry under control.

British authorities now state that their dollars are so scarce they must be used to purchase essential war materials which cannot be bought from the sterling area.

Second—the outbreak of hoof-and-mouth disease, and the United States embargo on Canadian livestock.

Over a period of years, dairymen in eastern Canada had built up a market for dairy cows in the United States which could be expected to remove 100,000 dairy cows from Canada per year. These cows must now remain in Canada, and either be milked or slaughtered, and their product will add millions of pounds to the surplus of milk.

Third—substantial imports of dairy products from other countries.

In spite of the protests of the Cheese Producers Marketing Board, the Canadian government permitted 6½ million pounds of New Zealand cheese to be brought into Canada in 1951, and continued to permit importation in the early months of 1952. There is now a large quantity of this imported cheese in the hands of the trade.

The Cheese Producers Marketing Board has continually approached the Hon. J. G. Gardiner requesting a floor price on cheese. Also, several members on the floor of the House of Commons have brought it to his attention.

Emergency Developing

The fact that conditions have changed completely in recent months has been pointed out to the Minister of Agriculture. He is aware of the United Kingdom's inability to buy cheese, of the embargo on Canadian livestock due to the foot-and-mouth disease, and also of the United States quota on cheese.

A real emergency is developing in Ontario and Quebec dairy circles. With the cows now going on grass, the milk will soon back up into the manufacturing plants and into the fluid milk trade, and a condition of chaos will result.

Every known avenue has been explored in an effort to get a support price, but nothing definite has been obtained, although it has been reported in the press that Mr. Gardiner told a group of Stormont farmers that he is prepared to recommend a plan to Parliament.

Briefly, the situation regarding cheese on Thursday of this (last) week when the exchanges opened was this:

About 20,000 boxes of April cheese were to be offered for sale.

The minimum price agreement of April 8, 1952, was revoked, and no new minimum price agreement was established.

Fee Is Reduced

The three cents license fee will not be deducted from the price of cheese that was sold on the exchanges, April 8, but factories will receive their payments from the Belleville office (of the marketing board), and the service fee charged will be one-eighth of a cent per pound.

The trade is also in a precarious position with a substantial quantity of high-priced cheese on hand, much of it foreign by the way, and their reaction was reflected in the single unaccepted bid of 21c offered by Lovell and Christmas on the Brockville exchange.

Now, what can we as producers do to help relieve the situation? Since Canada imports butter, it would seem reasonable to convert as much of the surplus as possible into butter. A surplus of 60 or 70 million pounds of butter next fall would not be too much to have in storage.

Next, I appeal to every producer to support the Dairy Farmers' advertising campaiagn by having the one cent per pound butterfat deducted from his June cheque. Even though our returns are smaller than in past years, it is all the more important that we support this fund.

One encouraging factor is that the dairy groups other than cheese are realizing for the first time the importance of the cheese industry in absorbing surplus milk.

Already, the concentrated groups have had to accept lower prices, and even the whole milk group, having been the traditional aristocrats of the industry, and, in the past, unconcerned about what happened to others, have suddenly become aware that their foundations are not secure.

Truly, there is only one dairy industry in Canada.

HIGH JERSEY TESTS

Canadian Jersey Cattle Club reports quite a large number of Jersey cows qualifying on record in Ontario, Durham and Peterborough counties. Among the breeders are: F. C. H. Bent and Son at Omemee; J. H. Benson, Bewdley, Henry A. Sharpe, Smith and Bamforth and Kelly of North Monaghan.

In the herd of Dr. Wilfred W. Sherwin, Orono, Golden Meadow Basil's Louise, a daughter of the grand champion bull at the Royal Winter Fair last November, Edgelea Basil Butter Boy, produced in 307 days, 7,920 lbs. of milk and 490 lbs. of fat as a senior three year old, or 6.2 per cent.

W. D. Thompson of Brooklin, president of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club, is represented in the latest report from James Bremner, Toronto, secretary of the Club. His four year old cow, Shalomar Standard Biddy, went on test as a junior four, and in 365 days produced 9,490 lbs. of milk and 613 lbs. of fat for the high test of 6.46 per cent. Her sire, Brampton W. R. Design, has attained the rating of "a superior sire" by the Jersey Cattle Club. Mr. Thompson bought him as a calf from B. H. Bull and Son, Brampton. He earned his title with 20 tested daughters averaging 8,656 lbs. of milk and 482 lbs. of fat, with a test of 5.57 per cent.

275 FROM SIMCOE

Junior clubs of Simcoe county are coming to Peterborough July 4. For the 275 boys and girls, six buses will be chartered. Some of the youngsters will have to be out of bed by 4.30 a.m. that day to be on time at the rendezvous. They are due here at 10.30, will have lunch at noon and set out for home after early supper. F. C. Paterson is hoping to provide an interesting visit for these 4-H club members from North and South Simcoe, including educational calls at several of the local industries of special interest to young farmers.

Dinner is likely to be the major problem of the day for Mr. Paterson, with a host of 275 boys and girls lining up for the bell. This will be the biggest rural youth invasion of Peterborough on a bus tour.

OCTOBER CHAMPIONSHIPS

Looking forward five months, the East-Central Ontario Holstein champion show will be held in Peterborough Oct. 15 with D. S. Dunton of Brampton as judge. George R. McLaughlin of Oshawa is chairman of the show, and Jerry Nelson, fieldman, is secretary. A new class has been added for dam and daughter pairs, any age. To be eligible, a breeder must first take part in his county Black and White Day, and the number of cattle he enters in the championships must not exceed his entries at his county show.

SPRING SHOW MEETING

Promoters of the Central Ontario Spring Show are meeting here Thursday, May 22 at the office of the Department of Agriculture at 1.30 p.m. It was arranged at the conclusion of the Show in Peterborough during the last week of March.

Purpose of this meeting is to review the experience of the first Spring Show, which has taken the place of the Quinte District Seed Fair, to consider the prospects for next year, and generally to survey its position.

It is expected that Oliver Dalrymple of Stirling, Hastings county agricultural representative, and secretary-treasurer of the Show will report on its finances.

A profit of around $100 to $150 was intimated some time ago as an incomplete statement from the treasury. The Show was an encouraging promise of the future, and it is hoped that the men who promoted it will all be present for this meeting. One suggestion that has been mentioned would encourage the classes for larger quantities of government graded seed grain, partly as an aid to producers in the sale of exhibits on the closing day of the Show. It proposes more attraction for 10-bushel entries.

PREVENTING BLOAT

Canadian Hereford Digest recommends several helpful things to do to prevent bloat in cattle and sheep. Feed hay before opening the pasture gate; turn on grass alone, before letting the stock go for legumes; feed some corn and corn cob meal or ground corn cob; turn onto legume pasture gradually and not too early in the morning.

When a case looks like a baloon ascension use a trocar; call your veterinarian.

Bloat results from sudden formation of gas in the rumen or paunch. It causes pressure on the diaphram, and may extend to rupture of the diaphram or the rumen.

"Bloat may occur on any feed, but most cases are seen in animals pastured on early growth of legumes. It seems to be worse when the pasture is succulent and the animals are hungry and thirsty . . . Bloat occurs commonly on pure stands of clover or pastures that carry a high percentage of legumes. Feeding a dry, palatable roughage as cured hay before turning the animals on legume pasture is often advisable. The roughage helps stimulate the belching of gas."

Sowing brome grass with alfalfa, 12 lbs. to 8, is mentioned as helpful.

CHEESE FACTORY CLOSES

Scott's cheese factory at Acton's Corners in the Kemptville district has suspended work for the season. Reasons: uncertainty of the market, competition of other milk processors, increased cost of materials. The present building was constructed in 1933, replacing the original of 188

GRIM BIT OF HUMOR

James Oldham, chairman of the Elgin Hog Producers, tells a story of a producer in his district who took a trailer load of weanlings to a community auction. The pens were packed, so he left his consignment in the trailer, all ten of them. Later he returned to the parked truck to see how the pigs were getting along. Instead of ten, he had 19 pigs. Some discouraged producer had given him nine more, instead of taking them home again himself. Mr. Oldham does not vouch for the truth of that yarn. However, it reflects just about the state of affairs in the swine business at present, and perhaps also indicates the spirit of farmers as they face difficulties that have suddenly descended upon them.

SALE AT WOODSTOCK

More than 700 farmers attended the auction sale at Woodstock of 59 Holsteins, artificially bred by the Oxford District Cattle Breeding Association. Total receipts were $16,890 for an average of $286. The best price was $475 paid by Ernest Goodhue, Port Stanley, to Douglas Hart of Woodstock for Hartholm Jewel Burke, an eleven months old son of Pabst Roburke Lad out of a cow with 20,049 lbs. milk and 823 lbs. fat (4.10 per cent) on twice a day milking as a four year old. Top price for a female was $445. Best price for a heifer calf was $260.

This was the third annual sale of the Association. Previous averages were $450 in 1951 and $335 in 1950.

ONTARIO SUMMARY

This week's crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture is repetitious in its references to the timeliness of the recent rains.

Acreage of flax and barley is the largest on record in Bruce county . . . Brant says there is a big surplus of fluid milk . . . Some hog producers in Norfolk have had hogs returned from a "flooded market" in Toronto . . . Seed potatoes in Muskoka sold up to $6 a bag . . . Few cattle have been sold recently in Northumberland . . . Durham reports quite a number of finished cattle sent to market in the last ten days . . . Some of the factory curing rooms in Russell are filled to capacity with cheese . . . Hastings says: "increased interest is being shown in soybeans as a concentrate crop."

RURAL LIFE SUNDAY

In the observance of Rural Life Sunday at George St. United Church May 18, the speaker at the evening service will be the Rev. A. E. Larke of Springville. This Sunday evening worship is devoted to the rural way of life and its importance in the Christian community. Following the service, a new film entitled "Our Son" will be presented. It deals with an economic phase of farming, the subject of which is indicated by a final partnership arrangement.

OTTAWA BUS TRIP

Peterborough Crop Improvement Association is arranging for a two-day bus trip to Kemptville and Ottawa June 12 and 13.

The bus will leave the King St. terminal Thursday, June 12 at 8 a.m., and will spend that day at Kemptville Agricultural School looking over the forage crop plots, Central Experimental Farm and probably the Ottawa Dairy Farm will be visited on the following day for further study of grassland farming.

This is an early announcement of the tour that is planned for the educational feature of seeing forage practice at both the provincial and federal government farms.

$2350 FOR MATA HARI

Norman McConkey recently attended the Conestoga Classic auction at Mountjoy, Pa., and saw his favorite Mata Hari change hands for $2,350. Her son in the sale brought $1350. The former Lifloc Holstein is now nine years old. He would have liked to bring her back to Peterborough, and for more than sentimental interest, but Mr. McConkey retired from the bidding at $2,000. She has been in the Lyons herd for some years.

MEET KEN BEST

Leaders of the Peterborough 4-H Clubs were guests at a dinner Monday night at the Empress arranged by Frank C. Paterson to introduce Ken Best, his assistant who has replaced Robert E. Bell. With them were Henry Sharpe, president of the Federation of Agriculture, and fieldman Harold Lewis.

Mr. Best is keenly interested in club work, and intends to visit all the boys and girls at their homes, incidentally learning the geography and roads of Peterborough county.

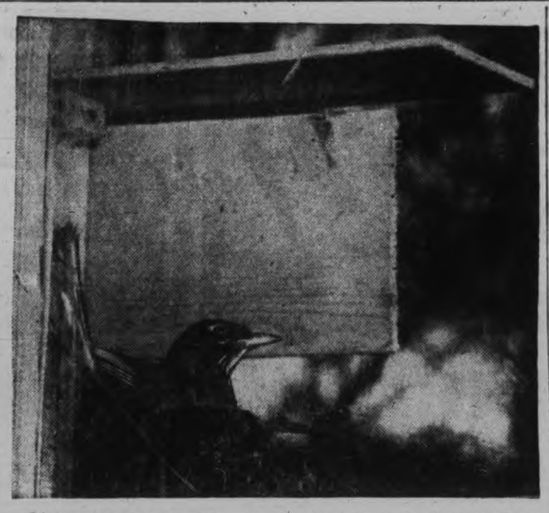
HEREFORDS AVERAGE $450

Thirty-two registered Herefords brought $14,395 at the Huron County Hereford Association sale at Clinton. Twenty-two families averaged $484, with the top at $670; and ten bulls averaged $425 with the high price $550. Sale average was $450. Buyers of the bulls receive a bonus of 20 per cent of the purchase price by the Ontario government's premium policy. The limit is $75. E. Weaver of Copetown took seven animals for $3,565.



SUMMER BOARDER—Mrs. Joe Isenberg of Montreal has an addition to her family in the shape of the robin which has set up housekeeping on a window sill. The bird built the nest in two mornings of last week and has deposited an egg in the nest each morning since. Mrs. Isenberg's three sons, Herbert, 18, Walter, 15, and Edward, 12, are responsible for the protective works to shield the nest from the worst of the blasts and rain that has prevailed this week.

Farmers Urged To Support Set-Aside Fund

Federation of Agriculture secretaries and fieldmen in Toronto Wednesday undertook to make a special effort to appeal to farmers to co-operate in the June set-aside campaign for funds to continue advertisement of dairy products.

Harold Lewis of Peterborough reports that there was no appreciable collection from this county last year. The list of dairies and cheese factories standing aloof from the campaign did not include at least two, Central Smith and Havelock creameries. For that reason they are presumed to have supported the publicity financing which amounted in receipts to $344,162.79 in 1950 and $291,282.31 last June.

One cheese factory and most of the dairies in this area did not participate in the June set aside last year. Repeating the information as to the method of collection, Mr. Lewis said the processors may take out the cent a pound for cream from producer cheques, but would not continue to do so if any farmer objected to making a contribution.

The money is used in publicity and advertising of dairy products. Expenditure in 1950-51 was $284,787.71, and in 1951-52 the budget is $298,913.21.

Actual expenses as shown in the financial report for 1950-51 included $191,808.43 direct advertising and $15,569.20 for merchandising; dairy foods service bureau $6,541.02; publicity $5,701.75; and so on.

Set aside collection in June, 1951, by provinces, was: British Columbia $13,233.57; Alberta $40,004.75; Saskatchewan $15,474.76; Manitoba $13,816.15; Ontario $118,655.04; Quebec $71,548.39; New Brunswick $8,227.38; Nova Scotia $8,322.27; Prince Edward Island $2,000.

Fieldmen and secretaries are setting out to interview cheese factories and dairies to enlist their support for next month, expecting that dairy farmers will agree to their uniform contribution during June.

Details of what has already been done in securing dairy publicity are reviewed in a booklet of fourteen pages. One item, for example, mentions 4,385 'ads' in daily and weekly newspapers.

From their contacts with farmers, Mr. Lewis said the consensus of the meeting Wednesday reflected the hope of farmers that prices of their commodities will level off at reasonable figures during the critical season of the continuing U.S. embargo against cattle as a result of the foot and mouth outbreak in the west.

NATIONAL SALE

National Sale of Holsteins at Oakville May 19 will auction five bulls and 65 females. Among the consignors are Stewart Nelson, Jas. T. Brown and M. J. Tamblyn of this district.

Dunsford Junior Farmer Chosen For British Trip

Harold Beatty, 27, of Dunsford, Victoria county, is one of the four Junior Farmers comprising the Ontario delegation sailing from Montreal May 30 for Great Britain. They will return about the middle of July.

Mr. Beatty operates a mixed farm, and has a Holstein herd of high production in Victoria. Since he was 12, he has been an enthusiastic Club member, first as a boy in calf and grain clubs. He represented his county twice at the provincial inter-club competition at O.A.C. Now, as leader of two calf clubs he is putting his training and experience to good use.

As a member of the Kawartha Junior Farmers he represented Victoria county at the 4-H Club National Congress in Chicago in 1946. He has also won prizes at Junior Farmer judging competitions at Peterborough Exhibition, C.N.E., and Royal Winter Fair. A member of the United Church in Lindsay, he is this year president of Lindsay Presbytery Young People's executive.

The three other members of this delegation of goodwill to the Old Country are Miss Eleanor Saracuse, Waterford, R.R. 4, Norfolk; Mary Carmichael of Ilderton, Middlesex; and James Bennett of Spencerville, Grenville county.

Leader of the party is Miss Betty Boyle, associate editor of Junior Farmer News, and a member of the publicity staff of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. She was in Britain with the RCAF women's division during the Second World War. These young Canadians will live on farms in England and Scotland for four weeks studying agricultural methods and conditions.

Miss Saracuse is the immediate past president of the Ontario Junior Farmers Association, and is the first girl to receive that distinction. She is now one of the first two girls to represent Ontario Juniors overseas.

Mary Carmichael's experience includes trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, the 4-H Camp in South Carolina and the Rural Youth conference in West Virginia.

The four members of this delegation are graduates of the junior project clubs which are knows as 4-H Clubs.

Fred Crowe's Appeal To City Consumers

City industrial employees can materially help farmers in their effort to prevent a crisis in produce values, Mr. Fred Crowe said in closing his radio talk.

His appeal for thoughtful co-operation was as follows:

"If you are an employee in industry, I am safe in saying to you that sooner or later a part of whatever you are producing will be purchased by a milk producer."

"Now, when through no fault of his own, the milk producer finds his income drastically cut, he will no longer be able to buy as much of whatever you are producing."

"Loss of market for your production will inevitably lead to lost time or lay-off for you with its unpleasant reactions."

"I suggest that with plenty of genuine dairy produce available compute the saving you might make by issuing substitutes, and balance that saving against the loss of as little as one day's employment per month."

Big Plant In B.C. To Service Diesels

NELSON, B.C.—(CP)—Construction of Canada's second-largest diesel service plant will start shortly as part of the plan for developing diesel train service on the C.P.R. line between Kootenay and Kettle Valley.

The largest diesel servicing plant was completed recently at Calgary. The one here will provide maintenance and inspection for diesel locomotives moving between Medicine Hat and Vancouver. Built of steel and concrete with asbestos siding, it will be equipped with all facilities for servicing diesels, including a 25-ton crane.

Young Driver To Stand Trial After Hearing

Albert McManus, 18, R.R. 2, Peterborough, was committed for trial at the next general sessions, on a dangerous driving charge at the conclusion of a preliminary hearing Thursday afternoon

Bail was fixed at $1,000 and a second charge of careless driving against McManus was adjourned until June 23.

Both charges were laid against McManus following an accident on Highway 28 near Lakefield on April 11 which wrecked the honeymoon plans of Victor Ward and his 21-year-old bride of a few hours, who were leaving for an Easter honeymoon in New York City.

W. J. Arthur Fair represented McManus and elected trial by a higher court when McManus pleaded not guilty to the charge of dangerous driving Wednesday. The preliminary hearing was adjourned Wednesday noon and continued Thursday afternoon.

Thrown Out

McManus is charged as the driver of a light pickup truck which witnesses blamed for the accident in which Mrs. Ward was injured. She was thrown out of the car as it rolled over three times, before coming to rest on its wheels.

The honeymoon couple were following the light truck towards Peterborough, and in attempting to get back behind the truck when an oncoming car prevented him from passing the truck, Mr. Ward's car went out of control, skidded and rolled over three times.

Kenneth Ward, a brother of the groom, testified Thursday he was following his brother's car about three or four car lengths behind. After the accident, he said, he had a conversation with McManus and McManus said he was the driver of the truck his brother had tried to pass.

Mr. Ward said he saw his brother attempt to pass the truck shortly after it first came into view, but then dropped in behind. Again, he said, his brother tried to pass the truck on an open stretch where there was visibility for about a quarter of a mile. "He pulled alongside the truck, which kept the same speed, and he had to drop in behind again," Mr. Ward said. "They appeared to slow a bit as they both went over a hill, and I kept about the same distance behind."

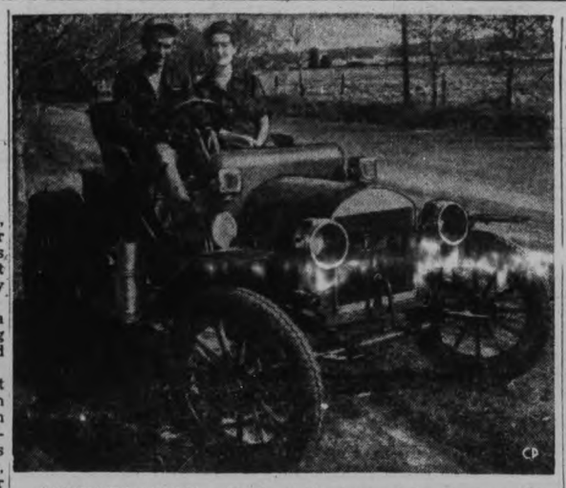
Truck Slowed

Mr. Ward said when he broke over the hill, he saw that his brother had pulled out again. They were both increasing their speed and were pulling away from me. I was going about 35 miles an hour. They continued for about 100 yards," he said. "Then I saw my brother drop back on the same side of the road as the truck and turn to come in behind. The truck slowed down."

Mr. Ward said his brother's car then leaned forward on its springs as if the brakes were being applied. It came directly in behind the truck, he said, but skidded toward the west shoulder, then skidded the opposite way, and rolled over. Although the truck slowed down, it kept on going, he said. Mr. Ward said a northbound car came into view around a corner, just as his brother started to slow up. The northbound car, he said, continued approaching until his brother's car appeared to be getting into trouble, then it slowed down and stopped.

Mr. Fair did not offer any argument at the end of the crown's case and did not enter any defence. He merely commented that he did not believe the crown had made out a case against McManus.

"The matter should be sent on for trial," said Magistrate Philp in committing McManus for trial.



VINTAGE MODEL—Back at the turn of the century this Maxwell touring car probably was a ring-tailed whingeroo. Kenneth Cohoe of Cochrane, Alta., who claims the car is a 1900 model, takes his wife for a drive. Mr. Cohoe found the Maxwell in a collapsed shed where it had lain for years. He bought it for $10, cleaned off layers of dirt and put it in working order. It has two forward and one reverse gear and with a good tail wind can speed up to 15 miles an hour.

Actress Finds British Humor Delightful Thing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 16—(AP)—Don't sneer at British humor, advises Yolande Donlan, an American who found fame in the Isles.

"The English appreciate humor just as well as Americans," the actress remarked.

Miss Donlan reversed the usual England-to-Hollywood success formula. Born in New Jersey to a show-business family, she grew up in Hollywood. She played in the chorus in movie and stage musicals and graduated to featured roles in stock. Her break came when she was chosen to play the Judy Holliday role in the London company of "Born Yesterday."

More Laughs

"That was my first introduction to the English sense of humor. "We were afraid the British audiences wouldn't understand a play that was so typically American. But they laughed even more than Americans did.

"I think the reason was that the English are very appreciative of that kind of humor. I'm sure 'Guys and Dolls' would be a great hit over there. We got laughs when we didn't expect them."

Miss Donlan added that the English can see the funny side of anything, including their own economic plight.

More Responsive

She has a theory about English audiences, too: "They are much more responsive than those in the U.S. I think the reason is that the English are naturally more reserved in their personal lives. But when they get together in a theatre, they let themselves go. If they like a show, they will go wild. That is why Americans like Judy Garland, Danny Kaye and Betty Hutton say they never have had a reception like the one they get in England."

JOINT CONVOCATION—A joint convocation was held at the University of Toronto colleges of Trinity (Anglican) and St. Michael's (Roman Catholic), both of which are celebrating their centenaries this year. Governor-General Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, left, as chancellor of the University of Toronto, conferred honorary degrees. James Cardinal McGuigan also took part in the ceremonies.

Given Glimpse At Equipment

OTTAWA, May 16 (CP) — The Commons defence-spending committee got a new glimpse Thursday at the post-war trend of Canada's forces away from British equipment towards use of American and Canadian gear.

Moving unspectacularly through another forest of statistics, the committee learned in passing that the navy is engaged in creating its own catalogue of stores for the first time.

Elgin Armstrong, assistant deputy defence minister, said the navy used the British naval catalogue of stores up to 1949 but the trend away from British to American and Canadian equipment had made it necessary to prepare a Canadian catalogue.

His statement indicated that all three forces had been deeply affected by the post-war trend. The army has announced a policy of Americanizing its arms. The air force is using U.S. and Canadian planes.

Rebel Doctors Open Hospital

KINGSTON - ON - THAMES, England, May 16 (Reuters) — A handful of "rebel" doctors who in 1950 revolted against socialized medicine, plan to open their own hospital, independent of the state-run health service.

The 24 doctors announced Thursday they have raised about £4,500 in 10 months and are searching for a large house in pleasant surroundings to convert into a 30-bed hospital.

In 1950 they defied Aneurin Bevan, then Labor government health minister, who wanted to turn the 44-bed Kingston and Malden Victoria hospital into a state-run maternity unit.

The doctors—all general practitioners—staged a six-month stay-in strike and continued to treat patients after the hospital officially did not exist.

When they were finally defeated, the rebels formed the Kingston and Malden Medical Foundation and appealed for funds for a new hospital.

Treatment in the new hospital will be free, as under the national health plan, but the hospital will be dependent on voluntary contributions.

Newspaper Story Called Absurd

LONDON, May 16 (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill Thursday dismissed as "absurd" a newspaper story charging that Admiral William Fechteler, U.S. chief of naval operations, in a secret report said Europe could not be defended and predicted war by 1960.

Churchill told the Commons he hadn't had time to read the report published in the newspaper, Le Monde, and added—he had too much else to do.

The report which the Paris paper claimed was filed by Fechteler with the U.S. national security agency has been denied by him.

In Paris, Le Monde admitted it might possibly have been mistaken but offered no apologies.

Remy Roure resigned last Saturday as leading editorial writer of the paper because it had published the document. Roure had opposed the paper's "neutral" policy between east and west.

More Jobs, Income Facing Canadians In '52—Howe

OTTAWA, May 16 — (CP). — More jobs, more income and more production are in store for Canadians in 1952, on the prediction of Trade Minister Howe.

The veteran second-in-command of the government, who gladly owns up to being Canada's No. 1 optimist, also forecasts a further drop in the cost-of-living index and says Canada won't have either depression or inflation this year.

An altogether-cheerful prospect of Canadian business at home and abroad was sketched by Mr. Howe as he began piloting his department's annuaul estimates through the Commons, but Opposition members took issue with him on some points.

Speakers from all three opposing groups urged that steps be taken to bolster the United Kingdom market, Progressive Conservatives contending a trend towards a greater proportion of export trade with the United States is setting a "dangerous" pattern.

Peacetime Record

Mr. Howe, who said Canada's exports this year will be a peacetime record, heard a variety of proposals for stepping up trade abroad by putting it on a more stable basis.

The most sweeping came from John Blackmore (S.C.-Lethbridge) who urged that Canada "create" money to lend the United Kingdom $1,000,000,000 a year for the next five years to be used for buying goods from this country.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader, said means must be found to help Britain earn more dollars so Canada can sell more products there.

One of his supporters — Ross Thatcher (C.C.F. - Moose Jaw — proposed that Canada help Britain earn dollars by lowering tariffs on British goods and pushing a "Buy British" campaign. Barter or other unorthodox trading methods might be tried.

John Charlton (P.C.Brant-Wentworth), chief Progressive Conservative spokesman in the debate, urged that Canada take the lead in trying to get the Commonwealth countries to set up machinery for greater trade within the Commonwealth. A Commonwealth trade conference has been a Progressive Conservative objective or some time.

Want British Market

J. M. Macdonnell (P.C.-Toronto Greenwood) also advocated Canada doing everything possible to increase sales to the British market. He called Mr. Howe's trade review "a tiresome bit of self-congratulation."

Victor Quelch (S.C.-Acadia) asked that Canada accept sterling from the U.K. in payment for some meat exports, to increase sales there. The money could be invested in Britain to help that counry get on its feet.

Allow Priest Hear Jury's Confessions

HULL, Que., May 16 (CP) — Can a Roman Catholic priest hear the confessions of men serving on a jury at a murder trial?

Mr. Justice Francois Caron Thursday answered the question in the affirmative—with some reservations. The jurors must swear there will be no discussion of the murder trial in the confessional.

The question arose during the trial of Rheal Leo Bertrand, on trial a second time for the murder of his bride of a few months. A juror asked if a priest could be made available Saturday to hear the confessions of the 12 jurors. They wished to go to communion in a body Sunday.

Mr. Justice Caron granted the request on condition the case would not be discussed in the confessional.

REPLACES CRICKET — Thanks to the spirit of a French-Canadian, Romeo Vincent of Granby, Quebec, baseball has ousted cricket from at least some of the playing fields of Britain. Vincent, a 30-year-old ex-soldier, returned to Britain after the war when his English wife became homesick. Despite "stubborn" opposition Vincent introduced baseball in the town where he lived, Aylesham, Kent. He taught his fellow-workers in the mine by using a blackboard and other borrowed equipment. His team, the Snowdon Magpies, in its first season in a six-team league won the first two games 37-7 and 14-1.

Determined Canuck Brings Baseball To English Field

By ALAN HARVEY

AYLESHAM, Kent, England, May 15—(CP)—Thanks to the never-say-die spirit of a French-Canadian named Romeo Vincent, baseball has ousted cricket from some at least of the playing fields of Britain.

Instead of the lazy summer sounds associated with cricket, a slow-moving game that is supposed to be a reflection of the British character, this quiet community now resounds to the sharp crack of bat on ball and cries of "slide, Kelly, slide!"

The man responsible is Vincent, a 30-year-old ex-soldier from Granby, Que., who came back to Britain after the war because his English wife, Lucille, was homesick. Romeo decided that cricket was popular here only because there was nothing else to do, so he started promoting baseball.

It was tough, at first. His mates in the mines at nearby Snowdown Colliery, where Vincent works as a "diesel sitter," didn't take to the game and the Canadian had to be, in his own words, "very stubborn." But using a blackboard and other borrowed equipment, he gradually taught the pitmen the fundamentals of baseball.

Softball At First

When they were ready to take the field he started them on softball, then switched over to hardball.

Now the Snowdown Magpies, as Vincent calls his Pitmen's team, has started their first season in a six-team league. Canadian management methods seem to have worked wonders, for the Magpies won their first game 37-7 and their second, an abbreviated five-inning affair, 14-1.

There are two United States airmen on the team but the rest are English miners. Vincent doesn't play because of an old war wound, but he's excited about the progress the club is making.

"It's all a matter of enthusiasm," he says. "All the men are very, very keen. If a man has a shift starting at two in the afternoon, the chances are you'll find him out there practising at 10 o'clock in the morning."

Vincent, who was a corporal in the Fusiliers Mont Royal, was married in 1943 while stationed in England. He came back here to please his wife and plans to stay—for the time being, anyway.

"I like it very much here, but I would rather have our own way of life—not necessarily the French-Canadian way of life, but Canadian life in general."

268 Acres Sold At Tillsonburg

TILLSONBURG, May 16 (CP)— Two hundred and sixty-eight acres of land, a portion of the 600-acre tract of crown property purchased in 1825 by George Tillson, founder of Tillsonburg, has been sold in what is believed to be the largest land transaction in the history of the town.

Known as the Annandale farm, the land has been in the Tillson family for the last 127 years. The property, including the buildings largely within the town of Tillsonburg, has been purchased by two local businessmen, Charles W. Thomas Jr. and Cyril Demeyre, and will be converted into tobacco lands, with a portion of it slated for subdividing for building lots. The purchase price was not disclosed.

RETURN CRICKET MATCH

A return cricket match between the Peterborough Cricket Club and Grove School, Lakefield, will be played Saturday afternoon at Nicholls Oval. The teams played to a draw two weeks ago on the Grove school grounds.

FROM BALITMORE

Mr. Archie Bowman of Baltimore in Hamilton township, father of Stewart Bowman, was a visitor in Peterborough this week. He was township clerk for 18 years from 1918. The family is well known in west Northumberland.

GUESTS OF THE CITY

City council's schedule for Monday evening, beginning at 5:30, leaves scant time for diversion. Ald. Herbert Young has arranged for a little reception for the International Staff Band of the Salvation Army at 5:30 p.m., and the civic dinner at the Empress begins at 5:45. Council has called a meeting of the committee of the whole at 7 p.m., preceding its regular session at 7:30. That calls for an eye on the wrist-watch.

AT UPWA CONVENTION

Three Peterborough men, representing two of the three packinghouse locals, are attending the 8th constitutional convention of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), now in progress at Denver, Colorado. They are William Beggs, president of Local 293 (Quaker Oats), and Herbert Hennessey, chief steward of Local 293, and Alfred Barber, president of Local 210 (Canada Packers). Mr. Beggs has been recommended by the finance committee of the city council to fill the vacancy on council caused by the resignation of Alderman Norman Graham. The three delegates will not return to Peterborough until next week. The international convention finishes today but a three-day Canadian conference follows.

P.C.V.S.' CADET CORPS, one of the oldest in Eastern Ontario, was inspected on Thursday at Nicholls Oval by Lt.-Col. James Turnbull and Lt. H. E. Done, assistant cadet training officer for Eastern Ontario. Mr. Turnbull (left, centre) takes the salute from the inspecting base, while Cadet Lt.-Col. Larry Forbes (left) C. S. Browne, principal (second from right), and James McNabb, chief instructor, watch the review. Mr. Turnbull (top right) inspects the ranks, here with Cadet Bev. Eddington. School Children Strip Trees Of Pests' Tents

Green forest cover in the Kawarthas is conveniently bursting out in time for the caterpillar hordes to feed on it and in many sections, within a few weeks, trees will be as bare as they were a month ago. The pests will strip them completely.

Summer cottage citizens and settlers will appeal for aid to all sorts of departments and agencies and will finally settle by spraying the crawling masses in the immediate vicinities of their dwellings.

The only person in these parts who has done something in the way of prevention is Principal Bertha Long of Curve Lake Indian Reservation school, 20 miles northwest of the city.

Cash Prizes

She laid on a two-week caterpillar nest-gathering program with her pupils. And cash prizes totalling $14 were put up by merchant Cliff Whetung and from her own pocket. Here are the results:

A total of 14,768 caterpillar nests were brought to the school yard and destroyed. Top three student winners who divided the cash prize and their nest totals were, Betty Taylor, 3,187 nests; Beverley Knott, 2,901 and Jack Whetung, 2,311 nests.

Result of all this? A practical pest-control project, a great reduction in pests near the reservation for both this and in future years and some ready cash to spend at donor-merchant Whetung's store.

Cadets "Excellent Job" Wins Officers' Praise At Annual Inspection

Raw May weather took the edge from spectators' enjoyment Thursday afternoon of the annual P.C.V.S. cadet inspection held at Nicholls Oval. Rain threatened for most of the inspection time, and only as the last trophy was presented and the cadets moved away on their route march back to the collegiate did the sun break through the clouds for a moment.

The weather detracted nothing, said the inspecting officers, from the cadets' display. Lt. H. E. Done, of Kingston, assistant cadet training officer for Eastern Ontario, said that the P.C.V.S. corps did an excellent job, better than the parade of Lindsay Collegiate corps which Lt. Done inspected Wednesday.

Army Of Tomorrow

"In troubled times like these," he said, "it is encouraging that the government should reaffirm its faith in the youth of the country. From boys such as you will come the army of tomorrow."

Lt.-Col. James Turnbull, inspecting officer, spoke briefly, congratulating the cadets on their fine showing.

The inspection started, after the cadets had marched from the collegiate to the Oval, with the regiment in mass march on the flags, followed by the general salute to the inspecting officer.

Then the inspecting party, composed of Lt. Done, Lt.-Col. Turnbull, Lt.-Col. M. E. Clarke of the 50th H.A.A., Major James McNabb, chief instructor, principal C. S. Browne, and Capt. Frank Frape, officer commanding the army recruiting unit at the armories, inspected the regiment.

This was followed by the march past in column of troops and in column of route, the flags were marched off and the four batteries of the regiment put on battery drill.

Troop Drill

This was followed by simultaneous troop drill in which troops from each battery were put through their paces. Then, as the band paraded up and down before the reviewing stand at the south side of the Oval, troops and sections set up their displays of first aid, tactics, light machine gun (Bren) work, map using, field craft, and small arms training.

The regiment was then drawn up in a hollow square, and the inspecting officer's remarks were given by Lt.-Col. Turnbull. After Lt. Done's remarks, trophies were presented.

Best battery award—the I.O.D.E. Trophy—was given to D Battery, commanded by Cadet Major Gary Gilders. The C. S. Browne Trophy for the best senior troop was won by Troop 13, commanded by Cadet Lt. Bob Harvey.

Best intermediate troop award, the Col. H. A. Craig Trophy, was presented to Cadet Lt. Bill Burgomaster for Troop 2, and the junior troop award, the K. S. Wightman Trophy, went to Troop 11, commanded by Cadet Lt. Doug Leach. Bantam troop award—the 57th Chapter I.O.D.E. Trophy — was given to Cadet Lt. Doug Jennings of Troop 12.

The Col. J. A. Dewart award for the best shot in the regiment was presented to Cadet Doug Woodman, and the Col. H. A. Craig Trophy for the second best shot went to Col. Craig's son, Cadet Lt. Michael Craig.

Will Investigate If Horsemeat Sold By Shop

Has a local meat retailing firm been selling horsemeat as hamburger?

This question is being probed by the city Health Department. Seizure of 92 pounds of meat Wednesday to determine if it were horsemeats touched off an investigation which has since been extended to several other shipments of meat delivered to the same company from a Smiths Falls firm.

The meat shipped by Daley Brothers Limited, which processes horsemeat for animal foods has been returned to the company after being condemned as being unfit for human consumption.

A sample of the meat has been sent to Guelph to establish definitely if it is horsemeat. The shipment carried a bill of lading stating it was horsemeat, but the manager of the company said Wednesday it was beef and blamed the mistake of the CPR express agent in Smiths Falls for the error.

Police watched the shipment being delivered to the company's store Wednesday morning when they were tipped off the shipment was horsemeat. Then, they called in city food inspector Dr. Harold Worton and dropped the investigation into the lap of the health department.

Dr. R. A. Kelly, medical officer of health said today that nothing had been heard from Guelph regarding the sample of the meat sent there for identification. "We are waiting to hear from there," said Dr. Kelly.

Dr. Kelly also said that an investigation is being carried out by the department in connection with other shipments during the last week which have been received by the same firm from Daley Brothers.

The purchaser of the meat said Wednesday it was to have been offered for human consumption and that he had bought the same kind of boneless beef from a same traveller before. He said the salesman did not represent Daley Brothers. However, the bill of lading said to have been mistakenly made out to the effect the shipment was horsemeat named Daley Brothers as the shipper and did not mention any other firm or salesman.

One report has it that 1300 pounds of the same kind of meat has been delivered to the same firm since last Thursday. This report has not been denied by health authorities who are investigating other shipments, delivered to the firm recently.

A passenger in the car, Mrs. Frances Brooks of Water St., Peterborough, was given first aid treatment for facial cuts.

The front of the car was badly damaged.

Chief Leslie Foster of Lakefield investigated.

May Prosecute For Sunday Movie

COBOURG, May 76 (ENS) — Sequel to a benefit movie held Easter Sunday for a paralyzed Cobourg hockey player may be a prosecution under the Lord's Day Act.

The benefit raised about $100 for Jack "Japper" Wilcox, 19-year-old member of a Cobourg hockey team. He was injured in a car accident last January.

Friends of Wilcox organized the benefit show, and the movie was shown in a Cobourg pavilion.

The Lord's Day Alliance has asked crown attorney Harry Deyman to prosecute, and the matter is at present in the hands of Attorney-General Dana Porter.

Peterborough Local Train Collides With Truck At Claremont, Family Hurt

Young Wife Suffers Broken Right Leg Husband, Baby Less Seriously Hurt Train Arrives In Town 40 Minutes Late

The Peterborough local of the C.P.R. was 40 minutes late arriving in the city Thursday night because of a level crossing collision at Claremont in which three people were injured. The passenger train crashed into a three-ton truck at the Claremont crossing, 25 miles northeast of Toronto, when the driver of the truck failed to see it in time. In Toronto East General Hospital with a broken right leg and head injuries is Mrs. Joyce Ham, 17, 8th concession, Pickering township. Hospital authorities said today that Mrs. Ham spent "a poor night but is in good condition."

Wilford G. Ham, 22, driver of the truck and husband of Mrs. Ham, was treated for minor cuts and bruises. He was released a few hours later.

Their year-old son, George, was taken to Sick Children's Hospital for observation. He received bruises and scratches but his condition is not serious.

In Truck Cab

The Ham family left their farmhome, two miles southwest of Claremont, to visit Walter Draper, a neighbor, who also lives on the 8th concession. All three were riding in the cab of the truck when the collision occurred.

Apparently Mr. Ham did not see the Peterborough-bound train until too late.

"I couldn't see more than 20 yards up or down the track," he said later. "The train seemed to come out of nowhere."

Passengers on the local report that the train was being braked before the collision.

The train caught the bumper of the three-ton truck, knocked it across the road and at the same time spun it round to face in the opposite direction. The truck remained upright, though the front wheels and axle were torn off.

Mr. Ham was out of the cab before the train came to a stop. He laid his injured wife on the grass by the roadside and then got the baby and, for a few minutes, carried it around distractedly. Finally he took it to a nearby farmhouse.

Improvised Splints

Improvised splints were put on Mrs. Ham's broken right leg by Dr. Nelson Thomalson, of Claremont. Train crew members, directed by the doctor, chopped up some boards that were lying about, fashioning them into splints.

The Hams were then taken to hospital in Toronto.

The accident occurred at 7.31 p.m. (D.S.T.) and the train did not pull away until 8.26 p.m. It arrived in Peterborough at 9.40 which is 40 minutes behind schedule.

CHILLY STILL

Moisture condensed from the air by its cool wind during the night was frozen on automobile tops this morning.

Clear Property As Planned Committee Says

City council will receive on Monday night the report of its finance committee recommending in effect no change of plans for the disposal of the 125 wartime houses in the Hatton area, Charlotte St. West.

Council recently received a petition from the tenants appealing for reconsideration of the resolution requiring the property to be cleared by June 30, 1953. It was supported by Peterborough Labor Council whose view of that housing problem was submitted in a statement read by Edmund Hamphrey.

It was reported last Monday that 90 of the tenants signed the petition, 25 others did not sign; 10 houses are now vacant, seven of them since Central Mortgage sent out notices of the termination of leases at Dec. 31 next.

Unable To Pay More

One of the statements in committee was that some of the tenants are financially unable to pay higher rents than their present leases require. It was also said that Central Mortgage was giving Hatton tenants first claim on any of the Crown houses becoming vacant elsewhere in the city.

Possibly, the speed with which the council has been making available for builders the new Queen Elizabeth subdivision is inspired by the need of accommodation which would become more insistent if all the 126 families in the Hatton wartime houses had to move. And, that is the prospect for the end of the year.

British Airmail Faces Delay

LONDON, May 16 (Reuters)—British airmail destined for points beyond Europe faced delivery delays Thursday as the British Overseas Airways Corporation announced far-reaching cuts in service.

Prompted by the United States oil strike, B.O.A.C. slashed flights in its North Atlantic Strato-cruiser runs and suspended temporarily shorter hauls from London to Lydda, Tehran, Cairo and Lisbon.

The British Post Office then said some delay "to practically all classes of air mails to civilian and forces addresses outside Europe" might occur.

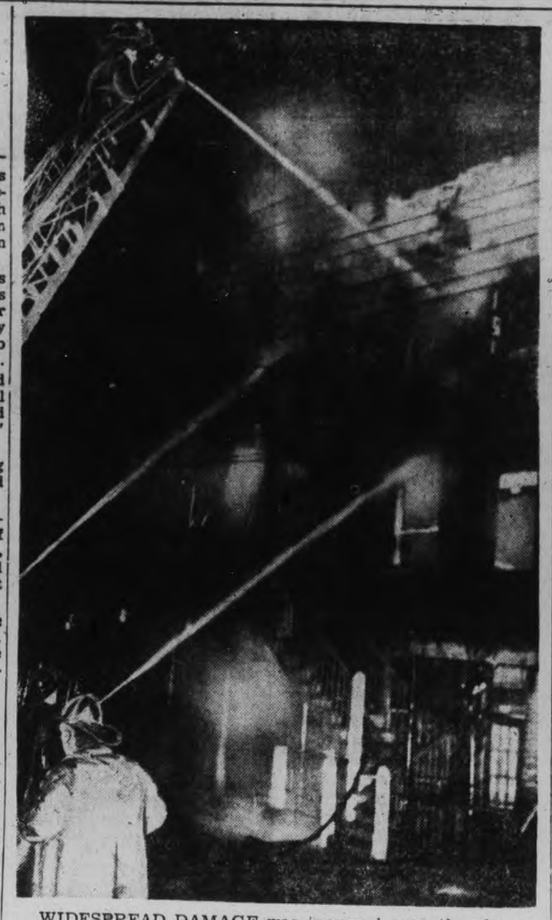
All second-class mail, including newspapers and air parcels, would be affected.

B.O.A.C. said six of 14 trans-Atlantic flights will be taken off the schedule starting tomorrow. All planes still flying the route will go to New York. Two will stop at Montreal and one at Jamaica.

The company's new tourist-rate planes to New York and Montreal, services to South America, and the Comet jet run to South Africa remain unchanged.

Census Costs 8 Million

OTTAWA, May 16 (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said in the Commons Thursday night that the cost of the 1951 national census was $8,874,503.



WIDESPREAD DAMAGE was incurred recently when a three-storey building in downtown Montreal caught fire as the result of a series of jarring explosions. Two firemen were injured when a balcony collapsed. Power lines in a two-block area were severed, causing a total black-out for several hours and the building was completely burned out. Some 20 persons were left homeless.

Says Meat Prices Much Too High

OTTAWA, May 16 — (CP) — Retail meat prices are too high in relation to what merchants pay for their meat, a livestock man said Thursday night in the Commons.

W. R. Aylesworth (P.C., Frontenac-Addington) said the government should issue a warning to the retail trade that it is "not being fair to the producers or consumers of Canada."

Mr. Aylesworth said consumers are not getting the benefit of a price reduction in live cattle corresponding to about 20 cents a pound for beef. In many cases, the consumer was paying several cents a pound more than he should.

He suggested the government was partly to blame because, during the years of rationing, it had "educated" retailers into increasing their price margin.

Horsemeat Store Closes After 3 Months

TORONTO, May 16 (CP)—Three months almost to the day since Toronto's first and only horsemeat store opened, it has closed. Owner Pete Tremblay is a $6,000 sadder and wiser man.

"I guess I'm due for the horse-laugh," he lamented. "I figured wrong and I'm paying for it."

Horsemeat steaks sold for about 52 cents a pound with roasts at 48 cents and minced meat at 39.

Sales were brisk at first, Themblay said, but later, customers, their curiosity satisfied, returned to more traditional fare.

Consumer Price Index First Issued In July

OTTAWA, May 16 (CP) —First issue of the government's new consumer-price index will be for July, Trade Minister Howe told the Commons Thursday night.

The index, a modernization of the existing monthly cost-of-living index, will be based on 1949 price levels. The old index uses the 1935-39 period as the base.

Mr. Howe also announced the current index will be issud along with the new one for some time—unspecified—after the consumer index starts coming out.

Pupils Hold Parade Ask Principal Kept

VITTORIA, Ont., May 16 (CP) —A parade of 50 public school pupils here Thursday night protested a request for the resignation of William Orchard, principal of their school. Their parents lined the street and cheered them on.

A letter to Mr. Orchard was signed by two school trustees—Gordon W. Cakes and Ambrose Franks.

Parents and ratepayers have recently been circulating a petition asking that Mr. Orchard be retained. No reason was given for asking for his resignation.

Moose Sighted North Of Apsley

APSLEY, May 16 — (ENS). — While travelling by truck to Bancroft one day recently the Highway Department patrol gang sighted a moose standing beside the highway near Six-Point Lodge turn, about 12 miles north of Apsley.

A carload of people travelling ahead of the highway truck had seen two of the animals, but one had gone out of sight over a hill. The one left standing there did not seem in any way frightened of cars or people.

Britain Junks Italian Scheme

LONDON, May 16 (Reuters)—Britain is junking a scheme to import Italian immigrants to work in the coal mines, hard hit by the manpower shortage.

Opposition from British miners is mainly responsible.

Sir Walter Monckton, Minister of Labor, told a press conference today that a last batch of 50 men destined for the mines is still in Italy and will not be brought in.

About 1,200 Italians have been taken into British mines on two-year contracts since the state-run National Coal Board's recruiting scheme opened in Italy last year.

Miners' union lodges at individual mines have grown increasingly unwilling to accept the employment of foreign labor, though the scheme was originally approved by the national executive of the union.

Britons Balk At Middy Look Let Others Wear It First

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON—(CP)—The "middy" look, accepted almost immediately by North American women, is still largely an unknown quantity on British markets.

Most of London's big ten of fashion and the best-known manufacturing houses included up-to-date "waistless' styles in their spring and summer output. But walk through teeming West End or city streets at lunch time and you'll scarcely meet even the slickest of middy lines.

Trouble is, say distributors there are too few of these designs on show in the big department stores. Througout the season, buyers have been purchasing "just one for the window."

"This does not help acceptance of any new line," said a representative of the Wholesale Distributors Association.

Opinions Differ

This time, however, buyers refuse to take all the blame. There are opposing trends of thought in manufacturing fields also.

Some say, for instance; "It may be all right for the long-legged American woman, but it's definitely no good for the shorter and plumper Briton." Others contend it could be worn successfully even by those with 40-inch hip measurements.

On the whole, buyers seem more hopeful than manufacturers of future acceptance. They say these styles will eventually win favor "because they're not so different from jumper suit lines."

At the moment, though, such styles as the Masher jacket by Michael of LaChasse is by-passed by many. "Let someone else wear it first" is the general reaction.

Elegant, Dressy

Yet this suit, with its slim, straight skirt and high-buttoned jacket fitting neatly at the hips, is elegant and dressy. In smooth worsteds of indeterminate shading it makes a perfect foil for smart accessories—and factory reproductions of the £150 couture design cost only £15.

Styles on the home market that follow the waistless look are by no means as radical as those shown this year in Paris. The waist is indicated by a half-belt at back, or a definite inward dip such as that shown in a jumper dress with cuff band low on the hips and the faintest intake at the waist.

Still, British women confine their taste for waistless styles to hip-length box and swagger jackets. Most popular of the up-to-date designs is Jacques Fath's martingale jacket, its loose back slotted by a curved half-belt. Deep-cuffed box jackets with saddle-stitching on patch pockets and Peter Pan collar are the closest accepted approach to the Masher Jacket. You will look in vain for such waistless styles as the Christian Dior jacket, shaped like a battle-dress top that has forgotten to stop at the waist.

IT'S A TOUGH WORLD, FRANCES.—Frances Mackey, of Cleveland, two-and-one-half years old, finds that life can be pretty tough for a little girl when she's under chickenpox quarantine. Watching her playmates, left, Frances wishes she could be out in the spring sunshine. Centre, she's happy for a moment as someone calls to her. At right, forlorn and forgotten, she hugs her one true friend, a pink woolly lamb. Frances, daughter of Keith and Jane Mackey, didn't know her mother was taking these pictures.

Silver Cross Chapt. Sends $50 Toward Pensions

Regular meeting of the Silver Cross Chapter was held Wednesday evening at the Y.W.C.A. with a large attendance. President, Mrs. A. S. Williams heard local convener's reports, then devoted the meeting to reports of the National Council convention at Niagara Falls, Ontario, by the five delegates who attended.

Reported were the luncheon speakers Lt.-Col. James S. Swaze, wartime commander of Lincoln and Welland Regiment, Mrs. Evangeline Trenchard of Ardsley, Pennsylvania, president of the Gold Star Mothers of America, sister organization of the Canadian Silver Cross, Mrs. Gertrude Doty of Niagara Falls, N.Y., representing Mums of America and Mrs. A. Turner Bone of Montreal, National President of the Council of Women.

Main project dealt with at the convention was setting up a pension fund for next-of-kin whose pensions at present are inadequate. Peterborough Chapter voted to forward immediately the $50 required from each Chapter in Canada to establish this fund.

The convention also emphasized the Silver Cross flag is never on parade but always takes precedence over other organizational flags. For regular meetings it is always in place before proceedings are opened.

Local Chapter also noted with pride that Mrs. B. W. Harvey, former president, has been elected one of five vice presidents of the National Council.

Before the meeting closed Mrs. A. Gynane sold tickets on a pair of bath towels for a draw. Mrs. E. Brady who won them then donated the towels as a draw prize for the June meeting which is to take the form of a card party at the home of Mrs. T. G. Nice, 714 Lansdowne St.

Food boxes have been sent to six Peterborough boys in Korea and one in Germany, Mrs. E. Pruner reported. Mrs. J. Ebbs distributed wool to knit into socks for sending in boxes in the fall.

WA Council Hopes To Have Plan For 'Model Manse'

ST. CATHARINES, ONT., May 16 —(CP)—Mrs. J. L. Halpenny of Toronto was re-elected yesterday as president of the Dominion Women's Association Council of the United Church as its 12th annual meeting.

The meeting of delegates from across Canada to review the work and organization of the association began Tuesday and ended Thursday night.

The meeting was told by the council's parsonage committee that a parsonage should be different from an ordinary house and that architects in general don't appreciate this difference.

"We suspect that no architcet has ever lived in a parsonage," said the committee. It called for suggestions from wives of ministers so that plans for a "model manse" might be presented at next year's meeting.

A gift for Lady Alexander, wife of the former governor-general was discussed at the meeting. Delegates expressed the opinion that Lady Alexander would prefer a gift for her house rather than the council's customary gift of furs or jewelery.

Prospects for raising money in the church were scrutinized by the council which resolved that "money raising in the church must be kept at a high level." Delegates spoke against the earning of money by bridge-parties, draws and also by demonstrations.

"Commercail demonstrators are only interested in their wares, not in the church."

GETTING ACQUAINTED with the guest speaker before the Civic Hospital Nurses' Alumnae dinner Thursday evening were Miss Beverley Gamble, the president of the 1952 graduating class who were guests of honor, and Mrs. Phyllis Kingdon, president of the Alumnae. Williams, M.A., Ph.D., is a professor in psychology at the University of Toronto and is consultant of the Toronto Family Court and a consultant on Civil Defence, as well as holding other offices in his professional capacity.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Marks Of Educated People Outlined By Psychologist To Alumnae Dinner Guests

On the eve of receiving a diploma for three years training in the Civic Hospital School of Nursing, following at least ten years of academic schooling, the 1952 graduate nurses were Thursday evening asked to "take stock of your education and the use you will make of it."

The graduates were the honored guests at the May Day dinner of Peterborough Civic Hospital Alumnae and the speaker who came for this occasion was Dr. David C. Williams, professor in psychology at the University of Toronto. More than 100 members of the Alumnae attended this dinner. The president Mrs. Phyllis Kingdon wase hairman and her executive officers were head table guests.

Dr. Williams referred only briefly to the relationship between his profession and that of his audience. He said "The most effective mental health agent in the hospital is the nurse."

On his topic "Education", his first thought-provoking question was "What do we owe to ourselves and society as educated people?" He admitted that education carried a degree of responsibility. Then he asked, "What are the marks? Are we different because we are educated?"

"Certainly education does change us", Dr. Williams answered himself. The marks of an educated man or woman he proceeded to expose under three simple criterions. These, he said, can be used by each one to conduct a private investigation about their own education.

The fact that one's education is either going forward or backward, never standing still, was introduced as a goad, probably in case of a satisfied decision after the self-investigation.

The 3 Questions

First criterion was "Can you entertain a new idea?" The answer of course should be "yes—but not every new idea." The latter is "gullibility, the hallmark of ignorance" warned Dr. Williams.

He then remarked: "There is nothing boring about the age we live in, whatever else may be said of it. In fact, it stimulates us to the very highest of our capacities."

Second criterion "Can you entertain another person?", had a special note for nurses. "One of the most effective things a nurse can do is listen" said the doctor. Everyone's troubles, even hers, are "big stuff" and require attention but she is likely to be a professional target.

Some people become a bore through the habit of telling their troubles, and he defined a bore as "a self-made man who worships his creator." Dr. Williams added, "Many bores have been exposed to educational serum, but they remain a bore; the serum didn't take."

The final criterion, to some the hardest one to fulfill: "Can you entertain yourself?"—"Or are you so bored with that creature that you visit him or other people rather than spend an evening alone with him?" The doctor urged an effort to develop resources withtin oneself, to be able to enjoy oneself.

"This century is remarkable for many things and not the least of these is the club and organization fever. We have become a nation of "joiners" said Dr. Williams. He surmised that urbanization has brought with it a loneliness of spirit and this is the result.

Introductions

Introduction of the speaker was by Mrs. Roy Taylor, immediate past president. Appreciation was expressed on behalf of members and guests by Mrs. William Clark, treasurer of the Alumnae.

Mrs. Kingdon introduced each member of the graduating class and then made a brief address to them. She spoke of the accomplishment of reaching their goal in the prescribed time, and recalling the motto of the old Nicholls Hospital in which she trained she said "You will work for God and humanity if you are a nurse in every sense of the word. Though you may go to other fields, never will you forget you are a nurse if need of your services arises."

She invited the graduates to make use of the membership in the Alumnae which is given for one year at graduation.

Miss Beverley Gamble, president of the Students' Council, spoke for her classmates, expressing gratefulness to teachers and those who helped them to become nurses, and thanking the Alumnae for kindness and interest.

The other members of the class are: Misses Laurabel Barrie, Phyllis Boadway, Shirley Brooks, Marilyn Bowles, Jean Brown, Barbara Calvert, Frances Cameron, Marion Dugan, Madeline Elmhirst, Ruth Green, Bethel Laidley, Beryl Larmer, Maxine Lessard, Muriel Mann, Patricia Martyn, Charlotte MacArthur, Keitha McElroy, Mary Morrison, Barbara Pratt, Elinor Regan, Betty Rogers, Mary Gay Scott, Betty Sutton, Edith Switzer, Mary Thynne and Shirley Tufts.

A skit precented by Mrs. Gordon Wainwright concluded the program. Miss Mae Renwick was pianist for the opening and closing anthems.

The dinner was served in the Empress Hotel Kawartha Room. Tulips in the head table bouquets arranged by Mrs. Kingdon, carried out the Civic Hospital colors, purple and gold. Other tables were decorated in a rural theme with colored plaster models of sheep and lambs, made by Mrs. E. Roberts, and bouquets of yellow "cowslips." Mrs. R. Pearson was co-convener with Mrs. Robers on the arrangements and Mrs. E. Conway was responsible for the place favors.

Special guests present were Miss Evelyn Robson, superintendent of nurses, and Dr. H. A. Mitchell, chief of medical staff at the hospital, and Mrs. Mitchell.

Model Of First Church Made For All Saints' Tea

More than 200 ladies signed the guest register at the 50th anniversary tea of All Saints' Anglican Church Thursday afternoon, and it is believed that a large number did not sign. Some guests were former members now living in Toronto and some were visitors in the city from other provinces.

A very happy hour was spent informally in the parish hall, with refreshments being served by members of the Women's Church Year, the Ladies' Bowling Club and the Women's Friendly Group.

Conversation piece of the day was the model of the first church which centred the tea table. Mrs. Tom Cook made the replica, using a mixture of paste and sand for a realistic outside wall effect filled with "stained glass" windows in the proper places which glowed with inside lighting. Small shrubbery at the front entrance imitated planting recently done and the model was set on green turf.

Yellow daisies and black-eyed Susans in pretty dishes of matching color formed holders for very tall pencil tapers. The cut-work linen tablecloth was laid over gold foil, leaving a deep scalloped border of the gold for a pleasing anniversary effect.

Baskets of apple blossoms and of yellow snapdragons banked with palms gave the tea room a further festive appearance.

Passing of 50 years since founding of this church was emphasized by the presence of hostesses wearing dresses and hats of a half-century ago. Some may have had difficulty fitting themselves into the wasp-waisted, boned garments and managing to walk sedately and keep trailing skirts out of the way but they did look very elegant indeed.

These ladies were Mrs. W. A. Gray, Mrs. C. Thackeray, Mrs. T. Dawson, Mrs. A. Vass, Mrs. W. Blackwell, Mrs. E. Lucas, Mrs. A. Williams, Mrs. Lucy Davis, Mrs. J. Edgar, Mrs. S. Ray, Mrs. J. Clarke and Mrs. R. Price.

There were also tea-room hostesses, Mrs. George Penhall, Mrs. G. Millen and Mrs. Percy Hooper.

The rector's wife, Mrs. M. P. Poole, the church warden's wives, Mrs. E. J. Searight and Mrs. H. T. Moulck, and Mrs. H. J. Morley, president of the Church Year, were receiving.

Tea-pourers were Mrs. H. J. Scuse, wife of St. George's rector, Mrs. C. W. Balfour, honorary associate, Mrs. H. B. Rye, niece of Miss Chamberlain who donated the property for the church, Mrs. B. Burns, daughter of the first church warden, Mr. W. Buller, and Mrs. W. E. Kibblewhite widow of the immediate former rector.

Assistants in the tea room were Mrs. A. Williams, Mrs. A. Watkins, Mrs. C. Jay, Mrs. W. G. Burrows, Mrs. A. Halliday, Mrs. R. J. Miller, Mrs. R. Williams, Mrs. T. Doughty, Mrs. F. Dunford, Mrs. E. Border, Mrs. R. Viscoff, Mrs. V. Chandler, Mrs. O. Hurrle, Mrs. R. J. Gurney, Mrs. R. Crary, Mrs. J. H. Dummitt and Mrs. J. Gabel.

Mrs. F. Gray and Mrs. S. Beardsmore assisted Mrs. Cook in the tea table arranging and decorating.

Buying Public Cautioned To Be Well-Informed

TORONTO, May 16 (CP) —Mrs. W. R. Walton Jr., national president of the Canadian Association of Consumers, yesterday told a meeting of the Toronto section that trade officials now can get the opinions of 500,000 women through the C.A.C.

Mrs. Walton cautioned the members to: use their heads and eyes in regard to information on labels and packages; buy economically; keep informed as to what the market has to offer, and cooperate with their local retailers in getting their things from the manufacturer.

"An intelligent, well-informed buying public," Mrs. Walton said, "is the most stabilizing influence any country can have."

Immigration Facts Are Given Local Council

Local Council of Women got authoritative information on the subject of immigration, at the meeting Thursday afternoon, from Mr. John E. Carwell, inspector in charge in this district.

After outlining the procedures followed in obtaining entry to this country, Mr. Cardwell pointed out the obligations of citizens to immigrants. He reminded that all people of Canada or their ancestors are immigrants and they have made the country what it is today. More immigrants will help to build a better country, he said.

"Extend a pleasant word and a helping hand—it doesn't cost anyting. If you are finding his language difficult, think of the immigrant —he can't understand anyone here."

The inspector stated that 40 million people were examined at the border last year though only 194,000 were immigrants. The others were mostly United States citizens who come in fairly freely. British nationals have difficulty entering Canada but no longer desire to come in great numbers, because of their own social services and inability to bring out large sums of money.

Europeans mostly enter by sponsorship of relatives here. It is endeavoured to have placements arranged before they arrive as families are often involved and this is usually on farms. Some professionals or craftsmen who apply to immigrate are sized up by overseas officials and allowed to enter on their own, supplied with recommendations as to where they may find work. A settlement service of the immigration department endeavors to assist immigrants to set up in small businesses.

Financial problems beset immigrants if they do not find steady employment for no family allowance is given them for one year and they have no unemployment insurance until they have built up a ninety-day period of work. Mr. Cardwell said it is sometimes arranged at his office to finance these people for a short time, and they pay it back.

Empowering act of the immigration department was passed in 1910 but the policy is dictated by the government of the day, affected by the ability to absorb immigrants in numbers and the national security of the country.

Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, second vice-president, arranged this meeting of the Council and presided for it. The speaker was thanked by Mrs. G. Hewitt.

Routine reports of officers were followed by business discussions and motions.

Mrs. F. Samis was appointed convener of a special committee to look after making plans for entertaining the Louis Braille Society. President Mrs. W. Steinkraus was appointed a delegate to the National Council meeting in Toronto June 9 to 14. Mrs. K. Simpson will also attend.

It was voted to send a ward of the Children's Aid Society to the YW camp this summer as suggested by the annual meeting speaker Mrs. F. E. Underhill when refusing to accept her fee. A donation to the Lady Alexander Fund was also approved.

Next meeting of the Local Council will be on September 18th.

Golfing Opened At Kawartha

Only 20 golfers were on the Kawartha course Thursday afternoon for the opening of the ladies' section '52 schedule, weather conditions of the day being considered un-enticing. These ladies enjoyed dinner together in the club house before starting.

A number of visitors came during the afternoon and stayed for tea and the presentation of prizes.

Mrs. Ian McRae and Mrs. R. T. Bogle presided at the tea table and Mrs. H. Hamley and Mrs. Gordon Hill served.

Low gross winners on 18 holes was Mrs. Fraser Dunfield and Mrs. R. Miller and Mrs. H. Woodcox tied on the hidden holes, Mrs. Woodcox winning the draw.

Mrs. Murray Irwin had low gross on nine holes and Mrs. Dave Prasky won on hidden holes.

Prize for the most honest golfer went to Mrs. D. Huff.

All Saints' W.A. Branches Celebrate 50 Years Work

The 50th anniversary of All Saints' Church as a parish was celebrated by the Afternoon and Evening Branches of the W.A., Wednesday evening, with the parish hall crowded to capacity. The Rev. M. P. Poole, rector, extended welcome.

"Through the years with the W.A." was the title of the first part of the program which took the form of a regular meeting, opening with "The Church's one foundation," followed by prayers and Bible reading. A resume of the 50 years work was given by Mesdames Frank Dawson, A. Hope, Howard Clark, and Q. C. Woods.

A solo "The church in the wildwood" was rendered by Mrs. V. Chandler. A duet "In the Garden" was by Miss Agnes Moore and Mrs. R. Chandler and a chorus by the W.A. members was "Seeing Nellie Home."

Mrs. John Edgar read he names of all who had been made life members. Life membership were then presented to Mrs. A. Beardsmore, Dorcas secretary, and Mrs. Roy Price, first president of the Evening Branch and present treasurer of Afternoon Branch.

Dressed in old-fashioned costumes and seated around a quilt on the platform were Mesdames J. Clark, F. Dawson, F. Dummitt, J. Edgar, Wm. Gray, P. Hooper, R. Price, S. Ray, Watson, V. Chandler, J. Carroll, W. Blackwell, E. Lucas, A. Vass, A. Williams, C. Thackeray, and L. Davis.

A pageant presented by the Evening Branch showed the work done "In the field" by the missionaries. The first scene was "In the Upper Room." the part of St. John being most ably taken by Mr. Don Ketchebaw.

Second scene showed the living witnesses of Christ, each in a native costume, telling of their work and calling for more workers. Narrator Miss Margaret Gray introduced each speaker: Pakistan Miss E. Lee; India, Miss Irma Allen; Ministry of Healing, Mrs. L. Bailey; van workers, Mrs. J. Howard and Miss Faye Blackwell; China, Mrs. C. Batchelor, Indian Residential School, Miss M. Riel; and Miss B. Hutchinson; Japan, Mrs. E. Seabright; Bishop's Messenger, Miss D. Raybould; Hebrew Christians, Miss B. McCausland; Eskimos of the north, Mrs. Watt; logger's wife, Miss V. Ward.

In the concluding scene the witnesses joined with St. John to emphasize Christ's last command "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." A quartette of Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard, Miss J. Maconomy and Mr. D. Weir gave a message in song.

The pageant was directed by Mrs. M. P. Poole. Mrs. Thompson of Hastings was pianist throughout each scene.

A most enjoyable social hour followed with refreshments convened by Mrs. A. Williams and Mrs. H. Allen being served.

DOROTHY DIX

Testing Soldier's Love By Not Writing Unfair

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend has been in Germany for over a year. Though I love him dearly, I did not write to him because I thought he would never care for me. He has returned home, and when I explained why I hadn't written he was so hurt he won't forgive me. Still, he admits he loves me. He is leaving again soon, and I would like to know if there is anything I can do to mend things between us.

STELLA M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Why do girls use such childish tactics to test a boy's love? Coyness is a mid-Victorian trait that died an unmourned death; it should not be resurrected in this straightforward era.

To do your experimenting on a lonesome soldier thousands of miles from home was an especially mean device. His hurt feelings are certainly easy to understand, and I really don't think you are the girl to heal them. Your only approach to a solution would be to tell him frankly why you acted as you did, ask his forgiveness, and write frequently and pleasantly while he's away. I wish you luck, though you don't entirely deserve it.

✧ ✧ ✧

Marriage After Fifty

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a lonely old widow, well off financially. I don't favor second marriages for people past 50, but I do have a very good friend who did a lot for me during a recent illness and personal troubles. He would like to marry me, and while I think a lot of him and we are very good friends, I hesitate because he has spells of gambling. As a Christian woman I don't approve of it. Should I tell him why I hesitate to marry him, and settle the whole matter at once?

G. E. N.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Certainly, if you're worried about a situation the best thing to do is present the problem and get a straight settlement. If the man cares for you, he'll be willing to give up gambling. Of course, there's no guarantee that he won't occasionally slip back into the old ways. That's a question you'll have to settle with him.

Don't deprecate the question of marriage after 50. Many very happy weddings take place after the half-century mark.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been invited to a Senior Prom; I am 16 and in the tenth grade. My parents seem to think I'm not old enough to go.

E. M. J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your parents' decisions are the ones you abide by whether you agree with them or not. I think you are old enough to go to the Prom, and hope your parents change their minds, as I know you'll have a splendid time. However, if they don't, take the disappointment gracefully. You are definitely too young to be going steady perhaps if you can convince your family that you are sensible enough to handle an occasional date without getting too serious, you may have permission to go out now and then.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: The boy I go with is 14 years old, and I'm 17. His mother feels I am too old for him. My friends say age makes no difference. Which is right?

L. J. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The boy's mother. The idea of a boy 14 going steady is slightly absurd, and it tends to the ridiculous when his girl friend is three years older. Surely you can find a boy friend nearer your own age.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 29 years old and a widower with two children. I am going with a girl 25 whom I like very much. She says she loves me, and we would like to marry, but I am afraid because her mother doesn't know I'm a widower. My children need a mother's love and I am sure this girl can give it to them.

M. G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are fortunate indeed to find a girl who will be a good mother to your two children. By all means tell her mother at once that you are a widower, and have her meet your youngsters. She'll probably be only too glad to help raise them.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: A former girl friend of my fiance continues to call and write letters to him in spite of the fact she knows we are engaged. What should be done in a case like this? Should he write again, should I write and tell her myself, or should we both talk to her together?

L. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your fiance should write a direct, emphatic note to the girl telling her he is engaged and that any further mail from her will be returned unopened.

4 Women Given Life Memberships At Buckhorn

BUCKHORN, May 16.—The annual banquet held by the members of the Women's Institute and their families Tuesday evening in the parish hall, Buckhorn, was a huge success.

Decorations were carried out in streamers and flower centrepieces and the supper included a good supply of meat pie, scalloped potatoes, rolls and pie.

A short business period was held in which the president, Mrs. Mason, presided. Delegates were appointed to attend the district annual at Norwood.

Four life membership pins and certificates were presented to the ladies who have been members of the institute for twenty consecutive years: Mrs. Harry Shearer, Mrs. Wallace Shearer, Mrs. S. Wood and Mrs. Wallace Blewett.

The highlight of the evening was the beautiful pictures and commentary of his trip around the world given by James Wharry, manager of the Quaker Oats Co. of Canada, Peterborough. Mrs. Charles Jones introduced the speaker and appreciation was tendered by the president.

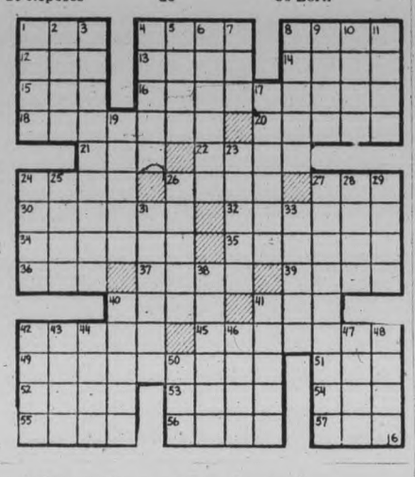
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Readers' Friday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: Your ignorance of the English language is amazing, also your cooking methods are not so good either. To make fun of the old-fashioned English cookery book because it mentions a whisk for beating eggs, when in those days there was no such thing as a rotary beater, and even though you have one to use, it is nothing to your credit, as you did not invent it, neither did you make it, others did that. Do you make fun of your mother or grandmother because she had no washing machine like you? As for pretending to not know what the word whisk meant, that gives away your poor knowledge of English. To an English person coming to this country the Canadian-American, semi-foreign lingo is hard to understand and very amusing too, but I don't make fun of it in public. The same applies to "bringing water to the boil"; that is an expression generally used in English. And beating eggs over a pan of hot water I have seen done many times. Another thing, the recipes that you claim your sister "invented" I have eaten many times, the one with the fish and cheese sauce for example. I think that nearly half of the words of our language have been altered or distorted and the spelling is terrible and so many things are called by different names. Cornflour is here called cornstarch; scones, biscuits; biscuits, buns; cookies, (baby-talk); belch, burp; treacle, molasses; lift, elevator; lavatory, toilet; dribble, drool, etc. I think you must be a very spiteful person and so smug, always patting yourself on the back and bragging, so like the Americans, — they are always laughing at everybody and everything that is different to them. Thank goodness everyone is not like them. From "A War Bride". P.S. Folding in the flour is quite correct, stirring or beating wrong.

ANSWER: If "A War Bride" would send me her name and address I would send her a handwritten apology. I did not intend to offend anyone. This column's purpose is to make fun out of doing cooking, not to make fun of cooks. Before releasing that nonsensical column to which War Bride refers I asked an English lady, newly arrived from England to live in Canada to copyread it. She assured me every Britisher has a strong sense of humor. I love the English. My father hailed from Yorkshire. Can't we be friends? Canadians aren't so bad—as you must know if you are married to one.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: My husband's company is moving him to California at a nice increase in salary. I didn't want to go at first, but he said this morning I could still subscribe to this paper and it would be mailed to me. Mary Moore you don't know what a friend you have been. Forgive me if I ask you to repeat the Chocolate Custard Cake. I'll write to you from Sunny California.

Teresa O'N.

ANSWER: Thank you Teresa. I shall be delighted to hear from you when you move. I hope the new life will be happy and that you make friends quickly.

Chocolate Custard Cake

In top of double boiler melt 3 1-oz. squares unsweetened chocolate then add 2/3 cup sugar, ½ cup milk, and beat in 1 beaten egg. Stir over gently boiling water until of custard consistency. In a large bowl cream ½ cup shortening until fluffy; 2½ minutes if in electric beater. Gradually cream into it 1 cup sugar. Beat in 2 egg yolks. Sift together 2 cups sifted flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda. Sift the sifted dry ingredients over the creamed mixture one-third of them at a time, alternately with 1 cup milk and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat hard for 1 minute. Stir in the custard mixture. Bake in 2 greased and floured layer cake tins at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 or 40 minutes.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Little Things Do Count

By KAY REX,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Married or single, rich or poor, everyone has an interest in the cost of living, says Mrs. Allie Ahern of Halifax.

President of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women, Mrs. Ahern has found numerous factors govern the increased costs of commodities. "It is apparent that we cannot hope for any reduction in our taxation scheme at the present time," she says.

The next best thing is to reckon with "this invisible force we have come to know as 'the cost of living.'" she told the Canadian Press.

Unnecessary spending "definitely" is out, and some Canadians need to be reminded not to overlook the little things when it comes to caring for household appliances.

In this regard, the refrigerator must be de-frosted frequently, and the wringer released immediately the last garment has passed through it. Other tips are: Never permit the floor-polisher to rest on its bristles; empty the vacuum-bag after each cleaning session.

Mrs. Ahern says careful choosing of good clothes is important for good budget-balancing and a bargain isn't a bargain if it's not really needed.

But where the greatest care must be exercised is in planning and preparation of meals.

"We can do without this or that gadget, pass up a smart dress or a lovely hat, but we cannot and must not go short on food value."

She has found that a variety of nourishing and interesting meals can be provided "if we exercise more care in our planning and shopping."

Meat Loaf Recipe

Mrs. Ahern has a favorite recipe for meat loaf which she has found both "tempting and economical."

Ingredients: Two pounds round steak ground; one onion (chopped); one egg; three or four strips of bacon; about one-half cup of fine bread crumbs; salt and pepper; one cup stock; garlic if desired.

Grease a baking-dish and put a couple of strips of bacon at the bottom of the dish. Then sprinkle a layer of bread crumbs. Mix the ground meat, chopped onion, egg, salt and pepper to taste. Add the stock or canned soup. Alternate in adding first this mixture and then the bread-crumbs.

Sprinkle remaining crumbs on top of loaf and dot with bacon cut in small sections. Serves six.

Mrs. Ahern suggests this may be served with baked potatoes and baked squash, which can be cooked in the oven at the same time as the meat loaf. The latter must be cooked for 45 minutes in an oven of 400 degrees fahrenheit. It slices well when cold.

Marriage Success Determines Nation's Fate

ROSENEATH, May 16 (ENS)—"The success of marriage determines the fate of a nation," said Mrs. Hilton Eagleson, Cobourg, district president of West Northumberland Women's Institutes, as guest speaker at a special meeting of the Alderville Homemakers held Wednesday afternoon in Alderville United Church.

Mrs. Eagleson chose as her subject, "Family Life," in part she said, "Religious belief is the vital part of family life and the home is the unit of spiritual, physical and emotional securjty; our hopes of future security rest in no small part on the vital alliance between the family, the church, the school, the community and cultural rights.."

The Alderville Homemakers entertained their sister societies from: Harwood Women's Institute, Tyendenaga Homemakers St. James' Anglican W.A., Roseneath, The Curve Lake Homemakers, Roseneath Women's Institute.

The president, Mrs. James Bigwin Jr., presided with Mrs. Norman Marsden at the organ.

Mrs. Alfred Simpson, honorary president, welcomed the guests and spoke of the new venture of the Homemakers Clubs having become affiliated with the Women's Institutes.

Mrs. Brant of the Tyandenaga Homemakers brought greetings from their society and spoke of the origin of the Homemakers Clubs in Saskatchewan in 1937 and of their work.

Community singing followed with Mrs. Norman Marsden at the organ.

Mrs. Bart Thackeray, vice-president of the District Institutes gave an address on "Citizenship".

The program was presented by Harwood and Roseneath Women's Institutes, the numbers from Harwood were: A poem, "Co-operation" by Mrs. A. Crick; Mrs. R. E. Drope read "When Grandpa Minds the Baby"; a vocal duet "It Is No Secret" by Mrs. Jack Robinson and Mrs. George Isaac with Mrs. Garnet Isaac accompanist; Mrs. Walter Johnston read "They". Roseneath contributed the following numbers: A vocal chorus "This Is My Father's World," with Mrs. Edgar Carew accompanist; Mrs. Harold Taylor conducted a quiz on songs and hymns; Mrs. [illegible] with the program and the hostess.

Civic Hospital Reports Surplus For 4th Month

Every month since the beginning of the year the Civic hospital financial s[illegible] ent has shown substantial [illegible] presenting the April statement of revenue and expenditures Thursday night to the Board of Governors, treasurer T. T. Rodger reported that revenue during the month exceeded operating expenses by $4,408.96.

The surplus for the first four months amounts to approximately $17,385.96, the report stated. "Revenue has been fairly buoyant," Mr. Rodger said in explaining that revenue for the four months was $18,164.14 above the budget estimate of $328,941.01. Expenses, totalling $315,439.18 are $13,509.06 less than the budget figures.

Collecting Accounts

Mr. Rodger also reported that the hospital is in a better position in regard to accounts receivable than it has been in a considerable time. The balance as of April 30 stood at $119,085.21. The reserve for doubtful accounts amounted to $46,467.12 at the end of April. Through collection agencies and division courts, $2,744.67 has been collected since the first of the year.

"The statement of accounts receivable in itself justifies the appointment of the credit manager," who was appointed some time ago, Mr. Rodger said.

Although slightly below the March total of 731, the total number of patients, for April, was 712, which is higher than the 1951 monthly average of 671.

The daily average number of patients in hospital during the month was 188, slightly below the March figure of 194.2 but well above the 1951 monthy average of 176.5

Net patient revenue for April with the usual three per cent allowance for doubtful accounts deducted amounted to $54,007.61. Net patient revenue for the four month period, after allowing for doubtful accounts was $225,254.14, which is $18,084.77 above one third of the budget estimate for the year.

Higher Grants

Revenue from patients has been consistently higher so far this year than in 1951, even more than the increase naticipated in the budget, and careful budgeting has trimmed expenses to the essential minimum. However, another vital factor contributing to the hosptial's improved financial position is the higher city grants the Civic is receiving this year.

In addition to the municipal grant of $101,416.20 received from the city in 1951, council also wiped out the Civic's deficit for the year of $40,033.05. This year, in striking the 1952 budget, the city was asked to increase its assistance by $121,610.74 to $223,026.94.

This figure was arrived at Mr. Rodger said at the time, after careful scrutiny of unavoidable increases in expenses, largely salaries and wages.

Fine Fenelon Falls Man For Careless Driving

LINDSAY, May 16—(ENS)—William Davies, 49, resident of Fenelon Falls was convicted of careless driving in police court here today.

According to Corporal Fred Rawlings of the O.P.P., Davies telephoned on the night of April 22 to report an accident. Davies stated that he had been driving along the road south of Rosedale. The next thing he knew, he was heading for a Hydro pole. The pole was sheared off at the base and the vehicle, driven by Davies, was almost wrecked. He received no injuries. He could give no explanation as to why he left the road but intimated to the court that he might haven fallen asleep. He was fined $5 and assessed with $14 in costs.

Ex-Lakefield Girl Wins Festival Awards

LAKEFIELD, May 16 (ENS)—A winner of two gold medals and two silver medals is the proud record achieved by Mrs. George Johnston, of Brampton, the former Mary Northey, daughter of Mrs. North[illegible] [illegible] or org[illegible] work and the second silver one was shared with Rosemary Leader of Brampton in a duet.

At the present time Mrs. Johnston is studying with Dr. Vinci at the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto. She was a former student at St. Cecelia's School of Music, Peterborough.

Working Late, Clerk Discovers Bank Fire

The alertness of Bob Ward, a clerk working overtime Thursday night, prevented what could have been a serious fire in the Bank of Commerce.

Mr. Ward was closing his books at 10 p.m., ready to go home, when he noticed that the room was smokey. Unable to find the source of the smoke he phoned the fire department.

The firemen found that workmen had left a 200-watt electric light burning against a wooden two-by-four and it had started a smouldering fire. A new vault is being constructed at the rear of the bank proper.

A handpump was used to put out the smoldering blaze. There was no damage except to the wooden frame that had been ignited by the electric light.

Earlier in the evening defective wiring started a small fire in the basement of the home of James W. Rosebush, 431 Bethune St. The place will have to be re-wired but otherwise there is no damage.

A handpump was also used here to put out the fire.

Local Festivals Great Stimulant To Art Of Music

"Festivals are as great a stimulant to the art of music as any other form of music making. I do hope you realize what a great lift they are to the development of culture in Canada."

English Adjudicator Alex Redshaw who is in the city for the Peterborough Music Competition Festival made this statement at the Kiwanis luncheon meeting on Thursday.

"Since I adjudicated at this festival four years ago it has grown from a lusty baby to a real festival," he said.

Both adjudicators, Mr. Redshaw and Ronald Biggs, praised the club for the public service they are providing by sponsoring the music festival. The two adjudicators have been Canada since January adjudicating at festivals across the country.

"At every festival there has been something so refreshing and invigorating that it gives us a new start. Our hearts were lifted at all festivals sponsored by the Kiwanians," Mr. Biggs said.

Past President Gordon Hancock inducted Mr. Biggs as an honorary member of the Peterborough club. Mr. Redshaw was made a member when he was in Peterborough four years ago.

A special feature of the meeting were two choral numbers by members of the Lindsay Kiwanis club who were guests at the meeting. The Peterborough Kiwanis choral group sang the selection they will be singing Monday night at the festival.

The 20 girls present were divided into four groups and a scavenger hunt was held which took them in quest of many strange and wierd objects.

Uphold Disputed Goal In Tottenham Match

LONDON, May 16 (Reuters)—The appeals board of the football league has upheld the disputed goal by which Tottenham Hotspur beat Huddersfield in a league match April 2, it was learned today.

Huddersfield maintained the goal should be disallowed as Tottenham forward Eddie Bailey broke a law by kicking the ball twice in succession off a corner kick.

Bailey's first shot rebounded off the referee and he tackled the ball a second time—before any other player had touched it—passing to Len Duquemin, who then scored the first and only goal of the match.

The decision means that Tottenham retains second place to Manchester United in the league championship without having to replay the game against Huddersfield.

BRIDGENORTH

BRIDGENORTH, May 16 (ENS)—The story of the Trent Canal System was told to about 50 parents' and senior grade students of Bridgenorth public school on Thursday evening at the May meeting of Bridgenorth Home and School Association.

Guest speaker was James McGrath of the Department of Transport, who compared the natural reservoirs of earlier times with the present reservoir created by the Trent system.

Trees falling across streams and beavers with their zest for building provided most of the dams in the early history of the country. Today, 7,200 acres of watershed are controlled by the Trent Canal system.

It is the largest controlled reservoir area in the world, Mr. McGrath declared, extending from Belleville on the east and Algonquin Park on the north to Georgian Bay on the west.

In the system are 345 miles of navigation channels, with 27 powerhouses along the route. In conclusion, Mr. McGrath explained the operation of the hydraulic liftlock at Peterborough.

Mrs. Ray Harding, the new president, presided for her first meeting. The Rev. D. P. Morris led in prayer.

Membership convener Mrs. Edward Bryan announced 22 paid-up members since the annual meeting of the association in April. Mrs. Harding announced a fun night to be held Monday evening, with the proceeds for the field day. Members voted that cleaning the beach be done again next month.

Miss Ellen Murphy's room won the prize for the most parents present. The choral selections were sung by the school choir, which will participate in the music festival in Peterborough on Tuesday.

Mr. McGrath was introduced by Mrs. Earl Blewett and thanked by vice-president Mrs. Evan McConkey. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Don McKay and her committee.

Make New Effort To Settle Strike

Washington, May 16 (AP)—Clyde Mills, assistant chief of the Federal Conciliation Service, called union and company officials together today in another effort to settle the Western Union strike.

An estimated 31,000 telegraph workers have been on strike since April 3.

Mills' personal participation in the latest attempt to bring a settlement in the deadlocked wage dispute appeared to indicate some change in the situation.

But neither Mills nor officials of the company or union would comment in any way on what new plan, if any, was in the works.

In a country-wide radio broadcast Thursday night, Adolph Brungs, chairman of the Western Union division of the Commercial Telegraphers Union (A.F.L.), said Western Union is "using the strike to blackjack Congress" into requiring American Telephone and Telegraph Co. to turn over its network of teletype communictaions known as TWX to Western Union.

The 'master gardener' relaxes

Pop's put lots of work into this new rockery, and now he's set for his "reward"—the eye-filling pleasure of a beautiful garden, and the compliments of those who admire it. Yes, the hours he spent with his lawn and garden brought results—brightening the setting of his home, and adding to the attractiveness of the community!

Dad passes along this hint—when you build your rockery, do it in easy stages. It can be exhilarating exercise—don't make it drudgery by trying to do it all at once. A garden hobby "pays off" in enjoyment and pride of achievement . . . and leads to Good Health—the Canadian Way!

Tiny Sussex Home On Garden Wall Canuck's Retreat

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

OLD BASHAM, Sussex, England, May 16—(CP)—A tiny studio home, built on a garden wall with salvaged wood, is one Canadian architect's personal answer to Britain's housing shortage.

Peter Cleveland, a dark-haired, 39-year-old bachelor from Toronto, threw up his unorthodox one-room establishment in a spirit of fun, hoping to use it as a week-end retreat from his offices in London's Hanover Square.

The result proved so intriguing that "Limehouse," a sunny, L-shaped affair built for boating week-ends in this picturesquely-named Sussex community, has received special articles in trade journals and in one London newspaper.

Used Old Wood

Construction cost about £270 and Cleveland partly overcome government restrictions by using wood from an old building. He acknowledges that "Limehouse" won't last much longer than 15 years, because repairs won't be worth it after that.

The studio home was built largely by the trial-and-error system. For instance, the ground at Cleveland's disposal was enclosed by a six-foot, flint-and-brick garden wall—so he built the studio on top of it. This adds to the light through hinged windows forming two-thirds of each outer wall. Underneath he bricked in a storeroom and toilet space.

To get in the studio, you climb an outside wooden stairway set against the inner walls. Inside, each arm of the L measures 15½ by eight feet and provides living, sleeping and cooking space.

At one end, an off-white sideboard against a dark tan wall opens to show plastic sink, electric cooker and crockery shelf. Cupboards beneath stock food and utensils. The opposite end supports two bunks placed one on top of the other and cut off by a contraption used on one side as book and ornament shelves, on the other as wardrobe space.

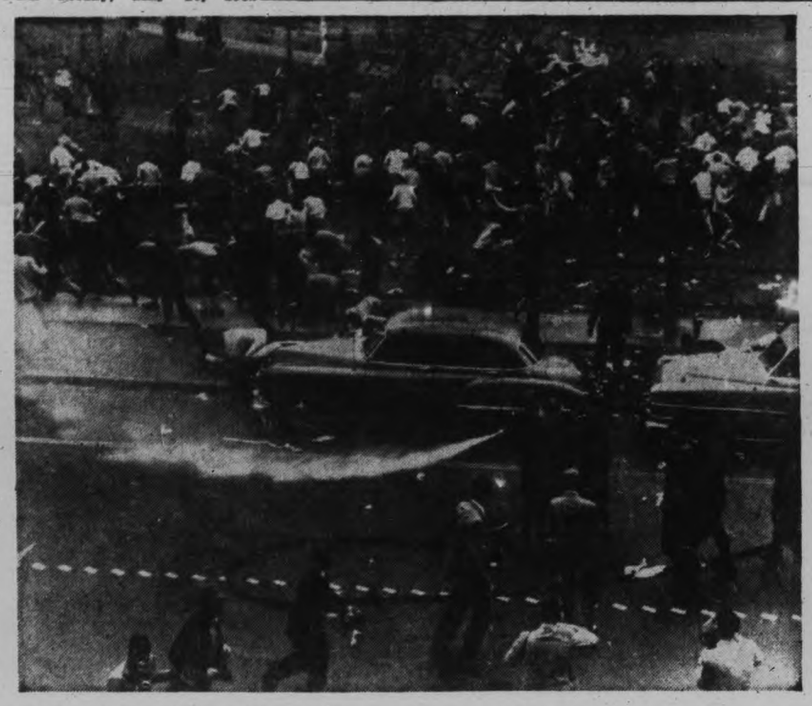
"It gives the impression of a separate room," said Cleveland with a designer's pride. All told, the studio cost around £425, including furnishings and decorating costs. Much of its charm lies in clever use of light and dark colors.

Cleveland's present work is largely contemporary—exhibition stands for such as the British Industries Fair. This takes him to Canada every other year or so, building stands for British export firms.

Born in Britain, Cleveland was taken to Canada at six months by his mother and architect father, returning in 1934 to take his degree here. After another spell in Canada he joined the Canadian Army—and spent his wartime service in Britain.

He came back after the war figuring there would be plenty of rebuilding, but "I got tied up in restrictions like all the rest," he says with a laugh.

When in Canada, he stays with brother James at Toronto.



YALE UNIVERSITY STUDENTS flee for cover as New Haven, Conn., firemen unlimber hose to break up a free-for-all. The tumult, which reached riot proportions recently, started as a fight between two competing ice cream vendors vying for a choice spot near the campus.

Korean Fighting Changes Ideas On Training

By LEIF ERICKSON.

HONOLULU, May 16—(AP)—Canada's new Director-General of Military Training, Brig. John M. (Rocky) Rockingham, says 13 months in Korean combat gave him some firm ideas about training soldiers.

Mountain-climbing, night-fighting, and full use of co-ordinated defences — all lessons from the Korean War — will be stressed in his training program.

The 40-year-old former commander of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade stopped in Honolulu Wednesday en route from Sydney, Australia, to Ottawa, where he will take over his new assignment.

He is scheduled to arrive in San Francisco via British Commonwealth Pacific Airlines about noon E.D.T. and reach Vancouver via United Airlines about 5 p.m. E.D.T. Thursday.

Rockingham has been succeeded as commander of the 25th by Brig. M. P. Bogert, 43, a native of Toronto, who was Director-General of Military Training at Defence Headquarters in Ottawa before him.

Need Good Communications

Rockingham said one lesson he learned in Korea was the need for "very good communications."

"There must be great co-operation between the infantry and tanks, artillery and planes to withstand the massed kind of Communist attacks," he said.

Fighting in a country like Korea, he said, demands the best in physical condition.

"If anyone is going to fight in Korea he should have training in actual mountain-climbing. You use different muscles going up and down in that rough terrain."

Plan Special Stamp For Red Cross Parley

OTTAWA, May 16 (CP)—The post office announced Thursday it will issue a special four-cent stamp in July to commemorate the International Red Cross Conference, to be held in Toronto.

The conference, which meets approximately every four years, is the supreme governing body of the Red Cross. It will be its first meeting in Canada and the first in North America since the Washington conference of 1912.

The stamp is being printed in blue and red—first by the line engraved process in light blue and then superimposed by the Red Cross by the offset process.

The design will show rays of light with a "sunburst" centred by the Red Cross.

Accused Lucky Says Magistrate

"You don't know how fortunate you are," Magistrate W. R. Philp told Roy E. Mullen, 19, 95 Aylmer St., when he dismissed a charge of driving while impaired by alcohol against Mullen Thursday.

The Magistrate said he was giving Mullen the benefit of the doubt that it was a mechanical failure in the steering apparatus and not two pints of beer he had consumed which caused an accident on Aylmer St., May 7.

The car Mullen was driving south on Aylmer St., went out of control just south of Sherbrooke St., hit the east curb of Aylmer, skidded sideways across the street, mounted the west curb of Aylmer St., and overturned on its side after breaking off a young maple tree.

Despite the vigorous argument of W. J. Arthur Fair who defended Mullen, Magistrate Philp said he was finding Mullen guilty of a second charge of careless driving.

Mr. Fair argued the Mullen was too busy trying to pull the car out of a shimmy after it struck the curb, to think of applying the brakes and that he was not negligent in failing to do so.

When he acquitted Mullen of driving while impaired the Magistrate said he was accepting Mullen's explanation that the car started to shimmy because of a defect in the front end, but he ruled that Mullen was negligent in not applying the brakes while the car skidded 180 feet.

Mullen was fined $10 and $5 costs for careless driving and given the forceful reprimand by Magistrate Philp that he probably was not aware of how fortunate he was in not being fined heavily on the more serious charge and that the accident would have been "most serious if there had been any other traffic on the street at the time".

Truck Racks Break Girl 8 Killed, 27 Others Injured

WARREN, Ont., May 17. (CP)—Forty of 81 singing school children on their way to a concert in a three-ton dump truck were thrown to the road Friday when the truck's home-made racks collapsed as it rounded a bend. One girl was killed, seven other children injured severely and more than 20 others treated for cuts and bruises. The children were all pupils of two classes of the separate school at St. Charles, 30 miles east of here and 20 miles west of North Bay. The driver and a teacher brought the total riding in the truck to 83.

Dead is Jeannine Lafortune, 8, crushed beneath the weight of the other children when the racks broke.

Coroner Paul Emile LaFlamme, investigating the accident, said an inquest would be held at Sudbury.

In hospital with mostly head injuries are Teddy Beauparlent, 7, Guy Lefebvre, 7, Gertrude Lafleur, 13, Leon Brisson, 13, Emil St. George, Michael Legros and Andrew Houle.

Load Seemed To Shift

Giles Lefebvre, the school teacher and father of one of the injured children said Narcisse Dignard of St. Charles was driving the truck at about a speed of 10 to 15 miles an hour when the accident happened. The load seemed to shift as the vehicle rounded the curve.

"The panels on the right side of the truck gave way," he said. "I was holding on to the left side of the truck as it went around a slight left-hand turn."

Maurice Brisson, 12, said there were 75 children in the rear of the truck and six in the cab. He said the children were singing when the accident occurred.

One of the children who did not fall off, Gabriel Barbe, 11, said "we were just going along and the girls were singing, then the rack broke—I don't know what happened after that. About half the kids fell off."

When the truck stopped, Mr. Lefebvre jumped off and started gathering the injured from the pile of squirming, terror-stricken children.

Then a motorist, Paul Pilon, picked up those with the most serious injuries and took them to hospital in Sturgeon Falls. Others were taken to doctors nearby.

Hopes Fading For Quick End To Oil Strike

DENVER, Col., May 17 (CP)—Hopes for a quick end to the strike in the United States oil industry faded today.

And as the back-to-work movemen slowed to a trickle, the prospect of airlines throughout the world returning to full operations in the near future dimmed.

The country-wide strike of 90,000 refinery and pipeline workers was in its 17th day. There was general disappointment among the striking unions with the 15-cent-an-hour ceiling on wage increases, imposed several days ago by the government's wage stabilization board.

Decision of the board to limit increases in the industry to 15 cents had been expected to bring a quick end to the strike. But agreement on a plant-by-plant basis was a slow process and in some cases union and management were still at odds.

New Walkout

While some refineries began resuming operations, the trend was marred by a new walkout. About 35 workers struck at the Wyco pipeline in Colorado and Wyoming late Friday, shutting down a line which supplies 130,000,000 gallons of gasoline a year to Colorado. Differences over retroactive pay and a clause for reopening wage talks were the causes.

Allied Patrol Storms Red Hill

SEOUL, Korea, May 17—(AP)—An Allied patrol, using bayonets and small-arms fire, today stormed a Red-held hill on the western Korea front, killing 27 Communists and wounding 13.

The pre-dawn fight took place northwest of the Panmunjom truce site, an Eighth Army communique said. Both sides rushed in reinforcements during the scrap which broke off at 4:40 a.m.

For the fourth straight morning, a United Nations tank-infantry patrol raided Communist lines on the central front in the Kumhwa area. The eighth army said tank fire knocked out snipers and a machine-gun.

Allied patrols on the eastern front fought brief engagements with Red patrols in the early morning hours.

Flames Level Building In Half Hour

Blaze Broke Out After Opening, All Workers Escape

TORONTO, May 17. (CP)—The 100-year-old Toronto Wholesale Fruit Market was destroyed early today in a fire causing damage estimated by firemen at $500,000 to $1,000,000.

The two-storey wooden structure was levelled barely a half-hour after the first alarm was given at 6:35 a.m. E.D.T.—just after it had opened for business. Firemen concentrated on preventnig the flames from spreading to adjoining buildings.

No one was hurt, but virtually the entire stock of the 20-odd wholesalers who leased the building from the Canadian National Railways was destroyed.

Historic Landmark

The historic landmark at the down-town intersection of Yonge and Front Streets once was Toronto's railway station. It had been used by wholesalers to market fruit and vegetables from a wide area of Ontario, as well as produce from the United States. It employed some 500 men.

A police constable who gave the alarm said he saw what appeared to be a small blaze. By the time he returned from a nearby call-box, the entire building was in flames.

Firemen, responding to the three-alarm call, brought the blaze under control within less than an hour.

About 300 workers and customers were in the building when the fire was discovered. They all reached safety by filing through several exits.

Officials said there might have been casualties if the fire had broken out later in the morning when activity on the market is at its peak. As many as 1,000 persons would have been in the building.

It was reported a temporary shelter will be put up to permit wholesalers to carry on their businesses.

Defective wiring is believed to have been the cause of the blaze.

Strange Residents

Hundreds of rats perished in the fire.

The rodents, entrenched for years in the big wooden building, didn't have a chance as it was gutted in a matter of minutes. Many were seen scurrying about in vain efforts to escape.

But another animal was more fortunate.

Shortly after the blaze broke out, a racoon scooted out of the building apparently suffering nothing worse than a singed tail.

Nobody knew where it came from.

Eisenhower Triumph

PORTLAND, Ore., May 17. (AP) — Mounting returns early today indicated a smashing triumph to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in his primary election bid for Oregon's 18 Republican delegates. Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, on the basis of results from Friday's heavy-voting popularity poll, grabbed an equally huge lead that assured him 12 democratic delegates. The count from 970 of the state's 2,269 precincts gave Eisenhower 45,351 votes as against 10,399 for his nearest rival, Governor Earl Warren of California.

The gathering of Chinese from Victoria to the Maritimes is intended to promote a unity among the Chinese people and to formulate a brotherhood movement which will foster mutual understanding and good public relations between Chinese Canadians and other citizens. Chairman of the convention is Dr. H. W. Lore of Toronto.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Liu chi, the Chinese Nationalist Government's ambassador to Canada and delegate to the United Nations.

The menu will be prepared by Hum Bing, eastern Canada's top Chinese chef and his deputy Pong Sang.

Gen. Clark Orders Paratroopers Sent To POW Camp

TOKYO, May 17. (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark tonight said the U.S. 187th airborne infantry regiment has been sent to Koje Island to reinforce United Nations troops guarding Communist prisoners of war there. Clark, comamnder of the U.N. in the Far East, said he ordered the reinforcements to Koje to prevent mass outbreaks by the prisoners "which inevitably would result in additional violence and bloodshed." "I do not propose to countenance for one moment further unlawful acts on the part of these prisoners of war and civilian internees," Clark said in a statement.

He said the 187th had completed its movement to the island 30 miles off southeast Korea.

Clark, who took over the U.N command one week ago today said he ordered the paratroopers to Koje at the request of Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U.S. Eighth Army commander.

Temporary Reinforcements

He said they would temporarily reinforce the troops already there. U.S. troops and South Korean guards have in the past been guarding the POWs on Koje.

The 187th Regiment, a beefed-up unit larger than most infantry regiments, has been stationed at Beppu in Southern Japan for about one year. Before that it was in Korea, where it participated in two combat jumps.

"Communist prisoners of war and civilian internees on Koje have not only resorted on repeated occasions to unlawful violence but, obviously acting under instructions from outside agents of the international Communist power conspiracy, have threatened mass outbreaks which inevitably would result in additional violence and bloodshed," Clark said.

"The United Nations authorities will continue to observe the provisions of the Geneva convention in the administration of U.N. POW Camp No. 1 and at all other POW camps under their control. At the same time, they will require that the prisoners of war and civilian internees observe the responsibilities placed on them by the provisions of the same convention. Good order and discipline will be required of them at all times.

"The presence of the famous 187th airborne infantry regiment will enable General Hayden L. Boatner, commanding general U.N. POW Camp No. 1, to insure that my directives in this matter are fully implemented."

7 Committed For Trial In Army Thefts

PEMBROKE, May 17 —(CP)—One of seven men committed Friday for trial on charges of participating in $50,000 thefts at nearby Petawawa military camp is expected to be a key crown witness at the trial of the other six.

He is Sgt. J. M. Young of Fredericton, formerly with the Royal Canadian Engineers at the camp.

A two-day preliminary hearing ended abruptly Friday through an agreement between Special Prosecutor J. W. Pickup of Toronto and defence lawyers.

Mr. Pickup said he will furnish defence lawyers with copies of a statement made by S.Sgt. Young to army and police officers. The prosecutor said he will call Young as a crown witness at the trials next month and also introduce statements given police by Amos Durant, another of the accused.

Committed For Trial

Those committed for trial on charges of conspiracy and theft were Capt. Donald W. Baldock, Winnipeg engineer formerly stationed at Petawawa; salvage company operators Harry and Morris Eisen of Pembroke; iron company owner Jack Jacobson, his employee David C. Mawhinney, and Amos Durant, all of Brockville, Ont., and S.Sgt. Young.

Capt. Baldock and S.Sgt. Young are also charged with breach of trust.

Crown witnesses Friday told the preliminary hearing of the removal of stoves, sewer pipes, shower stalls and steel rails from the camp.

Some testified that Capt. Baldock ordered or supervised loading of various items at the camp; Six witnesses said Jacobson, Mawhinney and Durant supervised removal of stoves and kitchen ranges by truck and railway car at various times during 1950 and 1951.

Trucks Race Through Night With Chemical To Quell Fire

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., May 17. (AP)—A $1,000,000 oil fire which burned all night in this coastal city was extinguished shortly after dawn today. Firemen began rolling up hose at about 7:30 a.m. CST (9:30 a.m. EDT) after a sleepless fight against what had been a raging threat to the city.

Foamite—a carbon dioxide extinguisher which "suffocates" fire by depriving it of oxygen—did the trick. Some 200,000 pounds of foamite arrived from Houston early today.

The fire-dousing substance was quickly applied to what was left of a blaze already near the point of burning itself out.

Run Out of Foamite

The estimated 200 firemen had run out of foamite during the night.

Truck drivers raced through the night with the foam. The carbon dioxide foam formed a suffocating "cap" for the flames still burning in two smaller oil tanks.

Oilmen made the estimate that the blaze had caused a $1,000,00 loss.

Early today, the firemen, hampered by lack of chemicals, attempted to prevent the fire from spreading to a refinery and the nearby homes of 300 families.

Ten tanks at the General American tank terminal were burning and at least two of them were of 80,000-gallon size.

4 p.m.

The tank company is located in a refining district about a mile from downtown Corpus Christi.

Vendetta Claims Lives Of 13

ORGOSOLO, Italy, May 17 — (Reuters). — The writing-on-the-wall vendetta, now two years old, has claimed the lives of 13 persons in this tiny village on the Island of Sardinia.

It started two years ago when villagers found 36 names crudely painted in whitewash on the walls of the church. Underneath was written: "These people have b condemned to death. They w die."

Now a row of 13 crosses stands in the local cemetery. Those buried there all bore names that appeared on th church wall.

Beside these graves there is space for another 23 crosses.

Giovani Porru, the mayor's secretary, was one of the few who laughed. Three days later a tommy-gun rattled. Next morning they buried Porru.

During the next two years 12 victims followed Porru.

Police from the island capital of Cagliari suspect the vendetta [illegible] six women among them—do not leave Orgosolo. Where can they go? Sardinia is a small island and its outlaws a closely-knit brotherhood.

Take Global View On Defence Ike Urges

LONDON, May 17 (AP)—Gen. Dwight Eisenhower Friday described the free world's defence as a global thing in which Korea, Indo-China and Malaya rank in importance with Western Europe.

The top soldier in the building of Western Europe's bulwarks asked the democracies to avoid taking a narrow geographic view of their struggle to protect themselves "against the threat of monolithic dictatorship."

He made the statement to reporters at London airport at the end of a two-day farewell visit to Britain as supreme commander of Allied powers in Europe.

Eisenhower said the democracies should not focus their attention too closely just on arms. He described spiritual strength as "the first and most important" factor in preserving peace.

Mansion's Ghost Vanishes After Skeleton Removed

VICTORIA, May 17—(CP)—A famous ghost, who roamed through a century old mansion in the exclusive suburb of Oak Bay, has been stilled.

In the home built on Heron St. by John Tod, colorful figure of the Hudson's Bay Company fur trade days, odd things happened over the years.

The present owner, Col. T. C. Evans, confirmed the odd happenings, but Friday, he says, the visitations have stopped.

The Tod ghost—some say it was the old man himself who returned in spirit—made many visitations.

From time to time, doors opened strangely in the stately mansion, built in 1851 when Tod retired from fur trade service.

But that was not all. An antique rocking chair would start to rock violently. Hats would fall from racks without apparent cause. A latch would lift and a door to a dark cellar would swing open, and an ancient biscuit jar, hanging in a giant kitchen fireplace, would start to swing.

It didn't, however, worry Col. and Mrs. Evans. They have had the old place modernized. And this may have stilled the spectre.

Buried seven feet deep, a skeleton was found in the garden during installation of an oil tank. The bones were so old that they disintegrated when exposed to air.

Col. Evans is not prepared to say that removal of the bones is responsible for the disappearance of the ghost.

"But there have been no manifestations since that time," he said.

Did His Best To Serve Queen

PORTSMOUTH, England, May 17 (Reuters)—The frustrated aim of Peter Smith, a beardless lad of 16, was to serve his Queen—and in trying to fulfil it he almost got shipped out to Hong Kong with the Royal Navy.

Two weeks ago Peter met a sailor who was just as eager to get out of the navy as Peter was to get in. The two swapped clothes and young Peter reported for duty at Portsmouth barracks.

For six days he performed the duties of an able seaman, passing unnoticed because he had had some training in the sea cadets.

Then police picked up the sailor friend in London.

It looked like the game was up, but Peter tried to bluff it through. The other man's papers showed a birthmark on the right knee. Pete rolled up his pants leg and there, by wild coincidence, was a birthmark.

Finally tripped up in the cross-examination, Peter confessed, adding, "I'll be back soon under my right name."

Report Sub Sighted Off Maine Coast

BOSTON, May 17—(CP)—The United States Navy said the Winter harbor station Friday reported "what was thought to be a submarine had been sighted 500 yards off the Maine coast."

A statement from the first naval district here said "airplanes from the navy air station at Squantum (Mass.) started out to investigate the report but fog forced them to return. No conclusion as to the sighting being an actual submarine are practicable."

The navy said today it has no further plans to search the area.

Four Children Found Locked In Parked Car

TORONTO, May 17 (CP) —Four [illegible]—Jimmy and Lynn, year-old twins, Roy, 3, and Elaine Kirkpatrick, 4—were left in the car by their mother, Mrs. Helen Kirkpatrick, when she could not find a baby sitter.

Police first noticed the children when they stopped to tag the car parked in a prohibited zone. Two hours later, the same officers became alarmed when they returned to find the children still apparently asleep. Police opened the car and took the children to hospital, where they were revived.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, expecting a fifth child, said:

"We just moved into a new house and there was no one I could get to sit with the babies while I went shopping."

Arrest Scout Leaders

LONDON, May 17 (Reuters)—A group of 10 Czechoslovak former Boy and Girl-Scout leaders received prison terms of up to 15 years on charges of anti-state activities, says a Czech news report received here Friday night. They were accused of trying to establish contact with "treacherous emigre groups" abroad and of hoping for another war and restoration of capitalism in Czechoslovakia.

Harry Eisen and Morris Eisen operate the Pembroke Salvage Company which had a contract to clear debris from a mysterious "Camp X," said to be within the borders of Petawawa camp.

Find Riddled Body Of Robbery Suspect

WEST WARWICK, R. I., May 17 (AP)—Blasts from a shotgun today killed a roadhouse operator reported to have been identified recently as a participant in the unsolved $1,219,000 Brink's robbery in Boston 28 months ago.

Police said the riddled body of Carlton O'Brien, 49, was found on the walk in front of his home.

Protest Use Of Road By Allied Patrols

MOSCOW, May 17 (AP). — A Tass dispatch from Berlin today said Soviet Maj.-Gen. V. I. Trusov has protested to American and British authorities against western military patrols travelling the Berlin-Helmestedt Highway.

The Soviet news agency dispatch, featured by Moscow papers, indicated the Russians feel this patrolling is a usurpation of Soviet authority and intend to stop it for good.

The Russians have been conducting an on-again, off-again ban against Allied patrols on the German highway the past week. The 10-mile road is West Berlin's sole road link with West Germany. The patrols help stranded motorists.

Police Provide Simple Version Criminal Code

MONTREAL —(CP)—A simplified version of the Criminal Code, complete with cartoon illustrations, soon will be available to Canadian police constables if a plan devised by St. Lambert Chief of Police J. G. Reilly is put into effect.

Chief Reilly, who besides his regular duties has been instructing police cadets since appointment to his present post in 1949, is planning to combine Criminal Code definitions with a "Police Manual."

St. Lambert is a town on the south side of the St. Lawrence river opposite Montreal.

Besides extracts from the code, the book will outline the police officer's powers in connection with the peace enforcement.

The latter section, including pointers on discipline, will be based on his personal experience as well as instructions received early in his police career.

Highlight of Manual

A highlight of "Reilly's Criminal Code and Police Manual" will be nearly 100 cartoon illustrations drawn by Constable Kenneth W. Dixon, who joined the St. Lambert force last January.

"Many constables, when confronted with performing their duties," the Chief said, "are too often compelled to request the assistance of superior officers because they lack the knowledge of recognizing and being able to determine that an offence has been committed."

He said that by means of illustrations the text would be simplified and clarified and that as a result "police personnel will obtain more precise knowledge of the definitions of the Criminal Code."

Chief Reilly and Constable Dixon will be busy on the book for at least six months. Eventually they hope to publish editions in French and in English, and expect the work may be available for public sale.

HALIBUT FISHERMEN — Olaf Wikkelsmo of Vancouver, left, and Art Halverson of Nanaimo prepare their lines for the halibut fishing season which opened this week. Members of the halibut fleet comprising some 3,000 fishermen on 900 boats, they sail the lucrative fishing grounds from B.C. to Alaska. The payoff—perhaps as much as $10,000 each—may come at the end of the season. Halibut brought the industry $6,000,000 last year and $9,000,000 in 1950.

Shipbuilding Industry Reaches Peak

OTTAWA, May 17 (CP) —Canada's shipyards have $234,000,000 worth of orders in hand—$64,000,000 for merchant shipping and rest largely for naval craft—and the shipbuilding industry now is at a post-war peak.

This picture was given the Commons Friday by Transport Minister Chevrier as he replied to criticisms of Canada's merchant shipping policies. He said Canadian yards probably would have more orders for merchant shipping if their costs were not higher than elsewhere.

Mr. Chevrier said Canadian shipyards are employing 17,515 persons, compared with 7,000 which Canadian Maritime Commission recommended as the nucleus which should be kept at work.

Included in the current orders were two 28,000-ton tankers for the British Columbia coastal trade. The minister hoped these would be the forerunners of some deep-sea dry-cargo ships.

Wants Modernization

He was replying specifically to Howard Green, the Progressive Conservative party's transportation specialist. The Vancouver-Quadra member had urged that Canada should get busy now modernizing its fleet of old, slow deep-sea vessels which were no match for the fast, modern vessels, plying the sea lanes under other flags.

Mr. Green said the maritime commission some years ago had recommended a ship-replacement plan, but this seemed to have been lost. Under the plan Canadian owners of war-built ships who bought them on favorable terms after the war could sell them and deposit the money in an escrow fund to be used to purchase new tonnage in Canada.

On this point Mr. Chevrier said there was a ship-replacement plan in operation. It had resulted in $25,500,000 from the escrow fund being used for construction or reconversion of ships in Canadian yards.

The exchange about Canada's merchant shipping came as the Commons considered transport estimates of $96,596,544 for 1952-53, compared with $86,692,788 in the 1951-52 fiscal year.

Rev. C. Richmond Tells Of Years As Missionary

ROSENEATH, May 17 (ENS).—"There is nothing more tragic when on a foreign mission field than to be forgotten by those you loved," said Rev. Charles Richmond, rector of the Anglican Church, Omemee, guest speaker at the May meeting of St. James Anglican W. A.

Mr. Richmond returned last year from 16 years as a missionary in Africa. Preceding his address the speaker sang "Nothing but the blood of Jesus," in African dialect playing his own concertina accompaniment.

The speaker said: "Missionaries do not go out on a foreign missions only because of pity for the heathen, but of passion for Christ. When we obey God we can prove our miraculous power. If Jesus Christ died for us then no sacrifice can be too great for us to make for Him."

The speaker told of food being sent to them miraculously on the desert when supplies had ran short. In concluding his address the speaker said, "Write to your missionaries, and if need be, wait up at night and pray for them."

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. A. J. Patstone, rector of St. James' Anglican Church, and thanked by Mrs. Earl Braithwaite.

The meeting was held in the township hall with the president, Mrs. Ray McCracken presiding and Miss Doreen Nichol as pianist.

On invitation the members of sister societies were present as the W.A. members wished to share this gift speaker with other organizations.

Brief addresses were given by the Rev. R. C. White, pastor of Roseneath United Church, the Rev. A. W. Smith, rector of Harwood Anglican Church and the Rev. A. J. Patstone of St. James' Anglican Church, Roseneath.

On behalf of their societies the following presidents expressed their appreciation for their invitations and the privilege of being present: Mrs. Wallace Young, Harwood W.A.; Mrs. N. C. Leach, Fenella W.M.S.; Mrs. James Bigwin, Alderville Homemakers; Mrs. C. M. Baker, St. George's W.A., Hastings; Mrs. J. N. Lovelace, Roseneath W.M.S.; Mrs. Dawson Timlin, Centenary W.A.; Mrs. Earl Waldie, Roseneath United Church W.A.; Mrs. Harold Taylor, Roseneath Women's Institute. The W. A. members sold afternoon tea.

Orphan's Oration Brings Tear To St. Laurent's Eye

OTTAWA, May 17 (CP) —Youth was bursting out all over in Canada's Parliament Buildings Friday. One nine-year-old orphan even put a tear in Prime Minister St. Laurent's eye.

In spring it has become customary for the fancies of many young men and women to turn to the capital and Friday, by chance, no fewer than eight contingents of school children—600 or more all told — descended on Parliament simultaneously.

The Prime Minister found himself addressing three of them, looking down into their scrubbed and freckled faces and predicting a prodigious future for their homeland.

In another room, External Affairs Minister Pearson tackled another contingent. The others saw the sights.

They came from all over Ontario and from Montreal by bus, car and train, 400 miles from eight country schools in Southern Ontario's Usborne township, from Welland county, from Northern Ontario, from Elgin Continuation School in Leeds county, and from orphanages and settlement houses in Montreal.

Three Ottawa contingents popped in to round out the younger set's biggest day of the spring.

The little girl who put the tear in Mr. St. Laurent's eye was Francine Tessier who attends St. Patrick's Orphange in Montreal and was part of a group brought here by the Kiwanis Club.

The Prime Minister spoke first in the big railway committee room packed with youngsters from Montreal, eastern and southern Ontario, and he told them that if war can be prevented—and he thought it could — a prodigious future awaits them, one that will see greater changes and improvements than he has seen in his 71 years.

Youngsters Love

The kids ate it up. They didn't even bat an eye when he used the the word prodigious.

Then little Francine, a chubby, freckle-faced, lovely in blue, was raised to Mr. Claxton's seat and spoke her piece.

"Up here in Ottawa we're not just Montrealers, we're Canadians and that's something pretty important," said the youthful orator. "But the best part about it is finding that you men who lead our country think we're important enough to hold a meeting with us . . . Thanks from everybody and God bless you all." She said thanks again in French.

She started to climb down from the big chair when it was over, but a pair of hands grabbed her and she got a Prime Ministerial kiss, right on her freckles and her shining, happy face.

Cathedral Choir Exalts Evensong At All Saints

The choir of the cathedral church of St. George, Kingston, if it were to go about singing evensong as it did in All Saints' Church Friday evening, would do more to wipe out the "Anglican thump" in chanting and to exalt church music in Ontario than volumes of theory and exhortation. To paraphrase Goldsmith: 'Truth from their lips prevailed with double sway. And those who came to listen, remained to pray' —to pray for the good estate of church music.

The complete office of Evensong was held, and not in ornate or any concert-style fashion, although the choir, after its triumphs in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York at the New Year, is a concert attraction. Its director is George N. Maybee, organist of the cathedral for the last ten years.

The music of the service, so the Dean of Kingston told me, was the normal standard now in the cathedral except that it was followed by a recital of choral music. The Lord must have been pleased Friday evening; certainly the service was a joy to heart and ear to this member of the large congregation. Persons from every denomination in Peterborough attended, leaving not even standing room in the church. It was the culminating musical service in All Saints' fiftieth anniversary celebrations.

Beautiful Church Service

This reviewer is in the curious position of reporting not on an excelling concert, but on a profoundly fitting church service.

It began with the large and robed host choir of All Saints leading the processional, which occupied front chairs: followed by the Kingston Cathedral choir of men and boys who went into the stalls of the chancel; followed by the clergy, among them the Rev. M. P. Poole, rector of All Saints, and the Rev. Dr. A. T. Briarly Browne, Dean of Ontario and rector of Kingston, who preached the sermon and led the service with accommodating intonation.

It ended with the singing, as the last number in the choral recital, of Vaughan Williams' "Te Deum" composed in the twenties for the enthronement of Archbishop Cosmo Gordon Lang. The full resources of this magnificent composition could not be realized because All Saints' organ is antiquated and inadequate to it, and the work depends on a full-voiced organ accompaniment.

Eight Male Altos

The pace of the hymns, the choir's singing of the canticles (for instance, the difficult Magnificat in D minor by Thomas Attwood Walmisley (1814-1858)), its pointing, rhythm and lucidity in the psalm (65) done to Goss, its responses, its anthem by Samuel Sebastian Wesley "Blessed Be the God and Father," and the way it took direction from the organ and occasionally through the mirrors; these attest a fine musical group, an unusually good Canadian cathedral choir. It is blessed by having eight countertenors (male altos), who gave the singing some unusual and fine cadences.

The recital following Evening Prayer included three pieces by the contemporary, distinguished Canadian Healey Willan: "Thou Knowest Lord," by Purcell (1658-1695), a piece which the Coventry Singers have made known in Peterborough and a remarkable thing, done with robust, rhythmic grace—and the most impressive work of the evening—"God Is Gone Up," by the late-day madrigalist, the great William Croft, who succeeded Blow as organist at Westminster Abbey in 1708. Vaughan Williams' noble active Te Deum (in G) ended the concert and service.

Notable Sermon

The short sermon by Dr. Briarly Browne was interesting. Even the choir boys listened when he related the church's anniversary to the early history of Peterborough and told pioneer tales of Peterborough. His tributary feat was all the more remarkable for his having no intimate connection with Peterborough, historically or geographically.—T. J. A.

Families Move Out

A large housing unit is located about 100 yards from the edge of the blazing oil and kerosene and police asked the 300 families to move out. Three or four unoccupied houses nearest the flames caught fire, but firemen quickly extinguished the flames.

While firemen awaited supplies of more foamite, a carbon dioxide extinguisher, from Houston, they soaked nearby structures with water to prevent spread of the frie.

Steam was forced into stills and tanks at the adjacent Southwestern Oil and Refinery Company's refinery to offset the danger of further explosions.

Fear New Explosion

Late reports from the scene said it was "possible" the fire would spread to the residential area and to the refinery. Another large 80,000- gallon tank, the Corpus Christi Caller-Times said, might blow up "any minute."

Southwestern Refinery officials refused to estimate the damage, but oilmen said it easily would reach $1,000,000.

Red Cross and Salvation Army units manned first aid stations in the fire area. The civilian Texas State Guard helped with evacuation.

Neither the refinery or the tank farm are affected by the present country-wide strike of oil workers.

The blaze is Texas' third big oil fire within a few days. A refinery at Houston burned and a Fort Worth and Denver City Railway accident at Corsicana set fire to several cars of gasoline and oil earlier in the week.

New Parachutes Being Tested

TORONTO, May 17 (CP)—The Ontario Lands department is going in for new parachutes in a big way this season. The purpose is to speed up arrival of fire fighting equipment at new forest fires.

The department hopes to improve on a system of forest control used in Manitoba and the United States, a departmental official said Friday, by developing a smaller, cheaper 'chute than the one now in use.

The department hopes to develop a 'chute five feet in diameter that will let down as much equipment as previous ones 11 feet in diameter. Its research division is working on a woven cotton fabric treated with a plastic composition that will be less expensive than the burlap 'chutes now used in similar forest control systems.

Initial tests in parachuting the equipment were held last weekend in the Porcupine Lake area of Northwestern Ontario.

Pilot Tom Cook dropped a pack pump and hose from his Beaver aircraft within 15 feet of a 10-foot tarpaulin. He also placed other fire-fighting paraphernalia — shovels, axes, and a tent — close to the target.

Dr. R. A. Kelly, medical officer of health, reports that there were 381 cases of mumps in the city during March and April.

"This was to be expected," he says. "In most coses the condition was not at all serious."

Hardest hit was the five to nine year old group of children.

Here is a list of reported cases of communicable disease during the last two months: chickenpox 67, German measles 166, measles 2, mumps 381, and scarlet fever 4.

In March there were 149 people with mumps and last month there were 232.

Costly Blaze Sweeps Warner Bros. Studio

BURBANK, Calif., May 17 (AP) —An area two blocks square in the vast Warner Brothers studio lay in ruins today after a fire that caused loss officially estimated at $1,500,000.

Destroyed by the flames Thursday were the studio's sound stage 21, largest in the movie industry, several large exterior sets and much valuable equipment and scenery.

The fire started during the lunch hour and burned over eight acres before being brought under control two hours later.

Studio publicity men posed several stars beside hoses and the charred sets during the fire, and cameramen ground away as the flames roared. "We've got enough fire footage here to last us a lifetime," a cameraman remarked.

4,000 Attend Religious Debate

STILLWATER, Okla., May 17. (AP)—Stillwater's great religious debate ended Friday night with 4,000 persons attending the fourth discussion of the Old and New Testaments.

The oratorical marathon, of which the last rounds were held in St. Francis-Xavier Roman Catholic church, centred around the question of which is the supreme authority in the Christian religion—the new testament or the Roman Catholic church.

Dr. Eric Beevers of St. Francis declared, "One of us is wrong." But neither he nor the Rev. Eldred Stevens of the Church of Christ would concede defeat.

Both said the purpose of the debate was to stimulate interest in religious thinking.

A movie company which tried to film parts of the event was refused permission by Dr. Beevers, who explained the arguments concerned two issues, not two personalities.

Brother, Sister Sought In District

A brother and sister who came to Peterborough from England about 1927 or 1928 are being sought by an executor and trustee firm in Preston, England, who are administering the estate of Miss Ethel Hooson of Blackpool, Lancashire.

The firm has written to the Peterborough police department, asking for assistance in tracing David Whittaker and his sister Beatrice. They are children of a deceased cousin of Miss Hooson who died April 22. It is believed they came to Peterborough, but nothing has been heard from them by their relatives in England since they came to Canada.

At the time they left England, Beatrice Whittaker was about 21, so she and her brother who was about the same age would now be in their middle or late forties.

In inquiring about the Whittakers, the letter said that the firm finds it necessary to trace all the relations of Miss Hooson who may be still living.

Collegiate Choir Could Be Best In All Canada

"This is no ordinary choir; it has the makings of one of the leading choirs in Canada."

These remarks were made during the adjudication of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School Girls' Choral Club by English Adjudicator Alex Redshaw. The P.C.V.S group sang during the evening session of the Peterborough Music Competition Festival at Queen Mary School auditorium Friday night.

"This was extremely good singing," Mr. Redshaw said. "There was a fine blend of tone in all parts and there was always color and buoyancy in the singing."

The choir was awarded 171 marks for their singing of, Where E'er You Walk, by Handel and Falan Tiding, arranged by Leslie R. Bell.

Mr. Redshaw asked that the group develop more completely formed vowels and crisper consonants to improve their diction and suggested they be more subtle in the shaping of their phrases.

Following the singing of the competition selections, the group sang three more selections at the request of the festival committee.

The P.C.V.S. Choral Club is directed by M. J. Curtis.

Harold Dinesen, Peterborough, was awarded the highest marks (175) of the day in the piano classes for his playing of, March of the Gingerbread Man by Wadley.

The P.C.V.S. Triple Trio were awarded 88 marks for their singing of As Torrents in Summer by Elgar.

A special feature of tonight's session at Queen Mary auditorium will be the Coventry Singers of Peterborough under the direction of Christopher Gledhill who will be competing against the Glenlyon Singers of Perth under the direction of John Hooper in Class 5 for mixed voice choirs.

Tonight's Session will also include piano solo, and duo Anglican Church choirs, and tenor and contralto solo classes.

"Stink Bombs" Put In Store

MONTREAL, May 17 (CP) — Shoppers taking advantage of a 20-per-cent reduction in prices in Dupuis' east-end department store, brought about a wage strike of employees, lost little time getting out just before closing time Friday night when some one let off a number of "stink bombs."

Meanwhile, police held back a crowd of some 1,000 shouting strikers and sympathizers as employees who have gone back to work or who did not go out on strike were taken to their homes in buses.

The demonstration apparently stemmed from a company announcement earlier Friday that self-service, inaugurated shortly after the strike started, would be "permanently established in all departments where such kind of selling may be used successfully."

New Gimmick Does Job Of Electronic Tubes

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK—(NEA)—An element that was predicted before it was found has united with a device that was invented before it was built. Together, they give promise of amazing advances in electronics.

The element is germanium, one of those predicted by the Russian, Mendelyeev, in 1871. It was actually first isolated 15 years later, by Clemens Winkler, a German who named it after his homeland.

The device is the transistor, a gimmick about the size of a shoelace tip. It is designed to do the same job as certain vacuum tubes, and its advantages, against the tube, are quickly apparent.

The vacuum tube, like those in your radio, does its job by boiling off electrons from a heated filament encased in glass. Right there, you have the chief drawbacks of the vacuum tube.

Tubes can break; transistors can't. Tubes need to warm up; transistors don't. Tubes have a filament which burns out; transistors are expected to last about 100,000 hours. Tubes need relatively high power to bring the filament to the right heat; transistors can run on about one millionth of a watt. And transistors are much smaller than tubes.

The transistor is the result of research to find something that would do the job of a vacuum tube without its faults. The search led to a class of metals called "semi-conductors," which are midway between a true conductor of electricity, like copper, and an insulating material.

Control Flow

The flow of electrons in these metals can be controlled. For instance, a semi-conducting wire can be rigged so it will conduct current well in one direction, but poorly in the other.

At the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York, the electronics men sat down and planned a device which would utilize a semi-conductor, and, through this quality of controlled flow of electrons, do the same job as a tube. It was, the Bell people say, "pure research," in that the whole thing was worked out on paper before it was built.

When they finally constructed the first transistor, it performed like it was supposed to. It is, actually, a simple device in looks. It contains a tiny chip of germanium, about 40-thousandths of an inch square, with two wires touching it barely two thousandths of an inch apart. These wires are soldered to a metal base.

Current flowing in one of the wires, induces electronic changes in the germanium. These electrons, operating in a controlled pattern, then go to work just as they do presently in a vacuum tube, amplifying and oscillating.

Used In Phones

To the average citizen, the transistor may eventually mean many things.

Its first practical appearance is scheduled this year, when it will be used for nationwide telephone dialing in equipment now being made by Western Electric Company.

Transistors may replace tubes in hearing aids, thus eliminating the batteries which are needed to heat the tube filaments.

Because of its small size, the day of startling gadgets—like very small radios and mechanical brains the size of a desk, not a room—may be near. Already, General Electric engineers have developed an experimental radio transmitter that fits in a vest pocket.

Currently, the transistor has a few bugs in it. It doesn't work too well on high frequencies, which means it's out as far as television is concerned. It is also affected by changes in temperature.

Even so, as Dr. E. W. Engstrom, R.C.A.'s vice-president in charge of the laboratories division, says, "As the vacuum tube made possible the modern miracles of radio, television and radar, so will the transistor become a tool with which to open vast new horizons in the electronic art."

It will not completely supplant the vacuum tube, yet. That will still be needed for high frequency jobs and other work the transistor cannot handle at present.

Key Element

It is the tiny chip of germanium that has wrought this exciting electronic prospect. There are other semi-conductors, like silicon and zinc sulphide, which could be used, but germanium's physical properties are such that it is the best at this early stage of the transistor's history.

The choice has made the producers of zinc very happy. For years, germanium was a nuisance. It occurs in zinc ore in the huge tri-state field—Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma—and had to be disposed of in the zinc refining process.

But today the Eagle-Picher Co., biggest germanium producer, has a market for the germanium it gets as it turns out zinc. And, since the element is found in such small quantities, it is classed as a semi-precious metal and commands a good price. Germanium now sells for about $304 a pound, but even this is down from the pre-transistor price, $4,500 a pound.

It takes between 1,00 and 1,250 tons of ore—about 20 freight cars—to get one pound of germanium.

VACUUM TUBE and rival show size of transistor required to do same job as small tube.

LIKE MAN-MADE SPIDERS, germanium transistors made by General Electric are almost dwarfed by book of matches.

It takes two months before the complex manufacturing process turns the crude ore into the silvery metal that is pure germanium.

In Chimneys

Germanium is also found inside chimneys, particularly English chimneys, as a result of the burning of coal. A small deposit, now believed exhausted, of an ore very rich in germanium was discovered at Tsumeb, Southwest Africa. But the germanium recovered as a by-product of zinc refining is still the best industrial source.

Research in the whole field continues. The first transistors were somewhat unreliable; this has been remedied. A new type, called the junction transistor, is a solid piece of germanium encased in a bead about three-sixteenth of an inch in diameter. It seems to have certain advantages over the original, point-contact transistor.

Electronics experimenters, themselves, have no idea what lies ahead. As one says, "With electronics, today becomes yesterday this afternoon."

Horsemeat Or Not, It Was Bad

It seems almost accidental that Peterborough health authorities discovered 92 pounds of meat at a local butcher's shop to be unfit for human consumption. The accident which led the health officers to it was a bill of lading stamped "horsemeat." This occasioned police interest and the subsequent visit of inspection to the butcher shop. Whether or not the 92 pounds were horsemeat (that has yet to be established) it was condemned because it was stinking bad.

* * *

"We even objected to the packing," said the city sanitary inspector. "It was poorly packed. There was only one sheet of paper around the loosely packed boneless meat which arrived in used orange crates. The meat is definitely unfit for human consumption." But if it had not had a shipping label "horsemeat," would the rotten stuff have missed the inspection and ban of the health officials? Would it have been sold over the butcher's counter?

* * *

The incident shows that there should be tighter city rules, regulations and inspection to ensure that improper foods are not peddled in Peterborough. Of course, as the police cannot be at every corner to catch every driver who fails to stop at a STOP sign, so the health inspectors cannot be at every small slaughter house, shipping depot and food shop to inspect every delivery, and to take action if necessary under the Province's Public Health Act. This incident is fortunately an exception—an infamous one to be sure—to the general food purveying methods in the city.

* * *

Inspectors go their rounds to all cafes, shops and the like two or three times a week. The proprietors co-operate and can generally be relied on to acquire their goods from approved suppliers and to sell only foods in proper condition. The Smiths Falls meat processing firm which sent the 92 pounds of rotten meat into the city—rotten by the time it had arrived—is not helping the good name of meat packers; nor is the local butcher who accepted the delivery as meat for human consumption a credit to reputable other butchers.

* * *

Ever since Peterborough was incorporated 102 years ago it has had laws to ensure the health and safety of the citizens, through regulating what foods may be sold, under what conditions, and in what manner, weights and sizes. For a century this Province has struggled to secure pure foods, clean, fresh, free from disease. So used are we to proper, good foods, that it is almost unthinkable that any bad is being peddled. That is why the meat incident last Wednesday is so shocking.

* * *

Are good packing houses like Canada Packers, which has a government inspector in the plant all the time to ensure the quality and proper handling of the meat; are reputable grocery stores, butcher shops and meat counters where pride is taken in the cleanliness of the store and the quality of the goods; are fruit growers and distributors who take pains to ensure that the things they sell are handled cleanly and reach the market in good [illegible], and all the long fight by legislators and voters and government departments for pure food and sound public health to be set at naught by careless or unscrupulous operators?

* * *

It was a small incident, but important. People of Peterborough are rightly indignant. The investigation is continuing and should lead to measures to prevent recurrences of this sort of thing.

Oil Piped From The West

The shortage, real or threatened, of gasoline and oil in the United States owing to the strike among oil workers, had no effect on Canada, except to reduce our supply of aviation fuel. The reason that Canadians could be unconcerned about the gasoline situation across the border—a shortage which might seriously have affected them five years ago—is that Canada is now using her own oil; the black gold of Alberta. And Alberta oil is readily available in Eastern Canada because of the pipe line completed during 1950 from Redwater, Alberta, to the head of the Great Lakes at Superior.

Piping of oil is not new to Canada. Montreal has had a direct pipeline from the States for half a dozen years. Canadian troops in Europe during the war depended on oil piped across the Channel to France, and on oil piped north up the Italian coast from Naples. The 1,227 mile pipe line from the West was a very large project, costing ninety millions of dollars. An outstanding construction and engineering accomplishment, it marks a new era in the development of Western Canada, not only at the wells in Alberta, but along the pipe route.

Oil was long known to have existed in Alberta before it was pumped commercially, but development was hindered because Alberta was a long overland distance from the chief centres of consumption. The pipe line delivers Alberta crude oil to the door of people and industries of Ontario. Now under construction is a pipe line from Toronto to Montreal, along the lake and river front.

During the past ten years Canadian oil consumption has increased 130 per cent. Demand for gasoline has doubled, and quadrupled for heating oil. Without the Alberta fields, new refineries and the pipe line, Canada would be anxiously dependent on American and other foreign sources. In 1949 before the pipe line was built only twenty per cent of Canada's petroleum needs were supplied by domestic crude oil. Now Canada is virtually independent of American supplies. And last year, as a direct result of the construction of the pipe line from Alberta, Canada saved an estimated $155,000,000 in United States funds. It is one of the many elements in the Canadian economy that have contributed to the present premium price of the Canadian dollar in the United States.

Premier Malan And The Spirit Of Liberty

Premier Daniel Malan of the Union of South Africa has carried his bill which will permit parliament to override all courts; in future, if an appeal court rules that any law created by the parliament is unconstitutional, parliament will be able to contradict the court and pursue its chosen course. As it has been plain for some months that this is what the South African parliament meant to do, it does not come as a surprise; the move is eminently worthy of discussion, however.

The popular trend in South Africa for many years has been anti-British, anti-Commonwealth, anti-Negro and anti-democratic; those who make up Premier Malan's followers apparently think that a white, totalitarian, pseudo-theocratic state can be made to work in Africa and we cannot say that they are wrong. We can say, however, that they cannot do this and remain within the Commonwealth or the United Nations without weakening both. The civilized world is doing its best to live by the light of liberty, and Premier Malan has not managed to set parliament above the courts in order to further liberty, but in order to throttle liberty. Liberty is not perfect anywhere, and certainly has never come close to perfection in South Africa; nevertheless, the tendency under British influence was to extend liberty as far, and as fast, as could be managed. Malan means to reverse that tendency and has already gone far along his chosen path. His latest step is a short-cut toward even greater limitations of liberty.

Malan is an able politician, and consequently we suspect that he is following public opinion in South Africa, rather than leading it. Would he dare to take such a plainly anti-libertarian step if he were not sure that a majority of the people were with him? We doubt it. And in this connection we are reminded of some very wise words written not too long ago by one of the wisest men of the U.S. Supreme Court, the great Judge Learned Hand: "I often wonder whether we do not rest our hopes too much upon constitutions, upon laws and upon courts. These are false hopes; believe me, these are false hopes. Liberty lies in the hearts of men and women; when it dies there, no constitution, no law, no court can save it; no constitution, no law, no court to [illegible] will; it is not freedom to do as one likes. That is the denial of liberty, and leads straight to its overthrow . . . The spirit of liberty is the spirit which is not too sure that it is right; the spirit of liberty is the spirit which seeks to understand the minds of other men and women; the spirit of liberty is the spirit which weighs their interests alongside its own without bias; the spirit of liberty remembers that not even a sparrow falls to earth unheeded."

Clearly this spirit is either dead, or in a languishing state, in South Africa, or Premier Malan would not have dared to take the decisive move that he has done to geld the courts of any final and dependable authority. There is nothing that Canada can do about it, though we may do well to ponder over Judge Learned Hand's noble definition of liberty, and consider what health liberty enjoys in our own land.

The American people have just heard of the case of a man living in the United States who wants to go and live in Russia. He has been sent, not to Russia, but to a mental ward for observation. On the theory that if he isn't crazy, he ought to be?

Fine Tale Of Ritual Murder

THE DECEIVERS by John Masters (MacMillan).

THIS IS THAT RARE THING, a truly thrilling tale of adventure. The scene is India in 1825, and the hero is a man, neither young nor clever, who is a district collector for the East India Company. Accidentally he happens upon evidence of ritual murder within his district by the devotees of Kali, the goddess of destruction; these devotees are the Thugs, the stranglers, who set upon travellers, throttle them with knotted cloths, and then disfigure and bury the bodies. In order to find out how he may put down Thuggee in the region under his control William Savage disguises himself and lives among the Thugs; he gains not only the information he seeks, but a new measure of insight into himself.

Books on such themes can be very thin when the writer has gleaned his information from works of reference only; John Masters comes of five generations of Anglo-Indians, and his writing is informed with the sort of knowledge of the country and its people which does not have to obtrude itself; the stamp of authenticity is in every line. Heretical though it may appear to some readers, he creates a more credible India for us than Kipling. The mystery of the country and its manifold religious beliefs is communicated to us, but it makes sense in a way that the writings of Kipling, for this reader at least, do not. It is not easy to explain Thuggee, for instance, but Mr. Masters does so.

It is a pleasure to recommend this book. Good adventure stories, peopled with credible human beings and rooted in truth, are uncommon, and when one comes along, it is an agreeable duty to draw it to the attention of other readers.

NOT BY ANY SINGLE MAN by Brigid Knight. (Ryerson Press).

THIS IS PRIMARILY the love story of Catherine and Roger Gray who have a farm on the Kent coast. But they live in a troubled period of England's history and Roger goes to France in the capacity of an Admiralty spy. He returns when and how he can and it is not until their son William is four year old that they discover the trouble those French visits have built for them, for a small girl is brought to them by an old servant of the Comte and Comtesse de Vitry who have been killed in the French revolution. The servant tells them that the child, although supposedly the daughter of the de Vitry's, is actually the child of the countess' beautiful sister and Roger. Roger has to admit the possibility and this with great bitterness Catherine takes the little girl Madeleine into her home and brings her up.

As they grow up William and Madeleine fall in love, and Catherine is forced to tell Madeleine of her suspected relationship. Bravely Madeleine seeks out the now almost senile servant and learns an entirely different story. The difficulty of deciding which story to believe and how Catherine tries to build a safe and happy future for her own and Roger's child makes the theme of the book. the parts of the Kentish coast of which the author writes are very familiar to me and are almost photographically clear on the pages of Not by Any Single Man. The whole novel is both dramatic and absorbing, beginning in the years of the French Revolution and ending after Nelson's victory at Trafalgar.

GRIT AND POLISH by Oliver Anderson (McClelland & Stewart).

FUNNY NOVELS—that is to say, novels which are written to amuse the reader with every trick of plot and verbal juggling and which never deviate for an instant into seriousness—are uncommon nowadays. P. G. Wodehouse, for many decades the acknowledged master of this genre, has brought nothing new to it of recent years, and his successor is not in sight. But the writer of this book, Oliver Anderson, appears to be trying on the Wodehouse crown, and some English critics have decided that he is fit to wear it.

He will not wear it as Wodehouse did, for Wodehouse's books are entirely free from any sexual incident or implication which could offend the most squeamish taste. Mr. Anderson agrees with whoever it was that said that sex was the best joke in the world; it cannot be said that it is always the best joke in the world as he handles it. This novel is about an English aristocrat who puts promising young Englishmen through a severe course of training in order that they may be sold, for very large sums, to wealthy American women who want husbands. To amuse, such a theme needs the elegance of a Congreve; Mr. Anderson's elegance sometimes rises to the level of Noel Langley. This author has also been likened to Evelyn Waugh, though it is impossible to say why; Waugh's novels are satirical, deeply rooted in a strong morality, whereas this work has no such [illegible]hing root. To be really funny, a man [illegible] Mr. Anderson is himself into Russian-held territory to make some of his inquiries; he also talked to people who had been 'bought' out in a similar manner to his hero. What he heard and saw went on the pages red-hot and leave the reader with the sick feeling that the Communists, after all, are just Nazis with a little more finesse.

TRIAL BY TERROR by Paul Gallico (McClelland & Stewart).

I THINK THERE CAN be little doubt that this American born, English resident author, Paul Gallico, wrote "Trial by Terror" in the white heat of disgust. Not that it lacks any of his usual eloquence or shows signs of haste in writing—merely that a fine fury seems to encompass each page making a story, with which we are becoming more familiar each day, seem both commanding and uncomfortably close.

Trial by Terror is, ostensibly, the case history of an American reporter Jimmy Race, who slips behind the Iron Curtain to enquire into the fate of another reporter. Needless to say he is captured and imprisoned and gradually, with the aid of drugs, degradation and torture of a highly specialized variety, the Communists succeed in making an abject lunatic from a perfectly normal human being, and Jimmy Race confesses to the charges of espionage, naming his best friend and the woman he loves as his accomplices, since their names were uppermost in his mind while he still had a mind. Eventually his friends manage to reach one of the many under-cover men (who obviously must flourish just as successfully in the Communist-held territory as they did in Nazi Germany before the war) and arrange at great cost to have Race rescued and returned to them—but even newspaper people, hardened as they are, were not prepared for what they got.

This is really a wonderful story though the bare facts are both sordid and discouraging. Mr. Gallico went to Vienna and smuggled

Old And Shoddy Story

(HAMILTON SPECTATOR)

THE CASE of Walter Harris—as it will long be remembered in Hamilton—is a shocking one.

Here was an American coloured citizen, who came over the border, got involved in a minor automobile accident, and was charged with drunken driving. For this he was sentenced to 15 days in prison.

Yet for more than two months, due to a snarl of red tape, he was stuck in Barton Street Jail. Meanwhile his wife and eight-month-old son had to move from their home because of the "scandal", and Harris did not know when he was finally freed, whether he could get his old job back in Buffalo. Had it not been for his letter to this newspaper, which made his case public and led to quick action, he might still be behind bars.

Harris, a war veteran with a fine record of fighting in the Pacific theatre, is not vindictive. But most Canadians will feel that if there has been any bungling on this side of the border that there should be redress. It is one of the apparently little things that can be very big in significance.

Explanations of the drawn out process of a "paper war" that is the hallmark of government officialdom, have come from Ottawa. They are not too impressive. They reveal — no matter how well buttered— the familiar indecisiveness and inefficiency of authorities who go only by the book and by endless departmental correspondence. It is one more illustration in an old and shoddy story. Although this is an explosive example in only one man's case, it is remarkable that many people want an over-all direction of our industry, business, and even our lives, by the paralyzing bureaucratic process they call government regulation. They ask this stifling "control" in the name of planning and order!

Attempting to regulate, officialdom only confuses; trying to act it gets bogged down in verbal buck-passing. Walter Harris is a victim of it, and the taste of it is bitter in his mouth. To him a system revealed its ludicrous and dangerous traits. It is to be hoped others sense the lesson.

Hill-Billy Wedding

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

In Toronto last month a clergyman of the United Church performed the ceremony of marriage in Mutual Street Arena "before 2,500 people," to quote the Globe and Mail, "who had paid $1.50 to hear the hill-billy show, and see the wedding as an added attraction." The bride was 28, the bridegroom 46.

The Observer, official organ of the United Church, in its current issue calls this arena marriage "irreverent, tawdry, and out of keeping with the traditions and practices of our faith." Those are sharp words.

For our part, we should acquit the clergyman of the charge of irreverence, because it seems to us there cannot be irreverence in the solemn and respectful performance of a religious ceremony no matter what its setting (although it is true there might be irreverence among spectators assembled for a hill-billy show).

Considering the setting and all the circumstances we should convict on the "tawdry" count. We should be less concerned than the Observer with "traditions and practices."

We should consider the possibility that dignity can be overdone in even religious ceremonial, should remember that the Salvation Army, noted for its good works and its extremely practical approach to the practical problems of the Christian religion, holds open-air meetings with no sacrifice of dignity or decorum and without departing at all from the Army's traditions and practices.

But altogether it appears to us that where the Toronto clergyman was most at fault was in his taste. It was bad taste on his part, and on the part of the people he married, to perform this ceremony as an attraction in a hill-billy program—it would have been equally bad taste had the marriage been performed by a judge or magistrate.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And God spake all these words, saying, I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. Thou shalt have no other gods before me. (Ex. 20:1-3.)

Then Joshua called the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, and said unto them, Ye have kept all that Moses the servant of the Lord commanded you, and have obeyed my voice in all that I commanded you. . . . And now the Lord your God hath given rest unto your brethren, as he promised them. . . . But take diligent heed to do the commandment and the law, which Moses the servant of the Lord charged you, to love the Lord your God, and to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and to cleave unto him, and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul. (Josh. 22:1, 2, 4, 5.)

Man that is born of a woman is of few days, and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut down: he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not. (Job 14:1, 2.)

My days are like a shadow that declineth; and I am withered like grass.

But thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever; and thy remembrance unto all generations. (Ps. 102:11, 12.)

The barber had cut him, nicked him, and gashed him.

Johnson and Parker spent a day at the races. Johnson, although an experienced punter, lost all he possessed, while his friend Parker had backed four winners.

"Tell me," asked Johnson curiously, "how the heck did you pick 'em, Parker?"

"Oh it was quite simple!" replied his friend. "You know that a lot of people pick 'em out with a pin?"

"Yes," answered Johnson, puzzled.

"Well, I have a better method than that. I use a fork."

Peronism Propounded

(Windsor Star)

We are in receipt of a nice little booklet from The Argentine, which we will read with great interest, that is designed to explain Peronism. Its foreword suggests it will be fully understood by the "descamisados (the shirtless) among our people and of all the peoples of the world."

But the next paragraph illustrates what is wrong in The Argentine. The book, it says, "is the simple expression of the thoughts of one man: Peron. Everything in this book is his. The whole book belongs to him. It would be a redundancy to dedicate it to him."

Evidently the "descamisados" are expected to regard Peron, the demagogic dictator, as a demigod.

A-F-I-E-L-D with NICK NICKELS

On Wednesday evening and early Thursday morning I did a 75-mile pickerel survey along the Kawartha lake and river chains as far west as Bobcaygeon. Barring the 15-odd arrests slapped on eager beavers that just HAD to try their luck before Wednesday midnight, it was a mighty clean spectacle. And it was the biggest pickerel-opening session ever.

On the surface, as a spectacle, were the thousands of fishermen, huddled in the wet darkness on dams, banks of streams or in anchored boats. There was the fine camaradie in wayside lunch bars before the zero hour and sportsmanlike civility in crowded fishing places. There was the constant ringing of cash registers as fishermen's dollars were paid over to resort owners, bait sellers, boat renters, guides, roadside eateries. And there was the steady thud of wet pickerel gasping their last on some grassy bank or wet dam top.

Beneath the surface was expending fishing urge of sport-hungry fishermen who had dreamed of this night for many months. The sport of the masses that no other fish but pickerel can satisfy. The safety valve that saves the total disappearance of bass and muskies in the Kawartha. It gives a tremendous insight into the past planning of the Department of Lands and Forests, the men of vision who ten, fifteen years ago said, "Pickerel will stave off future fishing pressure." They were so right.

Fishermen may eulogize about the great fishing of the good old days when comparatively few were fishing and bags were unlimitd. They curse the infiltration of the prolific pickerel and blame their teeming millions for destroying the former populations of bass and muskies. But if it weren't for pickerel to fend off the terrific present-day fishing pressure, there would be nothing left in the Kawarthas but scenery.

Instead, pickerel have built a corner stone of a five-million dollar district business. It satisfies the masses. It keeps our big tourist industry humming. It has saved our bacon.

After doing a little annual snooping through funnyman Ed Zern's well-known book "To Hell With Fishing"—and thereby getting into an amiable frame of mind towards fishermen—I hear a true tale from troutmen Claude Mitchell and Don Finlay that made me feel "to hell with trout fishermen." Some of them, that is.

These two were faithfully whipping the west branch of the Ouse recently with little luck. After many hours they stumbled across four nice keeper trout rotting in the bushes beside the stream and further on, three more. Together with the novices that take the whole family along to picnic and run rampant along popular streams, the above spoiler types should serve jail sentences.

Received a formally-engraved announcement card this week, the first from any resort, from Perry Alexander stating that his Oak Orchard resort opens the 1952 season on Saturday, June 14, for pickerel fishing and for bass and 'lunge on July 1. A fancy gesture in these parts, but nice. Knowing Perry's attitude about fishing dates, if all fishing opened on July 1 he would glady have his announcement take the form of billboard size.

Some people with brand new summer lots on their hands and a head full of dreams about the type of cottage they hope to build would do well to have a look at "Cabin Building", an excellent booklet put out by "Hunting and Fishing in Canada" magazine. About a year ago now I went on a press tour of the new Algonquin Route bus service established by Colonial Coach Lines, the Peterborough-Pembroke hookup. The service has gone over with a bang, so loud, that the company will now start a second daily trip which leaves Toronto about 8 a.m., arriving at Bancroft shortly after lunch and into Pembroke in mid-afternoon.

After completing a private survey this week for fishermen in Toronto who want to leave the city weekends and drop off a bus somewhere along that route, the number of resorts within packing distance is unbelievable. This new service, then, will be a boon to summer weekend trippers as well as the general through-travel public. It starts about the first week in June and newspaper ads will let you know in advance.

Beauties Of Adopted Land Told By Lakefield Promoter In Rare 1894 Pamphlet

Our time as Canadians is so fully occupied with the pressure of prosaic, everyday toil that we have few opportunities to learn how to properly appreciate, by personal study and knowledge, the wonderful beauties of our native or adopted land. And when a competence is secured, and leisure is earned, we rush off to distant lands, instead of studying the wide and rich domain at our very doors. And it is not necessary to go far from the beaten track of commerce to find natural scenery so beautiful as to deserve description by pen and portrayal in picture.

Do not think that you are to consent to a rough and tumble journey through a wilderness. Ours is an Eldorado of nature's wealth much nearer home. In fact we will not go beyond the comforts of good hotels, the sound of church bells, the brilliancy of electric light, the telegraph wire or the "hello" of the telephone in our search of an eligible site for a factory, and inexhaustible supply of choicest woods for material, or, if on pleasure bent, the most inviting spot in Canada.

We will suppose ours is a party of Torontonians. Our route lies by Grand Trunk or Canadian Pacific Railway to Peterborough. There our choice is confined to the Lakefield branch of the Grand Trunk. Boarding the train there a start is made up the Otonabee River. The railway track follows the vagaries of the winding river and narrow valley.

The imaginative traveller can easily imagine that the rushing stress is claiming the right to dictate the course to be pursued and hear it taunt the railway with being a new comer and a modern innovation. Up, up, up we go, for it is necessary to make an ascent of between 160 and 200 feet in our brief journey. At every curve of the river there is a picture of sparkling water, sombre woods, green fields, blooming orchards, and cosy farm houses that are a constant delight.

Substantial Residences

"Lakefield", and we find ourselves at our destination, and at the terminus of the railway. From the station one sees a thriving village, made up of substantial residences, school houses, churches and stores, and a closer inspection and a few days sojourn more than confirms the first favourable impression.

Now let us locate Lakefield. It is an incorporated village at the head waters of the Otonabee River, for here the stream widens so as to be dignified by being called a lake. There is, in fact, a series of lakes, but as one is called by the tongue-twisting name of "Katchewanooka" (lake of many rapids) no effort will be made to pursue the inquiry further as to nomenclature.

It is in Peterborough County, and its territory is taken from the Townships of Douro and Smith. Its area comprises 500 acres; has a population of 1,300 and an assessed value of $300,000. The rate of taxation is only thirteen mills on the dollar. This includes schools, street watering, electric light, debenture interest and sinking fund—in fact everything requisite to run municipal matters.

Brass Band

The churches are five in number, viz, Presbyterian, Methodist, Church of England, Baptist and Roman Catholic. The Presbyterian pulpit is occupied by Rev. A. C. Reeves; Rev. Wm. Limbert ministers to the Methodists; Rev. George Warren is rector to the English Church; Rev. Father Kelly supplies the Catholic, and The Rev. A. R. McDonald the Baptist. There are flourishing Masonic, Orange and Sons of England Lodges and a large Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters. A brass band numbering 17 pieces furnishes the citizens with music. Cricket, football and baseball clubs receive the attention of the young men.

The village fathers of Lakefield have taken warning by the fate of towns left unprotected against fire, and a few years ago purchased a Waterous Portable Engine No. 1, two hose reels, hook and ladder truck, 1,000 feet of hose, and three small hand engines.

System of Electricity

The streets, stores, hotels and other places of business are lighted by an excellent system of electricity. There are four street lamps of two thousand candle power each, and the whole service is excellent. The Messrs. Madill Bros. own the plant and this, like all their business matters, is run economically, but so as to give satisfaction to all concerned.

The Dominion Government, about seven years ago, erected a most substantial dam on the river and have maintained it since. No figures are at hand to an exact estimate of the available power going to waste, but it is simply enormous. Even now two flour mills, one woollen mill, two planing mills, a saw mill with a capacity of eleven millions of feet a year, and the electric light plant are operated by it, and yet there is room for more.

And here is a good place to say that the townships to the northward have millions of feet of the choicest hardwood timber, and therefore no better location can be found in Canada for a furniture factory or wooden ware industry of any character than in Lakefield.

Stretch of Water

And now for a word or two in reference to the great stretch of water-way to the north of Lakefield for fishing and camping parties; or those seeking a summer residence with an unlimited supply of pure air and water. As already intimated the system of lakes begins at Lakefield and extends north to Young's point, where there is a fall of six feet and a lock constructed and owned by the Ontario Government; thence into "Clear Lake", a beautiful sheet of water, some five miles long by about two wide, unbroken by a single island; next, passing through "Stoney Lake" twelve miles in length, we arrive at Burleigh Falls (where there is a lift of 37 feet by lock), Lovesick Lake, (locks again), Buckhorn, Bobcaygeon, Coboconk, Fenelon Falls, etc., and there is a panorama of beauty the whole way, fully equal to that of the Thousand Islands.

Already there are between one and two hundred cottages at Stony Lake, where there are, by actual count, over 890 islands. And then the fishing! Beginning at Lakefield and continuing for 30 or more miles, the fisherman is rewarded with lunge, trout, white-fish and bass, so big and delicious as to make one's nrves tingle and mouth water in anticipation of the the sport and feast.

Health and Pleasure Seekers

Within the last year or two this fisherman's paradise has begun to attract the attention that its advantages deserve; even the Americans, who are quick to appreciate a good thing, are invading the land and water, and it will be a surprise to the writer if the next few years does not witness the coming of thousands of health and pleasure seekers.

But a return must be made, if only briefly, to the village from whence the water journey begins. Three well equipped speedy and comfortable steamers provide means of transportation, and the landing place at Lakefield, during the summer season presents a busy scene. The places of business in Lakefield make special provision to supply tourists with every comfort and even luxuries. In planning this summer's holidays be sure and include the lovely lakes among the old Laurentian hills of Central Ontario."

In addition to the above it may be mentioned that Lakefield has the following places of business: Five dry goods and grocery stores, two flour mills (roller processes) with a capacity of 200 barrels in twenty four hours, two planing mills, one woollen mill, one saw mill, three blacksmith shops, two carriage factories, two hardware merchants, three harness shops, one printing office, and bakers,butchers, druggists, etc.

Merchants

Among the merchants the names of the following may be more especially mentioned: W. H. Casement, reeve and postmaster, hardware; R. Graham and Son, dry goods and groceries; E. A. Tanner, (Manager Telephone Exchange), druggist; Madill Bros., (Electric Light Co.,) dry goods and groceries; W. F. Trude, butcher, J. F. Lillicrap and Co., planing mill and furniture factory, Jas. Linton and Co., private bankers. The Grove, Lakefield is a preparatory school for boys, conducted by Mr. Sparham Sheldrake, a graduate from Cambridge, England. Here small boys are received, boarded and prepared for any of the larger public schools in Canada.

As regards places of residence for those wishing to settle in Lakefield or its vicinity, particulars of different properties that can be bought, from a 250 acre farm to a bijou residence with small garden and tennis lawn, can be obtained from the undersigned who will be glad to answer all questions regarding Ontario, Canada.

An Old Garden Favorite

By HENRY PREE

Painted daisies, long-time spring gardening favorites, should be planted a foot or more apart as indicated in this illustration.

For more years than the Old Gardener cares to admit, he has been most partial to the Painted Daisies.

This affection is due in part to their association with his mother's garden and also because Painted Daisies are extremely worthwhile. Their culture is simple and all they ask is full sun and a fairly deep, light, moist soil.

Most nurserymen list the Painted Daisy botanically as, pyrethrum. This is incorrect since they are in the chrysanthemum family, and botanists list it as chysanthemum coccineum.

Listing them pyrethrum or chrysanthemum matters little. They are excellent perennials for beds or borders, blooming from late spring to mid-summer, and, if regularly cut, even until autumn.

Perhaps your mother called them Marguerites or Paris Daisies. Again, setting us straight, botanically speaking, chrysanthemum frutescens is the correct name for the Marguerites. Incidentally, the insecticide called pyrethrum is made from the dried flowers of this plant, as well as from three other species of chrysanthemums.

Painted Daisies come in all colors, except blue and yellow, and produce showy long-stemmed flowers which are of inestjmable value for cutting. They grow in neat, compact tufts, and have elegant finely cut foliage, which adds to the attractiveness of the plant.

The best time to plant is in spring, although early autumn planting is successful if the location is well drained and the plants are mulched with straw, not leaves, for the winter.

Since they resent crowding, grow them in groups of three or five, spaced a foot or more apart. There have been perhaps 700 named horticultural forms — but only a few have reached the home gardener.

Nurseries offer the following named varieties for the gardener who appreciates the best:

HELEN—Evenly doubled soft rose flowers of perfect form. A profuse bloomer that flowers again if cut back.

HENRIETTA—Very light pink with a profusely branching habit. Slightly doubled flowers that make a fine display.

HUNTINGTON'S SCARLET — The best single, deep scarlet.

MRS. C. E. BECKWITH—The best double white form. The perfectly doubled flowers.

MRS. D. C. BLISS—The most brilliantly colored variety. The petals of the single flowers are a bright orange.

RED PYGMY — Good foliage and flowers. Small, single, dark red blooms about foot-high plants. A good edging kind.

ROSARY—A sturdy, prolific and easily grown double flowering variety. A brilliant deep rose pink, with lighter shadings.

ROSE GLORY — Deep rose, much like Rose Mist. Color and form are excellent, and culture easy. Fine for cutting.

ROSE MIST—The ray petals are deep rose with the centre slightly lighter. Flower is very double.

SILVERTIPS—A very double, deep pink bloom. Each petal twists to show white on the reverse side.

VICTORIA—A fine old English variety, deep rose on the edge of red. It flowers heavily, and is fine for cutting.

Gardening Questions

Q.—Our lawn, in past years, has been infested with colonies of ants. How can I eliminate them? —C.P.

A—The easiest and simplest means is to dust one of the preparations containing Chlordane over the surface of the ant hill or ground they are working. Use either a 5% dust, or spray with one tablespoon 50% wettable chlordane powder to one gallon of water. A gallon of spray is sufficient to cover 50 square feet.

Q — What brings moles to our lawn and how do we get rid of them?

A—Moles are in your lawn because they are in search of food, which consists of grubs, worms and other soil insects. Get rid of these and you force the moles elsewhere in search of food. So—treat your entire lawn with chlordone, use one pound to a thousand square feet. Mix at the rate of one tablespoon to a gallon of water. A gallon covers about 75 square feet.

Smike

On a fine mild autumn day, when all was tranquil and at peace—when the soft, sweet air crept in at the open window of the quiet room, and not a sound was heard but the gentle rustling of the leaves—Nicholas sat in his old place by the bedside, and knew that the time was nearly come. So very still it was, that every now and then he bent down his ear to listen for the breathing of him who lay asleep, as if to assure himself that life was still there, and that he had not fallen into that deep slumber from which on earth there is no waking . . .

He had procured a lock of her hair, which hung at his breast, folded in one or two slight ribbons she had worn. He prayed that when he was dead Nicholas would take it off, so that no eyes but his might see it, and that when he was laid in his coffin, and about to be placed in the earth, he would hang it round his neck again, that it might rest with him in the grave.*

*Smike —Nicholas' sister Kate

Upon his knees Nicholas gave him this pledge, and promised again that he should rest in the spot he had pointed out. They embraced, and kissed each other on the cheek.

"Now," he murmured, "I am happy."

He fell into a light slumber, and waking, smiled as before; then spoke of beautiful gardens, which he said stretched out before him, and were filled with figures of men, women and many children, all with light upon their faces; then whispered that it was Eden—and so died.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

There'll be seven clubs in the National Hockey League next winter, provided Cleveland Barons can guarantee enough money to ensure carrying on. That's the N.H.L. verdict and Jim Hendy of the Barons says they'll raise the required coin. He says Cleveland fans want no minor pro sports, they figure they're big league in baseball and football, so why not hockey? Henry claims he can sell out their 9,676 regular seats for the season and 1,500 standing room for all home games. If so, that's better than several of the oldtime N.H.L. arenas are doing now. Chicago, New York and Boston slipped in attendance last winter.

* * * * * *

Cleveland is considered ideally situated geographically and will cut down on travelling expenses for all teams. Admittance of Barons would mean but two more games for each club, 72 instead of 70, and would not lengthen the schedule. The Barons are a top A.H.L. outfit and an independent one with a better farm system than several of the present N.H.L. clubs. Bun Cook is the experienced coach. Main problem, after the money guarantee is raised, will be for Cleveland to ice a contending club, and that's a big problem. Not too many available players of N.H.L. calibre around. Some of the present Barons should make the grade and maybe Ike Hildebrand (of the local O.L.A. team) will be one of 'em.

Juniors In Tough Group

Though he has a husky bunch of good junior lacrossers—including several excellent newcomers—Lou Vitarelli is worried. Figures the competition this season in junior O.L.A. will be really rough. Dundas is an unknown quantity yet, but Toronto Maitlands are building fast, St. Catharines are always tough to take, Brampton looks much stronger and Mimico only happen to be Canadian junior champs of 1951. So, Peterborough will have to come up with a potent pack if the locals hope to trek westward in the autumn after the Minto Cup. They lost four good players from last year's runners-up via the over-age route. Schedule opens here on June 9.

Well, that's one peanut in the bag for the Petes' Timbermen. That 9-6 win is as good as a 21-2 score as far as the standing goes, though it indicates that Owen Sound Crescents might be plenty tough between now and schedule's end. They were minus three regulars and a bit slow starting, but drove hard to outplay the champions in the last half. A thousand or so chilled fans viewed a pretty fair opening tussle, fairly clean—despite a bit of stiff checking in spots—but it ended on a rather sour note as big Don Beatty cut down Harry Wipper at the last gong. Referee Lou Vipond remarked after that it rated a five-minute penalty but the bell had sounded.

Moon Wootton was his usual classy self in the cage, while Dootch Vitarelli, Nit O'Hearn, Curly Mason, Ike Hildebrand, Don Ashbee and Bob Thorpe were all prominent on the attack. Ihde Misses No-Hitter, But Downs Ottawa

By The Associated Press

Add Al Ihde's name to the list of pitchers who have had no-hitters within their grasp only to lose them in the bottom of the final inning.

Ihde, one of Springfield Cubs' top hurlers since 1950, didn't give up a hit until the bottom of the seventh of the seven-inning first game of an International League doubleheader against Ottawa Friday night.

But Lou Limmer singled in that stanza to ruin Ihde's bid, although the Cubs won the game 3-0.

In the nightcap, Tom Kirk singled in the ninth to send home John Metkovich with the winning run in a 3-2 Ottawa triumph. Vince Gohl went the distance for the winners, while Bill Padget took the loss.

Toronto Maple Leafs took a doubleheader from the league-leading Montreal Royals, 6-5 and 7-0. But the Royals lost only half a game to the second-place Buffalo Bisons, who were whipped by the last-place Baltimore Orioles, 6-2.

Came From Behind

The Leafs had to come from behind to win the opener. They scored twice in the last inning with Andy Anderson driving in the winning marker. Duke Markell, second of three pitchers, got the win, while Gil Mills was charged with the defeat.

In the nightcap, Erv Medlinger had the Royals eating out of his hand and when the final returns were in, they had collected just two hits off his offerings. The Leafs whacked three Montreal pitchers for 13 hits. Starter Bobo Alexander lasted only three innings and was charged with the loss.

Baltimore's Paul Stuffel looked like he was going to be taken over the hurdles by the Bisons, but he was rescued in the third innning by Jim Barnhardt, who got the victory.

In the other game, Rochester Red Wings mauled Syracuse Chiefs, 11-3, Freddie Martin coasted to his fourth victory.

Canadian Fliers Teach Baseball

NORTH LUFFENHAM, Rutland, England (CP)—Canadian airmen stationed at this new R.C.A.F. base are teaching Britons about baseball in their off-duty hours.

A team from the R.C.A.F. fighter wing has entered the six-club Nottingham District League, and in their first game of the season the Canadians walloped Nottingham Senators 19-2.

Cpl. Lionel Pearson of Ottawa went the nine-inning route for North Luffenham, striking out five and allowing only three hits. Two features of the contest were a home run by Cpl. Al Knapik of Winnipeg and a triple play by the winners, starting with a force at third base.

The North Luffenham manager is Flt. Sgt. George McFaul of Ottawa and the playing coach Flt. Sgt. Ray Grandy of Sydney Mines, N. S.

Winner of the Nottingham League will advance into playoffs against successful teams in other Midlands leagues.

GLOUCESTER, England—(CP)—Queen Elizabeth recently saw the five trumpeter swans presented to her during the Royal Tour of Canada last year, when she was accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh on a visit to the Severn Wild Fowl sanctuary at Slimbridge near here.

LACROSSE SEASON OPENS — Mayor Hugh Waddell is shown making the official ceremonial face-off for centres Curly Mason of the Petes and Norm Shortridge (at right) of Owen Sound here last night. After the brief but time-h nored ceremony to start the lacrosse season, the Petes (Mann Cup champions from last year) went on to capture a 9-6 verdict over the visitors, who held the Canadian senior trophy the previous year.—(Roy Photo photo)

Owen Sound Beaten, 9-6 By The Timbermen To Open O.L.A. Schedule

Taking up where they left off last fall when they won the Mann Cup, the Petes' Timbermen racked up a 9-6 O.L.A. senior win over Owen Sound Crescents before more than a thousand fans in Miller Bowl last night to start off the lacrosse season. Owen Sound, Mann Cup winners in 1950, returned to the fold after sitting it out a year, and—minus Grant Gillespie, Bill Allum and Harry Kazarian—gave the champs a stif fight of it. It nearly wound up in a scrap when big Harry Beatty cut down Harry Wipper just as the last bell sounded, though otherwise the game was pretty clean.

Mayor Opens It

Prior to the contest, Mayor Hugh Waddell — who officially opened the season by facing off—presented Ross Powless of the Petes with the Tom Longboat bronze medal. This was for the local player being judged the best Indian athlete in Southern Ontario last fall when a member of the Mann Cup victors. Al Adams, superintendent of Indians in this area, arranged the presentation. Nit O'Hearn, as a recent father of twins, received a pair of blankets from Mrs. J. Post. Pre-game music was supplied by the 50th H.A.A. band.

The game itself was a good show for an early-season number. It was slow in spots with the Crescents holding down the pace in their usual cautious manner. A lot of passes and shots were off, but some smart lacrosse was shown at times, also. While the checking was a bit rugged, and several roughing penalties were handed out, it was a fairly clean tilt.

Close Toward End

The Petes had all the best of it the first half but had to fight hard the last two quarters as Crescents drove. It was 3-0 in the first inning for Bob Thorpe's crew and they made it 7-1 at the half. Each side scored one goal in the third and Owen Sound had a 4-1 tallying edge in the final frame. But for some swell work in goal by Moon Wootton, the count would have been closer. Piett also was tough to beat in the opposing net.

Dootch Vitarelli led the winners with three markers, two each going to Curly Mason and Nit O'Hearn, as Jerry Fitzgerald and Harry Wipper hit the mark once apiece. Ike Hildebrand and Don Ashbee were also quite effective to aid on three each, Bob Thorpe helping on a pair, and Ross Powless on one. Lou Nickle made his senior debut and received a cut on the face. Tony Capula tallied twice for Crescents, singles going to Johnny Lumley, Norm Shortridge, Jack Hillier and Orv Davis. Doug Gillespie aided on two, single assists going to Smith, Beatty, Piett, Campbell and Jack [illegible] per, Thorpe, Dugan, [illegible] and Killingbeck.

Referees—P. Bain and L. Vipond.

Players Trade Big Help Washington Trips Indians

By RALPH RODEN, Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Yankees seldom make a poor trade but at the moment it appears they pulled a whopper in dispatching Frank Shea, Jackie Jensen and Archie Wilson to Washington for Irv Noren. Yank manager Casey Stengel was reluctant to part with the trio but claimed he was forced to gamble. Stengel's fears have been realized. Shea, Jensen and Wilson have given the Senators a brighter outlook on life while Noren has yet to catch [illegible] Johnny Hopp.

Allie Reynolds permitted the Tigers seven hits as he pitched his sixth complete game and third victory.

Browns Get Victory

Earl Harrist and Satchel [illegible] combined to pitch [illegible] hits off Mickey [illegible] Senators have won nine games and lost three to rise from the second division to second place while the Yanks have won seven and dropped four.

Doing Nicely

Shea, who didn't appear in a single game for the Yanks, has on three straight starts during which he has allowed only two runs. Jensen, who collected only two hits in 19 trips for New York, has banged out 17 hits in 51 times at bat for Washington, a .333 gait. Wilson, who got one hit in two tries for the Yanks, has smashed out 12 hits in 38 chances for a .316 mark and drive in nine runs. Noren has collected only 12 hits in 38 attempts for the Yanks, a .250 average.

Shea blew down the Indians on two hits and fanned nine in outpitching Early Wynn. Jensen drove in both runs with a sixth-inning single.

Noren played his best game since joining the Yankees, driving in two runs as the Bombers edged the Tigers 3-2, in Detroit. He socked his first homer in the seventh and singled home the winning run with one out in the ninth. Noren, obtained for the expressed purpose of playing centre field, was employed at first due to injuries to firstbasemen Johnny Mize, Joe Collins and [illegible] Noman homered in the eighth and doubled with two on in the tenth to win the game. Paige walked two and fanned four in three hitless rounds to pick up his second victory.

Brooklyn Dodgers tied New York Giants for first place in the National League, beating Pittsburgh, 6-4, while the Giants dropped a doubleheader to the upstart Chicago Cubs, 3-2 and 6-4.

Clem Labine pitched seven innings of scoreless relief ball to pick up his first victory for Brooklyn. Duke Snider homered off Forrest Main in the fifth to break a 4-4 tie.

Bob Rush brushed the Giants back with five hits in the opener to end a five-game New York winning streak. Bruce Edwards drove home the winning run with a fly ball in the fifth.

Johnny Klippstein, who hurled only one complete game last year, yielded six hits, including homers by Hank Thompson and Bobby Thomson, in going the distance for the third time in the night-cap. Hank Sauer clouted a two-run homer and Frank Baumholtz a three-run homer to share batting honors for Chicago.

In night games, the Boston Braves trampled the St. Louis Cardinals 8-3, and the Philadelphia Phils edged the Cincinnati Reds 3-2, in ten innings.

Prices Drift Downward, Trading Slow

By DICK BAIDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Toronto Stock Market traders lingered on the sidelines this week and watched prices drift downward in the slowest trading in more than three months.

Selling pressure, when it did exist, was light. Prices declined irregularly more from lack of desire to buy than desire to sell.

Toronto industrials followed the New York market closely as Canadian investors waited for United States dealers to set the pace.

Most U.S. professionals, however, forecast quiet trading with few developments until after the November Presidential election. With such election programs as reduced corporation and personal income taxes and easing of Federal controls, few investors, they say, will want to change their portfolios.

Paper issues in Toronto and Montreal provided about the only bright spot. Announcement Friday by the Federal government that it would permit a $10-a-ton increase in the price of newsprint for export sparked gains in individual issues ranging to about $1.

Ragged Advance

Toronto opened the week Monday with a ragged advance. By noon, however, buyers switched to golds and the section bucked a generally declining market. Papers and industrials slipped in Montreal.

Toronto and Montreal prices declined steadily Tuesday but drew moderate support Wednesday. Western oils led an irregular decline in Toronto Thursday. Montreal papers and industrials eased.

Toronto industrials strengthened Friday, but other sections made little headway. Papers jumped strongly in Montreal while industrials edged upward.

New York prices made little headway Monday in quiet trading. Rails and chemicals led an advance Tuesday, but prices turned mixed Wednesday. Light selling skimmed prices Thursday, but firm support buoyed prices yesterday.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials down 2.20 at 315.47, golds down .19 at 88.69, base metals down 3.27 at 181.79, and western oils down 3.47 at 144.97.

In the Montreal averages, banks were up .29 at 29.31, utilities down 14 at 84.0, industrials down 3.3 at 194.8, combined down 2.4 at 157.8, papers down 2.93 at 695.21, and golds down .44 at 66.41.

In New York, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 90 cents to $101.60.

Major Irrigation Projects Bring In New Farm Empire

MOSES LAKE, Wash.—(NEA)—A new economic empire within the state of Washington is coming into being on May 22.

On that date, life-giving water from the Columbia River will flow to irrigate about half of the 920 farms sprawling over 66,000 acres of the Columbia Basin irrigation project. It's a start that is bringing life-long dreams to many dry-dirt farmers of the area.

Under construction for seven years, and now only 64 per cent completed, this project eventually will encompass 1,029,000 acres—an area larger than the state of Rhode Island. For the next seven years, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation expects to bring water to about 1,000 acres yearly.

To celebrate the happy event, starting May 22 and for 11 days, every town in this part of the state will take part in what is called the Columbia Basin Water Festival. At Ephrata, it will be a fair; Pasco will have a water parade of floats; Quincy will have an old-fashioned horse-drawn plowing contest. But it'll be judged from a modern helicopter.

Some of these more than 1,000,000 acres got water in 1943 near Pasco. Then 5,500 acres came into production by water pumped from the Columbia River. The acreage now will get water through the 300 miles of canals, th 4,500 miles of laterals and the hundreds of miles of tunnels and siphons. The laterals alone, if stretched on end to end, would extend to New York and nearly back to Chicago.

Gigantic Project

Everything on this project is gigantic. And it's only right that some of the celebration is, too. The biggest event takes place May 29, three miles north of Moses Lake.

In a 24-hour period, a now barren 80-acre tract will be transformed into a $50,000 irrigated, plowed, planted, stocked and equipped farm, with a $13,000 house. Everything, from labor, land, materials and tractor, right down to the kitchen gadgets and fodder in the barn, as well as a cat and dog, will be donated.

It will go free to Donald D. Dunn, 30-year-old war veteran and farmer at Marion, Kans., until wiped out by the 1951 flood. Dunn, his wife and two daughters will move in because the ex-soldier was winner of the Veterans of Foreign Wars farm-in-a-day contest.

About 20 per cent of the project is government-owned; the rest belongs to private capital. They get the preference but they must have two years farming experience and $4,500 in credit. Purchasers are drawn by lot. More than 10,000 have applied for farms.

The total project, when completed some years hence, will cost at least $702,500,000. To date, about $450,000,000 have been spent, with much of that on Grand Coulee Dam, the world's largest concrete structure about 50 miles away. Of the total cost, the irrigation part of the project will total $483,000,000.

Uncle Sam will get his money back two ways. Coulee dam's 1,974,000 kilowatts are paying back some of the cost now. Irrigation project water users will pay about $85 per acre, plus interest, over a 40-year period.

Ladies' Guild Plans Garden Party

BETHANY, May 17 (ENS)—St. Paul's Ladies' Guild met at the home of Mrs. Charles Smith, with 14 members attending and Mrs. Charles Reynolds presiding.

The Rev. T. S. Gault conducted the opening exercises. Mrs. Smith read the minutes of the previous meeting and the correspondence which included letters of thanks from shut-in members who had been sent boxes of fruit.

The president reported the sale of greeting cards in the amount of $15. Plans were made for the annual garden party to be held on June 6 and the program will feature the Rigby Players from Port Hope in "Jane Steps Out".

Mrs. Mervin Smith invited the members to her home for the June meeting. Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. M. Bigelow, Mrs. C. Reynolds and Mrs. J. Stoper.

Big Ore Trade

STOCKHOLM — (CP)—Current reports show about 20 per cent of Sweden's iron ore exports now is going to the United States. The United States took 2,600,000 tons last year. About 29 per cent went to western Germany; 25 per cent to Britain and 14 per cent to Belgium and Luxembourg, with smaller amounts to other countries.

Merchants Deny Profits High

TORONTO, May 17 (CP)—The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada Friday challenged a statement by W. R. Aylesworth (P.C.-Frontenac-Addington) that the retail trade is "not being fair to the producers or consumers in Canada."

Mr. Aylesworth told the Commons Thursday night that retail meat prices are too high in relation to what merchants pay for their meat. A livestock grower himself, he said consumers are not getting the benefit of a price reduction in live cattle corresponding to about 20 cents a pound for beef.

The R.M.A.C. foods division said the net return to the average retail meat dealer has seldom been as low, and suggested that Mr. Aylesworth is confusing markup with profit.

The association pointed out that retail markup—the difference between the cost of merchandise and its retail selling price—must cover all a store's operating expenses.

"After all these expenses have been paid, the small remainder—and at times there is none—is profit."

OSLO—(CP)—The former Nazi troop and prisoner transport vessel Donau was raised from the bottom of Oslo Fjord and will be renamed Bergensiana after extensive alterations. The 12,300 ton vessel was sunk at its dock in January, 1945, by Norwegian saboteurs after they learned it was to carry reinforcements for the Germans' last stand in western Europe.

Simple Design Will Give Enduring Beauty

When you decide to build, choose the style of house you want. Avoid a design which combines several diff[illegible] styles. Simple lines and [illegible]ce usually produce a good design. There should not be too many distracting features.

The style of the exterior may be influenced by the floor plan. Conversely, the floor plan can influence the exterior appearance. It is advisable to consider whether the style of architecture selected suits your desired room arrangement. Simple plans allow the most freedom in interior design.

The proportions between the width, length and height of the exterior walls should be well balanced. The size and placing of doors and windows should be studied in relation to the size and proportion of the house. Care must be taken that the different parts of the design harmonize.

If the house is set low on the ground, it is likely to be attractive. By fitting it to the natural topography of the ground, the best appearance is achieved. Concentrate on simplicity using only one or two materials for the exterior finish. Too many different materials often distract the eye. However, combinations are sometimes usefully employed to reduce height or to attain an effect of solidity. Planning, which permits the use of stock sizes of materials, eliminates needless expense.

The house should be suited to your way of living. It is also part of the neighborhood. If the structure and color scheme blend with the surrounding houses, the neighborhood value is enhanced.

HOT MUSIC.—Dr. D. H. Follett, of London's Science Museum, really plays "hot" music. The organ-like instrument is a "pyrophone." Notes are produced by gas flames burning in glass tubes of various lengths. The tone of the instrument is said to be "celestially beautiful." It was invented by Frederick Kastner, a physicist, nearly 80 years ago.

Melting Snows Convert Prairie Into Farmland

WITH CANADA'S NATURALISTS

Written For The Canadian Press By PERCY GHENT

Mountain snows have made a wonderland of a 50-mile-long stretch of Alberta prairie lying between the Bow River on the south and the Red River on the north.

Not so many years ago on all that discouraging approach to Calgary, 130 miles to the west, only one tree grew—a cottonwood tree that was both landmark and joke. Here was a problem, not for conservation, for there was nothing to conserve, but a question to be answered: What would nature do with that tract if given a hand?

Brooks, Alta., is the most incredible answer, and for naturalists the town is the centre of a western wonderland.

Water Worked Miracle

Water was the one vital need of the tract and it worked the miracle. The region is now counted among the most productive in all Western Canada. Crops of grain are opulent, trees grow in their thousands, flowers flourish, bird life is abundant and introduced ring-necked pheasants thrive. Wild rice, planted on a series of man-made lakes has attracted flocks of wild ducks.

The miracle-working water came originally from the melting snow and ice of Rocky Mountain slopes and valleys. It is this snow and ice that feeds the Bow River on which the C.P.R. built the great Bassano dam.

Water from the dam irrigates thousands of acres of once-desert land and irrigation is being extended in more area of the tract more than a million acres in extent. Known as the eastern irrigation district the great, constructive project is now owned by prosperous farmers and has pointed the way to prosperity for other prairie regions.

Whistling Swans

The invasion of Ontario by whistling swans this spring was one of the heaviest in years—an estimated 10,000 birds. As usual naturalists gathered at Long Point on Lake Erie, but the number of birds stopping at the point was fewer than in other years, estimates ranging from 500 to 3,000. Lovers of the beautiful wild swans, on the shore to watch their arrival, were almost as numerous as the birds.

Most engaging sight was when in flight after flight, little flocks took to the air mere yards above the watchers' heads. They flew low enough to show their long necks and black bills pointing the way while their whistling wings were clearly heard. Their breeding grounds are on Baffin Island, the Arctic coast and the Northern Islands west of Hudson Bay.

It was a thrilling day for birders. Canvas-back ducks swam with the swans while ashore there were red-winged blackbirds, song sparows, bluebirds and even bald eagles.

Mrs. A. Jamieson, president, opened the meeting with prayer. The treasurer, Mrs. F. Shier, reported $20 received from Easter thankoffering. Missionaries for prayer were chosen for the year, namely, Miss Constance Wagar, and her sister in Trinidad

It was decided to let the W.A. name a flower committee for St. Paul's' United Church.

Mrs. H. McKinley and Mrs. L. McIntosh were named as delegates to attend the sectional meeting at Welcome, June 10.

The W.M.S. made plans to entertain the Mission Band on June 21, at the Sunday school room. Mrs. A. Jamieson thanked Mrs. Buttars for her hospitality

Mrs. J. Ritchie gave a temperance reading, "What Makes a Happy Home." A temperance collection was received.

Mrs. H. McKinley was named as group leader in place of Mrs. J. Noble, who is ill in Civic Hospital, Peterborough.

U.K. Firms Plan Trade Centre In Vancouver

VANCOUVER, May 17 (CP). — British manufacturers plan a trade centre here in an effort to open Canadian markets.

The plan is sponsored by the Canadian Association of British Manufacturers and Agencies.

"Our object is intensive exploitation of the Canadian market for British goods so that the natural trade between the two countries can be restored and expanded," said L. J. B. Forbes, president of the sponsoring organization.

"This is an effort on the part of British traders to understand the needs of the market and fill those needs."

All sections of industry were represented at a conference here this week at which Mr. Forbes and John L. Bonus, general manager of British Manufacturers and Agencies, discussed market possibilities.

"Plans for establishing a centre are going ahead well," Mr. Bonus said. "A committee has been appointed and it will operate out of Vancouver Board of Trade offices for the time being."

Plan Separate Office

Eventually, it is planned to set up a separate office with a large exhibition room for display of British goods. It will be a sort of a British Chamber of Commerce for clearing commercial information and showing United Kingdom goods.

"There was more response to the setting up of a trade centre here than in any other place in Canada," said Mr. Bonus.

His home is in Surrey, England, but he has been directing organizational work in Toronto and Montreal offices.

Vancouver, while not so close to a big market as Montreal, offers an ice-free winter harbor, and top shipping and rail facilities, he said.

"Once goods are put aboard a ship it makes little difference in cost whether the destination is 2,000 miles away or 5,000 miles," Mr. Forbes told conference representatives.

Suggests Making Gas Agreement

OTTAWA, May 17 (CP)—J. W. Murphy (PC — Lambton West) said Friday night Canada should make a reciprocal agreement with the United States to obtain as much U.S. natural gas as she sends to that country.

Mr. Murray spoke against a bill to incorporate the boundary pipeline from Alberta to Winnipeg.

He said the small, 16-inch line would delay supplies of gas in large volume to Ontario and Quebec by pipeline from western Canada or by gas exchange with the United States.

In a speech frequently interrupted by Liberal members, Mr. Murphy also criticized the government majority on the committee which considered the bill. He said questioning had been shut off there and it was time the rights of opposition members were recognized.

John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) said before parliament grants too many pipe-line charters it ought to investigate closely the long-term prospect of the resources and just what lines would be best for the country. Some companies might seek a charter purely for financial gain.

Mr. Blackmore was still speaking at the expiry of the hour given to consideration of private bills and the legislation made no progress.

Millard Intends To Visit Trail Union

PHILADELPHIA, May 17 (AP)—Charles Millard, Canadian director for the United Steelworkers' Union (C.I.O.), said he plans to visit members of the union at Trail, B.C., "sometime in the next two or three weeks" concerning continuing attempts to represent the 4,000 workers of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co.

The C.I.O. for two years has been trying to become the agent for the workers now represented by the independent Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union.

In a recent collective-bargaining election the C.I.O. lost out by about 300 votes.

Collapse Of Britain Imminent–Professor

TORONTO, May 17 — (CP).—Professor Marcus Long of the University of Toronto on Friday night listed the four most prominent factors now affecting international affairs. They are: Fear, hunger, nationalism in the Middle East, and the imminent collapse of Britain.

He told the American College of Surgeons convention that the tragedy of Britain is serious. He urged Canadian members of his audience to put pressure on their members of Parliament to call for a Commonwealth trade conference.

New Newsprint Controversy Looming Over $10 Increase

OTTAWA, May 17—(CP)—A new Canada-United States newsprint controversy appeared in the making today with indications of a strong American protest against a proposed increase of $10 a ton in the price of Canadian newsprint for export.

A Federal spokesman disclosed Friday that Canadian newsprint producers informed the government they intend to make the boost before July 1 next to offset exchange losses. The government decided not to interfere, though it could do so under emergency powers.

The price boost, second in a year, would have no affect on the price of newsprint to Canadian publishers who absorb about six per cent of Canada's production, the highest in the world. The United States takes 89 per cent and other countries about five per cent.

The proposal had sharp reaction in the U.S. in Washington, Ellis Arnall, U.S. price stabilizer, told a press conference Canadian authorities had informed him of the proposal and of their intentions to approve it.

Made Objection

A Washington dispatch quoted him as saying he made an objection to the Canadian government and urged that the requested increase be denied. He said he also promised a number of U.S. publishers to fight the boost, but added: "we have no control over Canadian prices."

Last year when a $10-a-ton boost was announced, Michael V. DiSalle, Mr. Arnall's predecessor, put up an unsuccessful fight against it. The controversy continued for several weeks before it finally subsided.

Since then the exchange position has changed drastically. The Canadian dollar, once at a discount of almost 10 per cent to the U.S. dollar, climbed to almost two per cent above par. Many Canadian exporters, who quoted their products in U.S. funds, found their net returns expressed in Canadian dollars rapidly diminishing.

Freight Cost High

For example, Canadian newsprint in New York was selling for $116 U.S. funds. When the Canadian dollar was at a discount, this netted producers about $123 in Canadian funds. Canadian newsprint to Canadian publishers was selling for roughly $113 a ton. Main reason for the difference in American-Canadian prices is the cost of freight, about $15 a ton from Montreal to New York.

However, with the rise in the Canadian dollar, the selling price in the U.S. slipped to about $113 in Canadian funds. To make up the difference, the producers suggested a boost to $126 in U.S. funds, netting them about $124 in Canadian funds.

They pointed out that even with the boost, the price of Canadian newsprint in the U.S. will be a lot cheaper than that produced by Scandinavian countries. They were selling to the United Kingdom at about $200 a ton or more. The price recently came down to about $150 or $160.

Canada produced about 5,400,000 tons last year. About 5,505,000 tons were exported, 4,775,000 going to the U.S.

Canadian newsprint producers declined to comment immediately on the reports of newsprint boosts.

In Washington, Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem., Colo.) suggested that a study be made to determine whether the U.S. "should retaliate by upping the price of sulphur, which these newsprint producers must get from us. He called the $10 boost unjustified.

"I am afraid that it will move many newspapers from the black into the red," Charles McCahill, president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, said of the prospective increase.

Religion In Home Meant Much To Early Pioneers

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

Frightened by an earthquake, the Philippian jailer described in Acts 16 threw open the prison doors. But not a single prisoner stepped forward to freedom.

Dumbfounded and panic-stricken, the jailer turned to two of the prisoners, Paul and Silas, crying, "What must I do to be saved?" Answered Paul, "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shall be saved, and thy house."

Just what salvation meant to the jailer, troubled about what might befall him in that stern Roman world, is not clear, but in the answer of Paul salvation became something more than safety from the judgment of his superiors.

It was a moral and spiritual awakening and experience, but the interesting thing is that it affected the jailer's family, as well a himself.

Family religion was plainly a common experience of early Christian days. The church itself in some instances was in a house, as in the house of Acquila and Priscilla, in that same city of Philippi.

Conditions somewhat similar to those of early Christian times, as they affected family life and religion, prevailed in many, if not in most, communities until comparatively recent times.

In the early days of the United States and Canada, families were closely knit together. Many attended church as families and often prayed and read the Bible together.

We should not put too high an estimate on "the good old days," however, for all families of the past were by no means religious, and there was much wild life and irreligion in frontier communities that later became very religious and respectable.

My friend, the late William Wye Smith, Congregational minister and Scottish-Canadian poet (he translated the New Testament into Braid Scots and wrote the Scottish part of the original Standard Dictionary), once told me that his frontier family left the American frontier and moved to Ontario, because of the irreligion, Sunday horse racing, etc., where they had first settled.

In contrast, however, one observes the clear and strong influence of the Bible in the frontier home of Abraham Lincoln. It was undoubtedly a great factor in the development of his moral character and ideals, but it was also, apparently, the chief factor in his education.

Its influence is manifest in his inaugural addresses. I read recently that the great President had only six months of formal schooling. The foundation of what he was was in his stepmother's use of the few great stories at her command, and especially in her use of the Bible.

When one considers all that that meant in the life of Lincoln, one can sense the tragedy in the fact that so comparatively few boys and girls are under such influences in the home today.

Even church schools and all the more common religious agencies of today, cannot atone for the lack, and decline of religion in the home.

Writer Claims 600-Yr. Error In Study Of Old Testament

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK—(AP)—A new view of the Old Testament is contained in a new book by Immanuel Velikovsky.

The book, "Ages of Chaos," (Doubleday) is based on the author's claim to discovery of a discrepancy of about 600 years in the timing of Egypt's history beginning with the exodus of the Jews. He finds that famous Egyptian personalities were contemporaries of Solomon and David, instead of living 600 years before them.

The result, he says, is disruption of the histories of Assyria, Babylon and Medea and that the history of the Hittite empire is an invention.

This is the first of two volumes. In the next he promises further untangling of historical and biblical events.

Velikovsky is the author of "Worlds in Collision," the first book in the present series, which raised a scientific furor two years ago. That book claimed the amazing catastrophies which folklore tells in various parts of the world at about the time of the exodus from Egypt were caused by a Comet, which became the planet Venus. This astronomical explanation caused most of the opposition.

"Ages in Chaos" starts with these same upheavals, without mentioning a cause, other than the ancient records that the Christian God, or other gods, were responsible.

Velikovsky parallels the exodus story of the catastrophes, plagues, darkness, smoke, fire and rivers running red, with accounts of the same catastrophes, coming from an independent Egyptian source, the Papyrus of Ipuwer. He says the significance of this Papyrus has not been properly timed before. Exodus has the Egyptian king drowning in the Red Sea. The Papyrus has him drowning in a whirlpool.

Velikovsky says if his reading of records is correct, the Amalekites, whom the Children of Israel met and fought while fleeing from Egypt, are the Hyksos of Egyptian records, who devastated and long dominated the lands of the Nile.

Saul Changed History

He says that Saul, first King of the Israelites, was the conqueror who freed Egypt from the Hyksos hereby changed the course of history.

He differs about the Queen of Sheba, who visited Solomon. She has been regarded as an Ethiopian and there is a tradition that her child and Solomon's headed the royal house of Ethiopia.

Velikovsky says this lady probably was Queen Hatshepsut of Egypt, and he finds no child. Egypt and Solomon's country at that time were allies, a result of Saul's victory.

Hatshepsut's successor, Thutmose III, the author says, pillaged Solomon's temple. This was the Biblical Shishak, King of Egypt, of the scriptural Kings 11:40, says Velikovsky, who adds that the pictures in Egypt of Thutmose III's booty correspond closely in shape and number to the Biblical records of booty taken by a Pharaoh from Solomon's temple.

The Hyksos, or Amalekites, were so hated through the near east that this hatred continued as a byword for centuries after Saul routed them. The beginning of Jew-baiting, Velikovsky says, can be traced to an error of a later historian who confused the Children of Israel with the Hyksos.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

TOURIST TORRENT

City restaurants were jammed with northbound fishermen en route to their favorite pickerel waters this morning. Cars, cars topped with boats and cars dragging boat trailers streamed up Highway 28 all through the night. It is estimated that the Kawarthas attracted a greater number of pickerel fishermen this year than on any previous opening date.

DR. WILLAN IN THE CITY

The noted Canadian composer Dr. Healey Willan was in Peterborough Friday evening and heard the choir of St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, sing three of his compositions at the anniversary services at All Saints' Church Friday night. Today Dr. Willan is being given honored recognition by Queen's University when the degree of Doctor of Laws is conferred on him at the spring convocation.

CHOIR ON WEDNESDAY BROADCAST

The Kingston Cathedral choir under the direction of George N. Maybee is giving a half-hour broadcast on the CBC Wednesday evening program on June 4, in conjunction with William N. McKie, Westminster Abbey organist, who is now touring Canada. A week from Sunday evening the noted Abbey organist is presiding at the console of St. George's Kingston and giving an address on church music in place of the sermon.

MORE INSURANCE

Directors of Peterborough Exhibition increased the insurance on their property at Morrow Park from $64,000 to $100,000 Friday night. That was the recommendation of T. C. Ephgrave, who was engaged to make an appraisal of the buildings in closer approximation to present day values. The Board has received the full amount of their $5,000 insurance on the barn which was destroyed by fire late in April. Plans for a new building have not yet been decided.

ONE T.B. PATIENT

During March and April one active case of pulmonary tuberculosis was diagnosed in Peterborough. The patient is receiving treatment at an institution. X-ray clinics were held once a week during that two-month period and 300 people were examined. During May the department hopes to revert to bi-monthly clinics. They are financed by the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association which has already started arrangements for an X-ray survey in both the city and county during September and November.

SPRING MEANS NEW LIFE and a new field for P.C.V.S.'s young artists. During the past several years the art classes at the Collegiate have flourished as the modern trends make a once dry school subject fresh and interesting. Gwen Blackwell (top left) adds a finishing touch to the life-like oil portrait of former principal, Dr. H. R. H. Kenner. Ron Wilson (lower left) rests against a post on George St. sidewalk while he sketches the main street. The bulk of the year's work is inside where students develop their own ideas: Janet Estlick (top right) paints a modern art creation. Interesting for the boys is a project where modern up-to-date model homes are built. Doug Ham (lower right) admires a home built last year.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Elderly People Hurt In Accidents

Three elderly people, two men and a woman, all over 70 were injured in freak accidents Friday when they stumbled or fell off sidewalk curbs.

On his way to the lacrosse game, Anson Henry, 77, 480 Aylmer St., fell between two parked cars and fractured his right hip as he was starting across Townsend St., just west of Miller Bowl. An operation is being performed on Mr. Henry's hip today and it will be placed in a cast.

Mrs. G. Parker, 73, 602 St. Catherine St., who is said by witnesses to have struck her head on the curb when she tumbled off the sidewalk at the city bus terminal on Simcoe St., is in St. Joseph's hospital recovering from a compound fracture of her right forearm and a cut above her right eye.

She told constable John Conlin who investigated the accident after Mrs. Parker was taken to hospital by taxi, that she was looking for the name on the front of a bus when she fell forward over the curb.

Thursday afternoon, Donald Sutherland, 6 Bruce St., told police he was driving west on Hunter St., and when he was making a left-hand turn to go south on George St., he said a man stepped down from the west curb of George St

William J. Whatman, 70, 47 McDonnel St., was taken to the clinic by Mr. Sutherland where he was treated for a slight abrasion on his right knee and a bruised thumb. Mr. Whatman apparently stumbled when he stepped down from the crub and fell to the pavement.

Student Artists Strike Out On Own With Brush, Fingers

Art Classes at P.C.V.S. just aren't what they used to be. Water colors and crayons were once all that was used to work with. Now the students use buttermilk and chalk or crayon on sandpaper or any one of 11 different mediums. And they are given much more freedom in what they paint and how they paint it. At one time art teachers would place a flower in a vase in front of a class and dare any of the students to deviate in the slightest detail from faithfully reproducing it in water colors.

Now the students develop their own ideas on paper using the various mediums. The subject may be real or a dream of the students.

More medium and more freedom has produced a great change in P.C.V.S. art classes. Not only is the art better, but the art option is drawing more and more students into the classes.

About 10 years ago art was a compulsory subject in Grade 9. But then modern desires forced a change, art classes were permitted in Grade 10, then after several years, art was made a subject providing credits for junior matriculation.

Increases Yearly

Since then the numbers taking art have increased yearly as the course become more interesting

The old vase and flowers routine for painting has changed, only the odd time does it make an appearance.

The students have a wide variety of painting, handcrafts and designing to choose from. The P.C.V.S. art course now includes sculpturing in plaster of paris, clay, soap and wood, block-printing on textiles and paper, silk screen work on textiles, metal work, usually with copper, and leatherwork, making wallets and handbags. There is even a short period spent on making model homes. Yes, they still work with crayon, water and oil colors and charcoal.

Zolton Temesy, one of two art teachers at the Collegiate, said that more freedom is allotted in the classes, the students being al-

G. CAMERON CLARK

Smith Youth Summer Ag. Rep.

The appointment of G. Cameron Clark of Smith township as student assistant agricultural representative in Brant county for the summer months is announced by Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Clark.

Mr. Clark has just completed his third year in animal husbandry at the Ontario Agricultural College. He has been elected president of the Student Council of the College for 1952-53, and is president of the Union Council of O.A.C., O.V.C. and Macdonald Hall.

Freak Accident Spoils Long Safety Record

An accident, just 40 minutes before the Peterborough Works of the C.G.E. would have chalked up its second safety record of a million man-hours without a lost time accident ended the plant's hopes of achieving this major safety record again for the time being.

As Safety Engineer T. A. Lister watched the hours pile up and the minutes ticking by last Thursday, he was beginning to feel optimistic that the safety record would be reached when the score showed 900,000 accident-free man-hours with only 40 minutes to go till the end of the shift.

At 4:20 p.m. it happened. The accident, described by company officials as a freak mishap was not serious. However, it resulted in the victim losing a day or so recuperating and the record was broken at 980,000 hours.

County Roads Appear In Best Shape In Years

This week the roads committee of the county council completed their annual spring checkup on the 133 miles of county roads. "The committee seemed quite satisfied," said County Engineer Jack Kean today. "The roads are the best in the last three years, at least; they are certainly better than last year."

Mild weather, allowing the frost to come out of the ground gradually, and an absence of heavy rain during late March and April, have been two main causes of the roads being in good shape.

Grading and minor patching were sufficint to fix most of the damage in this year's spring breakup.

Some soft spots were reported on the Warsaw Road and other soft spots just south of Warsaw on the Warsaw-Norwood road. Another damaged road that needed some fill was the Sixth Line of Otonabee township, running from Highway 7, at Emery's Service Station, to Keene village.

Pit-run gravel was used to patch up the roads.

Monday, the roads committee meet again with Mr. Kean to decide what their major work on roads and bridges will be this year.

Put Down Dust

Already there has been extensive grading and crews are putting on calcium chloride to keep down the dust. A week or so ago—during the unseasonable warm spell—residents who live in houses closely bordering the River Rd. N., the extension of Sherbrooke St., Wolsley St., and the Buckhorn Rd., kept Mr. Kean's phone dingling as they complained of the clouds of dust raised by motor traffic.

The 12½-mile Buckhorn Road was graded two weeks ago and workmen have just completed putting calcium on it.

The committee must still decide what bridges are to be built or completed on their limited budget.

Northern Bridges

Almost sure to be approved will be the completion of the Paudash bridge in Chandos township, 12 miles northeast of Apsley, on the Clysdale-Coe Hill road. To be of reinforced concrete it will replace the old wooden bridge. Last year county workmen got just as far as expavating for the foundations before they had to give up.

Total cost will probably be about $6,500.

Work will not likely resume until mid-summer when the menace of blackflies and mosquitoes has largely passed. At that time the water level will be lower as well.

Another bridge the county will likely go ahead with is the $5,000 Tully bridge, on the 2nd Line of Smith township, a quarter of a mile west of the Ross L. Dobbin hydro station.

This bridge, also to be of reinforced concrete, will span Jackson's Creek. It will replace a wooden bridge that is now in use.

The Sandy Creek bridge in Harvey township has been replaced by an oval-shaped culvert, 13 feet across and eight feet high, the whole covered with fill. Work on it was completed in April.

No Whales Yet But Fish Aplenty

From the opening of trout fishing — May 1st— until mid-November which winds up the fall hunting season, reporters of The Peterborough Examiner are made outdoor conscious by thousands of city and district sportsmen.

Phone calls about fishing trips and whoppers that got away are routine stuff. It isn't safe to go out for lunch these days now that pickerel fishing has started, you might find on your return a big fish lying on top of your typewriter with hastily scribbled notes describing weights, where caught and the lucky anglers' names.

At various seasons the slimy collection ranges from smelt, through suckers, three species of trout, pickerel, two types of bass and whopping 'lunge. At odd intervals there have been ling, catfish, perch, sunfish, snapping turtles, sturgeon and carp.

Every fisherman is sure his catch is different, that the circumstances of taking it are different and he needs no arm-twisting to pose for the photographer to record his string for posterity.

While most district sports are fanatical about fishing they are not as effervescent as American tourists who think nothing of dragging a dripping 36-pound 'lunge up to the second floor newsroom. It is summer by this time and reporters have long since ceased to "oh" and "ah" and it is beyond the comprehension of visitors why the newsmen are not enthusiastic any longer.

Fishing has been so excellent already this year that reporters are already getting as glassy-eyed as the strings of pickerel that waltz into the newsroom dragging puffing fishermen behind them. It is doubtful whether anything short of a baby whale mounted on a truck trailer would startle them.

2 Young People Injured As Motorcycle Crashes Into Ditch, Hit Parked Car

Two Others On Second Motorcycle Only Shaken Up
Swing Off Highway To Avoid Car

A Peterborough couple are lying seriously injured in Civic Hospital after being thrown from a motorcycle shortly before midnight Friday. The accident occurred in the driveway of the Hitching Post restaurant, two miles southwest of Peterborough on Highway 28. They are William Foster, 18 of 368 Water St., and Nancy Parnell, 17, of 318 Euclid Ave. Another couple—Terry Heard, 17, of 39 Stewart Place, and Arlene Crowe, 17, of Lakefield—escaped with only little more than a shaking up when their motorcycle ran into a nearby ditch.

The accident occurred about 11:30 p.m. as a southbound car started to swing across the road to enter the Hitching Post driveway. Donald D. Sproule of 1308 Monaghan Rd., driver of the car, didn't see the two northbound motorcycles before he began to make his turn.

Hit Parked Car

Rather than risk a headon collision, Heard and Foster turned onto the right shoulder of the road and plowed into the ditch. Heard and his companion, Miss Crowe, were thrown onto the grassy bank when their motorcycle struck a large stone, but Foster and Miss Parnell went through the ditch and up onto the driveway where their motorcycle struck a parked car.

They were thrown onto the gravel and were knocked unconscious by the impact.

After being in a coma for several hours, 18-year-old William Foster, 368 Water St., regained consciousness about 10 a.m. Civic Hospital authorities said today. He is being X-rayed later today to determine the extent of his injuries. His condition is serious and it is believed he is suffering from concussion.

His companion, Nancy Parnell, 17, 318 Euclid Ave., who was riding on the rear seat of the motorcycle, is still unconscious. She suffered lacerations over her right eye, and small cuts and brush burns on her right leg and ankle.

Heard was shaken up and bruised and today he complained of a pain in the stomach. He is getting medical treatment. Miss Crowe has a sprained left wrist and some body bruises.

Later Heard, while being taken home in his father's motorcycle, witnessed an accident on George St. His party chased after the motorist who is charged with leaving the scene of an accident and careless driving.

The parked car that was struck in the driveway received $75 damage. The impact dented the right side of the vehicle and knocked off the right rear handle. It is owned by John E. Miller of R.R. 1 Renfrew.

Both motorcycles are badly damaged.

Provincial Constables Russell Pollard and George Louth investigated.

Two Men Admit Beating Robbing Man 76

COBOURG, May 17 (ENS)—Robert Mc Farland, 32, of Frankford, and Evans Jones, 29, of Orland, pleaded guilty in Cobourg police court Friday to charges of beating William Ross, 76-year-old Murray township pensioner, and robbing him of $200. They were remanded for a week pending receipt of their criminal records.

Ross was a veteran of the Boer War and a long-time resident on the third concession of Murray township. He was treated in hospital after the two men entered his home about 5 p.m. May 8, beat him up and robbed him of $200 in pension money.

They left him tied up with a potato bag over his head and his big toes bound together with heavy fence wire. To further hinder him going for help they took away his trousers.

Severely Beaten

Provincial Constable L. Stinson of Brighton said he received a complaint on May 8 and went to Ross' shack where the elderly pensioner lives by himself. Constable Stinson said Ross had been severely beaten up. His face was bruised, his jaw was swollen and one eye was blackened; he was suffering from shock and his face was bleeding.

A piece of wire that had been looped around the large toe of each foot had hampered circulation. And a piece of shoelace, used to tie the potato bag over Ross's head, was still draped around his neck.

Two hundred dollars was missing.

O.P.P. Corporal L. G. Lyle of Brighton arrested Jones and McFarland last week. Jones admitted to the magistrate that he had a record of car theft and robbery with violence in which he slugged a taxi driver. McFarland had a conviction for chicken theft.

They will be sentenced next week.

Smaller Twin City Blames Stubborn Farmer For Size

Written for The Canadian Press By EDWARD J. HAYES

WATERLOO, Ont., May 17 — (CP)—Residents of this city, Ontario's smallest, still blame a stubborn Mennonite farmer for the fact that it didn't grow as fast as its twin.

It was back in the mid-1800s that the farmer refused to sell a piece of land to the Grand Trunk Railway which was building the Sarnia-Toronto line. The line was diverted to pass through neighboring Kitchener, then known as Berlin.

Even today there is no railway passenger depot here. The closest one is at Kitchener.

Known as the twin cities, Kitchener now has a population of 49,000 while Waterloo has 12,000.

Location A Factor

Many residents believe Waterloo would be better off if it were 10 miles from Kitchener. However, because of its close co-operation with its twin it enjoys many "big city" advantages.

Waterloo people are part owners of the Kitchener-Waterloo hospital, a $3,500,000 building which it could not have built on its own.

The hospital, like Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate to which residents here contribute a proportionate share of costs, is located in Kitchener.

The twin-city Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. are in Kitchener. Rotary, Kiwanis, Kinsmen, Gyro, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Sales and Advertising and business and professional women's clubs are among the groups prefixed by "K-W" but most of them have never been known to meet in Waterloo.

One joint institution, the orphanage, was moved to Waterloo from Kitchener about 10 years ago.

Chief Complaints

Newspaper stories about this city printed under a Kitchener dateline which refer to Waterloo as being "nearby" bring many complaints from the local Chamber of Commerce.

Probably the most exasperating situation is the fact that Waterloo has all but lost its identity from the standpoint of telephone services. If you place a long-distance call from here the operator will tell the other party that "Kitchener is calling." Waterloo lost its own exchange many years ago and has since been hooked up with Kitchener.

You can't buy a railway or bus ticket here if you want to get out of the city, but on the other hand, you can't stay here for ever. Nearest cemetery is in Kitchener.

In spite of these impediments the city has much to make Kitchener envious.

The area was settled by Mennonite farmers in 1806. Fifty-two years later it was incorporated as a village and in 1876 it became a town. It was incorporated four years ago as a city to avoid paying what council thought was exorbitant road costs to the county administration.

"Hartford of Canada"

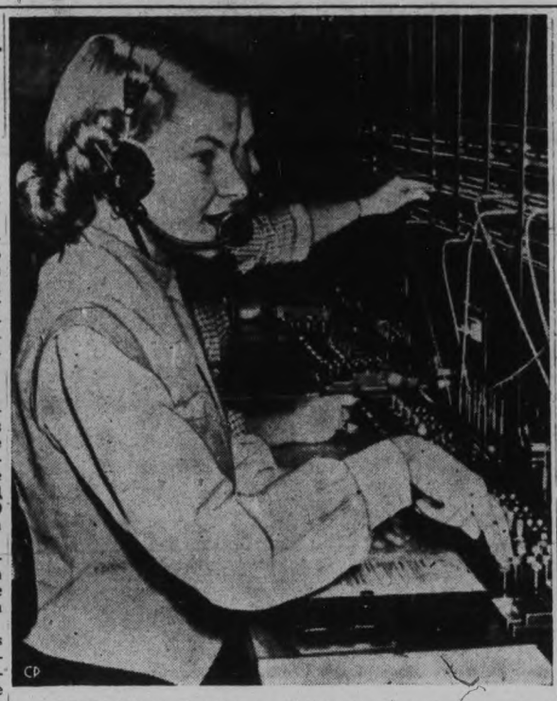
Although 44 factories are located here, the city is best known as the home of Canadian insurance and often referred to as the "Hartford of Canada." Six insurance companies now have their head offices here and employ some 900 persons—at least half of them from Kitchener.

Eighty-eight per cent of Waterloo householders own their own homes. Some of the homes are right on the boundary line between Waterloo and Kitchener.

A trolley service which operates in both cities is owned by Kitchener. Several years ago Kitchener's mayor was employed here while Waterloo's Mayor worked in Kitchener.

Last year the cities got together and each changed 20 street names which were duplicated. They had caused police, firemen and hospitals consternation for years.

Kitchener is in favor of amalgamation with Waterloo but residents here don't think it would be such a good idea. The issue flares up periodically but has never been given serious official consideration.



PARTY LINE—Residents of Waterloo, say their city has all but lost its identity from a telephone user's standpoint. Place a call from Waterloo to Kalamazoo and the operator tells the party at the other end of the line: "Kitchener is calling." Phone Waterloo from an outside centre and the operator will answer: "Kitchener," the twin city which overshadows its smaller but lively neighbor.

INSURANCE CAPITAL—The city of Waterloo is best known as the home of a number of insurance companies and often is called the "Hartford of Canada." Six insurance companies now have head offices in Waterloo, employing about 900, at least half of whom live in the neighboring Kitchener. Last year three of the companies wrote $208,000,000 in new business.

Editors Discuss Many Problems

WINNIPEG, May 17 (CP) — Managing editors of newspapers across Canada met here Friday to discuss common problems at the first Canadian managing editors' conference held in Western Canada.

Opening the conference, R. J. Churchill of London, Ont., president, said that with newsprint prices up most papers face retrenchment. The conference was being held to discuss mutual problems in making the best use of space available.

"That will be all to the good," he said. "Newspapers today waste space on useless words."

The use of textbooks in training staff was outlined by J. Leslie Wild, head of the department of journalism at the University of Western Ontario.

He agreed with the view that "you can't learn the newspaper business out of a text book," but urged greater use of books on newspaper work to help develop good reporters.

QUEBEC, May 17 — (CP) — Charles Frennette, of the C.B.C., said Friday that in a few years television in Canada will be a $100,000,000 business. Speaking at the annual convention of the Quebec Province Corporation of Master Electricians, Mr. Frennette said that in time television will overshadow radio.

Says Father, Son "Artful Frauds"

LONDON—(CP)—A father and son who once had a printing business in Toronto were described in court as "clever, artful frauds" who should be on trial.

Instead, it was stated, they are safe in Buenos Aires, living on the proceeds of a £500,000 share-pushing racket which left a trail of dupes around the world.

They were identified as Dr. Julius Gert, once a Doctor of Philosophy at Vienna University, and his son Peter Allan. There is no extradition in Argentina.

Operations of the Gerts were described at an Old Bailey trial in which Anthony Heckstall-Smith, 47, described as one of their dupes, was sentenced to 18 months' jail for fraudulently converting £3,500 paid for gold-mining shares.

Testimony at the trial said the Gerts travelled from country to country, living in high style and finding somebody to sell shares for them. They went to Canada but were told to 'eave after a series of alleged frauds.

In Toronto, it was alleged, the doctor bought a printing machine which he later used in pushing shares. Heckstall-Smith was also in Toronto, but later returned to Britain.

Try To Break Record

Student Protest Parades Now At An End Constable's Warning Subdues Children

VITTORIA, Ont., May 17 — (CP). — Pupils of Vittoria Public School, who paraded down the main street Thursday night protesting a move to dismiss their principal, were a subdued group today and planned no further demonstrations.

Constable William Newland told the children at school Friday about the consequences of throwing stones and bottles at the home of Gordon Oakes, one of the school trustees who has demanded the resignation of Principal William Orchard.

A large group of children bombarded the Oakes' residence Thursday night and eight-year-old Jane Oakes was hit by a flying fragment of glass and slightly injured.

Constable Newland said the argument was one for ratepayers and school trustees to settle.

Trustee Ambrose Franks, who with Oakes has asked Orchard to resign, said Friday night he took this stand to avoid the resignations of the school's two women teachers.

He said both Miss Jean Richardson and Miss Hilda Holding had threatened to resign at the end of the term if Orchard was not removed from his post.

Vittoria is 30 miles south of Brantford.

Ontario Municipal Board Will Set Tax In Belleville

Ontario Municipal Board will decide whether the city corporation of Belleville is bound by an agreement with Corbin Lock Company of Canada to maintain a fixed assessment of the company's property for ten years until 1959.

L. E. McLean testified Wednesday before two members of the board that when the company of which he is vice-president and general manger decided in 1945 to expand there had been some thought of moving from Belleville unless an assessment agreement was reached.

H. D. Bateman, assessment commissioner, wrote the company in May 1946 that the assessment of 1949 "should" continue for ten years.

Cost of the enlargement and remodelling of the plant was $450,000.

City solicitor R. A. Pringle said the Bateman letter did not say that the assessment would not be increased.

All Raised

Mr. Bateman told the Board in normal circumstances the Corbin assessment would not have been increased last year, but there had been the general reassessment of industry. "They were all raised together."

Mr. Pringle contended the letter was of no legal effect, and did not constitute a binding agreement. He said the legislature had passed legislation to protect citizens of a municipality from unauthorized acts of council, and that assessment could not be fixed without a vote of the people.

Peterborough has no fixed industrial assessments.

Medical Organization Purpose Outlined

TORONTO, May 17 (CP). — The chief purpose of a medical staff organization should be to make hospital facilities available to as many doctors in its area as possible, Dr. Glenn I. Sawyer, executive secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, said Friday.

He told the regional meeting of the American College of Surgeons that specialization has tended to confine hospital facilities to a comparatively small group of doctors, particularly in larger centres.

He visualized a modern community hospital where all doctors "feel they can earn the right to be a part of the active staff."

It would be a hospital where "privilege is granted on the basis of training, judgment, skill and experience."

Forest "Scalping" Blamed For Flooding

TORONTO, May 17 — (CP).— A Grimsby representative Friday blamed the "scalping" of forests in Northern Ontario and the draining of marshes in the south for a recent rise in the level of Lake Ontario.

In a submission to the Legisature's Committee on Water Levels, C. D. Bonham, representing the town of Grimsby and the townships of Saltfleet and Grimsby, urged that provincial and Federal authorities embark on a joint engineering survey aimed at checking erosion.

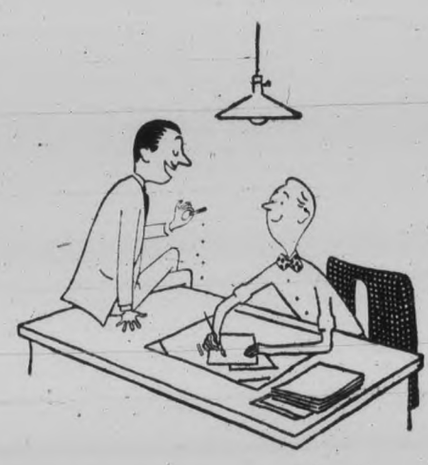
At last young Joe made up his mind,
"I'll buy a car one day."
Yet though he tried his best to save,
His cash still slipped away.



But fate stepped in this day at work,
A friend gave him advice,
"Just see the bank that service built"
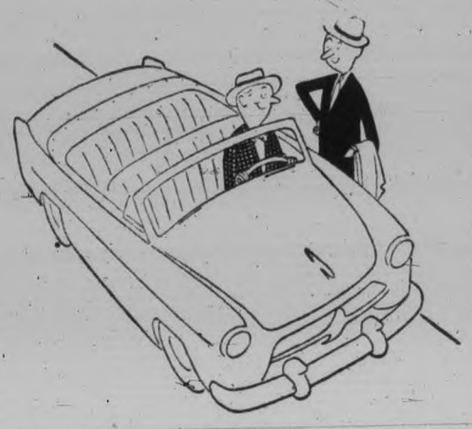
They'll help you save the price."



So now he drives all 'round the town,
And as he tells friend Milt,
"I owe it all to a Savings Plan,

Old People Live Together And Like It

TORONTO, May (CP).—An experiment in co-operative living for old persons undertaken in January, 1951, at Hill House has been so successful that its sponsor, the Julia Greenshields Memorial Home, plans to open a second such home.

Mrs. G. F. Boyer, president of the home's board of management, told the annual meeting recently that the new home already has a waiting list of elderly women. Further, the Church of England in Canada is so impressed by the results achieved at Hill House that it plans to sponsor similar homes as a diocesan project.

Hill House was undertaken to test the theory of its founders that single women of limited means can live together economically and happily on a co-operative basis, sharing both the expenses for the upkeep and the cooking and other household duties.

"We started with 10 ladies, and all but one of the original is still in the home," said Mrs. Boyer. "Two of the ladies look after the cooking each week which means that each one's turn comes every five weeks."

Moderate Rentals

Each guest pays $25 a month for her room except for two rooms on the top floor which are rented for $20. In addition, each contributes $5 weekly to the general purse for food.

Mrs. Boyer said the women are permitted complete freedom of movement and the home is merely a residence, not a supervised institution. They take part in outside activities and each has her own key. They have separate rooms, but share the well-furnished sitting-room and the lawns and garden.

In addition the women of Hill House are permitted to entertain their friends at tea and may have guests for dinner for a charge of only 25 cents. The average cost for board and room for each resident is about $50 monthly.

Mrs. Boyer said that when Hill House was opened it was felt that it could well be the forerunner of similar establishments, founded on the principle that elderly persons capable of functioning independently should not be put in institutions. It was hoped, she said that the success of Hill House would establish a pattern which will be followed not only by the Julia Greenshields Foundation but by other organizations as well.

Blind Girl 3rd In Dancing Class

VANCOUVER — (CP) — The judge didn't know, when she placed 10-year-old Lois Goodine third in a class of 20, that the little tap-dancer was blind.

Lois began to take tap-dancing lessons about a year ago and did her first solo after only 13 lessons.

At the British Columbia dance festival recntly, she entered a class of 20 between the ages of 10 and 13.

The judge, Helen Chase of Seattle, said she noticed something wrong with the little girl's eyes, but never suspected that she was blind when she marked the score card.

Lois, a student at the Vancouver School for the Blind, also plays the piano and the mouth-organ.

Business Women's Week May 19-24

Business Women's Week is to be celbrated May 19 to 24 throughout Ontario, and the slogan is "Keeping Pace With Canada." The purpose is to acquaint communities with the fine women who are members of the Business and Professional Women's Club and with the service they render to the community at large.

There are 68 B. and P.W. Clubs in Ontario with a total membership of more than 3,000. All have the same objectives: To improve the status of women; Gain for the business and professional woman the rate for the job and equality of opportunity; Give to her opportunities for friendship and activities in her own sphere of interest.

With the growing influence of women in political and economic life, Business and Professional Women's Clubs everywhere are doing what they can to inform their members of the issues of the day — locally, provincially and federally and with an eye on the international scene.

These women feel it highly important that their sex use the franchise intelligently and have informed opinions of issues which concern all segments of society.

The Peterborough B. & P. W. Club was organized January 31, 1935, and in one month's time had more than 90 paid members representing 27 occupations. Charter members who are still members include Miss Esther Thornton, Miss Leila Burgess, Miss Elsie Bennett, Miss Anne Jamieson, Miss Birdie Dawson, Miss Jean Horsfield, Miss Mina Edwards, Miss Aleitha Davidson, Miss Sara Eastwood, Miss Anne Deyell, Miss Helen Lytle, Miss Vida Foote, Miss Agnes Horsfield and Miss Myra Baird.

Celebration of Business Women's Week will commence with the regular dinner meeting of the local club Monday evening in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room when special program has been planned. The president is Mrs. Jean Watson.

Canadian Team Produces Musical Comedy

HALIFAX—(CP) —Nova Scotia and Alberta talents are joined in Canada's first musical comedy, an ambitious stage project made possible by the financial baking of radio station CJCH here.

Opening night in Halifax, June 23 will climax months of effort which for a time seemed doomed to frustration for lack of capital, until the radio station assumed responsibility. The currfent issue of "Canadian Broadcaster," devoted to the interests of private radio stations, quotes manager E. Finlay MacDonald of CJCH as saying "It's one of the most attractive musicals I have ever seen."

Titled "Bonanza," it's the brainchild of a hitherto unknown music-drama team formed several years ago in Alferta when the two principals, Chet Lambertson and Jim Richardson, were working in the oil fields there. Lambertson moved to Halifax and while teaching English at King's College began composing the music and lyrics. Richardson worked on the story line while in Vancouver.

More and more local talent joined in the enterprise until the production had about 60 entertainers signed for the 17 songs, four ballet numbers and three overtures, all original compositions. The Nova Scotia Ballet Company and the Nova Scotia Opera Association lent their support, along with other music and drama groups.

The singers, dancers, actors and musicians worked hard but had just about given up hope of ever seeing the production on the stage when backing was forthcoming from the radio station.

Producer of the show is Len Chapple, a CBC announcer here who had experience on the production staff of the Vancouver Diamond Jubilee in 1946. Lambertson makes flying trips to assist the work while taking a Doctor's degree in Philosophy at Harvard. Staff members of the radio station are working extra hours on promotion of the show.

Many Halifax organizations are behind the show, which expects to have no difficulty filling the 2,000-seat Capitol Theatre for the four nights and matinee performance making the first engagement.

The plot concerns a rags-to-riches tale of a poor farm family in Alberta who strike it rich when oil is discovered on their land. The large family presents various angles of the well-tried newly-rich theme. The lilting lyrics are all-Canadian.

DEAR MARY: Do enjoy your column and I'm always watching for new cookies as I keep four kinds in the house at all times for lunch boxes. The whitening of baby woollens using the peroxide method, I cut out and left it on the table but when I went to get it, it had disappeared. However with a 14 month daughter in the house anything could happen. So, could you print this again.

I know I'm rushing the season but I want to get a good mustard sauce that is thick and yellow to use for mustard pickle using cucumbers. My sauce is thin and pale and we don't like it. Also I wondered if you have the ingredients and amounts that go into a face pack I heard about. You use fine oatmeal, glycerine, rose water or lemon, make it in a paste, put on face and leave ½ hour. It contracts my pores and makes the skin soft and smooth. The girl who told me about it refused to give the exact amounts.

Now for my Bran Muffin recipe: 1 cup natural brown sugar, 1 cup vegetable oil, 2 eggs, ½ to 1 cup white flour (depends if large eggs used), 2 cups graham flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 level teaspoon soda, 3 heaping teaspoons baking powder (i.e. as much as a teaspoon will hold), ½ teaspoon mace, 1 1/3 cups milk. Mix the oil and sugar, add the beaten eggs (I use pullets so therefore use ½ cup flour) (for large eggs use 1 cup), add the milk and graham flour. Then sift white flour, salt, soda, baking powder and mace. Mix well. Currants and raisins also may be added. Bake in drop cake cups. Bake at 400 for 20 minutes. Makes approximately 2 dozen. Mrs. W. S. E.

ANSWER: See next Monday's column for recipes for pan cookies. As I recall the instructions for whitening woollens they were to be washed in suds made of best quality soap flakes dissolved in hot water, and cooled to temperature of hand. Rinse in water of same temperature. To a second rinse water add ¼ cup peroxide to each quart water—water being hand temperature. Let yellowed woollens stand in this second rinse for 10 minutes adding 1 cup hot water to keep it from cooling off, after 5 minutes. There is a bluing on the market "with luminess" helps whiten clothes and is recommended for woollens. Read directions on package.

Mustard Sauce For Mixed or Cucumber Pickles

Heat 3 cups vinegar, 2 cups sugar and 2 teaspoons celery seed to boiling point. Mix together ¾ cup sifted flour, ¼ lb. dry mustard, 1½ teaspoons tumeric, and then mix them to a paste by stirring in 2 cups water. Stir this into the hot vinegar mixture until thick. Add this to the prepared vegetables, cook uncovered 20 minutes, stirring constantly. Turn into sterilized jars and seal. (In using this recipe vegetables would have to be brined or given whatever preliminary steps your pickle recipe calls for.)

I do not have the forumla for the face pack you mention. I can give you though the formula for a glycerine cream that is designed to whiten and soften the skin: Pure white wax 1 oz.; spermaceti 2 oz.; oil of almonds 9 oz. Melt together over steam in a glazed earthenware vessel, and when blended stir in 3 oz. best quality glycerin and 12 or 15 drops attar of roses. Remove from heat and stir until cold. Pour into small cream jars to store, covered.

Maybe another of our readers will know the face pack to which you refer and send me the formula. If so I will print it in this column.

Feud Shows No Signs Of Lessening

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, May 17—(AP)—The rousing feud between Mario Lanza and Kathryn Grayson shows no sign of diminishing.

Insiders report that differences started during their two films together. Miss Grayson is said to have objected to Lanza's outspoken language on the set. The fires were fanned by a magazine article in which Lanza was asked how he felt about Miss Grayson.

He was quoted: "I'll always have a soft spot for Kathryn because she was in my first two pictures." Friends say the remark was made innocently enough but Kathryn hit the ceiling. Having been at M.G.M. for many years, she felt Lanza had been in her pictures.

Hot Quotes

She issued hot quotes, and Lanza took a stand-offish attitude. This week I asked her about her relations with Lanza.

"I like his wife Betty very much," she hedged, "also their two daughters and his mother and father."

"But what about Mario?"

"I objected to some of the things he did," she commented. "I'm sorry now that I did so publicly. It's not nice to air your animosities in public."

Cinderella Story

The Cinderella story of the year stars Mitzi Gaynor, young dancing sensation of 20th Century-Fox. A few years back, she was dancing in the chorus of operettas put on by the Civic Light Opera of Los Angeles. This summer she will star with Bobby Clark in a new production by the same group.

It will be a sentimental event for Mitzi. She started with the light-opera organization and came up through the ranks until she has a featured role in "The Great Waltz." The movies snapped her up from that show.

Finds Home On Range Among Scotland Highlands

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

FORT WILLIAM, Scotland — (AP)—Here in the dour highlands of Scotland, of all places, is a cattle ranch run by a Canadian ex-cowboy.

The cattle roam the range. A heifer with wanderlust would have to go as much as 10 miles to meet a fence.

The ranch, about 10,000 acres of mountain, glen, burn, heather and peat, is a five-year-old venture of Joseph William Hobbs, who learned his ranching more than 40 years ago near Calgary.

Hobbs has lived in Vancouver, where he built a skyscraper, and in Sault Ste. Marie, where as a boy he hold newspapers. Now he lives in Castle Inverlochy, near here, a wealthy man determined to teach the highlanders that one day out of their shabby economic state is to turn a lot of wild and craggy country into cattle ranches.

"Britain needs beef more than any country on earth," says Hobbs. "Why be so dependent on the Argentine when here in the wide open spaces of the highlands there is just the right kind of setting for the right kind of dogie?"

In 1945 Hobbs bought the busy Ben Nevis Distillery and the castle which has become his home. With cowboy tradition in his veins, he couldn't see the highlands go to waste, and in 1947 he bought 5,000 acres. The holding, all in one piece has been doubled since.

Hobbs turned down the old highland cow, long-horned, shaggy-coated and almost as sure-footed as a goat. The Highland cow manages to live comfortably in the 100-inch average yearly rainfall but doesn't have energy to spare to make impressive steaks.

In the west of Ireland Hobbs found the Connemara cattle, short-haired and accustomed to even colder weather than is usual in Scotland. He bred Connemara cows with Aberdeen Angus and Shorthorn bulls, and produced the young stock which now roams his range. Short-haired, the animals dry quickly after rain and devote their energies to making steak.

Hobbs' acres are called the Great Glen Cattle Ranch. There is a home farm, and scattered in the hills are a dozen other buildings.

The food, in addition to the hillside vegetation is silage mixture of oats, tare, peas and beans grown on the 300 acres of the home farm, and stored in silo trenches. At seasons of poor grazing many tons of it are dug out and transported to the valleys and hillsides with tractors.

The ranch is run on Wild West principles, but there are differences. Cowboy-in-Chief Charles J. S. Palmer, who retains his Scottish title of Factor, (Master of an estate) is a cowboy in a kilt. He can't remember wearing anything else. He rides daily on one of the ranch ponies.

In another respect there is a difference from North America — there is no roping of cattle. British law forbids it.

There is another difference—in Scotland cattle are not branded—they are tattooed on the ear.

But there are roundups. Three times a year the ponies go out to bring in everything on the ranch. One roundup is at weening time, when calves are separated from their mothers. Another takes place in June for a veterinary inspection and elimination of sick or weak animals. Then the important roundup is made to select the animals for the annual sales. The practice is to sell most of the stock as yearlings.

DOROTHY DIX

Home Town Vs. City Beau Big Problem

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I'm a young girl of 20, who came to a big city from a small town. Before leaving home, I became engaged to a boy who was a family friend. It was one of those things that started in childhood. He has a good bit of money and we have everything in common.

Through my job here, I met a young salesman whom I dated once in a while. As the weeks went by, we discovered we were in love. We try to overlook certain conflicts in our relationship. We are, for instance, of different religions. He has no money saved at all for the future. In fact, he just lives from payday to payday.

I would never have the security with him that I would with the one back home, but I can't give him up because I love him very much. What shall I do about the boy back home? He doesn't know about the one I've met up here.

IADELE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Is it possible that, coming to a big city and being somewhat lonesome, you have fallen for a handsome stranger and are mistaking good comradeship for love? I hope so, because my sympathy is all with the boy back home. If you went home, I think you'd find visions of your gallant salesman fading, and your childhood sweetheart speedily regaining his displaced spot in your heart.

Religious Difference Important

Commonsense is all on his side, too. The religious difference existing between you and your present beau will create a decided difficulty if you marry. Also, he apparently is not as careful of money as he could be — though very few young people can save much with today's inflated prices.

Why not go home for awhile and see how your heart reacts to the small-town boy?

Of course, if you are completely and absolutely convinced that you are indisputably in love with the salesman, the only honest thing to do is tell your erstwhile sweetheart at once. I do, however, urge you to go home, and make sure where your love lies.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am heartilly ashamed for the mess I've gotten into, and hope you can suggest some way out for me. I was married to a fine man who provided a good home and gave me everything I wanted. Then I fell in love with someone else, and eventually asked for a divorce, which was granted. Now the other man acts as if he didn't care for me and I doubt if he will keep his promise of marriage. Do you think there is any chance for me to be happy?

A. P. A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The trouble with you, my dear, is that "being happy" has always been your one and only aim in life. You have followed that will-o-the-wisp wherever it beckoned. There is no easy path to happiness; we get what we earn. Have you ever considered the well-being of someone else? Your treatment of your husband was shameful, and that another man should mete out the same heartbreak to you is nothing short of poetic justice.

You will find happiness in this world when you decide to be less self-centred and consider others for a change.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'd like to know what I can do for a young man who has been very nice to me. He goes to a church social every Monday evening, and will always drive me there when I want to go. On week ends he goes to his home town a few miles away. My sister lives in the same town and if I want to visit her he is always glad to take me. These trips save me quite a bit of bus fare, so I feel I should offer to pay him.

MARGARET L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Cynics to the contrary, there are lots of people in the world who are only too happy to do favors for others, with no thought of financial gain. Your friend is probably one of these. You might suggest paying half the gas when he takes you to your sister's. Be sure he wants to take you when you ask, and try not to overtax his kindness by making too many requests for transportation.

SWITCHED CAREER

Henrik Ibsen, the great Norwegian dramatist who died in 1906, was trained as an apothecary's assistant in his youth.

"THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME!"—for entertaining one or two friends or "the gang" after a hike or fun together.

FOR PARENTS ONLY:

Home Hospitality Important Especially To Adolescents

By NANCY CLEAVER

"The gang are going on a hike on Saturday afternoon. Could we give them iced drinks on their way home without too much fuss?"

✧ ✧ ✧

"Susan and Jean want to hear my new record. They are coming over right after supper Friday."

✧ ✧ ✧

"The fellows may drop in after the Scout meeting. How about some eats, Mum?"

✧ ✧ ✧

Home hospitality is valuable to a boy or girl at any age, but it is exceedingly important during the teen years. An adolescent is apt to know moments of insecurity about his place in his own age group. It is a great help to be able to ask "the gang" in at short notice or feel free to invite a special friend to enjoy music or a game or some other pleasure.

Informal entertaining is much less strain on a teen ager — and on the family, than a formal party. Any parent who is puzzled by the behaviour of a tall son or daughter when "company" is present should read or re-read that incomparable story "Seventeen" by Booth Tarkington. Turn to the chapter beginning "At Home to His Friends" for an amusing but painful picture of William's brain storm over dressing for the party for his best girl, "Miss Pratt."!

Lack of Friendliness at Home

Recent surveys in different communities have brought to light the "beef" of many adolescents about the lack of parental friendliness to their companions. A boy may be critical of his father's ways, of his mother's hair-do — but all the same he wants to know he can bring his chums in the front door with him. Almost-grown-up daughter may think a small brother or sister a perfect pest. She may judge her mother as sadly lacking in sophistication, but nevertheless she does want, from time to time, to invite her friend or friends into her home.

Fathers and mothers are seldom asked why they are so reluctant about endorsing an "Open House" plan for younger members of the family. They may be very busy, or worried by financial or health problems. They don't do much entertaining of their friends, so why should they bother about their children's chums?

Sometimes parents consider hospitality a luxury which costs too much. Boys and girls who are earning money in their spare time with paper routes, running errands, baby sitting, etc., should share at least half the bill of "eats" for the crowd.

Dad may think, with good reason, that mother's job of running the house is already too heavy. Added to her regular duties, cleaning up in the morning after a teen age "do" the night before is no fun for her. Son or daughter should be smart enough to see to it that mother does not find her kitchen looking as if a cyclone had hit it after "the gang" have dropped in!

An older boy or girl does not want mother hovering around after a late show giving directions about kitchen "clean up." With a little home encouragement, a son or daughter can organize some co-operation for a "wash-up" gang or tackle the job themselves after the company has gone home.

What's Right?

Someone is doing some work for you and you think it should be done in a different way.

WRONG: Say, "You're not doing that right. Here, let me show you how it should be done."

RIGHT: Be more tactful. Say, "I believe it would be better to do it this way."
